F. D. R. BLOCKING NO-STRIKE LAW, HOUSE WARNED

Labor Unity Parley Called a Sham.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—The failure of President Roosevelt's labor-industry conference to reach a basis for agreeing to restore lasting peace in American wartime industries, coupled with the senate's refusal to act on pending anti-strike legislation, brought heated outbursts on the floor of the house today.

Rep. Eugene E. Cox.

Charges were made that the conference between representatives of labor and management was inspired by the White House to forestall congressional action to deal with strikes and labor disorders. Rep. Eugene E. Cox [D., Ga.] said the whole affair is an instance of "candy pulling by the administration while labor is promoting a conspiracy against the people."

"The conference was arranged to circumvent congress," the Georgian declared wrathfully. "It was arranged by an administration whose labor record would be a disgrace to any country of the civilized world."

None from the majority side of the chamber replied when Rep. Henry C. Dworshak [R., Idaho] demanded:

"Who is responsible for our labor troubles and who had to call this labor-industry conference?"

"Chloroforming" Charged.

Rep. Howard Smith [D., Va.] took the floor to charge that his anti-strike bill, passed by the house on Dec. 3, has been chloroformed in the senate. The measure, approved by the house by a vote of 252 to 136, has been sidetracked in the senate labor committee.

The Smith bill provides for a secret strike vote before a walkout can become effective; outlaws jurisdictional and sympathy strikes and boycotts; makes stranger picketing illegal; sets up a 60 day cooling off period; and freezes existing closed and open shop conditions in arms plants.

It is regarded as the most stringent of the myriad anti-strike measures introduced in congress to quell the rising tide of labor disputes that put the preparedness program months behind schedule.

The Price of Peace.

Rep. Smith told the house today that labor is simply demanding the closed shop as its price for peace in industry.

"If they are permitted to carry out the closed shop what will happen after the war to the millions of men who are being taken into the army?" he asked. "When they want a job after the war, they will have to join a union. But the union can say to them, 'We can't take you because all our membership down the line isn't employed.'"

The senate, meanwhile, has two other, milder bills pending on its calendar for dealing with strikes. One provides for government seizure of struck plants, while another would require arbitration of all disputes.

Senate leaders have announced that none of the bills will be called up for action in the present session. Administration leaders have admitted privately they hope to avoid a clash with labor leaders over enactment of such legislation by securing voluntary "no strike" agreements as a result of the President's labor-industry conference.

Connally to Press for Action.

However, Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.] declared he would go ahead and press action on his bill for seizure of any strikebound plant and freezing of the existing union status in any plant.

"I am unwilling," he said, "to draft men and send them to war and leave their lives dependent upon the say of some little autocrat as to whether he will order a strike in a defense plant."

Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], a

DAY'S HIGHLIGHTS ON ALL FRONTS OF WARRING WORLD

American army forces were fighting Japanese invaders at Davao, on Mindanao island, today in what appeared to be one of the most important battles yet fought in the Philippines. Communications with Manila headquarters had been cut off since yesterday afternoon and the situation admittedly was "obscure." The German radio, quoting the Japanese high command, claimed "enemy resistance has been broken on Mindanao," but the latest American communique simply told of a landing in force after a preliminary air attack. On Luzon island, Japanese invaders were inactive.

Hongkong Still Holds Out.

On Hongkong island, off the China coast, a valiant British garrison still was holding out, its guns thundering intermittently from Mount Victoria. Even the Japanese praised the desperate fight of the Tommies, Canadians and Sikhs, the Domei news agency saying it "won the respect even of top Japanese."

To the south, on the Malay peninsula, British forces organized a new defense line well south of the Krian river, 300 miles north of Singapore. They were unhampered by Japanese attacks after smashing an enemy stab on the main road which winds thru the mountains.

Yanks Win in China.

Volunteer flyers from United States air forces scored their first victory for China in defense of the Burma road. They were reported to have shot down 4 out of 10 Japanese planes which raided Kunming. The Japanese claimed 5 out of 20 planes in the same attack.

Off Borneo, Dutch airmen in American planes hit two Japanese cruisers, a transport, and another warcraft in an attack on the invading forces at Miri, Sarawak. London said one cruiser later sank.

The Dutch news agency Aneta also claimed that 17 Japanese planes had sunk the Russian freighter Perekop in Dutch waters, killing eight crew members. "Serious consequences" were envisioned because of Russia's present neutrality in the Pacific war.

Axis Still "on Run."

Russia's swiftly advancing forces recaptured the key industrial and rail center of Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, and made gains against the Germans along the whole front. They also regained Voibokalo, south of Lake Ladoga, on the northern front, and dozens of villages.

In Africa, the retreat of axis armies taxed British pursuers. Imperial forces pushed 60 miles farther into Libya after capturing Derna and Mekili. The RAF inflicted heavy blows as axis forces fled toward Bengazi for a possible stand.

Price of Sugar Is 'Frozen' at Current Level

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—Sugar prices were "frozen" by the government today at current levels.

The Office of Price Administration placed temporary emergency ceilings on primary and wholesale prices of all forms of refined and other "direct consumption" sugar which it said should "remove any reason for higher retail sugar prices."

Announcing the order, Price Administrator Leon Henderson declared:

"The OPA has removed all possibility that retail outlets will be forced to pay more for their supplies of sugar.

"Hence there is no reason for American housewives to pay any higher prices for this fundamental foodstuff than they did before the attack on Pearl Harbor."

Price Regulations.

The price fixing order is effective immediately and applies to all cane and beet sugar products sold for direct consumption except blackstrap molasses, high test molasses, and cane sugar sirup.

It fixes maximum prices for sales by primary producers and, in addition, forbids wholesalers to raise prices higher than the highest price charged between Dec. 1 and Dec. 6.

Fine granulated sugar processed by United States cane sugar refineries, 5.25 cents a pound f. o. b. refinery.

Beet sugar manufactured on the continent, 5.15 cents a pound f. o. b. seaboard cane sugar refinery.

Offshore refined sugar, 5.20 cents a pound f. o. b. United States cane sugar refinery nearest to port of entry.

For partially or completely processed mainland cane sugar going into direct consumption, 5.15 cents a pound f. o. b. seaboard cane sugar refinery nearest to point of ultimate sale.

Raw cane sugar, domestic or imported, for direct consumption, 4.35 cents a pound United States mainland shipping point, including all taxes and duty.

Amends Stocks Order.

Meanwhile the OPM today amended its order freezing sugar stocks of large industrial consumers to permit those in hardship to obtain sufficient supplies to carry them thru the rest of this month.

Under the amendment, such manufacturers and distributors may obtain additional supplies up to 15 per cent of the average they used during September, October, and November.

READY TO OPEN FINAL STRETCH OF OUTER DRIVE

The second half of the Belmont avenue grade separation on the Outer drive is expected to be in use tomorrow afternoon.

The separation project, half of which has been in service since Dec. 6, will complete the final link in the park district's 100 foot express drive thru Lincoln park. It represents the finishing touch to a 15 mile outer drive stretch from Jackson park to Foster avenue, Chicago's only superhighway.

The highway was authorized in 1929. The program bogged down in 1932 because of lack of funds. After the consolidation of the city's parks in 1934, the park district obtained government funds and continued construction in coöperation with the WPA and PWA.

ADM. E. J. KING APPOINTED HEAD OF U. S. FLEETS

Airman in Command After Shakeup.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—Supreme command of the United States navy, wherever its operations may take it, was given today to Adm. Ernest J. King.

Adm. King [top] and Adm. Ingersoll.

With the appointment went the navy's recognition of the terrific power of the airplane in modern warfare, for King's career includes service with the air corps and he is an air pilot.

In addition, he has served with submarines as well as surface craft.

The appointment completed a widespread shakeup which began last Wednesday with the removal of Adm. Husband E. Kimmel from command of the Pacific fleet, pending an investigation of the navy's unpreparedness for the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Apparently it was a shakeup in organization as well as in personnel, for in his new post, King outranks the chief of naval operations, Adm. Harold R. Stark, and is to be responsible only to the secretary of the navy and President Roosevelt.

He has been serving as commandant of the Atlantic fleet, directing its patrol and convoy work for months before America's actual participation in the war began. Rear Adm. Royal E. Ingersoll, 58 years old, was appointed to that post.

[Ingersoll was jumped over the heads of a dozen seniors by the President in 1938 and made an admiral after completing a mysterious mission in London, which was believed at the time to have embraced a program of coöperation of the British and American fleets in the event of war.]

How Setup Is Changed.

Under the old setup, the chief of operations was in supreme command of the navy. Under him was the commander in chief of the United States fleet, with authority stemming from him to the commanders in chief of the various fleets. Kimmel, while in direct command of the Pacific fleet, was simultaneously commander in chief of the United States fleet.

Under the new arrangement, King will have charge not only of the navy afloat, its operating forces in the Atlantic, Pacific and far east, but also of the coastal defenses, and air bases off the coast.

King will not be relieved of sea duty, the navy said. His principal office will be in the navy department here but he will be "free to exercise personal command at sea as in his judgment circumstances made advisable.

What duties and responsibilities remain to the office of chief of naval

'SHORT AND SWEET'—THAT'S THE STORY OF WEATHER TODAY

Forecaster H. A. Downs predicted last night that today's weather will be short and sweet. The shortness comes from the annual winter solstice which occurs at 11:45 o'clock tonight and brings Chicago its shortest day of the year.

Because Forecaster Downs expects the sky to be clear and temperatures to be mild—up nearly to 50 in the afternoon—most Chicagoans will find it sweet.

The winter solstice occurs when the earth is tilted furthest away from the sun in its revolutions around it. Tonight at the time of the solstice the sun will be directly over the tropic of Capricorn in the southern hemisphere of the earth. Sunrise in Chicago will occur at 7:15 a. m. and sunset will be at 4:22 p. m.

ALLIED PARLEYS ON WAR PROGRAM PLANNED BY F.D.R.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Early formation of an interallied high command was foreseen tonight as President Roosevelt announced plans to bring the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, and other allied nations together to form a program to defeat the axis.

In a statement which disclosed the United States military mission in London has been working with British military leaders and that a British mission has been working with the American army and navy high commands, the White House said this form of joint planning soon will be extended to the other allies.

The announcement was seen as confirmation of reports that the formation of an interallied high command is in prospect and that allied military, economic, and political leaders will meet soon in Washington to plan the grand strategy of the war.

Early Cautions Reporters.

It is expected the conference of allied leaders, which would create the allied high command, will meet soon after Jan. 1.

Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, cautioned newspaper men not to speculate about the conference. He said speculation might lead to more rigid censorship. The warning was given when he was asked whether Winston Churchill, British prime minister, or Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, would attend.

Today's White House statement said the interallied war plan, so far as it effects Britain and the United States, is being formulated by the two military missions.

Liaison to Continue.

"For some time, as has been hitherto intimated by the President, the United States military mission in London and the British joint staff mission in Washington have been in close contact with their opposite members in both places," the White House statement said.

"This liaison will continue for a short time until the joint planning for unity of action can be extended to Russia, China, the Netherlands, and other governments engaged in the common cause of defeating the axis. Steps toward this objective are under way.

Officer of Air Force.

Gen. Chaney, who is 56 years old, is an officer in the air force. A graduate of West Point in 1908, he saw service in France during the World war. In the air service, he has commanded air schools, air fields, and training centers. He also has served as assistant chief of the air corps, in the war plans section, and has represented the United States in various air conferences, including the disarmament conference in Geneva.

Adm. Ghormley, who is 58 years old, was graduated from the naval academy in 1906. He has been assistant chief of staff of the fleet, director of the war plans division of the navy department, and assistant chief of naval operations.

LEAHY REPORTS PETAIN TO STAY OUT OF JAP WAR

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—Adm. William D. Leahy, American ambassador at Vichy, has reported that the French government under Marshal Henri Phillipe Petain has announced its "intention of maintaining an attitude of neutrality in the present conflict."

Gaston Henri-Haye, the French ambassador here, told newspaper men at the state department several days ago that he was informing the American government that France would remain neutral in the war embroiling the United States, but today's announcement was the first official declaration to that effect.

ADMIRAL WARNS OF STRIKE PERIL IN NAVY PLANTS

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP).—The navy said tonight it had received unconfirmed reports that two oil tankers had been attacked by submarines off the California coast, and that one had sent out an S O S.

One report, the navy disclosed, was that the 6,912 ton tanker Emidio was fired on off Blunt's Reef, near Eureka, Cal., and that it sent out distress signals after smoke enveloped it.

The other report was that the 6,771 ton tanker Agwiworld was attacked off Cypress Point, about 100 miles south of San Francisco. It reportedly escaped and reached a haven along the nearby coast.

"The navy does not deny, but it cannot confirm these reports," said Rear Adm. John W. Greenslade, commandant of the 12th naval district.

An S O S Is Reported.

At the naval district headquarters an aide to Adm. Greenslade said it had been reported without confirmation that the Blunt's Reef lighthouse had picked up an S O S from the Emidio.

Blunt's Reef is some 200 miles north of San Francisco, and thus approximately 300 miles north of Cypress Point, where the other alleged attack was reported to have occurred.

Earlier, Adm. Greenslade had disclosed that enemy submarines were preying on shipping off the California coast as he took quick steps to assure uninterrupted production in shipyards.

In a formal statement he appealed to the welders at shipyards who have threatened a nation-wide work stoppage, to remain on their jobs to assure quick replacement of all lost shipping.

Dispute Over Dues.

Some welders stopped work today in a dispute with American Federation of Labor unions, but several thousand others remained on the job. The dispute arose when the welders said they were required to pay dues in several unions before being permitted to work on jobs falling into other labor classifications.

The admiral went to Richmond, Cal., late this afternoon and found 1,200 men, who were to go to work at 4:30 p. m., milling about the gates of the Todd-California Shipbuilding corporation.

The admiral called Heber Brown, business representative of the United Welders, Cutters and Helpers of America into conference and asked him to urge the men, among whom were several hundred welders, to go to work.

Brown addressed the workers and recommended that they remain out.

Men Flock Back to Work.

Then a loudspeaker car, bearing Jack Reynolds, business agent of the Alameda County Building Trades council, and B. E. Brown, business agent of the Structural Iron Workers, drove to the plant. Reynolds and Brown both spoke, urging the men to enter the plant and take up their tools. C. P. Bedford, general superintendent for Todd-California, added his voice to the appeal.

After much argument among the workers a little knot of 10 or 12 men broke away and entered the plant. A half dozen more followed. Then, in groups of 5, 10, 15 and 20 the workers moved thru the gates. Finally only 20 of the original 1,200 remained. About 20 others were believed to have gone home.

Adm. Greenslade said that if any disturbance developed at the plant he would ask the army to provide troops to protect workers. Officials at the nearby Richmond Shipbuilding corporation said all their men had reported for work.

EASTERN WARNING ISSUED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The navy department disclosed today that enemy submarines have been operating off the Atlantic coast.

The information was made public indirectly in a navy statement emphasizing the necessity of curtailing weather reports.

It was indicated that American patrol craft, either surface or aircraft

RAPIST CAPTURED IN STORE ADMITS FIFTEEN ATTACKS

Fifteen rapes or attempted rapes were confessed last night by a young man of 18, seized on the northwest side after one of his victims had seen him on the street. So anxious was he to boast of his exploits that he identified as his victims three women, brought into Jefferson Park station to view him, before they could name him.

The rapist is David R. Steffey, 4818 North Kostner avenue, where he lives with his parents. He has been attending Wilbur Wright Junior college.

Steffey was arrested by Detectives Edward Schumacher and John Carlson after Allen Benjamin, 4604 North Kildare avenue, had called the station to say his wife, Mary, 20 years old, had recognized the young man as the one who had seized her by the throat and beaten her on the night of Nov. 28 when she was parking the family car in the garage behind their home.

Trail Him Into Store.

Benjamin and his wife trailed Steffey into a store and waited there for police, to whom they pointed him out. Mrs. Benjamin then went to the station and identified him at the preliminary showup. Five other women named Steffey as the man who had attempted to rape them. Two identified him as a rapist.

Before the Jefferson Park showup was over, Miss Lillian Bergquist, 26, of 2505 Winnemac avenue, was brought in by Summerdale police to view Steffey. She identified him as the man who attempted an assault on her last Wednesday night. Hers was the seventh case to be reported in the Summerdale district in which the women were seized in the same painful fashion by their attacker. Miss Bergquist signed a complaint against him. The Summerdale rapist has been sought nearly a week for questioning in the brick slaying of Mrs. Bergit Kyvik. Her body was found at Thome and East Ravenswood avenues.

Detective Joseph Bedelli, who has been working on the Steffey case for weeks, produced a picture last night drawn by a young woman art student whom Steffey attempted to assault Nov. 5. She is Miss Muriel Larson, 17 years old, of 4855 Argyle street. Her screams drove her assailant away, but not before she had caught a good sight of his face. The sketch proved almost a perfect likeness, Bedelli said.

14 Sex Crimes Reported.

Since August 14 sex crimes have been reported to Jefferson Park police, most of them attributed to a person answering Steffey's description—wide shoulders, 6 feet tall, and weighing about 165 pounds. A dozen more have been brought to police attention in Albany Park, just to the east. Police said more victims probably did not report attacks on them.

After facing the women last night in Jefferson Park station, Steffey was taken to Albany Park to be looked at by other women victims. A special showup was planned for today.

U. S. TAKES OVER STATE AGENCIES ON JOBS JAN. 1

The Illinois state employment service and the state unemployment compensation agencies, which are to be turned over to the federal government at the request of President Roosevelt, will begin operation as federal agencies by Jan. 1.

Eugene J. Brock, regional director of employment security, is expected to meet with officials of the state agencies in Chicago Tuesday morning to complete plans for the switch to federal control.

The request by the President for the governmental operation of these state agencies was made to coördinate means of supplying man power for defense. The transfer will include the government's control of a 280 million dollar unemployment compensation fund which Illinois has been administering. This fund has been accumulating under the social security act since July 1, 1937.

DANCER'S SLAYER WINS ACQUITTAL IN APPEAL COURT

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Ontario Court of Appeal unanimously directed acquittal today of Howard Philbrook, 21 year old meat salesman, originally charged with murder and sentenced to 12 years imprisonment after being convicted of manslaughter in the death of Charlotte [Bubbles] Adair, dancer.

Philbrook admitted stabbing Miss Adair but claimed he struck the blow in self-defense after he himself had been stabbed.

REFUSAL TO LET PLANES TORPEDO BISMARCK BARED

Admiral Insisted Fleet Must Destroy Her.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 [Special]. —The mighty German battleship Bismarck, sunk in the North Atlantic last May 27 after an epic running battle with the entire British home fleet, would have been the first superdreadnaught to be destroyed in combat by airplanes except that Adm. J. C. Tovey, who was in charge of the British pursuers, refused ta allow waiting air squadrons to go in and make the kill.

This "inside" story of the Bismarck's destruction four days after it had sunk the battle cruiser Hood, has been told to naval experts here by a ranking royal air force officer now in the United States with a British mission. This officer said torpedo planes on both the aircraft carriers Ark Royal and Victorious had waited in vain for the admiralty's authority to finish off the Bismarck after it was finally halted 400 miles off Brest, France.

Five battleships and battle cruisers of 30,000 tons or better had pounded the Bismarck with all their guns for hours. Altho disabled and unable to steam, the Bismarck was still afloat and fighting back with secondary batteries. It was at this time that the naval air units begged Adm. Tovey for permission to make their attack with torpedoes and finally sink her.

Orders Destroyer Attack.

The admiral refused point blank. Then he ordered an attack on the Bismarck by three destroyers. This, according to the RAF account, was unsuccessful due to the Bismarck's strong resistance with 5.9 and smaller batteries.

Reports from Berlin following the sinking said one British destroyer was sunk and another set on fire in this encounter.

The RAF account said that when the destroyers withdrew Adm. Tovey passed the honor of the sinking to the light cruiser Dorsetshire, 9,975 tons. It is a violation of almost all naval precepts to risk a ship of this size in a torpedo attack when destroyers are available.

The Dorsetshire closed with the Bismarck and fired eight torpedoes. She was later given credit for making three hits and causing the Bismarck finally to sink. But the Dorsetshire also took a pounding from the Bismarck's secondary guns, and was in dry dock for weeks afterward for repair of the damage done.

Air Officers Complain.

The pilots and executive officers of the Fleet Air Arm—equivalent to our own Naval Bureau of Aeronautics—were bitter in their complaints to admiralty officers at being held in check.

The fleet air arm flyers recalled that air reconnaissance had first reported on May 23 that the Bismarck and the Prinz Eugen had sailed from Bergen, Norway, and thus started the original chase. Aircraft from the two aircraft carriers had harried her for 1,750 miles. Their torpedo attacks had resulted in slowing her burning pace toward safety and left her without speed to escape the slower home fleet.

Twice the pilots had picked up her trail after surface pursuers had lost her completely. The final time this was done after she had been apparently in the clear for 48 hours. But all their claims went for naught.

The RAF officer also offered new details of the Hood sinking. This officer said the British navy had long known of the power of the Bismarck. A rule had been laid down that no single British battleship was to engage her. This was the strategy in sending out both the Hood and the Prince of Wales in the initial effort to intercept her in the Strait of Denmark.

Once on the trail, the Hood drew ahead of the Prince of Wales and sighted the German first. The Bismarck opened fire at the extraordinary range of 32,000 yards—over 18 miles. The first salvo hit the Hood, which continued nevertheless to close and opened fire itself at 31,000 yards. The Bismarck's second salvo fired at 28,000 yard range penetrated the Hood's magazines and blew it out of the water. This is the record range at which a battleship was sunk, the previous record having been 18,000 yards—10.2 miles—during the battle of Jutland, when the Germans sank the Queen Mary and the Indefatigable.

The Bismarck was free following the Hood engagement until planes from the carrier Victorious scored two torpedo hits and slowed her down. A second air attack from the Ark Royal's planes damaged the Bismarck's steering gear and propellers and left her helplessly circling on the ocean.

Ten New Craft Slide Into Water in One Day.

Ten ships slid down the ways at ceremonies in shipyards in various parts of the United States yesterday. Destroyers, submarine chasers, cargo ships and tankers were represented in the launchings, many of them going into the water far ahead of schedule.

At the Charleston navy yard, Charleston, S. C., two new 1,700 ton destroyers, the Tillman and the Beatty, were launched within two minutes of each other to bring the launchings this year to five for the year. Two more destroyers are under construction there.

Launch Two Subchasers.

Two submarine chasers, the PC-489 and the PC-488, were launched in Brooylyn at the yards of the Sullivan Drydock and Repair company, and keels were immediately laid for others. Another chaser, the PC-485, was launched at the Consolidated Shipbuilding yards, New York.

At the British-financed Todd-Bath shipyards, South Portland, Me., the first two cargo carriers of a fleet to augment Britain's supply lifeline, were launched under the sponsorship of Lady Gerald Campbell, wife of the director, of British information service in the United States, and Mrs. Sumner Sewall, wife of Maine's governor. They are the Ocean Freedom and the Ocean Liberty, both 10,100 ton vessels.

New Export Line Craft.

Completing a $30,000,000 program of the American Export line, the 8,600 Exiria slid down greased ways at the yards of the Bath Iron works, Portland, Me.

The Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock company of Chester, Pa., launched the 9,600 ton motorship, Shooting Star, a 16 knot freighter for the United States lines four and one-half months after the keel had been laid.

At Camden, N. J., the 13,000 barrel tanker, George Whitlock, built in the yards of the R. T. C. Shipbuilding corporation for Ira S. Bushey Sons, Inc., of Brooklyn, was launched a month ahead of schedule.

'U. S. WILL REGAIN PACIFIC CONTROL' —COL. M'CORMICK

Foresees a Great Fleet of Airplane Carriers.

Altho it is "all too plain" that control of the Pacific "has passed to Japan," the United States can look forward confidently to gaining command of the sea and winning the war by converting passenger ships into a great fleet of airplane carriers, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, asserted last night. Col. McCormick spoke from W-G-N and over the Mutual Broadcasting system during the Chicago Theater of the Air hour.

"Command of the sea in the future will be command of the air over the sea, and this will be obtained by that navy which has the largest number of airplanes and the largest number of airplane carriers," said Col. McCormick.

Ahead in Aircraft Carriers.

"The British and ourselves have a considerable preponderance in airplane carriers at the present time, and beyond that we have in passenger ships that can be converted into airplane carriers, potentially, a vastly greater fleet of modern ships than has the axis.

"Our merchant ships will knock out the battleships of Japan just as the merchant ships of England knocked out the battleships of Spain.

"We have on our impregnable continent the facilities for building airplanes and the facilities for changing merchant ships into aircraft carriers, so we can look forward with confidence to our gaining command of the sea and winning the war so treacherously begun."

TEXT OF THE ADDRESS

The text of the address:

"The sinking of our ships in Pearl Harbor by airplanes recalls to mind the revolutions in warship design since the Greeks put out to sea in galleys. These galleys were rowboats—large enough to ride the seas of the Mediterranean—and were mobile in any weather because they were driven by man power. They sought victory thru ramming each other and breaking each other's oars. Galleys dominated the seas for over 1,000 years.

"Then the Portuguese built the first seagoing ships. They were not designed to be warships, but to resist the waves of the open ocean.

"This necessitated so strong a construction that the ships were invulnerable to the attacks of galleys.

"Thus the galley's long dominance of the sea passed away by accident.

War Fleet Built by Spain.

"King Philip of Spain had his military engineers design a special fleet to attack England. Its sole purpose was to make war. At that time the Spaniards were the world's dominant soldiers and sailors.

"Against this professional fleet, the English sent a motley squadron of merchants, slave traders, and pirates.

"Just as the gangsters of a few years ago discovered the importance of the submachine gun long before the generals, so Drake and Frobisher and their associates had procured much better guns than the Spaniards and their merchant ships were better fighters than the Spanish battleships. The merchant ships destroyed the warships.

Drake Type Long Dominant.

"The Drake type of ship then, having taken the ascendancy, held it for centuries. Ships were enlarged and refined, but there was no essential change in them until the advent of steam.

"This innovation was resented by the sailors. They treated the engineers as inferiors and would not sit at table with them. The sailors even boasted that they did not know anything about steam engines. Steam engines were successfully resisted on the ocean by the sailors long after their adoption for river navigation.

"The American frigate Merrimac had been partly burned and then sunk off Norfolk. When the Union forces evacuated that place, the Confederates raised it, cut away its upper works and built a superstructure of iron plates. The United States navy did not try to convert any of its wooden ships into ironsides.

First Battle of Ironclads.

"On the morning of March 8, 1862, the steam frigates St. Lawrence, Roanoke, Minnesota, and Congress, and the sailing sloop-of-war Cumberland were anchored off Newport News. It was a lovely day of the early spring. The ships swung easily to their cables; the small boats wabbled over the tiny waves as they tugged at the painters that held them fast to the widespread booms. The wash clothes, on well filled lines stretched in the rigging, fluttered in the gentle breeze. There was nothing to indicate that any officer had any care or thought of the ironclad ship. As a matter of fact, they did not give the ironclad a serious thought, for they were conservatives. In consequence, the Cumberland was sunk, the Congress burned, and the other ships run aground. The wooden steamship was relegated to history in half a day.

"By the next morning the Monitor had arrived—an iron ship with a revolving turret. There ensued a long battle between the two ironclads, in which the victory went to the Monitor because the Merrimac, after returning to port, did not come out again. Thus was the battleship born.

"During 80 years battleships have been enlarged and refined, but in principle they are the same as the Monitor.

Self-Propelling Torpedo.

"Robert Whitehead invented the self-propelling torpedo. Small, fast torpedo boats were devised to bring the torpedoes within range of their objective. Their greatest success was in the Japanese surprise of the Russion fleet at Port Arthur before the declaration of war in 1904.

"The first submarine invented during the Revolutionary war sank no ships, but its presence in New Haven was enough to drive away the British fleet. In the Civil war the Union blockading vessel, Housatonic, was sunk by a Confederate submarine propelled by oars.

"Submarines were highly effective in the last World war. They now vary in size from the French Surcouf, 360 feet long, down to the little two man submarines of the Japanese, which were among the surprises to our navy in Pearl Harbor.

Planes Underrated by Navy.

"As with the army in the early days, the navy could see no value in airplanes excepting for observation. Altho the German air force drove the British navy out the Skagerrak and away from the coast of Norway, Rear Adm. Clark Howell Woodward on Nov. 13, 1940, said at a meeting of the Academy of Political Science in New York:

"'As far as the aircraft are concerned, they have done no severe damage to battleships or armored cruisers. They have sunk a few torpedo boats and done some damage to the upper works, but the decks of battleships are constructed to resist 16 inch armor piercing shells and therefore are automatically protected against any bomb that is used today or that will be used in the near future.'

"This was two days after the British flyers had sunk three Italian battleships and several cruisers in the harbor of Taranto.

Plane Disables Bismarck.

"After the German battleship Bismarck had sunk the Hood, she was in a good way to make her escape from the British surface fleet when she was found by an observation plane. She was then attacked by a torpedo plane from the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal and rendered helpless.

"These actions and the battles off Norway and Greece made it appear plain that the air-borne bomb and torpedo had rendered the big battleship obsolete, but still old line naval officers would not face the fact.

"On June 14, 1941, I made a statement that tragically turned out to be a prophecy. I said:

"'You can realize that officers who have spent their lives studying and creating the science of gunnery feel just as the galley and sailship officers felt when a new invention appeared to render all of their study useless; that they are tempted to resist the adoption of this new mode of warfare, event to the extent of their own destruction.'

Japan Controls Pacific.

"Two weeks ago tomorrow Japanese airplanes and submarines surprised our fleet in Pearl Harbor. The extent of the damage has not been made known, but the ban placed on buying rubber and the transfer of air mail for the far east to the Atlantic route make it all too plain that control of the Pacific has passed to Japan.

"A few days after our catastrophe, the British ships Prince of Wales and Repulse, escorted by torpedo boat destroyers but without airplanes, were sunk by Japanese airplanes.

"Still later, altho greatly outnumbered by the Japanese and flying inferior planes, our army and navy flyers have destroyed one Japanese battleship and seriously injured another.

"These feats evidence the superiority of the plane over the battleship almost as much as they do the incomparable heroism of American flyers.

Planes to Dominate Sea.

"Command of the sea in future will be command of the air over the sea, and this will be obtained by that navy which has the largest number of airplanes and the largest number of airplane carriers.

"The British and ourselves have a considerable preponderance in airplane carriers at the present time, and beyond that we have in passenger ships that can be converted into airplane carriers, potentially, a vastly greater fleet of modern ships than has the axis.

"Our merchant ships will knock out the battleships of Japan just as the merchant ships of England knocked out the battleships of Spain.

"We have on our impregnable continent the facilities for building airplanes and the facilities for changing merchant ships into aircraft carriers, so we can look forward with confidence to our gaining command of the sea and winning the war so treacherously begun."

BOMB RAIDS UNLIKELY IN CHICAGO, ENGLISH AVIATION EDITOR SAYS

William Courtenay.

Chicago is so far inland that it is unusually safe from enemy air raids, in the opinion of William Courtenay, London aviation editor and a British pilot in the first World war. On the other hand, he warned, its location is no protection against sabotage.

Courtenay, who spoke yesterday in the University club, predicted that both Germany and Japan will attempt air attacks on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

"Japan," he said, "might deliberately risk the loss of an aircraft carrier in an attempt to bomb west coast airplane plants. Hitler might send over big bombers to drop explosives on New York City to create a 'war of nerves.' It would be necessary, however, for his pilots to abandon their ships after a bombing and to bail out and accept capture as the price; they could not, of course, fly back."

'BABES IN TOYLAND' GIVEN

The operetta presented last evening was Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland," with Marion Claire, soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, in the leading rôles. They were supported by Ray Charles and Ruth Slater. William A. Bacher was producer of the entertainment.

U. S. TRANSFORMS NEWFOUNDLAND INTO GIBRALTAR

Draws on the Midwest's Skilled Workmen.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Passed by the United States army and navy censors and by the British imperial censor.]

Second Article.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland [By mail].—Newfoundland, rocky shoulder of the North American continent thrust out toward Europe, today is changing from an isolated abode of fishing folk into a mighty fortress. It is a defense bastion for the protection of the left or northern flank as one faces eastward.

The Stars and Stripes are flying today where the British Union Jack once held full sway. The United States obtained a foothold here thru the trading of the 50 destroyers to Britain in exchange for defense base sites in her colonies of the western hemisphere.

Today the caribou and moose are lumbering back into the pine forests while American bulldozers, tractors, and steam shovels clumsily fashion airports, drill grounds, barracks, and naval facilities.

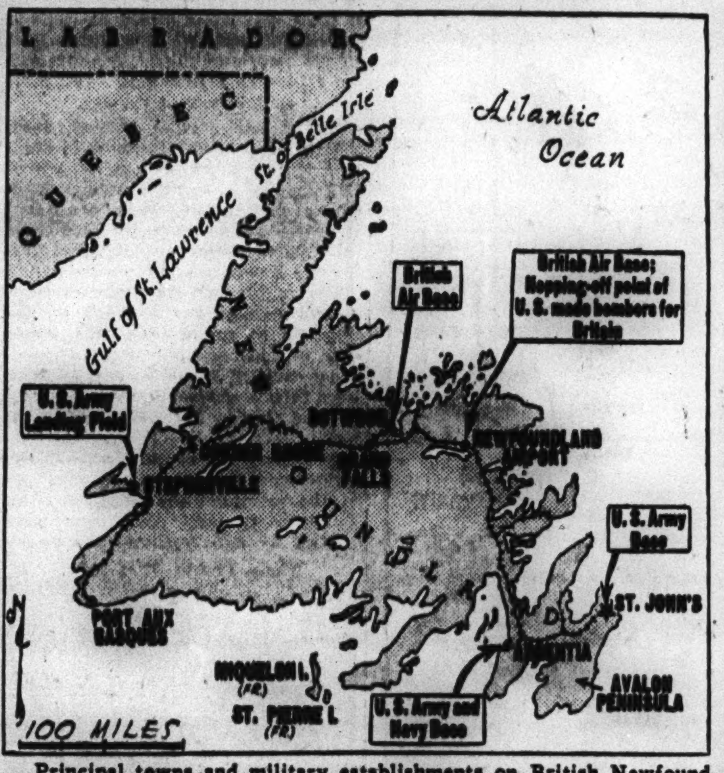
Patrol Planes Above.

Overhead there is the constant motor throb of patrol planes. When they dive down low toward their new bases the ptarmigan, or local partridge, with feathers now turned white for protective camouflage against the snowy landscape, whirs into the underbrush.

American warships are nosing their iron gray prows into harbors where the fishing schooners, with their tan, patched sails, and salt incrusted decks still smelling of the cod, put in for haven after their stormy voyages.

Commanding the American army forces in Newfoundland is Maj. Gen. Gerald Clark Brant. A popular commander, Gen. Brant has been something of an army "trouble-shooter," having served at 11 different posts the last 14 years.

Newfoundland and Its Bases



Principal towns and military establishments on British Newfoundland, where American forces are also based.

Colonel Pioneered Job.

Guiding genius on the construction of all the army bases is Col. Philip G. Bruton of the corps of army engineers, who pioneered the job. Bruton, a native Californian, doesn't seem to mind the Newfoundland weather and hops around from one base to another with amazing energy.

When the army first began its occupation of Newfoundland about a year ago, living and health conditions in some sections of the island shocked even the most hardened officers.

Tuberculosis is prevalent, which army doctors ascribe to lack of proper foor for many people in this poverty stricken land. After inspecting the dairies, the army condemned them all because the herds supplying the milk had not been tuberculin tested.

Two Dairies Approved.

It wasn't until August that the troops began to get fresh milk. Now two dairies have come up to the standards.

On the other hand, the venereal rate is lower, the doctors think, than in many of the posts back in the United States.

Army engineers, and American contractors carrying out the defense projects on a cost plus a 10 per cent fee basis, have been faced with inadequate transportation facilities, shortage of labor and plenty of unfavorable weather.

Roads are extremely poor. One main highway between two towns which military traffic uses a great deal is so chucky that carsickness is a common complaint. Even one of the captains of an American battleship, who had walked the bouncing quarterdeck most of his life without a squeamish moment, became ill on this land trip.

Shaped Like Triangle.

Details on transportation problems and what is being done to solve them fall within the category of military secrets.

Newfoundland is an island and shaped roughly like a triangle. The seacoast is scalloped by bays, coves, fjords, "gues" [narrow inlets], capes and peninsulas, which wind and stretch the shoreline for more than 6,000 miles. Not a spot in the country is more than 70 miles from salt water.

To the north the land is separated from Labrador and the Eskimos by the strait of Belle Isle, 12 miles from shore to shore at the narrowest point.

Southwest lies Nova Scotia across the 97 miles of blue water called Cabot strait after John Cabot, the Genoese explorer chartered by King Henry VII. of England. Searching for the northwest passage of fabulous Cathay in the "goode ship Matthewe," Cabot discovered Newfoundland in 1497.

Technicians from Midwest.

St. John's, the capital city, is located on the Avalon peninsula at the southeastern tip of Newfoundland. It was here on Signal hill, one of the headlands at the harbor mouth, that Marconi in 1901 conducted his successful experiments in sending wireless messages across the Atlantic and paved the way for radio.

Most of the foremen, technicians, and skilled workmen are being drawn from the middle west. Army engineers said the reason was that the central part of the country had not received as large a share of defense contracts as other sections and thus had a larger reservoir of labor available.

Common labor needs have been supplied by the native Newfoundlanders, whose principal occupation before hemispheric defense was fishing. With the arrival of cold weather, many of the Newfoundlanders have quit the construction camps to return to their home fishing hamlets and spend the rest of the winter hibernating with their families.

Domestic Help Scarce.

Nevertheless, domestic help is almost impossible to obtain, so great has been the lure of high American wages. The Newfoundland hotel lost 42 employés to the American contractors. Clerks have walked out of stores in droves and even public services have been drained.

It is indicative of the new era in Newfoundland that this year the country did not ship its usual allotment of Christmas trees to the United States. There was no labor available to chop them down and haul them to the ports.

A story of the progress of the American bases and defense installations cannot be told within the rigid framework of the army and navy censorship. It must suffice to say they are not standing still.

The bases here include: Fort Pepperell, army base near St. Johns; army post and naval operating base at Argentia, and an army air field at Stephenville. There are troops and defense installations at other points thruout the country but their disposition cannot be revealed.

Work Under Lights.

At one of the American bases, some distance from St. John's, work is going forward day and night. Huge portable flood lights, attached to their own generating plants and run by gasoline engines, are trundled out at nightfall and bathe the area in light nearly as bright as day.

Barracks are modern, well heated, comfortable. Special asbestos shingles cover the exterior. The quarters are luxurious compared to some of the old barracks at various posts in the United States, but observers who have seen this country firsthand agree that American troops who garrison this outpost deserve a few comforts.

Contractors working on the army projects include: Al Johnson Construction company of Minneapolis and New York; Nick Helmers company of Minneapolis; McWilliams Dredging company of Chicago, and the A. Guthrie company of St. Paul.

DEC. 21, 41

Fighting to throw back a Japanese landing at Davao in the southern Philippines and new British defense action in Malaya were among the highlights of war news from the far east yesterday.

BULLETIN.

New York, Dec. 20.—The German radio tonight quoted the Japanese high command as saying in a joint communique of the army and navy that "enemy resistance has been broken on the Philippine Island of Mindanao."

MANILA, Dec. 21 [Sunday] (AP).—Army headquarters announced today that due to communication difficulties the situation at Japanese invaded Davao, on Mindanao Island, is obscure No word has been received from there since yesterday afternoon.

A brief communique disclosed that an aerial bombardment was carried out against Davao by the Japanese before they sent a considerable force of troops ashore Saturday at dawn.

The announcement said the situation remained unchanged on Luzon Island, where the Japanese have established small beachheads on the north, northwest, and southeastern coasts.

Presumably the Japanese came ashore in fairly substantial forces and informed sources here believed the Davao campaign may develop into the most important land battle yet in the Philippine archipelago.

Heretofore initial Japanese landings have been unopposed by ground troops, except at Lingayen, northwest of Manila on Luzon Island, where the Nipponese were pushed back into the sea last week.

The island defenders were just as well prepared to meet the Japanese at Davao, 600 miles by land and sea from Manila, as they were at Lingayen. In addition, fierce, knife wielding Moros who inhabit Mindanao by the thousands are expected to aid the regular military forces.

Davao Commands Sea Route.

The Americans have taken a heavy toll of Japanese ships, planes, and men but have made no concerted effort so far to drive out the invaders at three points in Luzon. The reason, it is pointed out, is because these three footholds are remote and lack major strategic importance. But at Davao it appeared a determined fight was shaping up for that route commanding a short cut sea route to Borneo on the southeast.

The Japanese at Davao apparently have in mind an attempt to release interned Japanese "civilians," thousands of whom are believed ready to fight at their side.

In a communique yesterday the far east command said heavy fighting was in progress to repel the invaders at Davao.

Land from Four Transports.

The invaders swarmed ashore from four transports off the southernmost of the larger islands at dawn, a bulletin from the headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced. They were engaged almost immediately by defense forces.

[The Japanese announced in Tokio that their troops were driving inland on the Island of Mindanao after a dawn landing. The Japanese claimed six American planes were shot down and five others on the ground set afire in an air attack yesterday at Delmonte. No such town is listed in gazeteers. Eight other American planes were reported destroyed in attacks on Nichols airfield and other camps, and two more planes, a hangar and an oil depot destroyed in Thursday's attack on Iloilo, Panay Island.]

The Japanese chose one of the recognized danger points in Philippine defense for their newest attack. The greatest part of the Japanese population in the Philippines is concentrated at Davao, a hemp growing center. The Japanese population at Davao has been placed as high as 25,000. They are reported to own more than 50 per cent of the arable land at Davao, and similar percentages of other industries.

Japanese bombers again swarmed over Manila soon after noon, but most of their explosives aimed at Nichols airfield fell wide of their mark into Manila bay, and the army described the attack as a light one.

Sailors Tell of Escape.

Thirty sailors who arrived here today after a tortuous, 250 mile overland journey from the port of Aparri said poor naval and aerial marksmanship caused the Japanese to use considerable ammunition to sink their interisland passenger freighter during the Japanese attack on Dec. 10.

The sailors said they escaped from Aparri despite the attempt of the invaders to round them up. Their nine day journey over rough, forbidding country included one 86 mile hike thru a mountain wilderness inhabited only by fierce Kalinga tribesmen.

At the time of the attack, the sailors said, their vessel was anchored at the mouth of the Cagayan river. Immediately, they said, they were bottled by two Japanese destroyers.

Three Bombs Miss Ship.

"They started shelling our boat but luckily they were poor marksmen and missed us again and again," the sailors said.

The vessel's captain, who led his surviving shipmates to safety, said Japanese planes dropped three bombs which missed the vessel. As they left Aparri, he said, he heard an explosion and saw a column of smoke which he assumed marked the end of his ship.

The entire crew made their way out of Aparri without drawing enemy fire, the captain continued, but were continually forced to elude truckloads of Japanese soldiers.

Another Transport Sunk.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The navy reported today that a United States submarine had sunk "an additional enemy transport." No details were given but earlier this week it had been announced that a submarine had sunk one enemy transport and probably a destroyer.

The navy department also reported that Cavite, naval base in the Philippines, had sustained a heavy bombing raid at noon Friday and while this attack caused "some damage to property," there were only "light casualties" to American forces and civilian personnel.

The last 36 hours have seen a great increase in the patrol activity of the forces on Luzon, with scouting parties apparently searching for any soft spots in the U. S.-Filipino front. The intensified operations led to conjecture here whether the Luzon forces were ready to open a major attack synchronized with the Mindanao operation.

FIGHT OF BRITISH FOR HONGKONG WINS JAP PRAISE

Garrison Still Holds Out at Bloody Sacrifice.

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP).—Written off by the generals as hopeless, the magnificent defense of Hongkong was prolonged tonight by the bloody sacrifices of a garrison of fighting men thrown together from two sides of the world.

Even the Japanese, in sudden praise of the last stand of the band of British Tommies, Canadians from Manitoba and Quebec and bewhiskered, stoic Indian Sikhs, admitted in a broadcast tonight:

"Then, in an unusual tribute, the news agency Domei added: "They have fought desperately in a manner to win the respect of even the top Japanese."

Waiting for the end, authorities in London said it would be a miracle if the colony, a rocky square of England in the orient for a hundred years, did not soon pass entirely into Japanese hands.

British Encircled on Peak.

The Japanese say they have the city of Victoria and that lorries flying the scarlet ball of the rising sun are roaring thru the streets, packed with disarmed British soldiers; that the cannon on Mount Davis, dominating a chain of forts eastward, have been silenced; that remnants of the British garrison are encircled on the peak of the island, Mount Victoria.

None of this detail was confirmed in any degree in London. The colonial office limited its announcement during the day to this terse and dramatic communique:

"The governor of Hongkong reported by telegraph this morning that operations are proceeding on the island. The governor wishes it to be known that the Japanese story that he left is entirely false."

Veteran Colonial Administrator.

Sir Mark Aitchison Young is the governor—a 55 year old colonial administrator who has served his empire from Trinidad to Tanganyika. He also is commander in chief of the tired and tattered forces of defense.

This news, a spokesman said, "shows that some troops are still fighting." At the end of the day he added:

"If we hadn't lost the Prince of Wales and the Repulse [capital ships sunk last week off Malaya] it might have been different. Now, apparently, we haven't the strength to get a relieving force all that distance. Surrounded by hostile seas on one hand and hostile land on the other, Hongkong's position is as hopeless as her fight is magnificent."

Other spokesmen held no hope that poorly equipped Chinese troops, battering by day and night at the back of the Japanese forces on the mainland opposite Hongkong, could exert enough pressure to relieve the garrison.

Attack Japs from Rear.

The Chinese did, however, report that they had raided Shumchun, on the outer mainland border of the crown colony, Friday, destroying Japanese defenses, burning down the railway station and exploding an ammunition dump. This, a Chungking dispatch said, forced the Japanese to withdraw troops from the Hongkong mainland area to fight the Chinese northeast of Shumchun.

Hongkong came under full siege at dawn last Sunday, when the Japanese, having occupied the mainland part of the colony, launched a ferocious offensive by air and land. They fought their way across the mile wide strip of water to the island heart of Hongkong Thursday night under cover of dive bombing and artillery barrage. Twice Hongkong flung back at the Japanese ultimatums demanding surrender, saying finally the garrison would accept no more.

Expect Surrender Shortly.

TOKIO, Dec. 20 [Official radio recorded by Associated Press].—A Domei broadcast today indicated that "full capitulation" of the British garrison at Hongkong was expected today or tomorrow.

The Japanese already were said to have captured more than 500 vehicles, 22 big oil dumps, supplies of rice, flour, and medicine. The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking corporation's main office was destroyed, and big fires were raging in the colony. Large oil tanks near the Tiakoo docks, it was stated, have been blazing since Thursday.

Domei forecast the rescue within a few hours of 40 Japanese residents of the island, including Consul General Seiki Yano, who are believed to be safe in British custody.

FILIPINOS WHO LOOK LIKE JAPS NO LONGER HIDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 20.—When the Japanese were being rounded up in the Philippines at the start of the war, several well known Filipinos with Nipponese features went into hiding, fearing they might be mistaken for enemy fifth columnists.

Public opinion was strong against local Japanese. Among the refugees among their own countrymen were the advertising manager of a popular magazine, a leading lawyer, and a banker. Practically all since have reappeared at their offices, altho they still avoid being seen alone on the streets.

MacArthur Warns Manila Looters of Death Penalty

MANILA, Dec. 20. (AP).—An increase in looting caused Gen. Douglas MacArthur today to issue a public warning that persons found guilty face the death penalty. Fourteen persons had been arrested in Manila for looting the homes of evacuees and interned Japanese. MacArthur said the offenders would be subject to military trial.

ORDERED TO MAKE REPAIRS.

William E. Meyers, owner of property at 117 East 25th street Friday was given until Dec. 31 to make repairs to a building at that address. Judge Frank E. Donoghue imposed a $200 fine, but agreed to vacate it if the repairs were made by Dec. 31.

BRITISH FORMING NEW SINGAPORE DEFENSE LINES

SINGAPORE, Dec. 20 (AP).—British imperial defenders of the distant approaches to Singapore methodically organized a new line today in northwest Malaya without hindrance from the Japanese invaders, after smashing an enemy stab on the main road which winds thru the mountainous interior.

The new line was being reorganized well south of the Krian river in Perak state, some 300 miles above Singapore. The tactical problem involved a slight further withdrawal. [It seemed likely reorganization of these defenses might include bringing up of some of the reserves not yet used in the fighting in Malaya.]

Japs Refrain from Attack.

Today the Japanese left the British strictly alone, following yesterday's clash at Grik, a highway settlement in the mountains northeast of the main British line. In this sharp encounter, a communique said, 60 Japanese were killed. There were 15 British casualties.

At Singapore, a council for coördinating the British defense effort in the Malayan theater was being organized by Alfred Duff Cooper, British cabinet minister for the far east. It includes the British governor-general of Malaya, Sir Shenton Thomas; Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, commander in chief of all British Far Eastern forces; Vice Adm. Sir Geoffrey Layton, commander of the far eastern fleet; V. G. Bowden, representing the commonwealth of Australia, and Sir George Sansom, Britain's foremost expert on Japan.

Claim Japs Crossed Krian.

BERLIN, Dec. 20 [Official Radio Recorded by Associated Press].—The German radio, quoting what it said were Tokio reports, said the Japanese had crossed the Krian river.

Penang Occupied, Say Japs.

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP).—Japanese imperial headquarters announced today that Penang, island settlement off the northwestern coast of British Malaya, was occupied last night and that the advance on the adjacent mainland continued. The Tokio broadcast was heard by Reuters.

The British acknowledged yesterday the abandonment of Penang, saying the garrison was safely removed to another sector.

W. W. YEN, EX-ENVOY TO U. S., IS REPORTED SEIZED IN HONGKONG

Dr. W. W. Yen.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 20 (AP).—A DNB [Official German news agency] dispatch from Nanking said today that W. W. Yen, former premier of China and Chinese minister to the United States, had been captured by Japanese troops who overran the mainland portion of Hongkong.

Dr. Yen, 64 year old alumnus of the University of Virginia, has been one of China's foremost diplomats and administrators for 20 years. He has held the posts of premier and foreign minister on several occasions and has been ambassador to soviet Russia and minister to Britain and Germany as well as to the United States. He represented China at several League of Nations sessions and international conferences.

Several Chinese leaders had made their homes in Hongkong in recent years. Some of these, including Finance Minister H. H. Kung and Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the republic, were flown to safety in the Chinese interior shortly after the Japanese siege began.

FUNERAL HELD, PARENTS LEARN SAILOR IS ALIVE

Belleville, Ill., Dec. 20 [Special].—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Rauschkolb of Belleville, parents of a sailor for whom funeral services were held here last night in the American Legion home, were notified today by the navy department that their son, reported lost in action last week, is alive.

The son, John A. Rauschkolb, has been found among survivors of a naval action in the Pacific, the navy announced. In the wire last week, the navy said funeral services would be held near the scene of action if the body was recovered.

INJURED IN "L" ACCIDENT.

Max Ridao, 42 years old, Filipino, of 4824 Winthrop avenue, was taken to County hospital Friday with severe leg lacerations sustained, police said, when he alighted from a moving elevated train at the Marshfield avenue station.

MALAYA BIGGEST ALLIED SOURCE OF VITAL RUBBER

For Size It's the Richest British Possession.

British Malaya, thru which the Japanese army is attempting to drive a spearhead to conquer the great fortress and naval base of Singapore, is the richest British possession for its size.

From this narrow finger of land extending southward from Asia toward the rich islands of the East Indies, comes 45 per cent of the world's rubber and 35 per cent of the world's tin. In addition, the area produces substantial quantities of coal, gold, valuable timber, and agricultural products. The annual foreign trade tops half a billion dollars.

The northern part of the peninsula is occupied by Thailand and Burma. British Malaya itself consists of three types of political organizations—the Straits Settlements, the Federated Malay States, and the unfederated Malay states.

Crown Colony Extensive.

The Straits Settlements is a crown colony of Britain, and includes Singapore, Malacca, Penang Island, and the province Wellesley. It also includes Christmas Island and the Cocos Islands, all in the Indian ocean, and Labaun, an island off the coast of Borneo.

The Federated Malay States, native principalities ruled by Britain, consist of the states of Perak, Selagor, and Negri Sembilan, on the west coast of the peninsula, and Pahang on the east coast. Negri Sembilan is itself a federation of small states.

The unfederated Malay states, ruled by sultans who presumably enjoy autonomy but actually follow the dictates of Britain, are Johore at the southern tip of the peninsula, Perlis and Kedah on the west coast, and Trengganu and Kelantan on the east coast. In 1914 the sultan of Johore obligated himself to follow the "advice" of a British general adviser.

Half of Populace Chinese.

Altogether British Malaya covers more than 50,000 square miles. The population of approximately 5,500,000 is about half Chinese. The predominant religion is Moslem.

In the Federated Malay States 1,688,000 acres are devoted to rubber plantations. British Malaya's exports of rubber in 1939 were valued at more than 200 million dollars. Of the 1937 revenue of the Federated Malaya States, 31.6 per cent was contributed by the export tax on rubber and 11 per cent by the export tax on tin. The 1939 tin output was 51,090 tons.

In the Straits Settlements the government, strangely enough obtains about one-fourth of its revenue from the sale of opium to registered addicts, of which there are about 35,000. The opium eaters constitute 5 per cent of the Chinese population.

Thruout the Malay states Japanese spies have been in evidence for many years. The Japanese also have flooded the peninsula with cheap textiles, and they own and operate several iron mines in the state of Trengganu. Chinese laborers in the mines have gone on strike repeatedly.

West Coast Easier to Invade.

Apparently the British have been forced to relinquish the state of Kedah, the province of Wellesly and Penang Island to the invading Japanese. Penang is one of the principal ports of the peninsula. Kedah produces rubber, coconuts, and tapioca, but its principal crop is rice. These settlements all are on the west coast, where the terrain is better suited to invasion than is the swampy, malarial east coast area.

British Malaya's principal strategic importance is as a buffer guarding Singapore from capture by land, but the loss of the peninsula would also have a serious long term effect on the allied war effort. It would mean the loss of the allies' greatest single source of the rubber needed for the wheels of commerce and mechanized armies.

Hear Puppet Chinese Army Mutinies Against Japs

CHUNGKING, Dec. 20 (AP).—Ten thousand Chinese troops of Japan's Nanking puppet régime mutinied near Chengchow just south of the Yellow river on the night of Dec. 16 and killed or wounded 1,000 Japanese troops, Central News agency reported tonight. Later the mutinous troops dynamited a section of the Peking-Hankow railway. The fighting was said still to be in progress.

REVEAL 20 JAP SHIPS ENGAGED IN PHILIPPINE RAID

Officer Cited for Attack on All of Them.

Twenty or more Japanese naval vessels, including two heavy cruisers, several destroyers, and submarines, took part in one of the attacks on the Philippine islands from Dec. 8 to 10, it was revealed yesterday.

The revelation came officially from Gen. Douglas MacArthur at Manila in announcing the award of the distinguished service cross to 13 heroes of the engagement, three of whom lost their lives in battle.

In the citation of Second Lieut. Jack K. D. Dale of Willoughby, O., Gen. MacArthur said:

"Into a concentration of anti-aircraft fire from the ground and from approximately 20 hostile naval vessels, including two heavy cruisers and several destroyers and submarines and other army enemy craft, Dale led his flight in repeated attacks and entirely disrupted a strong effort by the Japanese forces. His exhibition of courage, leadership and unflinching devotion to duty in the face of great odds resulted in silencing three anti-aircraft guns and destroying numerous barges with a consequent high toll of invaders and providing an inspiration to the pilots and other personnel."

Kelly Died to Save 6.

The awards also revealed that Capt. Colin P. Kelly Jr., who became the number one hero of the war by destroying a Japanese battleship, lost his life in the flaming crash of his bomber after ordering his crew of six to bail out and save themselves.

"While his airplane was a focal point of fire from strong hostile naval forces, Capt. Kelly exhibited a high degree of valor and skill, placing three direct hits upon an enemy battleship resulting in its destruction," the citation said. "En route to his home airfield his airplane was set on fire by an attack of two enemy fighters. This officer ordered his crew to bail out. Six men saved themselves thereby, but Capt. Kelly, the last to leave the burning plane, was killed in the resulting crash."

"While Williams was on duty in the vicinity of his airplane," the citation said, "a severe aerial bombardment occurred. Not waiting for orders, he ran to his airplane and opened fire on the attacking dive bombers which were bombing and strafing. He courageously and effectively maintained his fire until killed by a burst of fire from a hostile machine gun."

First Lieut. Samuel H. Marrett of Atlanta, Ga., took part in action near Vigan on Dec. 10, said the citation.

Dove Into Jap Transport.

"Lieut. Marett courageously led his squadron with markedly inferior armament in a concentrated attack on an enemy transport. Against a fury of protective firing he and his comrades strafed and restrafed the invaders, causing great panic and destruction upon the troops packed on ships. Two transports burst into flames. In one final and successful straight dive against a third transport his airplane was caught in the resulting blast of the exploding transport and together with the intrepid pilot was destroyed."

Capt. Jesus A. Villamor of the Philippine air corps was cited for two separate incidents.

On Dec. 10 "in the face of heavy enemy fire from strong air forces, Capt. Villamor led his flight of three pursuit planes into action against attacking Japanese planes," the award said. "He routed the attacking planes, thereby preventing appreciable damage at his station."

Leads 6 Planes Against 54.

Capt. Villamor was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster for leading six pursuit planes on Dec. 12 against 54 Japanese bombers.

"By this heroic action against an enemy with enormous odds, part of the attacking planes were driven off, one of the enemy planes being destroyed by the fire from Capt. Villamor's plane," the citation said.

Capt. Villamor was born Nov. 8, 1914, youngest son of the late Ignacio Villamor, Supreme court justice and first Filipino president of the University of the Philippines. From his hardy Ilocano stock has come a family of soldiers, two of his uncles serving as colonels in the insurrection against the United States while his father participated in the revolution administratively. Villamor was a licensed transport pilot when he was called into the army as a third lieutenant and sent to Randolph field, Tex., to study military aviation. At Randolph he was promoted to second lieutenant, graduating in 1938.

Villamor went straight from the battle to his widowed mother and found her praying. Leaving her, he asked his two brothers to take him to the theater to see "Hold Back the Dawn."

First Lieut. Joseph Moore of Spartanburg, S. C., was cited for the following feat on Dec. 10:

"In the face of heavy destructive bombardment of his airdrome by an overwhelming number of enemy bombers and pursuit planes, Lieut. Moore led the pilots of his squadron, getting four airplanes into the air and into combat with five of the enemy before gaining fighting altitude.

"Inspiration to His Command."

"In the same engagement he dove fearlessly into a group of enemy planes on observations. He destroyed two enemy planes and completely routed the rest. This display of courageous leadership served as an inspiration to the personnel of his command."

Third Lieut. Joseé Gosar of the Philippine air corps engaged one of "a greatly superior force of attacking Japanese planes" on Dec. 10, the citation said, and when his guns jammed continued the attack by attempting to ram his opponent.

"By his display of courage and leadership and after a series of such manuevers he forced the Japanese plane to flee without further attacks against the airdrome," the award said.

First Lieut. Grant M. Mahoney of Vallejo, Cal., volunteered for a vital night mission Dec. 10, his citation showed, "in thick weather, during a complete ground blackout and in the face of severe ground fire from strongly held positions. Lieut. Mahoney secured information which was needed for a subsequent successful bombing attack.

Endangered by Own Bombs.

"Again on the following day, returning from a bombing mission near Legaspi in which he destroyed an enemy flying boat and strafed an enemy held radio station, this pilot landed his airplane with bombs hanging from an improperly functioning bomb release in preference to bailing out."

Sergt. Anthony Holub of Coronado, Cal., went thru a heavy aerial bombardment at an undisclosed airdrome Dec. 8 and "immediately ran to his airplane and returned the machine gun fire of the subsequent attacking plane from the top turret guns of his airplane.

Ran for More Ammunition.

"After exhausting the supply of ammunition, he ran thru heavy strafing fire to a nearby damaged plane from which he removed as many ammunition cans as he could carry and returned to his guns, where he continued to fire on attacking aircraft."

Private Joseph G. McElroy of Philadelphia, also was in the Dec. 8 bombing.

"Instead of seeking shelter, McElroy ran to his machine gun position on his grounded airplane and in the face of devastating bomber and aerial machine gun attack which followed courageously and successfully defended his airplane. In the line of his fire, one hostile plane crashed in flames and two others withdrew from the attack emitting dense trails of smoke," his citation read.

Private Robert L. Endres of Faribault, Minn., during the Dec. 8 bombing "at his own initiative ran to a nearby abandoned truck and despite a rain of aerial machine gun fire and bursting bombs proceeded about the air field, collecting wounded who were lying in the open.

"Filling the vehicle with casualties, he proceeded to the station hospital, unloaded the wounded and returned to the field. With complete disregard of his own safety, Endres made seven such round trips each with a cargo of casualties, despite continual bombing and strafing. His heroic action under tremendous odds saved many wounded from further mutilation or death."

Second Lieut. Randall D. Keator of Campti, La., on Dec. 8 was one of three officers in a pursuit flight, the citation showed.

"When attacked by nine Japanese planes, he attacked the three nearest enemy planes and quickly brought down one of the first hostile planes in air combat in the Philippines.

Stimulus to Others.

"He then imediately joined the general combat which he and his companions downed two more enemy planes.

"His example of unhesitating action against heavy odds served as a tremendous stimulus to others laboring under the stress of the surprise hostile attack on the first day of the war."

Second Lieut. Carl P. Gies of Salem, Ore., on Dec. 10 was gaining altitude for patrol over another field, accompanied by one other pilot, when he received a radio report that his own field was being strafed.

"Altho he realized he was greatly outnumbered and with complete disregard for the great personal risk involved this pilot [Gies] dove thru the overcast into the midst of more than 20 hostile craft and downed one enemy airplane," the citation said.

"Upon rejoining his companion airplane, they immediately were attacked by three enemy fighters. Gies' furious attack sent one raider crashing and dispersed the two remaining enemy airplanes. His skill and determination further enabled Gies to fly his badly damaged plane back."

The official announcement said First Lieut. Boyd Wagner of the air corps also is to be cited for the distinguished service cross "but there has been some delay in obtaining the exact facts." He is credited with shooting down three Japanese planes and destroying 17 on the ground.

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 20 (AP).—The international air force, composed exclusively of flyers who resigned from United States air forces to defend the Burma road, had its first clash with Japanese warplanes today and shot down four of them, it was reported here tonight.

The American flyers were said by high Chinese quarters to have encountered ten Japanese planes detailed to raid Kunming, important terminal on the Burma road, and shot four of them out of Yunnan province skies without a loss to themselves.

Details of Fight Missing.

Details of the first action of the international air force were not available here. Long in process of organization, its strength and equipment are secret.

It is led by a retired United States army officer, Col. Claire L. Chennault, whose title is "commander of first AVG"—AVG standing for American Volunteers Group.

Nearing 51, quiet, dark, and wiry, Col. Chennault four years ago gave up a life of retirement in southern Louisiana to be an adviser to the Chinese air force.

Recruited Force Himself.

A former army aviation instructor and a recognized aviation expert, he traveled extensively over the country, and some months ago began recruiting the international air force.

Establishment of the force on Chinese soil presented many peculiar problems. Suitable accommodations with modern plumbing had to be prepared for the pilots, and cooks engaged who could supply "U. S. A. chow." Special care had to be taken to safeguard the health of the flyers, especially against malaria, which is widely prevalent in Yunnan province.

Uses "Crazy" Fight Tactics.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 20 (AP).—Col. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the daring 1st American volunteers group which blasted Japanese planes out of the sky over the Burma road today, employs a pursuit plan based on a snap roll on top of a loop. "The craziest maneuver ever known," said other flyers. The colonel was said to have devised it while barnstorming in air shows.

Japs Claim Five Planes.

Tokio, Dec. 20 [Official broadcast recorded by Associated Press].—A Domei news agency report from a Japanese army air base in French Indo-China tonight said five out of 20 planes were shot down today by Japanese raiding Kunming. The dispatch said the planes shot down included Curtis P-40's [United States] and Spitfires [British].

HOOSIER NAVAL ELECTRICIAN IS REPORTED DEAD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The navy department today reported that four enlisted men who disappeared from a small boat off the naval air station at Sitka, Alaska, on Dec. 13, are believed to have drowned.

The men were listed as: Arthur L. Taylor, 45, boatswain's mate, second class, Seattle, Wash.; Roger M. Hill, 27, machinist's mate, second class, Havre de Grace, Md.; Martin J. Dooley Jr., 21, carpenter's mate, second class, Tacoma, Wash., and Orval L. Stewart, 25, electrician's mate, third class, Farmersburg, Ind.

All except Stewart were members of the naval reserve. Stewart was enlisted in the regular navy.

Japs to Bare 'Important Diplomatic' Stand Today

TOKIO, Dec. 20 [Official Radio Recorded by Associated Press].—The Japanese crown council met with Emperor Hirohito at the imperial palace today and later it was said that the government would make "a statement on an important diplomatic affair" at noon tomorrow.

DIES IN DRUGSTORE.

Samuel D. Eisendrath, 79 years old, former owner of a tannery at Racine, Wis., died of a heart attack yesterday in a drugstore at 63d street and Woodlawn avenue. He had been living at 6141 Dorchester avenue.

DUTCH HIT FOUR JAP WARCRAFT IN BORNEO AIR RAID

Fly U. S. Planes in Fight; Foe Bombs Towns.

'Japs Sink Red Ship'

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, Dec. 20 (AP).—Seventeen Japanese planes bombed and sank the 4,200 ton Russian freighter Perekop in Dutch waters, "an attack which may lead to serious consequences" since Russia thus far has been neutral in the Pacific war, the news agency Aneta reported today.

Eight Russian crew members were killed while 32 others, including the captain and 3 women, were rescued. The freighter was running between Vladivostok and Surabaya, Java, the agency said.

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, Dec. 20 (AP).—Direct bomb hits on two Japanese cruisers, a transport, and another warship presumably used as an aircraft carrier were reported officially tonight by Dutch airmen operating big American bombers of Japanese occupied Miri, Borneo.

[The Exchange Telegraph reported in London that one of the Japanese cruisers hit yesterday subsequently sank, and Reuters announced from Batavia that a cruiser and transport were left ablaze by the Dutch airmen.]

Admit Losing One Bomber.

Other explosives rained alongside the Japanese ships as the Dutch pilots twice attacked the invaders who are seeking to reinforce their toehold on the Sarawak coast, which is adjacent to British and Dutch Borneo, the agency Aneta said.

Another Japanese cruiser was reported hit last Wednesday, hence the Dutch asserted three enemy cruisers had been put out of action in less than a week by their flyers.

Jap Bombing Toll Grows.

Meanwhile the Dutch announced that the death toll in Terempa, Anambas Islands, had risen to 65 as a result of two Japanese attacks last Wednesday and Thursday, but said little damage resulted.

In Pontianak, Dutch West Borneo, the civilian population was evacuating the city after a series of Japanese attacks which killed 20 persons and injured 150.

Pontianak is a defenseless town, officials said, and Japanese planes apparently taking off from their newly established Sarawak base dropped 50 bombs on it. One wiped out a Dutch-Chinese school.

FIRST STORY TOLD OF HOW INVADERS CAPTURED VIGAN

Find Police the Town's Only Defenders.

BY VINCENTE A. PACIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 20.—Delfin Lachica, a transportation man who fled from Vigan [on northern Luzon island], tells the following story which evidently is typical of the enemy procedure in the occupied areas of Aparri and Legaspi:

The Japanese column at Vigan was opposed only by a handful of insular police. Japanese planes landed, took Vigan, occupied the public buildings, burned the local money and issued their own currency, closed non-Japanese stores, and posted a notice that individuals leaving the town would be shot.

Liberate Jailed Japanese.

Their next move was to liberate the local Japanese who had been arrested the day before, and then to call a public meeting on administration.

A prosperous Japanese merchant was made puppet governor of the province. He ordered the town mayors to continue in office.

A Japanese named Hara, an itinerant soda pop peddler who was revealed as Maj. Hara of the Japanese army, either eluded arrest or was liberated from the jail. Reports indicate that he held the rank of major thru the years when he apparently was a harmless retail merchant in Vigan.

Constabulary Overpowered.

The following version of Vigan's capture was related by Dr. Crecenciano Talvera, who watched from a church tower in Santa Maria, a few miles from Vigan:

A column of several Japanese transports appeared on the horizon off Vigan on Dec. 9. Landing parties were put ashore immediately and attacked with rifle and machine gun fire. There was no aerial barrage, altho there was aerial support from two flat decked ships which might have been aircraft carriers.

The defendin gforces consisted of bombers which harassed the transports, scoring several direct hits. The 49 constabulary men who fought the landing soon were overpowered, altho they fought bravely.

REDS RECAPTURE INDUSTRIAL KEY; DRIVE SPEEDS UP

Volokolamsk, Rail Center Near Moscow, Taken.

MOSCOW, Dec. 21 [Sunday] (AP).—Plunging forward with accelerated momentum, the Red army's grand offensive has captured the key industrial and rail center of Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, and registered other gains from Finland to the Sea of Azov, the Russians announced today.

The town of Voibokalo, south of Lake Ladoga, on the northern front, and dozens more villages on the Moscow front have been reoccupied, the soviet information bureau communique announced last midnight.

With soviet forces counting vast new spoils and mounting numbers of German dead, pursuit of disordered Nazi divisions routed in the Kalinin sector, 90 miles northwest of Moscow, was declared gaining momentum. There the wreckage of German transports and war material littered the snows, the communique said.

Nazis Complain About Snow.

Mockingly referring to German claims that the weather largely was responsible for their reverses, the official announcement said:

"The Germans still are complaining about the snow on the Russian front which, however, makes no difference to the Russians."

The Russians asserted the rout of the Nazis in the Kalinin sector was being matched by similar Red army pursuits west of Moscow and on the southwestern front.

Volokolamsk was occupied late in October by the Germans. It had changed hands numerous times in some of the bloodiest fighting of the Moscow front.

Six German planes were destroyed yesterday and Russian flyers reported setting fire to five railroad trains, blowing up an ammunition dump, and destroying other supplies.

Russian reports said the retreating Germans had lost more than 40,000 men in two weeks while the German arc against Moscow was now bent back. Leningrad forces reported a successful three-day attack upon its one time besiegers. The Leningrad fighting netted a large quantity of provisions and war supplies.

3 Nazi Transports Reported Sunk.

The Moscow radio said three fully loaded German troops transports in the Arctic [probably in the Barents sea] totaling 25,500 tons were sunk by a Russion submarine, despite their guard of destroyers and patrol boats.

[The German communique yesterday said "an enemy destroyer was sunk by torpedo hits" in a night battle in the Barents sea between German and Russian destroyers.]

Southward along the vast field of battle Russian newspaper dispatches said 1,600 Germans were killed as the Russians recaptured 30 villages in the Donetz basin.

The soviet garrison at the surrounded Crimean naval base of Sevastopol was reported to have flung back an attack by German motorized forces with heavy German losses.

Drive Halted, Say Finns.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 20 (AP).—Russian offensives have stalled in Finland, the Finnish high command declared today, and all Red army assaults have been repulsed with heavy Russian losses.

Repel Attacks on Orel: Nazis.

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—The Berlin radio today said German troops repulsed strong Russian attacks southwest of Orel [south of Moscow]. The broadcast claimed the enemy suffered heavy losses and said Orel is firmly in German hands.

U.S.-Martinique Accord an Admiral's Afternoon Feat

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Dec. 20.—The negotiations between the United States and Martinique officials were completed in one afternoon, the United States negotiator, Rear Admiral Frederick J. Horne, disclosed today. He said he reached Fort de France Wednesday afternoon, conferred with the French high commissioner, Adm. Georges Robert, and left the next morning. He said his conference strengthened the neutrality agreement reached last year between Adm. A. W. Greenslade, U. S. N., and Adm. Robert.

Leader of French Fighting Russia Reported Missing

VICHY, France, Dec. 20 (AP).—Reports from Paris today said Jacques Doriot, former communist who was a leader of the French legion fighting with the axis against Russia, had been posted as missing for several days and that the legion had been cut off by Russian counterattacks.

The reports were not confirmed.

Sofia Reports 8 Sent to Prison for Oil Sabotage

HITLER SAYS FOE IS SUPERIOR IN ARMS, NUMBERS

Calls for Warm Clothing for Soldiers.

Paul Joseph Goebbels.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Thru his propaganda minister, Paul Joseph Goebbels, Adolf Hitler appealed today to the German people to contribute warm clothing to the German army, saying that it was opposed by "an enemy who is superior in numbers and material."

This statement appeared in a proclamation which Goebbels, in a radio address, said the Fuehrer had commissioned him to read.

Takes in All Nations.

The Fuehrer's statement did not limit Germany's inferiority in material and numbers to the Russian front but, by implication, applied to all nations fighting Germany.

The Hitler proclamation, read by Goebbels, said in part:

"German people! Except for air attacks, the German homeland is not threatened, but millions of our soldiers stand after a year of heaviest battles against an enemy who is superior in numbers and in material on the front."

Germany went to war with Russia six months ago.

Make Celebration Possible.

Goebbels appealed to the German people to give winter clothing for German troops in Russia and elsewhere.

"It is thanks to them that we can celebrate Christmas this year, even if it is modest," Goebbels said, according to transcripts here by CBS and NBC.

The speech launched a supplementary campaign for collection of overshoes, blankets, gloves, fur-lined clothing, sweaters, scarves, and any other kind of apparel to "preserve our soldiers against the bitter cold."

"The fatherland would not deserve one quiet hour if one soldier on the Russian front had to go without adequate clothing," Goebbels said.

"We all at home have a roof above our heads, we have a bed to sleep on."

CHRISTMAS RUSH FROM LONDON ON, WAR OR NO WAR

TrainsJammed Despite No-Travel Appeal.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Describing scenes in a number of London's main line railroad stations today as the most hectic Christmas rush ever, an Evening Star reporter said that despite the government's appeal urging them not to travel over the Christmas holidays, thousands of Londoners were thronging the stations.

As train after train pulled out, crowded with servicemen and members of the auxiliary women's forces, as well as civilians, large numbers were left on the platforms. Some trains were as much as half an hour behind schedule.

Wars on Food Racketeers.

Lord Woolton, the food minister, dampened the holiday spirit for some when he announced that he will launch a drive on dealers who sell meat above the controled prices or without ration coupons and indulge in other unlawful practices in the sale and distribution of food stuffs.

His decision follows disclosures made in a seven day meat conspiracy trial which ended in Winchester last night. The minister, it is reported, believes that some of the offenders referred to by the presiding judge as "unknown" are ministry of food officials who have been working hand in glove with meat racketeers.

The inquiry which will follow this trial is expected to involve leading figures in the meat industry and provide sufficient evidence to launch prosecutions against suspected public officials.

Rounds Up Workers.

The ministry of labor, meanwhile, announced that steps were being taken to round up young women who have evaded the callup for auxiliary war service.

"It would be inexpedient to describe what these steps are," said Ernest Bevin, the labor minister, "but the girls who have not registered will be prosecuted if they do not do so." A final appeal will be made to register immediately and women complying will not be subjected to penalty.

Silesian Woman, 62, Gets Ten Years—She Told News

BERLIN, Dec. 20 [Andi agency to (AP)].—A 62 year old woman was sentenced today to 10 years in a penitentiary when a court in Katowice, Upper Silesia, found her guilty of listening to foreign radio broadcasts and disseminating the news to relatives. The court said she escaped a death sentence only because of her age.

TURKISH PRESS WARNS BULGARIA ABOUT INJUSTICE

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 19 [Delayed] (AP).—An editorial in the newspaper Yenisabah, written by a member of the Turkish parliament, warned Bulgaria today she was "playing a very dangerous game" and that "sooner or later weapons will have to force an understanding."

An article in the newspaper Aksam, which often reflects government opinion, similarly asserted that Turkey feels no danger of German attack but is skeptical of Bulgarian intentions.

The warning in Yenisabah indicated that Turkey regards Bulgarian occupation of parts of axis conquered Greece and Jugo-Slavia as unjust.

Shipyard Workers Take Off Time They Were Denied

MIDLAND, Ont., Dec. 20 (AP).—After a massmeeting last night in which 300 workmen in the Midland shipyards sought Saturday afternoons off or time and a half pay, most of the employés refused to work this afternoon. The company turned down the request.

LIBYAN RETREAT TOO FAST FOR ALL BRITISH BUT RAF

Army Finds It Cannot Catch Fleeing Axis.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 20 (AP).—Axis resistance in Libya has all but collapsed and the British are in full chase of Gen. Erwin Rommel's army, fleeing westward in rout almost to Bengazi, the British declared tonight.

So fast is the pursuit, it was said, that the British have been hard pressed to stay on the enemy's heels and much of the job of smashing the axis' last remnants of strength has fallen to the royal air force.

The main body of the retreating axis army is now in the western Geb el Akhdar mountains, a coastal range whose western end extends to south of Bengazi, the British said.

Occupy Derna, Mekili.

The rout was said to have littered desert roads with destroyed and burning tanks, guns, and vehicles, and to have left two merchantmen listing off North Africa after an aerial torpedo assault on a convoy.

After occupying the port of Derna and Mekili, 40 miles inland, the British were said to have pushed their advance patrols 60 miles further west, within 100 miles of Bengazi, important axis supply port.

These patrols now are beyond the desert and in the green country of eastern Cirenaica, which once was the region of one of Mussolini's most ambitious colonizing efforts.

Altho the British were hesitant to count out the once formidable German-Italian North African forces, commentators expressed confidence that the axis could not make another strong stand, even at Bengazi.

They were confident also that there would be no axis escape to parallel the British withdrawals from Dunkirk, Greece, or Crete.

British patrols already have cut the road west of Bengazi and British informants declared the Germans and Italians face a hazardous operation merely in trying to escape around the Gulf of Sirte toward Tripoli.

Find Few Troops in Derna.

In the capture of Derna, South African armored cars led the way and found the city virtually devoid of troops.

Heavy RAF action centered on the roads leading from Al Faida and Derna to Barce and in the area west of Mekili. Airports at Benina and Marau and objectives at Tripoli also were attacked.

AXIS ADMITS RETREAT.

Official broadcasts from both Rome and Berlin acknowledged axis forces were in retreat and the Italian communique reported the British attacks gaining in severity in Cirenaica. Berlin said the axis troops were withdrawing "according to plan."

Indicating that some reënforcements and supplies had reached the axis forces west of the present battle area, the Fascist high command said a British light naval unit was sunk, another probably was sunk, and a large ship was damaged by Italian naval vessels protecting a convoy which "arrived intact at its destination." It placed the action off the Gulf of Sirte.

Duce Resumes 'Strong Man' Antics to Prove His Vitality

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 20 (AP).—Premier Mussolini has resumed demonstrations of his physical stamina, it was indicated today in a Stefani [official news agency] dispatch from Rome. Stefani said Il Duce inspected an infantry division yesterday in central Italy and then "placed himself at the head of the infantrymen and marched with them several miles on foot."

U. S. WILL SEND AEF TO EUROPE, SENATORS HOLD

Africa or Isles Viewed as First Points.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—A conviction appeared to be growing among senators today that the United States would send an expeditionary force across the Atlantic when one is adequately trained and equipped and when the necessary combat and transport shipping is available.

There was general agreement it might be difficult to land a second AEF abroad, and several senators declared any American troops probably would go first to Africa, the Portuguese Azores, or the Spanish Canary Islands off the coast of Africa.

Norris Willing to Send AEF.

Sen. George W. Norris [Ind., Neb.], who opposed American entry into the World war, but voted for this nation's recent war declarations, told reporters he "would have no objection to an expeditionary force if the President and the military authorities believe it would do any good." Norris added that "We're in the war now, and we have to do everything that is necessary to win it."

"I am confident there will be an expeditionary force sooner or later," said Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], who opposed most administration foreign policy measures up until the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. "Since we are in the war, there can be no effort to block another AEF if the President thinks one is necessary."

Held Far from Ready.

But Wheeler and Sen. Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] said in separate interviews the nation is far from ready to send any sizable force abroad. Nye said he believed it would be two years before the nation had sufficient trained men, equipment, and shipping facilities to fight on European or African soil.

Sen. Josh Lee [D., Okla.] and Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], both administration supporters, suggested this nation might send men to the Azores, the Canaries, or Africa.

"We should have set up bases in Africa and taken over those islands a long time ago," Pepper said, "but it still would be easier to do it now than to do it some time in the future. Our single object is to win the war. We must take whatever steps are necessary to crush both Hitler and Japan."

Lee said the greatest danger is from bases Hitler might operate.

German Bomber Shot Down in 106th Air Raid on Malta

VALETTA, Malta, Dec. 20 (AP).—One German bomber was destroyed, three damaged, and two fighters probably destroyed today in the 106th air raid on this island naval base, a communique said.

GUNS FIGHT AIR RAIDERS ALONG THAMES ESTUARY

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP).—Heavy anti-aircraft fire against air raiders broke out along the Thames estuary early tonight. Machine gun fire aloft was heard. Later an announcement said bombs were dropped in southwest England, causing some casualties.

Two of Germany's mammoth long range Focke-Wulf aircraft have been shot down and a third so badly damaged it "may not have reached its base," the admiralty announced. They were hit yesterday by British naval planes operating as shipping convoys.

Sink 5 Ships, Say Nazis.

BERLIN, Dec. 20 [Official broadcast recorded by Associated Press].—U-boats have sunk four ships totaling 17,000 tons in recent operations against British shipping in the Atlantic, the German high command said today. It also credited aircraft with sinking an 8,000 ton tanker from a convoy in St. George's channel, between England and Ireland.

Bullitt Arrives in Lebanon from Cairo as U. S. Envoy

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Dec. 20 (AP).—William C. Bullitt, President Roosevelt's special envoy to the near east, arrived today from Cairo with a party of seven and was received by Consul General Cornelius Engert.

G. O. P. LEADERS AGREE NOT TO BE 'GAGGED' BY WAR

Reserve Right to Point Out Costly Errors.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—Three Republican senators, representing as many shades of the minority viewpoint, today agreed that their party must maintain "constructive criticism" of the administration's policies in prosecution of the war.

They drew the line against any attempt to "run the war in congress," but all three—Brooks of Illinois, Taft of Ohio, and Bridges of New Hampshire—contended in separate interviews that a "loyal opposition" is a wholesome and necessary thing.

Brooks Would Air Errors.

Brooks, a consistent critic of administration foreign policy before the United States entered the war, indicated willingness to raise questions concerning military matters. He said he believes that no layman should attempt to say what military tactics should be employed in winning the war, but added that there is room for wholesome criticism of obvious errors that might otherwise be repeated.

Beyond that he found no reason for the Republicans remaining quiet about deficiencies in the domestic war effort, nor for their failure to point out other mistakes that the administration might be making in gearing the economic structure of the country to wartime tempo.

Taft Defers to Experts.

Taft, who supported some and opposed other administration policies prior to the outbreak of hostilities, expressed the belief that it not only is the Republicans' right but their duty to criticize measures which affect national policies.

Taft told the senate recently that he is inclined to accept the recommendations of army and navy chiefs on military and naval matters.

But Taft said he does not believe that all recommendations of the President must be accepted blindly, adding: "Certainly in all fiscal matters we must exercise our own judgment."

Bridges, who gave full support to the defense program long before Japan attacked the United States, took the view that the Republicans' informal platform should be to uphold the minority's right to question inefficient methods of producing the materials and gathering the man power needed to fight the war.

REMOVE POLICE, FIRE SIRENS TO AVOID ANY RAID ALARM MIXUP

Chicago's police and fire departments were ordered yesterday to remove the sirens on their motor equipment and to use gongs only in warning motorists and pedestrians of their approach. It was said this was done to prevent possible confusion if it becomes necessary to sound air raid warnings with siren blasts.

Police Commissioner Allman also requested private owners of ambulances to dispense with their sirens and red and green head lamps. It was suggested that the owners turn this equipment over to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, chief of the emergency medical services under Mayor Kelly, chief civilian defense coördinator.

About 2,000 city employés were finger printed and photographed yesterday and will wear identification badges while guarding important public facilities.

Fifth Column Rumors Force FBI to Add Phones

The war and the interest of the people of Chicago in suppressing supposed subversive activities have made it necessary for the local office of the federal bureau of investigation to double the number of its telephones [from 10 to 20 lines]. The FBI number is Randolph 2150. It was reported that most of the callers talk about activities of suspected persons.

BRIDGE TO BE CLOSED TODAY.

The South Ashland avenue bridge across the Chicago river will be closed to street traffic from 6 a. m. to 2 p. m. today, city officials announced yesterday.

WAR SPENDING, $740 A SECOND, TO BE BOOSTED

5 Million Dollars an Hour Goal by Midyear.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—War spending, which is already costing present taxpayers and generations of tax payers to come $740 every time the clock ticks is to be speeded up to $1,157 per second after the first of the year and to $1,443 per second by the middle of 1942.

This country is spending one and one-third times as much as Great Britain for the war and the spending plans under way contemplate twice and almost three times as much as the present British rate of expenditures in the coming year.

Two and a Half Million an Hour.

The treasury now is paying out approximately $64,000,000 a day for the war machine. Defense costs have been boosted about 7 million dollars a day since the outbreak of the war.

At the present rate of expenditure the United States is paying out $2,666,000 an hour, $44,444 every minute or $740 a second.

Plans call for raising expenditures to $100,000,000 a day after the first of the year, which would mean the paying out of $4,166,666 every hour, $69,444 every minute or $1,158 every second.

War Cost to Double.

After midyear the expenditure rate is expected to reach $125,000,000 a day. This would mean spending at the rate of $5,208,333 an hour, $86,805 every minute or $1,446 per second.

British war expenditures at present are at the rate of $47,000,000 a day or $32,638 per minute and $544 per second.

The present rate of expenditure is in excess of the World war spending rate. During the two years of the World war arms, spending averaged $1,000,000 a hour.

RUSSIA REPORTS FOES OF IL DUCE UNITE IN FRONT

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP).—A new united front of anti-Fascist Italians, including Socialists, communists, and just plain Mussolini-haters, has been formed to foment a revolution in Italy and force a separate Italian peace, the Russian embassy said today.

In its publication, Soviet War News, the embassy said a committee was formed recently in the vicinity of the Italian frontier to prod the Italian masses into action against the Fascist party.

"Mussolini's government has not hesitated to sell Italy to the foreigner in order to hang on to its power against the will of the people," the committee announced.

AN AMERICANISM CRUSADER HAPPY TO PAY HIS WAY

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 20 [Special]. — The Vincennes Sun-Commercial, daily newspaper of this city, describes itself on its front page as "The Leading Democratic Family Newspaper Since 1804," but three times a week it carries the editorial views of a stanch Republican in a regularly reserved space one column wide and seven inches deep in its display advertising columns.

These thrice-weekly expositions of ideas usually at variance with the newspaper's policy cost their author, 77 year old James H. Hammon, about $600 a year at display advertising rates, but Mr. Hammon doesn't begrudge the money. He says it is worth it to be able to express his views publicly, a thing which he says he has a right to do as an American.

Nor does the newspaper object to selling the space and taking the money, altho it professed a few qualms when Mr. Hammon started his strange method of advertising four years ago. Now, however, the "Hammon Says" editorials, carrying the writer's facsimile signature, are an accepted feature of the newspaper and its proprietors have admitted they have them to thank for approximately 600 subscribers who have averred they take the paper solely to read them.

Letters to Editor Fail.

Mr. Hammon has been in business as an optometrist in Vincennes for nearly 50 years and is prosperous. About four years ago he became irked because "letters to the editor" which he composed and sent to the local newspaper were seldom printed. He felt that readers were getting a one sided slant at public opinion from the newspaper's editorials and that there ought to be a balancing influence.

After some thought he contracted with the newspaper for advertising space, and after supplying conventional copy advertising his optometry business for a few issues he began writing the editorials, with the word "optometrist" after his name and address, as the only reminder that he was a business man.

The newspaper agreed to let Hammon run his articles, but insisted on adding a disclaimer. The editorials now are accompanied by a bold face statement that "the foregoing opinions are those of the writer and are not to be construed as those of the Sun-Commercial."

Never Misses a Deadline.

Regularly since then, on Sundays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, Hammon has been telling the people of Vincennes what he thinks about public questions of all kinds. He has been thru stiff political campaigns, upholding the Republican end while the paper's editorial columns took the other side. He never misses a deadline.

Since the war, he has decided to shelve politics, and now writes on topics under the heading of "Americanism." He found time today to look up from an editorial he was writing on the need for congressional investigation of defense contracts and discussed labor's duty in the war as outlined in his editorial Thursday.

"Labor unions will accede to the President's demand or labor unions will pass out of existence because of the fact that they will have demonstrated un-American principles during wartime," he wrote.

Readers Phone to Argue.

Hammon receives 50 to 100 letters a week from readers and says he often hears from members of congress. He gets phone calls occasionally from persons who want to argue with him or to tell him they agree with him.

"I enjoy writing," he declared as he put the finishing touches on his Sunday editorial. "I am too much of a full blooded American not to put my views before the public in times like these. Freedom of the press is a great right and it is worth $600 a year to me to exercise it."

TIRE RATIONING RULES WILL BE MAILED TUESDAY

Rules and regulations governing the government's automobile tire rationing program will be mailed to local boards by Tuesday, Frank Bane, director of field operations for the Office of Price Administration, announced in Chicago yesterday.

Bane said he has instructed representatives of defense councils of 20 midwestern and western states to set up the local boards which will administer the rationing program. Specifications, standards, and quotas are being compiled now and will be announced later. One of the first steps necessary to get the program under way by Jan. 5 is to inventory all new tires, he said.

It will be the responsibility of local boards to issue ration cards authorizing the purchase of tires and tubes only to "individuals and agencies requiring them for the maintenance of industrial efficiency and civilian health."

Service emblems are being given free by the Cook county council of the American Legion to families who have members in the armed forces, it was announced yesterday by Elliodor M. Libonati, chairman of the council's Americanism committee. The emblems are affixed to windows of the homes.

member of the senate labor committee, asserted that if the President's labor-industry conference could not work out an agreement "we'll do it for them.

"The public is fed up with racketeering in labor," he added.

Instant Action Threatened.

Sen. Chan Gurney [R., S. D.] said that regardless of the labor conference the "first strike that hinders our war effort will bring instant senate action on anti-strike legislation."

Sen. H. H. Schwartz [D., Wyo.] said the public and congress "were in no mood to tolerate strikes," and predicted the senate would approve legislation outlawing them.

The President's labor-industry conference, which began early in the week, recessed last night until Monday, deadlocked over the closed shop issue. Industry's representatives insist that the closed shop shall not be a grievance for arbitration or mediation for the duration of the war. Labor leaders are determined that all grievances be subject to mediation.

NAVY DESIGNATES 13 COAST POINTS 'DEFENSE AREAS'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The navy department announced today the establishment of defensive sea areas around 13 harbors and waterways on the east and west coasts. In effect, this placed all shipping in the areas under naval supervision, and mariners were warned they could operate in those areas only during daylight, unless under naval supervision.

Defensive localities were listed as: Portland, Me.; Portsmouth, N. H.; Boston, Mass.; Narragansett Bay, R. I.; San Diego, Cal.; San Francisco, Cal.; Columbia river entrance, Strait of Juan De Fuca and Puget Sound, New London, Conn.; New York harbor, Delaware bay and river; Chesapeake bay and Norfolk, Va., and Charleston harbor, S. C.

Masters of vessels were advised to obey orders to stop or be liable to detention or attack by United States armed forces.

COURT ORDERS NLRB TO REVISE RELIANCE ORDER

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ordered yesterday that notices promising employés at 13 plants of the Reliance Manufacturing company, garment makers, freedom to join CIO or AFL unions be revised to guarantee the further right of employés to join "any other union of their choice."

Order to post the notices was contained in findings of the National Labor Relations board in the company-employé dispute. While allowing the NLRB petition for enforcement of its order, the appeals court ordered some modifications, including wording of the union membership notices.

In this instance the court upheld the company claim that confining union selection to the CIO and AFL interefered with employé rights to join another union if any so desired.

Italian Decree Puts Toe of Boot in War Zone

BERLIN, Dec. 20 [Official Broadcast recorded by (AP).]—A decree published today by the Italian official gazette proclaimed districts of the provinces of Cosenza, Catanzaro, and Reggio Calabria to be war zones. [All these are on the toe of the Italian boot, likely spots for any British attempt at invasion of Italy.]

CHICAGO'S RATE OF ENLISTMENTS TOPS NEW YORK'S

Two Weeks' Aggregates of Cities Compared.

For every two men in New York City enlisting in the nation's armed services Chicago is, proportionately, contributing nearly three men. This figure is based on enlistment tables from both cities in relation to populations. The population of New York City is considerably more than double that of Chicago.

New York Numerically Ahead.

Numerically, of course, New York City's enlistments are larger. Its total enlistments in the army, navy, and marine corps from Dec. 8, first day after war started, to Friday night, inclusive, numbered 4,137 as against 2,712 for Chicago during the same period. At the Chicago rate, New York's enlistments, according to population, should be nearer 6,000, it was estimated.

Army	1,965	Army	812
Navy	1,337	Navy	1,057
Marines	835	Marines	843
Total	4,137	Total	2,712

Chicago Leads Proportionately.

Chicago's enlistments are approximately 8-100 of 1 per cent of its population, and New York City's enlistments are 6-100 of 1 per cent of its population.

Enlistments in Chicago yesterday [not included in the table] were 56 in the army, 40 in the marines, and 105 in the navy.

Lieut. David N. Goldenson, in charge of naval recruiting in Chicago, announced that, effective today, all men enlisting in the navy will be granted leave over Christmas if they wish. They would begin training Dec. 26 or Dec. 27.

WARNS AGAINST BLACKING OFF TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Capt. Don Leonard, president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, speaking in the Stevens hotel before 150 state highway officials from all parts of the nation, yesterday wraned against turning off street traffic signals during a blackout.

The traffic death toll in a blackout will exceed the bomb toll, if the red and green signals are turned off, Capt. Leonard, a district commander of the Michigan state police, predicted. He recommended that the state highway department put caps or other devices over the lights so that they will be invisible from above.

The meeting was called by the American Association of State Highway Officials to discuss roadbuilding problems in wartime. In a resolution pledging aid to the federal government, the road officials voted to confine all federal aid road work during the emergency to construction essential to national welfare as certified by appropriate federal defense agencies.

THOSE MEDALS ON ITALIAN'S CHEST ARE FOR QUAKES!

CAIRO, Dec. 20 (AP).—A New Zealand officer tells this one:

He encountered an Italian colonel captured in Libya, noted three rows of medals on the prisoner's tunic and commented:

"You must have been in a lot of wars to get all those medals."

The colonel replied:

"Only the first row is for wars. The other two rows are for earthquakes."

or both, had been on the trail of the submarines sufficiently to find out how they were profiting by weather forecasts.

"How a press news radio broadcast about weather aided operation of enemy submarines on the Atlantic coast was revealed today by the navy department," the navy statement said.

Reports Heard at Sea.

"The commanding officer of a naval base in the Atlantic heard a news weather broadcast specifically mention subfreezing weather in the Dakotas and a temperature of 9 degrees below zero at Duluth, points remote from the coast and apparently not concerned with naval or military operations.

"Being weatherwise, the commanding officer immediately concluded that in a few days hence his patrol area would have a clear day or two with high visibility and conditions ideal for enemy submarine attack.

"Special precautions were taken in patrol work on the calculated day, which turned out as predicted, and in the course of operations it became apparent that enemy submarines had also picked up the same information and made the same deduction.

"It was pointed out that the information so inadvertently broadcast would also have been of benefit to an enemy air attack along any port of the 'weather route' in the North American continent."

ROOSEVELT'S SON ASSIGNED TO AIR COMBAT GROUP

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP).—Capt. Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, was en route tonight to join a unit of the air force combat command as a navigator. He was graduated today from Kelly field's air corps aerial navigators school and departed by air for duty with a long range ocean going patrol unit.

Fourteen aviation cadets and one student officer, Capt. Roosevelt, heard Brig. Gen. H. R. Harmon, training center commander, assert:

"As fighters of a people's war, your class shows democracy in action. Capt. Roosevelt came here expecting no special consideration. He got none. I single him out simply as a symbol of democracy versus dictatorship. In the United States, the President's son is one of us."

Classmates of Capt. Roosevelt are expecting assignments to similar active units almost immediately.

ADMIRAL E. J. KING APPOINTED HEAD OF U. S. FLEETS

Airman in Command After Navy Shakeup.

operations and to Adm. Stark, remained unclarified. However, no orders were announced abolishing that post.

Airmen Getting Big Posts.

King's appointment was a continuation of an apparently new administration policy of giving airmen the big army and navy jobs.

The Pearl Harbor shakeup included the removal of Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short as commander of the army's Hawaiian department and the appointment to that post of Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, chief of the air force combat command.

When Kimmel was replaced by Rear Adm. Chester V. Nimitz, disappointment was expressed by naval flyers, some of whom think that recent developments had reduced the ships of the navy to the position of auxiliaries to the air force.

Many of them thought that a proper recognition of air power would have placed King in the job. Their elation was consequently great when they learned tonight that a flyer had been given command, not of the Pacific fleet alone, but of the entire navy.

Airman at London Talks.

They were pleased to learn, too, that Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney, also an airman, was the army's representative in preliminary staff talks in London.

They recalled, too, that some months ago Col. Henry Harms of the air corps was given command of ground troops as well as air forces.

The key to these selections was commonly believed to lie in a statement made early in the year by Gen. George C. Marshall, the army chief of staff. At that time he said that air force commanders would be given command of ground as well as aerial forces whenever air power promised to be the dominant military factor.

He's Called "Old Eagle Eye."

Adm. King is 63, spare, and wiry, with a youthful and almost jaunty appearance. The navy calls him "Old Eagle Eye."

He first learned about war against the Spanish in 1898, as a midshipman, returning to the naval academy to graduate in 1901. In the World war he won the navy cross while serving in the eastern Atlantic as chief of staff for the commander in chief of the United States fleet.

He learned about submarines after the war as commander of the big submarine base at New London, Conn. In that job he directed salvage operations for the S-51, which sank off Block Island in 1925, and for the S-4, which sank off Provincetown two years later. For the latter activity he won the distinguished service medal, gold star.

Meanwhile he became more and more impressed with the value of the airplane as a military weapon. Despite his 48 years, he qualified as a naval aviator, and then quickly won a succession of important commands, the air base force, the scouting force, and the battle force.

Visualizing the airplane as a weapon of attack, not of defense, he is credited by many naval people with having done as much as any other to perfect the combined tactics of fleet and aircraft.

Adm. King was born at Lorain, O., Nov. 23, 1878. His usual residence is Annapolis, Md.

Adm. Ingesoll is a native of Washington, the son of Rear Adm. Royal Rodney Ingersoll. He was born in the capital June 20, 1883 and was graduated from the naval academy in 1905. He was communication officer in the navy department during the war and was on the naval staff at the peace conference. He was also on the delegation to the London naval conference in 1935. He has served as chief of staff of the battle fleet and director of the navy war plans division. He lists his home town as La Porte, Ind.

Veteran Naval Signalman Who Missed Fight Reports

REPORT F. D. R. PLAN FOR WAR BOARD WITH WILLKIE A MEMBER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—It was reported in high quarters today that President Roosevelt was considering the creation of a supreme war council, subordinate only to himself, and armed with powers exceeding those of the cabinet.

It was reported one member would be Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 Republican Presidential candidate.

Others mentioned as possible members included Adm. William D. Leahy, former chief of naval operations, Vice President Henry A. Wallace, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

We Are Looking Forward to Heavy Holiday Travel

Taking the train home for the holidays is a grand old American custom. Our trains are always full at this season, but this year more people are planning to travel than ever before.

On top of this, the railroads are having an especially important job this year which we're putting ahead of everything else—our part of the defense job and taking some of the boys home. This may cause some congestion and trains may be more heavily loaded than usual.

We're going to put every available car in service and every Illinois Central employee who can help will be working right through the holidays to serve you. We're going to do our best to please everyone but if we can't, we know you'll understand.

Give us an opportunity to be helpful. Phone Wabash 2575.

We wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

STRATEGY FOR THIS WAR.

A book for these times was completed last spring and has recently been published by the Yale University press. It is entitled "The Armed Forces of the Pacific." It is the work of Capt. W. D. Puleston, who has written the standard biography of Capt. Mahan and can be regarded as a leading exponent of the Mahan school of naval strategy.

Capt. Puleston saw that war was very near, measured the opposing forces, and outlined the method by which he thought America might expect to win. His views are important because they represent what may well have been, until Sunday, Dec. 7, the predominant view in our navy of the strategy to be followed in this war.

Some of Capt. Puleston's assumptions have already been upset. He expected we would hold and could continue to use Guam. He argued, also, that the movement of a large part of our navy to its advanced base at Pearl Harbor would guarantee it against such a surprise attack as had knocked out the Russian fleet at Port Arthur on the eve of a declaration of war. He can hardly be blamed, of course, for assuming that when the American forces had been mobilized at their advanced base they would be on the alert, particularly at a time of great diplomatic tension.

The battle fleet could be fully concentrated in Hawaiian waters within a matter of weeks after war began, Capt. Puleston believed. The navy would then steam for the other side of the Pacific, with Singapore, Manila, or both, as its goal. Capt. Puleston had little doubt that Singapore would be defended until the fleet arrived, and he expected that Manila would also hold out. The approach of our force, he believed, would immediately bring relief by threatening the communications of any Japanese force in Malaya or the Philippines and thus forcing its withdrawal.

Operating from one or both of these bases, our navy would invite an engagement with the Japanese and eventually the collision would come. As our fleet, in almost every category and notably in capital ships, outnumbered and outgunned the Japanese fleet, we could reasonably expect to come out victorious. Once the Japanese fleet had been destroyed the threat of Japanese aggression in China and everywhere else would disappear, because the Japanese would find themselves unable to supply any of their expeditionary forces. The war against Japan would be won and we could then concentrate our attention upon the war in Europe.

In the light of events Capt. Puleston plainly underrated the power of airplanes against battleships, but he was not as dogmatic on this point as many of his colleagues have been. He argued that if the bomber proved to be the master of the capital ship we would still win the war because we could produce more bombers and could fly them against the Japanese forces from the same bases which served our fleet.

Perhaps the plan outlined by Capt. Puleston is still favored by the navy's strategists, but, if so, many details must be rearranged. The fleet's departure from Hawaii presumably must be delayed until the damaged ships have been repaired, and by that time Singapore or Manila may no longer be in friendly hands. Meanwhile, too, the loss of Guam has rendered it more difficult to deliver bombing planes to Manila or Singapore.

The problem of defeating Japan must be restudied in the light of existing circumstances. Perhaps that is just as well. Maybe the plan as outlined by Capt. Puleston would have worked, but the evidence of the loss of the two British battleships, the two Japanese battleships, and our own at Pearl Harbor, all of them knocked out from the air, suggests pretty plainly what might have happened to our armada if our fleet had steamed within range of Japanese airdromes and plane carriers. We need a lot of airplane carriers in a hurry.

A FIGHTING GENERAL.

The British are urging a shakeup in the high command. In Washington and in London it is said that there is considerable sentiment in favor of the appointment of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as commander in chief of the American and British armies.

Gen. MacArthur organized and trained the army in the Philippines and he is defending the islands resourcefully. The Japs have had a hotter reception from him than they have encountered anywhere else. All military men respect Gen. MacArthur and the Japs will learn to respect him, too.

The general is the son of Lieut. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, who had a leading part in wresting the Philippines from Spain and later was military governor of the islands. Gen. MacArthur himself was the ranking man in his West Point class. As a colonel in France he led his troops into action at Neuvilier and was gassed. Promoted to brigadier general, he still insisted on going into action with his men. He was wounded in the assault on the Kremhilde line at St. Mihiel.

In succession he was the youngest brigadier general, the youngest superintendent West Point ever had, the youngest major general, and the youngest chief of staff. He preached motorization and mechanization, introduced the four army defense system, and constantly fought for a larger army air corps and for appropriations for tanks and armored divisions. There is nothing fusty about his mind. His speech is laconic, but he gets the job done.

JAPANESE TRICKS.

Word that a Brazilian girl swimmer has broken a world record set by a Japanese recalls an almost forgotten episode that illustrates Japanese sportsmanship. Japanese swimmers achieved a surprise victory at the 1932 Olympic games in Los Angeles. They swept most of the shorter races by the use of an interesting device.

A few minutes before the race Japanese entrants were administered shock amounts of oxygen. They were then brought to the starting line and propped up in time for the starter's pistol. A frosty circle on their dark faces showed where the cone had been held as they were fed the oxygen. The Japs were so saturated with oxygen that they didn't have to think of their wind during the race. They stroked their way automatically to a string of victories.

This matter is trivial enough, except as it foreshadows the technique employed at Pearl Harbor. With the Japanese, it's a case of anything to win. We can expect all kinds of tricks from them. It will take men of brains to defeat them.

PRODUCTION POOLS.

Mayor Kelly, with the coöperation of officers of the OPM, is working on a plan for pools of small industrial plants to work jointly on armament contracts. The plan is to select perhaps 100 moderate sized plants in this area, with responsible management and engineering experience, and to group about them some 2,000 smaller plants, forming a number of production pools. The members of these pools would then try to learn what articles of military equipment their machinery and joint working forces were capable of turning out and would send their representatives to Washington to solicit orders for those articles.

This is a good plan. The whole city of Chicago should get behind Mayor Kelly to put it into effect and to get for this area the armament orders which, until this time, have come in a ratio far below the productive capacity of the Chicago area.

This plan should not be necessary, but it is necessary. The impetus should be from Washington to Chicago, not Chicago to Washington, but it is not. Studies of the production facilities and labor supply of the nation were instituted two years ago. Within recent weeks the OPM gathered most comprehensive data on the subject. Instead of small manufacturers standing on the outside, picking what articles they can make, and asking Washington for orders, the authorities in Washington should, from the facts at their disposal, determine what each plant can do and send it its orders. That is the orderly way and the efficient way to proceed, but it is not the burocratic way and if Chicago waits for the burocrats to straighten out the mess into which they have got themselves and the armament program, it will wait a long time and suffer industrial starvation in the meantime.

There are two vital reasons why little business, so-called, must be fully harnessed to the defense effort. The first is that little business represents a substantial proportion of the nation's productive capacity which we cannot afford to do without. The second is that we cannot afford to have little business starved to death. We cannot afford it socially or economically.

If that is to be prevented the preventive measures must be forced on Washington by those who recognize the danger. Mayor Kelly is one of those, and the people of Chicago will gladly follow his leadership in the matter.

REPORT ON PAROLE REFORM.

Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg, one of the original sponsors of the parole reform law which authorizes trial judges to recommend minimum and maximum terms within the limits of the indeterminate sentence act, gave an encouraging report on the operation of that act at the meeting of Illinois state's attorneys.

The act became effective July 1, being applicable to crimes committed after that date. Until Nov. 15, 337 convicts were received by the state penitentiary system to whose cases the act could be applied, and in all but 24 of these cases the trial judge had availed himself of the provisions of the act. Out of 300 such recommendations 22 resulted in a definite stiffening of the penalty, inasmuch as the minimum sentence was increased and the maximum fixed by the indeterminate act was left undisturbed. In 111 cases the maximum was decreased. In 167 both the minimum and the maximum were fixed within the broader limits of the indeterminate act.

Thus the initial working of the act has been to make the average sentence less rather than more harsh. Mr. Schnackenberg said that whereas in recent years the average length of time served by all persons paroled was 5 years and 7 months, the average of the recommended sentences by judges under the new act is about 4 years and 2 months.

Averages, of course, are of little value in appraising the operation of the law. At least 22 hard cases have been given stiffer sentences because of its provisions and thereby the public has been given a reasonable measure of protection against the premature release of 22 vicious men by a political parole board.

It is idle to assert that any statute, however well intended or carefully drawn, can of itself bring about a material reform in criminal jurisprudence. Good courts demand good judges. Good judges will make good courts, even under bad laws, and good laws cannot make good courts out of those presided over by bad judges. The parole act, however, is a useful tool in the hands of good judges, and the preliminary information gathered by Mr. Schnackenberg indicates that it is being used, on the whole, intelligently.

Editorial of the Day

SILVER DOLLAR GROWS SCARCE.

[New York Herald Tribune.]

A substantial evidence of prosperity which jingled in the pocket and weighed down the possessor has seemingly gone into retirement. Even in the west, where paper money was long distrusted, the cartwheel now seldom appears. The San Francisco mint, which is turning out vast numbers of coins for the Christmas trade, is limiting its output to what is known as subsidiary silver. The mining states reluctantly abandoned the use of what seemed such real wealth, and silver disks were gradually uprooted from the floors of many public places where they had been imbedded when there seemed no chance that they would ever be needed as money. But times changed for the poorer, and the waning of the Bryan fever pointed to other uses for dollars than something to be walked on.

The silver situation now is a peculiar one, a source of bewilderment to economists and to all who have not been converted to New Deal financial theories. Coinage of silver dollars remained practically stationary for several years, beginning with 1928, standing at about $540,000,000 annually. In 1936 it went up to $547,000,000, where it has since remained with minor fluctuations. This metal has practically passed out of use as coinage and occupies a great deal of space in treasury vaults. What is to be done with it no one seems to know. But it is interesting to remember that by a recent agreement with Mexico, signed by Secretary Hull, the United States is obligated to buy from our neighbor to the south six million ounces of silver every month. If economics is the dismal science, as has been said, our present day financial policies would be diverting enough to a cynic if they were not so ruinously expensive. It may be that we shall welcome a return of the silver dollar as currency as a tangible reality, at least.

Einstein, who likened one of his theories to turning a tennis ball inside out without tearing the cover, is probably the one to explain inflation.—Winnipeg Tribune.

BUY DEFENSE BONDS

[From the New York Daily News.]

Now that the United States is in the war to the eyebrows, we think the advice to buy United States defense savings bonds and stamps is good advice from several points of view.

First, tho, here is what these bonds and stamps are, and how you go about buying them:

Both bonds and stamps are official obligations of the United States government. The government pledges its full faith and credit for payment of both principal and interest.

The stamps, obtainable at postoffices and other outlets, come in denominations of 10c, 25c, 50c, $1, and $5. There are interesting cards and albums for mounting the stamps, so that you can watch them build up to bond size and then turn them in for bonds.

There are three types of the savings bonds.

The series E bonds are the ones which most investors will be buying. They come in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000. These, however, are the sums the government promises to pay on the bonds 10 years after they are bought. What you pay for them is, respectively, $18.75, $37.50, $75, $375, and $750. Cashing them after the 10 years, you average 2.9 per cent interest per year, compounded semiannually. No one person can buy more than $5,000 [maturity value] in series E bonds in one calendar year. They are obtainable at postoffices, federal reserve banks, other designated sales agencies, or direct by mail from the treasurer of the United States or any federal reserve bank.

Defense bonds of series F are for larger investors and mature in 12 years instead of 10. They come in $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, and $10,000 sizes, costing $74, $370, $740, $3,700, and $7,400 respectively. If held to maturity a series F bond pays off at 2.53 per cent interest a year, compounded semiannually. You get them at federal reserve banks or other designated sales agencies, or by mail from the United States treasurer or any federal reserve bank. You're limited to $50,000 worth of them [or of series F and G bonds combined] in any one year.

The series G bonds are priced at par, come in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, and $10,000, and are redeemable at par if held for 12 years. Their redemption value for periods of less than 12 years increases with each year, like the cash surrender value of a life insurance policy. They pay 2.5 per cent interest, payable semiannually by treasury check. They are obtainable at the same places as the F bonds.

As many of us as possible should buy as many of these bonds or stamps as possible for a number of reasons.

For one, there is the job of paying for our end of the war. That is the biggest financial job that will face this generation of Americans—we hope. It can't all be done by taxation. Most of us presumably would be glad to cough up if we could, but our national economy won't stand the load. Much of the money has to be borrowed by Henry Morgenthau's United States treasury.

• • • •

As another reason for buying bonds there is the danger of wartime inflation, plus the certainty that extensive bond buying will dampen down inflation to a considerable degree. The war industries are going to absorb more and more raw materials, meaning various kinds of consumer goods are going to get scarcer. Yet mass purchasing power is going to be high as long as the war boom lasts. With this purchasing power fighting to buy consumer goods prices are sure to rise, in spite of congressional efforts to stop them. That is a kind of inflation, and a bad kind. If enough mass purchasing power can be siphoned off into defense bonds and stamps prices can be better controled.

Of course there is the objection which you hear now and then that these bonds may never be paid off. That may turn out to be the case; no use blinking the possibility. But if these bonds, backed by the government, eventually become worthless, then everything else in the country will become worthless along with them, and we'll all go to hell in a hack together.

All in all, these bonds are an advisable investment as well as a patriotic one for these times, and we recommend their wide purchase.

PEASANT TO POTENTATE

BY E. R. NODERER.

SYDNEY, Australia [By Air Mail].—Reza Shah Pahlevi, the late unlamented king of Iran, for 15 years led 16 million people around by the nose by virtue of a domineering personality and a strong right leg.

Known as the Shah-in-Shah [king of kings], Shadow of the Almighty, Vice Regent of God, and Center of the Universe, he kept his ministers in line by the simple expedient of kicking them in the groin when they displeased him.

This treatment, which usually proved effective, was varied by horsewhippings, and, when the shah got really angry, by the administration of the "inoculation pahlevi."

The "inoculation pahlevi" generally was administered in an ancient fortress outside Teheran, the Iranian capital, where political prisoners or individuals who refused to sell their property to the shah at his price were put on ice without benefit of accusation or trial.

No matter how healthy they were upon entering the fortress, the food always made them ill.

In the 15 years of the shah's reign, 2,000 men died of "strokes" in this one prison alone.

• • •

Reza Shah Pahlevi came from peasant stock in the rich Mazanderan province along the Caspian sea, and as a mere lad he entered the army in a Cossack division, which was officered by Russians. Pahlevi was a trooper for 20 years, eventually becoming an officer.

The British established a virtual protectorate over the country in 1920, and a British colonel named Smythe singled out Pahlevi as a man worth watching.

He put the future monarch in command of a Cossack division, and later Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside confirmed the appointment.

Pahlevi—then known only as Reza Khan—used his new job as a springboard to the monarchy. On Feb. 21, 1921, he picked 2,500 men from the Kavzin garrison, 90 miles northwest of the capital, sped to Teheran, and occupied the government offices.

A new cabinet was formed, and he was made commander in chief of the army. He spent two years getting rid of his political opponents, and on April 25, 1926, Pahlevi was crowned.

He set out to make himself the richest man in Asia, and when he abdicated he was said to have had a personal fortune of more than 300 million dollars, most of which was deposited abroad.

Pahlevi became a business man—he went into trade, as the British say. He built a string of fine modern hotels and organized Irantour, a tourist agency, to bring moneyed foreigners to Persia, the name of which he changed to Iran.

The hotels he built with funds appropriated for highway construction, but he kept the titles in his own name, and the profits went to his personal account in the Bank Mellie, the Iranian National bank.

With money appropriated for malaria drainage he irrigated huge farms for himself.

He became a factory owner by "buying" all the profitable factories in Iran at his price—often a hundredth of the actual value.

Everything with any profit in it became a government—a shah—monopoly.

To finance his enterprises the shah increased taxes. When he left Iran they were 18 times what they were when he became shah. He became richer and the poor became poorer.

TIRED? GO TO THE SYMPHONY.

Most of us react favorably to a well-modulated voice. Notes that produce melody are soothing. Reassurance and comfort are induced when a mother croons to her sick babe or sings a lullaby at bedtime. As Wordsworth wrote: "Soft is the music that would charm forever."

The power of stringed instruments to drive away evil thoughts was understood by the ancients. David played upon his harp and released Saul from the grip of tormenting spirits. The twang of the lyre was said to be capable of subduing vicious tempers and neutralizing maniacal tendencies.

In the middle ages, Italian physicians recommended blowing upon a clarinet as an antidote for spider bites. But today we view the influence of harmony with a more practical eye. We teach the brain to subordinate minor discomforts to the pleasure afforded by some delightful composition. Hospitals for the mentally ill have reported numerous instances in which piano or violin lessons have been helpful in combating melancholia.

Even under conditions of actual disease, melodious strains from the organ may render the victim less fretful. Obstetricians have tried entertaining the mother with honeyed serenades to help her pass thru the ordeal more easily.

In the administration of an anesthetic, it is desirable that the patient shall be complacent and comfortable. This has led to many experiments in operating rooms in which the sound vibrations which greet the visitor are gentle and sweet. Naturally, it is difficult to evaluate results. Many participants, however, claim that they are able to ignore the bustle of "getting ready" when a favorite tune is wafted thru the air.

Much depends upon the selections. We wouldn't choose a wild Cossack dance nor one of Wagner's stirring operas. Perhaps such numbers as Delius' "Cuckoo," Mendelssohn's "Spinnlied," or Debussy's "Apres Midi" will bring the desired frame of mind. With the patient back to his room and emerging from a stupor, we may attempt the diversified moods of "Tristan."

That actual functional changes ensue, other than the mere sense of satisfaction, is no doubt true. The rate of breathing may be increased or decreased as the time is accelerated or retarded. In like manner, the pulse rate may rise or fall. Soft tones may slow the rhythm of the pumping organ and lengthen its stroke.

It is an obvious fact that anything which dispels fatigue will enhance energy. Hence rest is wholly a matter of the degree of relaxation. If it is complete, the repair of tissues will take place more quickly.

Undoubtedly, much of the effect will depend upon the intelligence of the sufferer and his receptiveness. Those who care little for harmony, who cannot sing a note or detect differences in pitch, may be quite unaffected. With the highstrung individual—the more sensitive his nature, the more significant his response. There seems to be very little difference between men and women. The chief factor is an ingrained love of music.

GUM SWALLOWING.

D. Y. writes: Does swallowing chewing gum regularly cause appendicitis?

REPLY.

Not regularly. In fact, I have never known it to occur. But why tantalize the intestines? They have no teeth.

MOUTH STONE.

M. L. M. writes: What is a parotid stone?

REPLY.

A deposit of mineral matter which may block the flow of saliva from the parotid gland to the mouth.

TRAINING TOO SOFT?

Aurora, Ill., Dec. 17.—Now that I have read your editorial of Dec. 10, I feel more certain that what I sensed on a recent trip to Fort Sheridan may be true. You say, "There has been too much of the boarding school atmosphere about our military camps, a fact which may account for what happened at Pearl Harbor. Our men must learn their brutal trade as quickly as they can, and that means that discipline must be severe and training must be greatly intensified."

When I observed the comforts, conveniences and courtesy of personnel, men, and officers, I thought to myself, that isn't the way they hardened us back in '18. Not long ago I clipped the following from a syndicated question and answer column appearing in my home town paper:

Q.—What was the war maxim formulated by Washington and adopted by Napoleon? A.—The first qualification of a soldier is fortitude under fatigue and privation. Courage is only the second. Hardship, poverty, and actual want are the soldiers' best schools.

My son attends a local military academy and I hope that what he gets out of military training will more nearly be like what 1918 army training did for me than what I fear the boys of '41 are getting. I hope I'm all wet.

"LET'S NOT HATE PEOPLE."

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Now that we are in the war let us hate tyranny, despotism, and Hitlerism all we want to, but let us not hate people. I am an old stock American, not an oriental, but I can't help thinking of that congregation of Japanese Americans who quietly and peaceably left their church when the police came to close it after a service. Of course, I realize that the government must take such measures to prevent espionage.

I am also thinking of that group of young Japanese Americans, 16 to 27 years of age, who met in a Japanese restaurant just before it was closed to discuss their situation. They had all been born here, were all American citizens, and were all loyal to the United States, yet they realized that because their outward appearance was Japanese they would be hated and persecuted by the rest of us. They were young Americans with Japanese faces.

Let us fight this war and win it, but let us not throw stones at peaceful American citizens just because they happen to be of Japanese or German extraction. Most of them are loyal. Let us remember that we are supposed to be Christians.

And I should like to suggest that every one read Louis Adamic's two latest books, "From Many Lands," and "Two-Way Passage."

ON DR. HOLMES.

A DAUGHTER WRITES HOME.

"My Darlings: 'Tis a sad but hopeful little girl who speaks to you now. I have just heard the bitter news of our entrance into a war with Japan. It seems that after all the bombs that have been dropping around us it was inevitable that one of them would eventually hit us. Let us pray, for only God can help us now. Let us pray for the safety of our beloved ones, of our President, of our fellow countrymen, and, most of all, let us pray for the future and the destruction of all war mongers. Our laughter has been dulled; perhaps our happiness has been too great.

"We are not going into this war with brass bands. We are going into it with guns ready and heads bowed in determination. 'Are we ready?' is not the question any more—it is 'We have to be ready and we will be ready!' whether it be a football game or a 'humanball' game.

"I should be studying, but this seems much more important at the moment. In this moment I can see clearly the horrors of war. Please don't let them happen to us, dear Lord, for I love my mummy and daddy, and Tuda, and Nina, and Beaux, and 'Cim,' and all the love that goes with them. Your adoring daughter,

"Jane."

BLACKOUTS AT CHRISTMAS.

Palmer Lake, Colo., Dec. 12.—

Santa once again meets blackouts in those lands across the seas.
Children huddled in the dugouts where they'll have no Christmas trees.
The tall chimneys and the roof tops where he landed yesteryears Lie in mangled scattered ruins; homeless children grope in tears.
When he left his north pole work shop with a sleigh crammed full of toys
His list held names of many happy little girls and boys.
But those new-fangled fast bombers can outrun Santa's reindeer;
And instead of eager faces, some are gone, some wet with tears.
They have no place to hang their stockings, they have no home, they go in herds
Like cattle to their feed trough, like a frightened flock of birds.
We live in a land of plenty, we have the gold, they have the dross.
And the best way we can help them is by helping the Red Cross.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self addressed envelope will expedite handling.

HEATING REQUIREMENTS.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My landlord tells me he does not have to give his tenants any heat until 8 o'clock a. m. if he does not want to, as he has only two families as tenants and himself.

He usually turns it on at 7:45 to 11 a. m. and 4 to 9:30 p. m. During the day it is very cold. Asking for heat is useless. Now what time in the morning are we entitled to heat, and what hours during the day, and how late at night?

Jno. M.

Section 96-4 of the City Code as amended Dec. 1, 1923, requires every person controlling the heating plant of any tenement house in which the heat is furnished from a plant used in common to furnish heat from Sept. 15 to June 1 so that the occupants may secure, without such restriction of ventilation as to interfere with sanitary conditions, a minimum temperature of 60 degrees at 6:30 a. m., 65 degrees at 7:30 a. m., 68 degrees at 8:30 a. m., and thereafter until 10:30 p. m., provided that notice by registered mail shall be given before any person shall be deemed to have violated this section. Since it may be difficult to prove sufficient facts to defend an action for rent in case you move out, we advise you first to report violations to the commissioner of health, city hall, and to exhaust the possibility of getting relief by formal notice to the landlord.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

AIR TRAFFIC.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When private property is used by the air service what form of compensation is made to the owner?

2. In addition to the property injury, is not the owner entitled to compensation for the risk involved?

3. Before planes are permitted to operate over privately owned property, is it not customary for the service or corporation so operating to have the property condemned and then purchased for their use?

4. When residential property is condemned for public use, what amount of compensation is paid to the owner?

5. Is it limited to homestead rights?

C. H. J.

1. We assume that you mean use of the land surface as distinguished from mere use of the air. In general, condemnation would be necessary in order to acquire the right to use the surface. In condemnation proceedings a jury would fix the award to the previous owner after hearing the evidence.

2. We cannot answer these questions to advantage without having your facts.

3. No. Obviously planes are operating over the entire city of Chicago.

4. See 1.

5. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CO-OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother, a widow, died in Wisconsin, 1929. She left a will stating that $200 should be given to three of her daughters and the rest should be divided equally between my brother, another sister, and myself. The estate went thru Probate court. I have never lived at home since and I never claimed my share. My brother and one sister continued to live there, made their living, and kept the farm and houses up.

1. Can I still claim my share?

2. Will my share be reduced by not paying taxes? I helped with the taxes for four years and then stopped.

3. Can the farm be sold and a clear deed given without my signature?

E. O.

1. In general the statute of limitations does not run between co-owners in property. Your chances seem good enough to warrant a personal interview with an attorney.

2. No.

3. Probably not.

2. How many of these teeth does nature NOT replace with a second set? 4 8 12 16.
3. Which one of these crops usually produces the greatest gross money income per acre?
Soy beans Wheat Irish potatoes Alfalfa.
4. Girls frequently complain to me that their otherwise gallant escorts fail to indulge them in regard to which one of these?
Candy Movies Flowers Dances.
5. Which one of these characteristics is the greatest asset of a young wife? How to Cook Make her own clothes Live within a budget Play the piano.
6. The greatest event in human history is being celebrated this week. As a tonic for a war torn world, may I write a prescription that all of you could profit by in the next four days? Read the Books of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John! Then you can make a perfect score in matching the cities below with the episodes in Christ's life.

[a] Jerusalem	[v] Christ's birthplace
[b] Nazareth	[w] Where Jesus argued with the graybeards when he was 12
[c] Bethlehem	[x] Where Jesus wrestled with his destiny
[e] Gethsemane	[z] Cured the insane man

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6 average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

YANKS ADOPTED FOR CHRISTMAS EXCEED 15,000

Presents Go from Most of 48 States.

"Merry Christmas!"

That's the message readers of THE TRIBUNE are sending with gifts to lonely soldiers, sailors, and marines who will not be able to get home Christmas day.

More than 15,000 volunteers had mailed in applications to join the "Adopt a Yank for Christmas!" movement when the latest mail was received, and 300 more had telephoned for the name of their adopted Yank.

The name and address of a soldier will be sent to all persons who mailed in applications to adopt a Yank. But no more applications are being received. Christmas is so near that it was necessary to make last midnight the deadline for accepting applications.

Many of the volunteers adopted more than one Yank, so that Christmas presents are assured for many more than 15,000.

The givers represent every state in Chicagoland and almost every state in the nation. A number of them offered to send gifts to the parents of service men, as well as to their adopted Yanks, but the names and addresses of families were not available.

If you joined the campaign late, and have not received the name and address of your adopted Yank, you will receive it in the mail tomorrow.

A few of those who adopted Yanks stationed in the Chicago district may find that their Yank has been transferred to another station when he writes his thanks. The war emergency made a few such transfers necessary after the lists were issued, but the presents will be forwarded.

Don't delay sending your present. Packages should be mailed by tomorrow if possible to insure their delivery by Christmas.

The Adopt a Yank movement was conceived as a Christmas time institution to make it possible for those at home to send Christmas presents to men in service. But a number of givers have said they mean to write to their adopted Yank when they send his gift, and to keep on writing to him.

Presents are being sent to men in Camp Forrest, Tullahoma, Tenn.; Camp Livingston, Alexandria, La.; Fort Sheridan, the Great Lakes Naval Training station, Navy pier, the Chicago naval armory, and the Glenview naval air base.

SOLDIERS BREAK RANKS FOR BOUT WITH OLD SANTA

[Copyright: 1941: By the Associated Press.]

Soldiers in army camps from coast to coast will take time off from their grim duty of training for war to enjoy a merry Christmas.

A survey yesterday showed the holiday will be observed with all the American traditions and trimmings.

Plans for the men who remain at the cantonments include parties, dances, shows, concerts, religious services, gifts, personal appearances of Santa Claus and 1½ million pounds of turkey.

Huge trees, burdened with multicolored lights, have been put in place on military reservations. Holly, red and green bunting, and pine boughs have been arranged in mess halls, barracks and recreation centers.

Festivities Begin Today.

Thousands of troops from the Great Lakes states, now in Alexandria, La., army camps, will begin their holiday festivities this morning with a program at Livingston for 400 children of 32d division officers and men.

Louisiana Masonic Home orphans will be entertained at Livingston on Christmas day. USO units in Alexandria are planning a song festival on the city hall square Christmas eve. Afterward the soldiers will break into small groups to sing carols in various parts of Alexandria.

Churches are planning special Christmas programs, arranging for the men to accompany families home for dinner.

Santa in Newest Vehicles.

Strolling minstrels will give voice to "Silent Night" and other holiday hymns as they move from barracks to barracks at Chanute field, Illinois.

Kriss Kringle will swoop down on Scott field, Illinois, in an army warplane and roll into Camp Grant, Illinois, on a jeep.

Presents will be placed around a tree and pulled out of a grab bag at Pine camp, New York. The Christmas feasters at Camp Blanding, Florida, will be confronted by a gastronomical gamut of 20 items.

Free meals will be served 5,000 to 7,500 soldiers and sailors by night clubs, hotels and restaurants of New York from Tuesday thru Christmas day, it was announced by the New York City Defense Recreation committee.

WPA PAY CHECKS TO BE DELIVERED FOR CHRISTMAS

To insure a merrier Christmas for hundreds of Work Projects Administration employés, Charles P. Casey, state WPA administrator, said yesterday that wherever possible employés would receive pay checks before Christmas.

Casey said that working hours have been rescheduled to permit delivery by Dec. 23 of all pay checks normally delivered between that date and Dec. 26. Timekeepers yesterday handed in their reports to the state finance division. So that checks would be as large as possible, workers were given the opportunity to make up lost time.

ZORINA TO STAR AT MEETING OF GOOD FELLOWS

She Will Pick Typical Fraternity Man.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Are you the typical looking Mr. Good Fellow among Chicago's college fraternity men?

Well, you can find out tomorrow noon if you attend the annual Fraternity Good Fellow luncheon which will be held in the Grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle. For a beautiful dancer and actress, Vera Zorina, star of "Louisiana Purchase," now playing at the Erlanger theater, will be at the speakers' table with Edward Twerdahl Jr., chairman, and Lieut. Col. Chester L. Fordney, speaker, and before the luncheon is over she will nominate some handsome young man for this honor.

Leaders in Fraternities.

Twerdahl is a member of Phi Kappa Psi which in memory of a deceased brother, Edward C. Fitch, the original Mr. Good Fellow, started these Good Fellow luncheons six years ago. Yesterday he announced the fraternities and their Good Fellow chairmen who are assisting in arrangements for the luncheon and the taking of 100 Good Fellow baskets to unfortunate families on Christmas eve.

They are: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Harry A. Ackerburg; Sigma Chi, Norwood Burch; Chi Psi, Morland J. McMurry; Psi Upsilon, Charles N. Fuller; Theta Delta Chi, Gardner A. MacWhorter; Delta Upsilon, Frank Carney; Delta Tau Delta, Perry L. Smithers Jr. and Floyd H. Egan; Alpha Tau Omega, Dewey M. Beck; Alpha Delta Phi, Milton C. Cook; Kappa Sigma, Fred E. Welsh; Delta Chi, L. Orville Edlund; Phi Psi, John C. Christie; Phi Delta Theta, Col. John B. Reynolds.

Reservations Can be Made.

All college and fraternity men who wish to attend the luncheon should call the Interfraternity club in the La Salle, Franklin 6540, for reservations after 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Fraternity groups may sit together, 10 at a table.

One of the most touching contributions to the Good Fellow fund this year was made yesterday by J. E. Orr of 2100 North Lincoln Park West. He sent his check for $100 and with it a note. It read: "In memory of the late Mr. Edward Hines and the late Mr. Maurice Teufel." Both were officials of the Hines Lumber company where Orr is employed.

Turn to your Metropolitan section today for the Good Fellow coupon if you wish to help out. Fill it out and send it to the campaign's headquarters in THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street. Cash contributions are still welcomed. Send your check or money order, made payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., [Good Fellow fund] to the Public Service office.

COMPANIES RUN BY YOUTHS TO DO PART IN DEFENSE

Twenty-three small fry corporations—each staffed by boys and girls under 21 years old—met yesterday to take inventory at the request of OPM. The companies, each a part of the Junior Achievement business movement, were requested by government production officials to submit an inventory report of tools and production capacities.

The companies plan to pool their equipment and staffs and expect to be given minor defense work soon, according to A. R. Snyder, executive director of the Chicago area.

The Junior Achievement movement will add 75 additional companies to its Chicago list within 90 days, Snyder said. The present 23 companies are miniature manufacturing plants and are located for the most part in garages, basements, and lofts.

ASK VOLUNTEERS FOR NEW CIVILIAN AERIAL PATROL

All Need Not Be Flyers to Do Part.

Organization plans for the midwest Civil Air Patrol were outlined yesterday following a meeting of federal and state directors of this newest noncombatant defense agency. The first flight of the Illinois wing is expected to be made up within 10 days.

In addition to men and women holding pilot licenses of private or higher grade, the CAP enrollment has been broadened to include the following:

Those holding government certificates for any skill or experience related to aviation, such as aircraft and engine mechanics, control tower operators, radio telephone operators, and student pilots.

For auxiliary duty, volunteers for clerical work, driving of cars or ambulances, watchmen, men and women experienced in first aid.

Citizens of good character who will take instruction as mechanics, airport supervisors, control tower operators, or for other service.

Where to Join Up.

Application blanks may be obtained at airports or the regional office of civilian defense at 20 North Wacker drive.

Col. Floyd E. Evans of the army air corps will assume his new duties as regional commander of the CAP within a few days. His office will be at 20 North Wacker drive, as will that of Jack Vilas, Illinois wing commander.

Maj. Raymond J. Kelly, director of the 6th civilian defense region, announced that about 600 airplanes and 2,500 volunteers, including ground crews, will be enrolled in Illinois.

Duties of Members.

Duties will include:

Courier service which under war conditions may utilize every pilot and aircraft capable of cross-country navigation.

Patroling of industrial areas including public power plants, waterworks, and power lines and dams.

Towing of aerial gunnery targets.

Flying ambulance planes "behind the lines."

Servicing military aircraft which may land at civil airports.

Assisting air raid watchers in identification of aircraft as friendly or hostile.

Gov. Dwight Green yesterday called upon American Legion members to serve in a state-wide air raid precautions service. He appointed William F. Waugh, Chicago attorney and former state legion commander, to direct organization of the system.

Legionnaires will serve as key men in each county. Green pointed out they already are organized, with 92,000 men forming 805 Legion posts.

"One of the most important duties that can be carried out by an air raid precaution and warning service," he added, "is the preservation of public confidence and the prevention of unwarranted fears."

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY BALL IS GAY AFFAIR

Proceeds Add $10,000 to Organization's Funds.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

The annual ball of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society in the Drake hotel last night was a gay affair, but there was an underlying atmosphere of war. There were too many uniformed army and navy men to allow one to think that it was a peacetime party. However, the funds of the society were swelled by $10,000, according to Mrs. Jacob Baur, general chairman of the ball committee. Chauncey McCormick, president of the society, had rejected suggestions that the ball be called off.

The entrance to the ballroom where dinner was served was thru a casino where games of chance intrigued those who were not in a rush for sustenance, to gamble for the cause. Mrs. Winterbotham Badger was the guardian of a chuck-a-luck game that was enormously popular.

Pause for Aperitifs.

Among the early arrivals were Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams in electric blue crêpe and a silver fox jacket, and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed in a vibrant blue crêpe with a neckline embroidered in red and gold. Many of the early comers paused for aperitifs in the Camellia House before proceeding on to the Gold Coast room, where the benefit was held.

One of the most stunning costumes at the party was worn by young Mrs. Philip D. Armour, who was in a baby blue satin basque-waisted gown and a silver fox jacket. There were red camellias at her neck and in her long, blonde hair. Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, is gold lamé, spent some time in the game room before going into dinner.

Mrs. Carpenter in Green Taffeta.

350 LICENSES TO WED ISSUED IN DAY, A RECORD

Issuance of marriage licenses here yesterday set an all time record for a December Saturday, according to County Clerk Michael J. Flynn and his chief clerk, Sidney Summerfield. At closing time in the early afternoon 350 licenses had been issued. The highest previous number for a December Saturday was 175. The spurt was attributed to the presence in Chicago of many soldiers, sailors, and marines on Christmas leave.

Among those taking licenses yesterday were Ruth Dargatz, 20 years old, 7730 Adams street, Forest Park, and Pvt. Helmuth Grunwald, 22, 157 Brown avenue, in the suburb, now assigned to Fort Sill, Okla., and Marilyn Fuehlan, 18, of 8125 Rhodes avenue, and Leonard Smietanka, 21, 5536 Wood street, a seaman assigned to duty at Navy pier.

DIVORCE SUITS CUT SHARPLY BY ADVENT OF WAR

First 11 Months Show Increase Over 1940.

The war has reduced sharply the number of divorce suits filed in Cook county, according to Judges Rudolph Desort and Joseph Sabath of the Superior court, who had expected a busy holiday season, hearing scores of divorce actions.

In the last two weeks the tide has turned so definitely that the two judges expect before the month is out to hear cases originally set for late in January. Up to Dec. 1, however, divorce cases filed numbered 10,262, as compared to 9,371 on the corresponding date last year.

Desertion Principal Charge.

Of the 8,614 decrees granted in 1940, desertion as grounds led the list with 5,722. Cruelty ranked second with 2,136, while drunkenness, adultery, conviction of a felony and miscellaneous charges followed in the order named, according to the records of Victor L. Schlaeger, clerk of the court.

"Unity in the home is the prime factor in keeping couples out of the divorce courts," said Judge Desort yesterday. "The large number of desertion cases results from failure to make common sense adjustments or readjustments to a common good."

Judge Desort believes the effect of the war will be felt during the coming year in the divorce courts. A common calamity works to increase unity in individual homes, he said.

Expects Decline in 1942.

"You will find there will be fewer divorces in 1942 in homes where there are children," the judge added. "Parental love seems to blossom best at times like this."

Other branches of the Superior court also reported an increase in business during 1941. There were 4,284 law jury cases, 1,787 nonlaw jury, and 2,510 chancery cases, bring to 18,843 the total filings. This is in contrast to 16,959 cases filed up to Dec. 1, 1940. Disposition of the actions was only slightly behind the number of filings.

GIVE DAY'S PAY TO RED CROSS, CITY-WIDE PLEA

10,000 Volunteers Ready to Conduct Drive.

A day's pay from those who are working for those who are fighting!

This will be the appeal of 100,000 volunteer workers for the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross tomorrow following the opening of a $3,750,000 war relief budget campaign at a luncheon in the Palmer House. Leaders in the city's business and industrial life will organize the drive along the lines of the annual Community Fund campaign, James B. Forgan, chairman, announced yesterday.

"In Chicago proper," Mr. Forgan said, "team captains in business and industrial firms will collect employé gifts. A day's pay from every worker will be the goal of the employé solicitation. In addition a sponsors' division will seek donations directly from the companies themselves and from wealthy individuals."

Extends to Three Counties.

Outside the city the drive will cover all of Cook and Du Page counties and Lake county as far north as the town of Great Lakes. Headquarters will be in the Borland building, 105 South La Salle street, in offices donated for the campaign by Chauncey Borland.

Chicago's $3,750,000 goal is part of a 50 million dollar notion-wide war relief budget campaign being sponsored by the Red Cross.

Progress was reported in other defense and humanitarian drives.

The Christmas stocking campaign of Bundles for Bluejackets for navy men in and near Chicago approached its 10,000 goal, Mrs. John P. Cohane, Chicago chairman, announced at headquarters in the Palmer house.

Magazines for Soldiers.

A campaign for magazines and hard candy to be distributed among wounded soldiers in the Phillipines was begun by We, the Mothers, Mobilize for America, according to an announcement by Mrs. Lyrl Van Hyning, director. Mrs. Van Hyning sent out an urgent appeal for public donations.

Veterans of the last war and their families are not being forgotten by women defense workers, Mrs. Laura Miller, 7 East 79th street, chairman of the Christmas basket drive for the Cook county council of the American Legion auxiliary, pointed out. More than 1,000 baskets filled with fresh foods have been collected and will be distributed to needy families Tuesday, she said.

A campaign sponsored by Morris B. Sachs, a south side merchant, yielded 15,000 cans and packages of food and $1,000 worth of fresh meats and vegetables.

FETE CHILDREN BY THOUSANDS AT YULE PARTIES

Organizations Do Their Giving Early.

Recognizing that Christmas day is for the family, many Chicago organizations held their Christmas parties for the children yesterday. Santa Claus was almost as busy as he will be Christmas eve, making a personal appearance at every event.

Two thousand children, sons and daughters of Milwaukee Road employés, greeted Santa Claus at 1:30 p. m., when he arrived in Union station at the invitation of the Milwaukee Road Booster club. Members of the Pioneer post of the American Legion helped him distribute candy and presents to the youngsters. A band and clowns provided additional entertainment.

More than 1,500 children were guests of Bishop Bernard J. Sheil at the annual Catholic Youth organization party in the CYO gymnasium, 31 East Congress street. Pierre Andre, radio announcer, was master of ceremonies for the program which featured a Punch and Judy show, a magician, and Christmas carols. Santa Claus distributed gifts.

Printers Fête Children.

The Chicago Typographical union gave its 10th annual Christmas party for children of its members. More than 1,500 youngsters—the largest number ever to attend — played games, watched jugglers and clowns, and received gifts in the ballroom of the Steuben club at Randolph and Wells streets. The parties were originated to insure Christmas joy for children of members out of work, but have been expanded to include the children of all members. Thomas Canty, president, and Calvin Ebey were in charge of the party.

Sixty second graders from the west side, all from needy families, had a special Christmas treat at the University college of Loyola university. Members of the Loyola Service guild arranged for the ice cream, cake, and presents which Santa Claus gave the wide eyed youngsters.

50 Boys Entertained.

Fifty underprivileged boys from 14 to 17 years old were guests of Chauncey O. Frisbie, retired industrialist, at a Christmas dinner party last night in the Ballington Booth Community center of the Volunteers of America, 2841 Washington boulevard. Four marines from the Naval Training station at Navy Pier, who have been Frisbie's Sunday dinner guests for months, were assistant hosts.

About 300 pupils from the Sexton school will attend a theater party to be given by the North Central Kiwanis club at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in the Esquire theater. This is one of the many Christmas programs sponsored by the Kiwanis clubs for children thruout the city.

Special Christmas Exhibits.

Both the Chicago Public library and the Chicago Historical society have arranged special Christmas exhibits. Cases on the first floor at the library show the first Christmas card, a collection of old Christmas tree ornaments and old toys.

The Historical society at Clark street and North avenue offers Christmas scenes typical of colonial days and the gay nineties. The colonial Christmas is centered in the replica of the Paul Revere house, with a tree trimmed with apples, walnuts, cranberries, and paper ornaments.

In the Victorian room the tree is decorated with strings of popcorn and old fashioned ornaments surrounded by skates, a sled, and doll furniture from the society's gay nineties collection. The exhibits will be on view until Jan. 12. The museum will be closed on Christmas, but open New Year's day from 1 to 6 p. m.

RESTRICT TRAVEL OVER BORDERS OF DRAFT AGE MEN

Announcement of new restrictions on all men of selective service age who may wish to spend the holidays in Canada or Mexico was made last night by the Cook county headquarters of the selective service system. The instructions were issued to clarify a situation that arose at Detroit, where immigration officials refused to allow such men to enter Canada.

From now on it will be necessary to have a permit from his draft board if the applicant is in classification 2B, 3A, 4B, 4C, 4D, or 4F, provided there is reason to believe he will stay in that class. Those in 1A will not be given permits unless there is dire emergency.

The boards also were instructed that permits should not be given unles there was good assurance the applicant would return in less than a month.

CIO PLANS DRIVE TO UNIONIZE ALL MILK PRODUCERS

Hope 3,000,000 Enroll; Detroit Strike Ends.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20 [Special].—A CIO drive among the nation's dairy farmers aiming at a national union organization, with a potential membership of 3,000,000, was in prospect today after announcement here that the United Mine Workers had granted a charter to the United Dairy Farmers, up to now an independent union of farmers in the Detroit milk shed.

This is the first time in CIO history a farm organization has been granted a national charter. The announcement was made by Ralph H. Marlatt of Flint, newly named national organizing director for the farm group, on his return from Washington conferences with John L. Lewis.

Milk Strike Called Off.

Marlatt called off the five day Detroit milk strike on his arrival here, telegraphing Gov. Murray Van Wagoner acceptance of the governor's proposal for a truce pending efforts at mediation.

Marlatt said Michigan officers of the United Dairy Farmers will be elevated to similar posts in the national organization on Jan. 1, when his own appointment will become effective, and that the Michigan organization will serve as a nucleous for the proposed national organization. New York was chosen for the first organization drive with Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Minnesota to follow.

Fred Hays, of Flint, who accompanied Marlatt to Washington, becomes national president. The Michigan UDF now will be known as the United Dairy Farmers division of district 50, UMW-CIO.

Strike of Little Effect.

The Detroit strike was called on a UDF demand for a flat rate of $3 per hundredweight for their milk. It had not been largely effectual in blocking Detroit milk deliveries, but had a high nuisance value and caused several cases of violence.

The action Saturday of an arbitration commission in awarding price boosts of 31 and 23 cents a hundredweight to members of the Michigan Milk Producers association, a rival organization, was regarded as one of the influences causing the UDF to accept mediation.

TWO PRISONERS ARE IDENTIFIED IN 5 ROBBERIES

William Finley, 30 years old, and Ellsworth Schlophoff, 28, in custody in the Fillmore street police station, have been identified in five robberies, police said yesterday. They have named a colored accomplice who is being sought. The men, both armed with revolvers, were arrested last Tuesday at Orleans and Oak streets. They were wearing clothes taken on Dec. 12 when they robbed a clothing store at 823 South Halsted street. Four filling station attendants also have identified them as robbers. They lived at 111 West Division street.

Bandits Escape With $700 Just Removed from Bank

Two colored bandits yesterday robbed Philip Tito, 30 years old, 830 West Taylor street, of $700 he had just withdrawn from the Banco di Napoli, Roosevelt road and Ashland avenue. Tito had hurried to the bank as soon as he heard of the President's order, unfreezing its assets. The gunmen forced his car to the curb at Loomis and Washburn streets.

JEWELERS ROBBED OF $975 IN RINGS. A. Hess and sons, jewelers at 2220 West Madison street, reported to police yesterday that two diamond rings valued at $975 were taken from their showcase Friday.

JURY TO WAIT FOR GAMBLING CASE FUGITIVES

Heads of the Guzik-Nitti-Vogel gambling syndicate and key witnesses who have fled the city to avoid testifying had as well surrender now as later because succeeding grand juries will keep the inquiry open until they do. This statement was made yesterday by Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney.

The investigation was begun by the November grand jury after THE TRIBUNE published the syndicate's secret ledger sheets. These showed that altho more than $300,000 a year was being paid as protection money to police and officials, the syndicate was making a profit of more than a million dollars a year. The December grand jury took over where the November panel left off and the January jurors will carry on.

Crowley said yesterday that Lester Laird, former chief of the county highway police, and Fred Hager, former lieutenant of the highway police, will have to stay away a long time to avoid testifying. They and the others will find the case still open, no matter when they come back, Crowley said.

WAUKEGAN USO CENTER TO GO IN USE TOMORROW

Construction was completed yesterday on the $116,000 United Service Organizations building at Sheridan road and Lake street, Waukegan. The building, which covers half a block and will be a gathering place for soldiers from Fort Sheridan and sailors from the Great Lakes Naval Training station, was hurried to completion in 84 days so that it might be used during the Christmas holidays.

The building will go into use tomorrow morning when a flag raising ceremony is held. Capt. William J. Strain of the quartermaster's department, who supervised construction, will be in charge. The prayer will be offered by the Rev. A. F. Ewart of Fort Sheridan. The color guard from Great Lakes will participate.

Eleven similar ceremonies will be held at other USO buildings in the 6th corps area during the day. Formal dedication of the Waukegan building will be held Jan. 9.

A 'GOOD BOY,' 16, ADMITS KILLING FOUR OF FAMILY

Parents, Sister, Brother Shot; Home Fired.

Little Falls, Minn., Dec. 20 [Special].—A 16 year old "good boy," who for three years had done much of the work on his father's large farm near here while his older sisters and brother went away to school or the city, calmly confessed today to the shotgun extermination of all members of his family who remained at home.

Richard Dehler.

Dead were his father and mother and a younger sister and brother, while the youth told county authorities his only regret was his failure to cover up the massacre by burning the farmhouse, which he had fired after stacking the bodies in the basement and drenching them with oil.

Winner of Farm Awards.

The young slayer is Richard E. Dehler, known to the countryside as a raiser of prize livestock and a winner of awards in farm club competitions. He was graduated two years ago from the eighth grade of the Buckman parochial school, and had been kept home to do the farm work by his crippled father.

The dead were August B. Dehler, 50, the father; Regina, about 50, his wife; Anna Mae, 10, a daughter, and Kenneth, 5, a son.

Gathered at the fire scarred farmhouse, or en route there, are five older children, called home to confront the slayer and to make funeral arrangements.

Breaks After Five Hours.

Dry eyed and calm under five hours of questioning during which he stoutly maintained innocence, Richard broke down at 4 a. m. today and admitted he was the slayer before County Attorney A. L. Grimes.

After he had signed a written confession, Richard was asked if he were beginning to feel sorry. He replied with a grin, according to County Attorney Austin Grimes, "I'm sorry it didn't turn out the way I planned it."

Richard's failure to leave a door open so a draft would fan the flames resulted in a smoldering fire instead of the holocaust on which he relied to hide the tragedy. With a prayer book in his pocket, he drove to the nearby village of Buckman after starting the fire. Neighbors put out the fire and found the bodies.

Broods Over Treatment.

Richard said he first thought of the crime yesterday afternoon. His father had kicked him the night before for throwing straw in the wrong place, he declared, and he brooded over what he considered the injustice of "being pushed around."

He siphoned gasoline from tanks on the farm, filling a three gallon tank. After supper he returned to the house from milking six cows and doing the chores. He told his parents he had seen a rabbit in the yard and was going to shoot it. He went outside with a 12 gauge shotgun and six shells.

The youth then walked around the house to a kitchen window and fired thru it into the room. Four times the boy fired, each shot killing a member of his family. The county attorney said Richard refused to describe the order in which the victims met their deaths.

Richard said he had no intention of running away after the killing, but had planned to remain at home until the estate was divided when he would take his share and go out into the world.

OPPOSE O'BRIEN PLAN TO ADD 200 TO COUNTY FORCE

The Civic Federation of Chicago announced yesterday it opposed Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien's request for an additional 200 county highway policemen, ostensibly to aid in the national defense.

This stand was taken in a letter from the federation to Judges Robert Jerome Dunne, John Prystalski, and Julius Miner, members of the committee that governs the number of employés in the county's fee offices.

National defense, the communication asserted, is primarily a federal activity and there should be no upping of local tax spending except at the specific request of the government. Instead of increasing the O'Brien forces, the federation held, the committee should consider disbanding the county highway police as soon as the state highway police find it possible to take over the policing of the rural areas of Cook county.

Santa Claus, Ind., Is Ready to Handle Big Mail Rush

Santa Claus, Ind., Dec. 20 [Special].—Record crowds are expected here tomorrow, in order to get this village's famous postmark imprinted upon their Christmas cards and gift packages. Arrangements have been made to handle more than 50,000 pieces of mail in all shapes and sizes. The rush is expected to start when the office opens at 8 a. m., and continue thruout the day. Postmaster Oscar L. Phillips has hired additional help to handle the expected rush. The toy village also is fully manned. Heavy stocks of candy castles and toys for the tiny buildings have been brought in. Toy village stocks were depleted by noon last year.

'DOC' GIVES ALL A CRACKING GOOD TIME—$5 VARIETY

He'd Go to Jail, but Wants Dinner on the Dot.

This is another article in a series by Tribune reporters who have visited quack doctors and submitted to their "treatments." The state department of registration and education has obtained 11 warrants charging violation of medical laws. The series will be continued in an early issue.

BY BARBARA ADAMS.

Dashing young "Doc" Ford A. Roberts does right nicely, he says, practicing naprapathy without a license. In fact, he says he's so busy that he often works till midnight or later. He has two offices, one at 220 South State street and another at 1636 West 63d street, just off the teeming intersection of 63d and Ashland. And the fact he's been in jail makes not the slightest difference. He says the customers keep coming and, being a humanitarian—always willing to go to jail for his practice—he just keeps on treating 'em.

I could well believe all this about the natty, young pseudo medico. He told it to me with a nonchalant air. He was spic and span in rich brown tweeds. His nails were perfectly manicured and polished.

Well, he had been in jail and, altho he didn't know it when he was talking to me, he was soon to face that prospect again.

Arrested Last Month.

Dapper "Doc" Roberts was first arrested for practicing without a license last Nov. 5. He told me he had been in jail "for my practice," and that must have been the time. I find now that after his arrest Nov. 5 he gave bail Nov. 6, so he must have spent the intervening time in jail. At any rate he was arrested again on a warrant issued by Judge Isley in County court Dec. 11.

I had nothing to do with either arrest. It just happened that I visited him between the two.

The first case brought against him by state inspectors for the department of registration had not been disposed of and he was still out on bail when he was caught the second time. The first case is set for County court on Jan. 6. The second hasn't been set.

Interferes with Dinner.

On my visit to "Doc" Roberts' 63d street office he indicated he cares so little for his troubles or an individual patient that he won't let either interfere with his dinner. It happened I got there rather late in the afternoon—and it was still later when the second of two women patients he was talking with, and apparently giving "treatments," left him with a "Good-by, doctor, see you on Wednesday!"

He asked me the usual questions about who I was and who sent me to him, and so on, exclaiming: "I always ask these things. Well, you can see, can't you, that I have to limit my practice? I seldom see any one without an appointment, but in your case—well, we'll see about you."

He fussed with some charts on his desk and then pulled out a clean one and turned back to me.

"What seems to ail you?" he asked.

Sighs Seem to Help.

I sighed deeply. [Experience has taught me that helps.] "I really don't know, doctor. It must be my cold. And my shoulder bothers me."

He asked a few more questions, made some marks on the chart, then suddenly arose, lifted his arm, and looked at his wrist watch.

"I'm afraid I can't take care of you today," he laughed. "Might miss my dinner—and I don't want to do that! How about tomorrow? Can't you come to me some time in the morning?"

I agreed to be in his loop office at 11 a. m. the following day and he was on hand to meet me.

"Dr." Roberts led me thru a curtained door into an inner room.

"We'll use this," he said, smiling. "It's the biggest of these cubby holes around here. He handed me a green, sleeveless, cotton coat and indicated a little private room off the one we were in. "Go in there," he said, "take off your clothes, and put that on."

Bones Crack Painfully.

I followed his directions and soon was lying face down on a black leather table. He began a vigorous treatment at once. First he massaged my neck, then harder and still harder. Suddenly he gave my neck a terrific wrench. My bones cracked painfully. Inside my head it sounded like a pistol shot.

"Ouch!" I yelled. "My goodness, doctor, why don't you kill me and be done with it?"

He laughed, rubbed my neck gently again, and said:

"O, that, that's just an adjustment. Merely relaxes the ligatites." He paused a moment, then reached further down my back and suddenly cracked a bone. "Chiropractors," he went on nochalantly as I had yelled with pain again, "chiropractors promise to adjust the spine. So do the osteopaths. We—we naprapaths—know that can't be done. You can only relax the ligatites—the little cords in the spine that cause so much trouble."

Doesn't Like Doctors.

"They're certainly causing me enough!" I exclaimed, pouting, and he patted my back. He worked, gently again, on my spine for a short time, then said:

"The medical doctors are a dirty crew. They won't give us fellows any credit at all. Not a bit. And we're smarter than they are when it comes right down to it. And gamer, too.

"Why, I've been in jail for practicing!" he bragged.

"You have?" I said, opening my eyes wide. "My goodness! Why?"

"Because the big medical men would like to see the naprapaths out of business. Many of their patients are now coming to us and they don't like it one bit. They're the ones who put me in jail."

"Gee-e-e-e," I said, "that doesn't seem fair."

Responds to Sympathy.

He warmed right up to the sympathy. "It isn't fair," he went on, "not one bit. But they do it. They're powerful, you know—and can cause a lot of trouble."

He was lulling me into a false feeling of security. Crack! He had snapped some bones again.

I hollered "Ouch! O, ouch! Gee, doctor, that hurts!" I made it a little stronger than was necessary, but he paid no attention.

"This looks like neuralgia," he said, indicating my shoulder, "but it might be neuritis or arthritis."

"O, my! Doctor!" I exclaimed. "O, dear me!"

"I'll check it," he decided. "Now you tell me when I press on a bone that hurts."

He pressed numerous bones in my back, my shoulders—using plenty of force. I admitted that several hurt.

Makes Marks on Back.

"Now I'll check myself," and he proceeded to push the same bones, writing remarks on a little chart. With a heavy black pencil he marked tender spots on my back with x's and with other signs.

"It's hard to remember which dorsal bone is where unless you mark it," he explained.

"With that chart it won't take so long next time," and he proceeded to crack my neck again.

Crack! Crack! He began a series of manipulations which produced weird sounds from the bones in my back.

After about 15 minutes of that he began to move my left arm and shoulder, first slowly, then gradually increasing the rate of speed.

"Whoa! That does hurt!" I groaned as he jerked my shoulder far back with a sudden move.

"Keep it under a pillow or flannel at night and come and see me in a few days," he ordered, speaking of my "sore" shoulder.

"That will be $5," he said with a smile.

They came to Chicago to elude parental objections, bringing the car of Leroy's father.

An accident at Warren boulevard and Western avenue brought out these facts. Theiner was charged with reckless driving and when it was learned Bernadine was only 16, an additional charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor was added. YOUTHFUL LOVER ENDS HIS LIFE AT TRYSTING PLACE

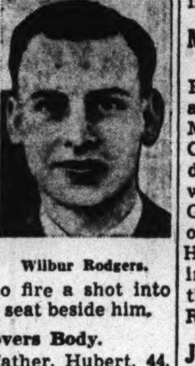
Note to Girl Directs Hunt Deep Into Forest.

Deep in Deer Grove forest—a scene full of happy memories for Wilbur Rodgers, 21 years old—a rifle shot early yesterday brought an end to his love affair with a 17 year old high school girl.



Wilbur Rodgers.

His body was found in an automobile parked in the woods near Dundee and Quinten roads in Palatine township. The .22 caliber rifle he had used to fire a shot into his head was on the seat beside him.

Father Discovers Body.

Young Rodgers' father, Hubert, 44, of 407 Elmhurst road, Prospect Heights, discovered the body as the result of a search started when Miss Beverly Miller, 17, of 200 Wheeling road, Prospect Heights, told of finding young Rodgers' wallet on her front porch. Inside the wallet was a note which read:

"Bev: Sorry, so very sorry. Find me, where this summer I found happiness, where you and I played catch together, where I could forget the unpleasant things of the short time past. That picnic this summer, remember? There I in part shall be. Regretfully, WILBUR."

Miss Miller, who is a high school senior, told Sergt. Max Ramelow of the Morton Grove county highway police, that she met Rodgers last May and had several dates with him.

She said Rodgers had wanted to marry her and that her parents had objected because she was too young. They had asked her not to have any more dates with him, she said. This request, the girl's father, J. W. Miller, said, was made two weeks ago. He said Rodgers had been persistently courting his daughter.

Refuses to Accompany Him.

Friday night, with some other students, she attended a basketball game at Arlington Heights High school. Rodgers was there and asked her to accompany him after the game, she said.

When Miss Miller refused, Rodgers walked away without saying a word, she reported.

Yesterday morning she discovered the wallet containing the note and the search resulted.

Rodgers was a junior chemist employed by the Dewey and Almy Chemical company, 6050 West 51st street, Summit.

NATURE UNFOLDS SECRETS IN THESE HOUSES OF GLASS

Chicagoans Flock to Two Great Conservatories.

BY GEORGE MORGENSTERN.

This is a story of dwellers in glass houses—the hundreds of thousands of growing things that inhabit the great conservatories in Garfield and Lincoln parks. Last year 1,756,000 persons, by blink of the electric eye, came to see this pageant of the boundless productivity of the earth.

In these giant halls of glass are to be found anachronistic ferns out of prehistoric time, the steamy climate and brilliant orchids of the tropical jungle, the sand and cacti of the desert, bright spring flowers in the midst of winter, and trees and vines that provide man food to eat, medicines to doctor himself, and material for his thousand workshops.

Appeal for Many.

Here under the vaulted roofs is everything to appeal alike to the botanical student, the back yard gardener, the person who tends a couple of house plants in his single room, and all city dwellers who see too little of foliage and colorful blooms.

There are displays in both conservatories 12 months of the year, but at four seasons the Chicago park district horticulturists put on shows that are their special pride. They are held concurrently in both conservatories, and one—the Christmas show of poinsettias—opened yesterday and will continue thru Jan. 4.

Two thousand single and double red, pink, white, and oak leaved poinsettias are on display at Garfield park and 2,200 at Lincoln park. The poinsettia is native to Mexico, where it is called "Buena Noche" because it traditionally blooms on Christmas eve. It is named for its discoverer, Dr. Joel Poinsette, onetime American minister to Mexico.

Other Flowers Exhibited.

Also in the show are the Star of Bethlehem orchid, lemon trees, Christmas cherries, pepper plants, begonias, cyclamen, and a great array of the harbingers of spring—tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, and marigolds.

The three other major shows of the year are the chrysanthemum show, recently finished; the Easter show, featuring lilies, to be held March 28 to April 12, and the summer show, built around Rex begonias and fancy leaved caladiums, opening about July 1.

At all times the conservatories are free to the public. During shows they are open from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m., at other times from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m., and during the daylight saving period from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m.

Garfield park conservatory, just north of Lake street on Central Park avenue, is the largest conservatory under one roof in the world. There are eight exhibition houses and 17 growing houses, covering four and one-half acres and enclosed by 184,765 square feet of glass.

Europeans Marvel At It.

Frank K. Balthis, senior horticulturist of the park district floral section, is fond of telling how horticultural commissions from Europe have marveled at the conservatory and admitted that there was nothing like it on the continent; and how a Chicago woman, visiting the Royal Horticulturist society's Kew gardens near London, was told by the horticulturist there, "If you want to see the finest in the world, go to Chicago's Garfield park conservatory."

Mr. Balthis' horticultural lore is inexhaustible. In the growing houses he indicates the marigolds. "Smell them," he directs. You see? No odor. The glands on the back of the leaf that caused the disagreeable odor have been eliminated."

Here is the sea lion, or cure-all plant, from the Mediterranean region. It is used to make a sirup for croup, a cure for asthma, a purgative, and a dozen other kinds of medicaments. Put it on a dark shelf and it will still sprout and flower.

They Aren't Man Eaters.

In the warm house are pitcher plants from the East Indies, which have the fictitious reputation of being man eaters. The pitcher sometimes grows to a length of 18 inches. It contains a digestive fluid that attracts insects, and once the visitor gets in, he is trapped.

In the horticultural hall, where the chrysanthemums were being removed to make way for the poinsettias, Mr. Balthis points out a small, spindly chrysanthemum plant with wan yellow flowers.

"The original chrysanthemum as it was known in China in 2300 B. C.," he says. Then, indicating the thousands of lovely blooms around him, he adds, "But look what the growers have done with it."

Mr. Balthis observes that one color, blue, is missing among the chrysanthemums. Somehow during the centuries, he thinks, the blue chrysanthemum must have been lost. Blue chrysanthemums are shown on old Japanese pottery and tapestries. That is the evidence that the blue chrysanthemum once existed.

Now for an Oddity.

Here is an oddity—the dumb cane. Eat any part of it and the muscles of your throat will be affected so that you cannot speak for perhaps 36 hours. Mr. Balthis relates that a schoolboy, told of this, remarked, "Maybe we can give teacher some." Charles E. Hewitt, general foreman of horticulture at Lincoln park conservatory, says that when the stalk of the dumb cane was cut one of his WPA helpers said, "It looks good enough to eat," and suited the action to the word. The result was as described.

"There are many similar plants," Mr. Hewitt says, "containing salts which form needlelike crystals which stick in the mucous membrane if the plant is eaten. Until they are destroyed by solvents the eater cannot speak."

Mr. Balthis considers the furcraea selloa, a rare plant from Colombia, to be the Garfield conservatory's prize. Now 25 feet tall, it is in flower for the first time in 15 years. The flower stalks grow 7 or 8 inches in 24 hours, but the plant lives only once. When it has flowered the plant dies, for it has exhausted itself in flowering. The seed pods that drop to the ground, however, produce new plants, so that life is renewed.

Nearby is the century plant, shortly due to flower. Supposedly it flowers only once in 100 years and then dies, but lives again thru the suckers it has sent out. Mr. Balthis says that he has known century plants that have stood for 60 years without flowering. The broad leaves of the conservatory's plant are crowded with initials carved by visitors who escaped detection. Mr. Balthis naturally frowns on this.

The furcraea selloa and century plant are both in the Cactus House, but the strangest tenant there is the mescal button, known to the Indians of the southwest as the "sacred mushroom." The government has prohibited them from eating it, for the plant is strongly narcotic and the Indians have the same weakness for it they have for whisky.

Plants That Have a Use.

In the Economic House, where all the plants that have a use are displayed, is the tapioca plant, olive, orange, and cocoa trees; rubber and fiber plants; the trees that are logged for timber; the fruit producers; the plants that yield perfume essences; the sugar cane and next to it, cocaine.

The Fern House, called by the late sculptor, Lorado Taft, "the most beautiful room in America," contains 125 species of fern, set in a rocky grotto around a pool. There is a small waterfall in one corner, and the story is that when it was built a musician spent four days arranging the rocks at the proper levels for pitch so that the falling water would have a musical lilt.

An overhead vanilla bean vine in an adjoining hall is pointed out by Mr. Balthis with the remark, "The only orchid of 18,000 varieties with any economic value." The bean produces vanilla extract.

Now to Lincoln Park.

Lincoln park's conservatory, which will celebrate its 50th anniversary next summer, consists of five exhibition houses and 18 growing houses.

Mr. Hewitt, the supervising horticulturist, says that many plant growers who don't have conspicuous success with some particular species want the conservatory staff to try its luck growing the plant or flower. Some of these gifts are gladly accepted. One windfall came from H. Gordon Selfridge, who presented his collection of 1,000 varieties of orchids to Lincoln park when he packed up to leave Chicago to establish his great London department store in 1906. Many other offers have to be refused. Warning: Don't try to palm off your old rubber plants on the conservatory.

CHRISTMAS PLANS GIVEN NEW LIFE—SAILOR ISN'T DEAD

Kane county's first Pearl Harbor casualty turned up alive yesterday, thereby placing in motion once more the plans for a merry Christmas at the home of his father, Fred Thompson, 601 Richard street, Geneva.

Eight days ago Thompson was notified by the navy that his son, Oscar, 21 years old, was "missing and believed dead." In the atmosphere of grief which resulted, it appeared that not even the two children of his daughter, Mrs. James Carmichael, would have a good holiday. She had received money orders from the sailor to provide gifts for all.

Yesterday's telegram from Washington regretted an error and said the young sailor had survived the Japanese attack. So there'll be a big tree and all the rest of it at 601 Richard street.

Reported Dead; Now Alive.

Rochester, N. H., Dec. 20 (AP).—Last Tuesday, Mrs. Joseph Maxfield, after receiving Christmas gifts from her 21 year old navy son, George, was notified that he was killed in Honolulu. Today the navy department wired that George was alive and safe.

"That's the greatest Christmas present I ever received," she said.

Fred E. Inbau Appointed Crime Commission Member

Fred E. Inbau, former director of the Chicago police department's scientific crime detection laboratory and former assistant professor of criminal law at Northwestern university, has been appointed a member of the Chicago Crime commission, it was announced yesterday. Inbau resigned from his police job last July to engage in the practice of law.

Civic Opera Has Best Season; Rimini in Figaro Role Again

Old Favorite Returns

BY CECIL SMITH.

Giacomo Rimini, one of the most versatile and celebrated baritones of an earlier epoch of opera in Chicago, returned to the Civic Opera house last night to sing the rôle of Figaro in "The Barber of Seville" for the first time in almost a decade.

Even if Rimini had not been in full command of his remarkable artistry, the occasion would have been a significant one, both for his present admirers and for those whose memory harks back to a more pretentious operatic era than the present one. The opera was presented under auspices of L'Italia, foreign language newspaper.

In Rôle 25 Times.

From 1917 to 1932 Rimini impersonated the merry, conniving barber no fewer than 25 times on the stages of the Auditorium theater and the Civic Opera house. His first appearance as Figaro was Amelita Galli-Curci's first as Rosina.

From the first offstage notes of the gabbling "Largo al Factotum" aria, Rimini held the audience in the hollow of his hand.

Rimini's capacity to color his voice with a humorous chuckle is unrivalled in the whole field of operatic comedy; his tone, in straightforward musical passages, is amazingly round, warm, and resonant; and his clear and rhythmically precise delivery of rapid decorative passages should be the envy of every younger baritone.

Two Able Assistants.

Rimini enjoyed the collaboration of two incomparable comic artists who had shared honors with him in many earlier performances—Vittorio Trevisan and Virgilio Lazzari. When these three veterans took possession of the stage the great days of operatic buffoonery came to life again.

Virginia Haskins' singing of Rosina's music was capable, but a little pale in the face of such competition. Angelo Raffaelli's singing seemed well schooled, but his voice is too tiny for opera. The small rôles of Bertha and Fiorello were given to Maria Data and Eugene Martin, and Ernesto Barbini conducted.

Deficit Cut to $20,000

The Chicago opera season that was closed last week was the most successful in the 30 year history of the institution, Robert Hall McCormick, chairman of the Chicago Opera company's board of trustees, said yesterday.

Average attendance was 30 per cent ahead of 1940, he reported, and the deficit was $20,000, compared with $96,000 in the 1940 season and an annual average of $440,000 for a 10 year period during the Samuel Insull régime.

Taken to City's Heart.

"Chicago has taken the long bandied-about grand opera company to its collective heart and given it the welcome and approval it long has sought," McCormick said.

"The 1941 season under the general directorship of Fortune Gallo, with Giovanni Martinelli as artistic director, gained popular approval as it went along.

"Remember that we had to make such a late start of organizing our activities that there was no time nor opportunity for the usual pre-season subscription and promotion campaign."

Pledges Cover Deficit.

"We went to the public later than ever before with our story of what we planned for the season. The response tells the rest."

McCormick added that pledges enough to pay the deficit were made before the closing night of the season.

TWO CHICAGOANS ESCAPE AT STATE TRAINING SCHOOL

Escape of two inmates committed from Chicago was reported yesterday by the Illinois State Training School for Boys, near St. Charles. They are Andrew Johnston, 17 years old, 1130 South Racine avenue, and David Strong, 15, of 1300 West 111th street. The inmates, both Negroes, disappeared from tasks they had been assigned near the school's administration building.

BURNED BY SHOOTING FLAMES.

Harry Burns, 40 years old, 73 South Vincennes avenue, Crete, was burned about the head yesterday when flames shot out of a furnace he was firing at the Olympia Fields Country club, 203d street and Western avenue.

SEEK TO SOLVE MYSTERY OF BUS DOOR AT INQUEST

Marshall, Ill., Dec. 20 [Special].—An effort to fix responsibility for the removal of a handle from the emergency door of a bus owned and operated by the National Youth Administration, in which ten youths were burned to death Wednesday night, will be made Tuesday at the inquest, Coroner Howard E. Swinford said today.

The coroner announced that the inquest will begin at 9 a. m. Tuesday at the Marshall courthouse and that he is inquiring into rumors the handle may have been deliberately removed to prevent the young passengers from causing annoyance by opening the door. When the bus skidded into a ditch and caught fire, the boys were trapped inside because they could not get the door open.

Two survivors, William Layton and Charles Duval, have told the coroner the handle was missing when the bus started its fatal journey. Mrs. Mary Stuart Anderson, Illinois director of the NYA, accompanied by other government officials who refused to reveal their identities, were here yesterday making an investigation in behalf of the government.

KILLED BY GAS IN KITCHEN.

William M. Phillips, 74 years old, a retired railway employé, died yesterday in Lutheran Deaconess hospital from the effects of illuminating gas. He was found unconscious in the gas filled kitchen of his home at 3159 Warren boulevard Thursday.

REPORT NATIONAL RAIL BOARD MAY MOVE TO CHICAGO

Site Here Is Urged as Logical Location.

After official announcement that five federal bureaus now in Washington, D. C., are to be moved to Chicago, reports were heard yesterday that consideration is being given in Washington to proposals to move the important Interstate Commerce commission to Chicago also.

This is one of the largest and most important agencies, whose edicts affect every section of the United States. For years Chicago spokesmen have urged its removal here, asserting that Chicago as the center of the nation's railway system is the logical home of the commission. The ICC employs 2,800 persons.

Last June Harold D. Smith, director of the budget, wrote Joseph B. Eastman, ICC chairman, asking why the commission could not function outside of Washington. Some opposition to its removal was voiced in Washington.

2,950 Workers to Come Here.

The reasons advanced by Smith for moving the ICC elsewhere were the same as those on which the five other bureaus have been ordered here—office and housing shortage in Washington. The bureaus officially ordered to be shifted, in whole or in part, to Chicago are fish and wildlife service; national park service; office of Indian affairs; Employés Compensation commission, and Railroad Retirement board. In all 2,950 employés will be transferred to Chicago.

No unusual difficulty is expected in finding office accommodations in Chicago. According to George Tobey, secretary of the Building Managers' association, about 4,000,000 square feet of office space are available. Only 300,000 square feet are required by the incoming bureaus.

Seek to Concentrate Offices.

H. C. Geisler, chairman of the real estate commission of the Federal Business association, who has surveyed office possibilities, said it is hoped to concentrate the offices as much as possible. He said one near loop building has 200,000 square feet of warehouse space which can be converted. The principal general difficulty is rentals, he said. The government will pay up to $1.50 a square foot, but demands in some buildings are $3.50.

It is possible the government may purchase or rent an entire office building, it was said.

MAN WHO BOOED PRESIDENT GETS CASE CONTINUED

The case against Edward A. Loss Jr., 23 years old, who is serving out a $200 fine in the Bridewell because he booed a newsreel of President Roosevelt, was continued yesterday by Judge Oscar Caplan to Wednesday. Loss will be given a psychiatric examination.

Loss appeared in court on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by his attorney, Sol R. Friedman. Judge Caplan said he was ready to free Loss if he was penitent, but that he had received information from Bridewell guards that Loss had cried "Heil Hitler!" in his cell and had uttered anti-government statements. Loss denied this and said that prisoners instead had taunted him with such shouts. "I hate Hitler as much as any one else," he said.

Friedman said Loss had sent a letter of apology to President Roosevelt and is willing to quit his job as a welder and enlist in the army. Loss lives at 1010 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park. The booing occurred in the Telenews theater, 165 North State street, last Sunday.

TELLS WHAT WAR MAY DO TO REAL ESTATE MARKET

Downs Predicts Sales Will Be Better.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

James C. Downs Jr.

War will bring better real estate sales, probable rent regulations as housing shortage increases, steady prices at present levels on property for use, higher interest rates, an increase in defense industrial and military building, and a slowing up of residential construction with the exception of defense homes. These predictions on the real estate situation were made yesterday by James C. Downs Jr., head of the Real Estate Research corporation, which supplies the Chicago Real Estate board with monthly comment and statistics on realty.

Marriages, long a yardstick to measure future home building, will be meaningless until postwar days, Downs said, since so few will result in the creation of new housing units.

No Need for Jitters.

"With the nation now at war certain accurate predictions and observations now can be made regarding business conditions," Downs said. "There is no need for real estate interests to be jittery. Thousands of people, used to paying instalments on things they can't buy now, will have money for real estate. We again see the fundamental character of food and housing.

"Sales of improved urban and rural property should be better as people with more money seek security, try to trade money for equities.

"Prices of real estate should remain steady somewhere near present levels on property for use. High priced land will trend downward, as it has continuously for many years.

Building Trades to Be Busy.

"Home building will shrink except for actually needed defense housing. Construction will spurt for new defense industry, military, and allied uses. Building trades labor will be kept busy.

"Rents will go up if left to their own devices, which they probably won't be. Regulation becomes more probable as shortage grows more acute.

"Interest rates will trend higher, but probably will not show substantial change. Government must hold rates down to prevent inflation from interfering with its financing program."

CHICAGO GROUP ACQUIRES TITLE TO FLAT BUILDING

Title to the 16 story Shoreline apartments, 2231 East 57th street, was conveyed yesterday by Lester L. Goldberg, attorney, to the American National Bank and Trust company, trustee for a Chicago syndicate. Goldberg, as attorney for the buying group, purchased the property from the Foreman Realty trust for $250,000, according to revenue stamps on the deed. The law firm of Mort D. and Frank Goldberg, brothers of Lester, represented the buyer. J. Arthur Friedlund of Marston, Friedlund & Friedlund was attorney for the seller. Built in 1928 at a reported cost of $1,125,000, the building was financed with an $800,000 bond issue. It contains 48 suites of 6 and 7 rooms, and a two story penthouse of 10 rooms.

Pays Cash for 7 Story Clinton Street Building

The seven story building at 24-30 South Clinton street, containing 48,000 square feet, was sold for cash yesterday by Cecil Clark Davis and Bruce Clark to an undisclosed investor, title being taken by the First National Bank and Trust company of Evanston as trustee. The price was not disclosed. Robert White & Co., brokers and manager of the property, said the new owner will remodel the first floor and lobby entrance.

Syndicate Pays $90,000 for the Hotel Commodore

The six story Hotel Commodore at 5547 Kenmore avenue was sold for $90,000, according to revenue stamps on the deed, by Hotel Commodore, Inc., to the Liberty National bank of Chicago, trustee, which later conveyed it to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee for a syndicate. The building, occupying a 50x150 foot lot, has 106 rooms.

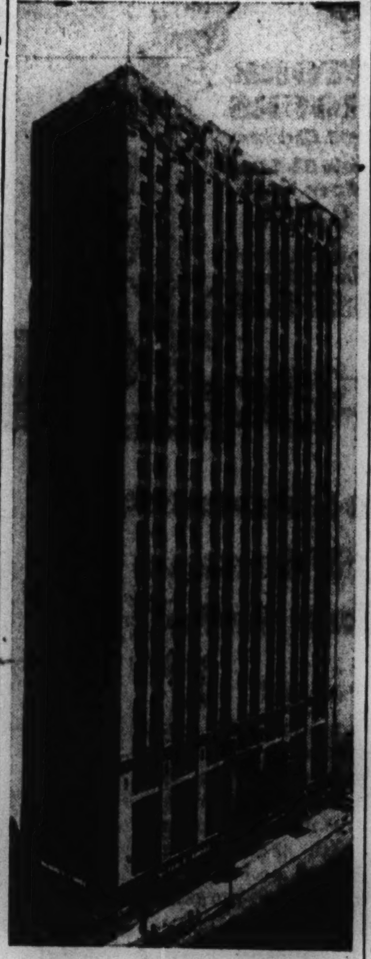
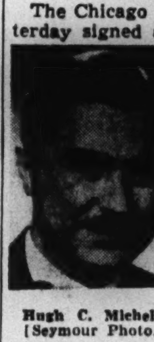
Rename Skyscraper



The Loop Center building, at Madison and Clark, will be renamed the Chicago Real Estate Board building when realtors move their headquarters there next May.

Realty Board Will Move to Loop Center

The Chicago Real Estate board yesterday signed a lease for two floors in Loop Center building, at the southwest corner of Madison and Clark streets, which will be renamed the Chicago Real Estate Board building. The board will move from its present quarters at 32 West Randolph street on May 1, 1942. Hugh Michels, treasurer of the realty organization, and manager of the Loop Center building for the L. Z. Leiter estate, said that the new space will be remodeled, redecorated, and air conditioned. Rapp & Rapp, architects of the building, will supervise the modernization program.



Hugh C. Michels.

Thomas Fleming, president of the board, said that the location was selected after a long study of other properties, because it was the most attractive layout and most convenient for the members. Ronald J. Chinnock, chairman of the special house committee, said the new quarters would have 10,000 square feet of area on the third and fourth floors. The space, he said, will include an auditorium lounge, dining room, special committee rooms, and other facilities for the board members.

This will be the fourth time the board has moved in 58 years. Its first rooms were at the northeast corner of Dearborn and Randolph. The board then moved to the old Chicago Press Club building, 26 North Dearborn, and from there to 57 West Monroe street. In 1932 it moved to its present location at 32 West Randolph street.

Nielsen is an official of Abbott Laboratories, in North Chicago. Wingard recently bought the Robert Kenyon residence, 380 North King Muir road, Lake Forest, an 11 room house on a 1½ acre site.

Murray Wolbach Sells 2 71st and Oglesby Corners

Rural Health Safeguarded by Townships

Township regulation of sanitary conditions in unincorporated areas outside of municipalities is the newest approach to the problem of safeguarding health in the rural parts of unzoned counties. This was disclosed yesterday in a report on conditions in Will county, Illinois, and Lake county, Indiana, by the Chicago Regional Planning association.

Robert Kingery.

These are the only two counties of the seven comprising the Chicago metropolitan area that have not been zoned. They also have more armament workers and less available sanitary housing facilities for these workers than any other Chicago area counties.

Workers Move In.

In Will county, outside of Joliet, there are about 30,000 people who have moved into Wilmington, Elwood, and other small communities nearby, to work in the big munitions plants in that area or on construction of uncompleted portions of those plants. This total is in addition to the total permanent population of 35,000, so there are approximately 65,000 persons in that district at present, according to estimates by the planning body.

It was to cope with living conditions which developed when this big increase in population took place that the planning association evolved a new plan to have health regulations enforced in counties which have failed to adopt a rural zoning law. [Will county had a zoning ordinance prepared three years ago but has never passed it; Lake county, Indiana, has never taken any action toward zoning unincorporated areas.]

Develop Set of Standards.

"Since the township has more authority over sanitary conditions than is generally believed, we have helped develop a set of standards in accordance with regulations of the state department of public health," said Robert Kingery, general manager of the regional planning association.

"By forming a township health board and adopting a regulation their powers are quite broad. Therefore, our suggestion was that each of the townships adopt such regulations promptly, which would be much faster than attempting to get a county board regulation."

Two of the seven townships most affected have adopted the township health ordinance, he said. They are Wilmington [where most of the huge ordnance works and ammunition loading plants are located] and Wesley. Jackson township is considering adopting the health ordinance.

Only Two Counties Act.

Of the seven counties comprising the Chicago metropolitan area, only two, Cook and Du Page, have adopted in their zoning ordinance the requirement that all residences and businesses requiring water supply and sewage disposal shall provide those facilities in accordance with standards approved by the state department of public health.

Cook county recently ordered a survey made of land in unincorporated areas unfit for habitation because of improper drainage or inadequate water supply and sewage disposal. Pending the completion of the study, the county zoning bureau was ordered to discourage or withhold permits for new homes in doubtful areas.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 20 (AP).—A surprise goal on a long shot half way thru the first period gave the Chicago Blackhawks the necessary momentum that carried them to a 2 to 0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey league contest tonight before 11,714. The teams left immediately after the game for Chicago where they will meet again tomorrow night in the Chicago Stadium before a capacity crowd.

The victory put Chicago within one point of the Leafs, who were pulled out of a tie for the lead with the Boston Bruins when the champions won from the Montreal Canadiens tonight, 4 to 2.

Cooper Gets Long Goal.

Joe Cooper, husky Blackhawk defense man, drifted the puck past Goalie Turk Broda with a 60 foot drive at 10:34 of the first period and Cully Dahlstrom's goal half way thru the third period broke the back of the Toronto drive and practically eliminated the last chance the Leafs had of winning.

Cooper's shot caught Broda off guard and the puck whistled under the Toronto goalie's arm before he was aware the shot had been made.

Scores on Rebound.

Dahlstrom's tally followed a breakaway in which Cully and Phil Hergeshimer bore down on Broda, who was protected only by Bingo Kampman. Broda took Hergeshimer's shot, but dropped to his knees in making the save and was unable to stop the return shot made by Dahlstrom off the rebound.

Capt. Syl Apps led many charges on the Chicago goal, but when he eluded the close checking Hawks he invariably met a stone wall in the person of Goalie Sam Lo Presti who was a shining light in the Chicago victory.

BRUINS WIN, 4-2

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 20 (AP).—Scoring two goals in the overtime period, the Boston Bruins defeated the Montreal Canadiens, 4 to 2, tonight to take sole possession of first place in the National Hockey league race.

Eddie Wiseman broke a 2 to 2 deadlock at 1:27 of the extra session to give Bruins the clincher. At 7:14 of the overtime, Roy Conacher took Bill Cowley's pass to put the game beyond doubt.

The defeat was a bitter one for the Canadiens, who outplayed the Bruins thruout the regular time, but a lack of good shooting and Frank Brimsek's exceptional goal tending held them in check. Lineups:

Panthers Can't Stop Graham; Lose, 44 to 32

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Pittsburgh's basketball boys missed 14 free throws in 20 attempts last night while Northwestern was winning its third consecutive victory in the second portion of the inaugural doubleheader in the Stadium, 44 to 32. While the Panthers' errors mathematically could have changed the result, the Wildcats had superior passing and a vast advantage in attack.

More than 9,000 watched the games. In the opening clash De Paul took a defensive battle from the University of Oregon, 27 to 23. It was the seventh game of a holiday trip for the players from the west coast. De Paul now has won six games and has been beaten only by Purdue.

Can't Stop Graham.

The Northwestern-Pitt game was decided in the first 10 minutes altho the Wildcat margin at the time only was 13 to 9. But Northwestern, paced by Sophomore Otto Graham, who scored 13 points in the opening period and 19 in the game, had piled up a 9 to 3 lead earlier and after a brief Panther rally, went on to take complete command at 25 to 15. Northwestern led at the intermission, 29 to 18.

Don Kruger, substituting at forward, supplied a portion of the scoring punch with three field goals while Rus Wendland and Capt. Henry Clason played their usual efficient games.

Plays Good Floor Game.

Pittsburgh's pattern of play was excellent and accounted for three undercover sneaker goals, but the squad failed to shoot when unable to penetrate the Wildcats' defense. Failure at the free throw line made Northwestern's task quite simple.

Kruger, Wendland, and Clason accounted for seven points to open the second half and this 36 to 18 lead was an insurmountable barrier. Clair Malarkey, Pitt guard, led his team with nine points. It was the first game for the Panthers.

Oregon Leads at Half.

De Paul and Oregon fought thru a first half in which the score was tied four times. After the fourth deadlock at 13 to 13, Oregon spurted to lead at the intermission, 17 to 13, on successive field goals by Bob Wren and Archie Marshisk.

Oregon couldn't find the goal at the west end of the floor in the second period with the same regularity. After 10 minutes it had scored only three points, a field goal by Paul Jackson, the star of the west coast quintet, and a free throw of George Andrews.

This last point, however, again tied the score, for De Paul had gone into a 21 to 20 lead before Andrews toed the penalty line.

Wozny's Shot Clinches It.

Bob Wozny finally broke the tie after several minutes of slow basketball, with a goal from 20 feet out. With 1 minutes 45 seconds to play, Warren Taylor tied the count at 23 to 23 on a quick break and side shot.

Wozny then drove in and scored the winning goal on a left hand shot from under the back board. Oregon declined two free throws in succession, but Bernie Weksler clinched the decision with another shot from under the board:

STATE WINS, 41-29

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 20 [Special].—Michigan State defeated the University of South Carolina basketball team tonight, 41 to 29.

The Spartans were paced by Capt. Chet Aubuchon, Joe Gerard, and Dudly Jones. The Gamecocks were led by players from Rockford, Ill., Lanny Lofdahl and Stan Stasica.

Stasica put on a one man show during the first half and outscored the entire Michigan State team. He rang up the first 12 points that South Carolina scored and then added four more before half time.

The Spartans tied the score at 22 to 22 early in the second half. Aubuchon then chalked up seven points in three minutes to give Michigan State a lead it never lost. Lineup:

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT GRIPS GIANTS—BUT, LOOK OUT TODAY!

Al (Tuffy) Leemans (left), 200 pound Giants' full back, and Hank Soar, half back, admire Christmas tree in their quarters in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Today they'll forget the Yule season for a couple of hours as they battle the Bears for the National Football league title in Wrigley field.

1941 In Sports

MINNESOTA, NOTRE DAME, DUKE LEAD 1941 FOOTBALL PARADE

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Minnesota's successful defense of its Western conference championship, during which campaign the Gophers ran their consecutive victories to 17, and Notre Dame's first undefeated season since 1930 were among the highlights of the 1941 collegiate football season.

To these can be added Duke's undefeated record and Southern conference title; Oregon State's conference championship on the Pacific coast; Missouri's conquest of the Bix Six; the surprising victory of Mississippi State in the Southeastern conference, and Texas Aggies' title defense in the Southwest conference.

Smith Wins Acclaim.

On the losing side of the picture were Fordham's upset by Pittsburgh and the midseason collapse of a great University of Texas team that was tied by Baylor and beaten by Texas Christian before rallying to whip previously undefeated Texas A. & M., 23 to 0.

Minnesota was voted the best college team in a national poll. Its captain, Bruce Smith, altho unable to play in two games, also received national honors. More important was the statistical evidence of Gopher superiority. The string of 17 victories dated back to the final game of the 1939 season. The championship was the sixth since Bernie Bierman took charge at his alma mater in 1932. Finally, in marching to five conference victories this season [Minnesota also defeated Washington, Pittsburgh, and Nebraska] the Gophers led the Big Nine in scoring, scoring defense, total offense, and total defense.

Harder Is Big Nine Leader.

In the individual statistics Big Nine sophomores led or were near the top in every department of play. Pat Harder, Wisconsin's splendid sophomore full back, ran off with scoring honors with 58 points in six games. Tom Harmon of Michigan was the 1940 conference scoring leader with 40 points. Harder also took individual ground gaining honors with an average of 98.3 yards per game by rushing. Michigan's Bob Westfall, 1940 leader, was second with an average of 98 yards for five games. Bill Daley of Minnesota finished third with an average of 96.8 yards.

Another Wisconsin sophomore, Len Seelinger, took the forward passing title by completing 26 of 48. His average gain per game by passing was 69.8 yards. Otto Graham of Northwestern was second with an average of 50.9. He completed 27 passes in 53 attempts. Tom Kuzma of Michigan and Billy Hillenbrand of Indiana were third and fourth. Both are sophomores.

In total offense—rushing and passing—Ohio State's Jack Graf led the Big Nine. Kuzma was second. Dick Fisher, Graf's teammate, finished third principally because the forward pass assignments were given to Graf in the last game. Dave Schreiner, Wisconsin end, caught 12 forward passes for a gain of 249 yards to lead this department. Walter Correll, Illinois sophomore, had the best punting average, a mark of 40.5 yards.

The Big Nine title, for a second year, hinged on the round robin between Minnesota, Michigan, and Northwestern. For a second year the results were the same. Michigan defeated Northwestern, 14 to 7, and then was beaten by Minnesota, 7 to 0. On the following Saturday Minnesota beat Northwestern, 8 to 7, the Gophers adding a touchdown on a quick lineup to a safety by Bill De Correvont of Northwestern.

16,000 WATCH ST. JOHN'S BEAT OKLAHOMA, 47-36

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Gerald Tucker, Oklahoma sophomore, lived up to advance notices tonight, but the Sooners had little to go with him and so lost to St. John's of Brooklyn 47 to 36, before a crowd of 16,000 in Madison Square Garden.

Tucker scored 19 points, 11 of them in the first 10 minutes, and repeatedly set up plays, but the Oklahoma defense was like a sieve as the metropolitan five drove thru for a 26 to 16 lead at the half and then pulled away again after the visitors had come within four points, 28 to 24, early in the second period.

WEST AND EAST LEADERS MEET IN YEAR'S FINAL

Old Rivals Battle in Wrigley Field.

W-G-N Broadcast

THE MUTUAL network, with W-G-N as the Chicago outlet, will broadcast a play by play description of today's Chicago Bears-New York Giants championship game, starting at 12:45 o'clock. The pregame huddle of officials and team captains, including the toss of the coin and selection of goals, will be picked up by a special microphone. Bob Elson of W-G-N and Red Barber of WOR, New York, will describe the game.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Chicago Bears are ready to write finis today to the greatest season a professional football team has had since the National league was organized more than two decades ago.

Standing between them and their goal of two successive championships are the New York Giants, perhaps best described as a good, journeyman football team—one well versed in fundamentals, but without the sensational touch that such fellows as George McAfee, Hugh Gallarneau, Norm Standlee, Danny Fortmann, and Bulldog Turner give the defending champions.

A smashing victory over the College All-Stars, 37 to 13; a triumph over the Green Bay Packers the first time they met; a loss to this same hardy band when next they came to grips; then an uphill battle finally climaxed a week ago with a 33 to 14 triumph over the Packers. These have been the Bears' big moments, and more than half a million fans have watched them. All of these games led up to this afternoon's game in Wrigley field which again brings representatives of those old rivals, New York and Chicago, against each other.

Giants Are Underdogs.

It would be the biggest upset of this sports year now drawing to a close if the Giants, eastern champions, finished in front this afternoon. In the betting marts the Bears are 1 to 6 to win. Those who fancy the Giants also can get 14 points at even money.

The Bears know better than to think it will be this easy tho. Since the Giants came into the league in 1926, they have learned to respect them. The last time the two fought for the title, the Giants, by the most unusual strategic stroke in league history, won, 30 to 13. That was in 1934 when they exchanged cleated shoes for tennis slippers at the beginning of the second half to get purchase on the icy gridiron in the Polo Grounds.

This is the Giants' sixth trip into the league finals since the playoff system was started in 1933 and in this respect they are 1 up on the Bears. The New Yorkers have won two of the five. The Bears have won two and lost two of their championship games during this period.

Winner to Face All-Stars.

Today's winner will meet the National league All-Stars in New York on Jan. 4. In event of a tie today the rivals will be designated as co-champions.

Since many of the Bears will change their uniforms for the army and navy kind before 1942 is very old, this is the last opportunity for Chicago fans to see the greatest of all pro football teams intact. This may be enough of a reason for 40,000 or more to watch the season come to an end in Chicago. Temperature in the high 40s is predicted.

When the Bears and Giants met in an exhibition game on Sept. 7 in Wrigley field, it was suspected this was a preview of the 1941 championship game. The Chicagoans won this one, 14 to 8, in the last two minutes. The Giants did not have Alphonse [Tuffy] Leemans that day, tho Leemans and Ward Cuff were the offensive leaders in the Giants attack this season. The New Yorkers won eight and lost three, being beaten twice by the Dodgers and once by the Cardinals. Their second Brooklyn loss came after they had the eastern title wrapped up.

They're a Stingy Team.

The Giants are as proud of their defensive record as the Bears are of their point making exploits. In 11 games, the New Yorkers yielded only 114 points, 36 fewer than the Bears' foes made. The Bears missed making 400 points by four points. The Giants made 238, or 158 fewer than the western champions.

The Giants' strategists sat in on the Bears-Packers game last Sunday and despite the devastating 24 point second quarter, the head coach, Steve Owen, professed no uneasiness as he returned to New York to prepare his team for the test. Yesterday the Giants raced thru a workout on Wrigley field, then repaired to their headquarters in the Edgewater Beach hotel to wait for today's 1 p. m. kickoff.

U. C. L. A. DEFEATS FLORIDA, 30-27, ON FIELD GOAL

Snelling's Fourth Quarter Kick Decides It.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Bruins football team from the University of California at Los Angeles outlasted the Florida Gators, 30 to 27, today. The Gators started off swiftly to build up a 20 to 6 lead. Then the Bruins pushed over 24 points before Florida could recover. The Gators came back in the closing stages to score again.

The Bruins had plenty of stars. Half back Leo Cantor sparked the drives for the third and fourth touchdowns with speedy, powerful line smashes and flashy end runs.

Snelling Kicks Goal.

Full back Ken Snelling's accurate kicking accounted for three extra points after touchdowns and the fourth quarter field goal that proved to be the margin of victory.

Florida stepped out early in the game as Half Back Tommy Harrison passed to End Forest Ferguson for 28 yards and a touchdown. Paul Eller, Florida's place kick specialist, booted the extra point.

The Bruins retaliated quickly. They recovered a fumbled Florida lateral on the five yard stripe and Full Back George Phillips bucked across for the touchdown on the second attempt. Snelling's conversion attempt failed.

Half Back Jack Jones threw a touchdown pass to End Carl Mitchell, good for 44 yards in the second quarter. Eller failed to kick the extra point, but Florida was ahead, 13 to 6. Jones then tossed one to Half Back Fondren Mitchell good for 51 yards and another touchdown and Eller's kick was good.

Bruins Strike Again.

The Bruins came right back for their second touchdown as Al Solari brought the kickoff out to his own 45, Bob Waterfield passed to End Milt Smith and Smith lateralled to Guard Jerry Grubb who ran for a touchdown.

Cantor caught fire early in the third to lead a drive to the Florida 15. Waterfield again passed to Milt Smith, putting the ball on the Florida 1, and Cantor bucked over for the touchdown. Snelling's kick tied the score.

Cantor's twenty-five yard end run carried to the Florida 1 in the fourth quarter. Full Back Ray Pierson plunged over to put UCLA ahead for the first time.

Snelling kicked the extra point. A short time later he booted his field goal from a difficult angle to give the Bruins a 30 to 20 lead.

Harrison's twenty-three yard pass to Ferguson and one for fifteen yards to Andy Bracken set up the last Florida touchdown. O'Neal Hill ran the final eleven yards. Eller's place kick again was good. Lineups:

PICARD FIRES 64 TO TAKE LEAD IN RIO GRANDE GOLF

Harlingen, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP).—Henry Picard of Oklahoma City, Okla., ignored a driving rain today to score a seven under par 31—33—64 in the first round of the Rio Grande Valley Open golf tournament. That was a stroke better than Byron Nelson of Toledo, O. Twenty-five of the touring pros bettered par, which is 35—36.

Pickard had seven birdies and never went over par in the first day of the $5,000 meeting. Nelson got as many birdies but his 32—33—65 included a bogie four at No. 5. Lester Kennedy of Lynn, Mass., nosed out Jimmy Demaret of Detroit for third place with a 32—34—66. Demaret, who was in the lead until the late hours of the round, fired a 33—34—67. Joe Zarhardt of Morristown, Pa., did just as well with a 32—35—67. Ben Hogan, winner of the Vardon trophy and the leading money winner of the year, was 26th in the standings with an even par 71.

'Condemned Man' Role Doesn't Seem to Fit Coach of Giants

Big Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants, didn't resemble a condemned man as he ate his first meal in Chicago yesterday. The 275 pound coach, who has been in the National Football league since 1926, didn't talk like a doomed man between huge bites of a corn beef and cabbage luncheon and well creamed and sugared tea in the Edgewater Beach hotel coffee shop.

"They're a well synchronized team," was his terse description of the Chicago Bears, whom his team meets this afternoon in Wrigley field for the league championship.

Steve set the pattern for his well dressed athletes. They were quiet, poised, and very businesslike. They did lose some of the reserve, tho, when the sun broke thru as they trotted out on Wrigley field shortly after noon for a workout.

Sunshine Pleases Him.

Mel Hein, who is rounding out 11 seasons with the Giants, appeared on the field looking like a baseball catcher. His broken nose is protected by a metal mask. Hein, all-league center for eight years, will be up against his successor as the circuit's No. 1 pivot man today in Bulldog Turner, the toothy young gent from Hardin-Simmons university.

Happiest of the Giants was Tony Blazine, one of the first small college stars uncovered by the College All-Star poll. Tony, a guard at Illinois Wesleyan, was voted on the collegians' squad way back in 1935 and was something of a sensation in that game. Last summer, after years of service with the Chicago Cardinals, the 240 pounder was traded to the Giants for Gilford [Cactus Face] Duggan. Mr. Duggan did not report to the Cards, but Blazine showed up in the Giants' camp in Superior, Wis., and he thinks the Cards were right nice to trade him to a team which reached pro football's finals.

De Filippo Has Case of Flu.

Owen reported that Lou De Filippo, center, has been suffering from the flu all week, which scratches him as a starter. As a whole, tho, he is satisfied with the condition of the team. De Filippo yesterday paid a $50 fine for fighting in a recent game and is eligible to play today.

"Sure, the Bears are one of the best all-time teams in the league," Owen acknowledged, "but we don't think any team figures to be such an overwhelming favorite. But that's all right with us. We figure we have an excellent chance to win."

The Giants' workout showed one thing—this is a big team—and while watching them limber up it was difficult to see why the odds are so heavy against their chances of success. The 1934 Bears, who had run rough shod over opponents in 13 straight games, are considered by many observors a more solid team than the spectacular Bears of 1941. Yet the Giants beat this 1934 team for the title, 30 to 13, the last time they met for the big prize.

Redskins Their Toughest Foes.

Owen allowed that his team's toughest game this season was against Washington. This was the one that clinched the eastern championship. At the end of the first half the score was 0 to 0. Then the Giants took a 10 to 0 lead. The Redskins put on a drive and went to the front, 13 to 10. The Giants tied it with a field goal and kept on going to hang up the winning touchdown.

At an informal meeting of several club owners with League Commissioner Elmer Layden yesterday, a movement to increase the number of games played per season to 12 or 13 was defeated. The league thus will operate on an 11 game schedule in 1942 as it did this year.

Indications of a verbal battle over the time of opening of the player draft came from the informal meeting. Owners wishing to get home quickly to enjoy the Christmas holidays apparently won the debate. It was said last night that the draft meeting would open at 8 o'clock tonight instead of tomorrow morning.

George Halas, Bears owner-coach, appeared depressed as he walked about the Palmer House headquarters last night. He was far from pleased at the Bears' position as top heavy favorites over the Giants today. When asked by Dan Topping, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, if Halas thought his Bears could run up a 73 to 0 score on the Giants, the north siders' boss mournfully countered with, "We'll be extremely lucky if we beat 'em by one point."

Red Friesell, football official of fifth down fame, who suffered a broken leg in the Philadelphia-Brooklyn National league game, visited headquarters, still on crutches. Friesell will need them for another seven weeks.

Madison and Savoy Boxers Meet Friday

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Savoy Athletic club fighters will meet the Madison A. C. team in the only Chicagoland Amateur Boxing league show this week. The event is scheduled in Madison arena, 4711 Madison street, on Friday. The Christmas holiday is responsible for the skimpy schedule.

M. A. C. Seeks 1st Victory.

The Savoy squad will be fighting to gain a share of second place with Camp Grant in the league standings. The south siders now are resting in third position. The Madison fighters, seeking their first victory, are determined to deal Savoy its second defeat in five matches and push them into the No. 4 spot. A triumph would lift the west siders from the cellar to a tie for fifth place with Milwaukee and the West Suburban club.

In four previous starts the Madison standard bearers scored two draw decisions and were defeated twice. Their 13 points were scored by Matt Slobotnick, middleweight; Vince Pellegrini, lightweight; Pete Blouir, heavyweight; Baratta, welterweight [four], Mezzano, bantamweight [two]; Maloney, welterweight [two], and Lou Leonetti, lightweight [two].

Blouir Is Ineligible.

Blouir since has been declared ineligible to represent the team in league competition because his home is in Gary, outside the jurisdiction of the Central AAU, which has supervision over the Madison A. C. Therefore, he will not fight in Friday's league match.

Savoy gained its position as a result of two victories, one deadlock verdict, and one setback. Its fighters have registered 22 points. Those responsible include Gordon, Davis, Julian Ford, Horace Wilkins, welterweights; Jones, Clem Saunders, bantamweights; Fred Peeler, James Arnold, light heavyweights; George Adams, flyweight; Alvin Bevil, Herman Mills, junior lightweights; John Johnson, Robert Satterfield, Bishop Edwards, middleweights; Clayton Worlds, Eddie Fly, heavyweights; Charles Rogers, lightweight; James Calhoun, featherweight, and Herman Mills, junior lightweight.

Owen, who is topped in years of service in the pro ranks by only George Halas, the Bears' owner-coach, and Curley Lambeau of the Packers, boasted all week long that he has devised a defense which will stop the Bears. It is especially designed, he revealed, to keep Sid Luckman, the Chicago quarter back, from getting set to fire his passes accurately. Chicago fans saw this happen on Nov. 2 when the Packer line kept Sid in a sweat all afternoon. This was the game the Bears lost, 16 to 14.

Bears Stalk a Jinx.

Since 1933, the important college All-Star assignment and the pressure of the regular season has prevented any team from repeating as league champion. But the Bears have such a wealth of material that proper employment of their personnel apparently has enabled them to escape going stale. For instance, the famous freshmen twins from Stanford, Standlee and Gallarneau, have improved as the season has progressed. This is true of other players, who have been on their game when some of their mates had a tendency to slacken their pace.

The Giants have a slight edge over the Bears in experience and this will be important in a money game of this kind. Oldest player on the field will be Mel Hein, perhaps the greatest center in the league's history. He is finishing his 11th season and today will be playing with a metal guard protecting a broken nose.

York Quintets Keep League Record Clean

York High's lightweight and heavyweight basketball teams last night remained unbeaten in West Suburban conference competition, each quintet picking up its fourth straight victory at the expense of Downers Grove. The York lights won the first half of the double header in Elmhurst, 35 to 19, and the seniors followed, 48 to 21.

La Grange and Hinsdale were victors in two other conference heavyweight games. La Grange disposed of Riverside, 34 to 30, on the La Grange court and Hinsdale triumphed over Maine, 35 to 26, on the latter's floor. The Maine lightweights whipped Hinsdale, 24 to 23, and Riverside's ponies defeated La Grange, 20 to 16, in overtime. Heavyweight lineups:

WOOD IS VOTED 1941 COMEBACK STAR IN SPORTS

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—It was somewhat of a surprise when Craig Wood crashed thru to win the Augusta National Golf tournament last spring. It was still more of a surprise when he whipped the nation's best in the National Open and two months later soundly trounced Vic Ghezzi, PGA champion, in a special match.

True, Wood long had been one of the top notchers but the big money always had eluded him, and he played in the open with his back strapped to protect a torn muscle.

All of which resulted in Wood being named the No. 1 comeback of the year by the 78 sports experts voting in the Associated Press' annual poll. He polled 102 votes for a 32 point margin over Johnny Vander Meer, the Cincinnati Reds' southpaw, as the writers spread their votes among 49 athletes. Eighty-one of Wood's votes came from 27 first place ballots on the basis of three for first, two for second, and three for third.

Vander Meer's polling of 70 votes was no surprise, for the erratic southpaw was a mainstay of the Reds' pitching staff for the first time since pitching two consecutive no hit games in 1938.

Illinois College Beats Lake Forest Five, 46-37

Jacksonville, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP).—Lake Forest suffered its second straight Illinois College conference defeat tonight, losing to Illinois college, 46 to 37. The Lake Forest five lost last night to Millikin. Dishinger and Rhine of the visitors combined to tie the count on Illinois college twice, but the visitors failed to take the lead at any time.

Wisconsin Five Wins, 36 to 25, at Marquette

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 20 [Special].—Wisconsin's basketball team scored its 19th consecutive victory tonight by beating Marquette, 36 to 25, before a capacity crowd of 6,300 in the Milwaukee Auditorium.

After a fairly close first half in which the lead shifted back and forth, the Badgers, with Forward Johnny Kotz as the spearhead, forged steadily to a safe lead in the last half. Kotz scored four of his baskets in the final 20 minutes and had 13 points for the night. It was the first time in five years that the Badgers had beaten Marquette in Milwaukee.

A tight defensive first half found Marquette taking a 4 to 0 lead, only to have Wisconsin tie it up. The score was subsequently knotted at 6 to 6 and 10 to 10. A basket and free throw by Kotz and Scheiwe's sneaker shot took the Badgers into a 15 to 10 lead.

Badgers Lead at Half.

Guard Al Skat's third long goal of the half narrowed the count, but Kotz added another free toss and Wisconsin lead at the intermission, 16 to 12.

Marquette narrowed the score to 18 to 15 as the second half got under way, but Kotz, Scheiwe, and Harlo Scott led a Wisconsin rally that put the Badgers safely ahead. Wisconsin's first team played all but the last minute and a half of the game. Lineups:

ILLINOIS, 49; DETROIT, 34

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20 [Special].—With Sophomore Ken Menke firing in shots from all angles, the University of Illinois basketball team beat Detroit, 49 to 34, before 1,500 tonight. Menke scored nine baskets. The Illini galloped into a 15 to 1 lead in the first eight minutes and never were in serious trouble.

It was Illinois' third victory in four starts and Detroit's first defeat in three games. The Titans didn't score a field goal until after nine minutes and by that time they were trailing by 14 points.

With this kind of a margin, Illinois settled down to consistent basketball to stave off all Detroit efforts. Although Illinois' six foot three inch team bottled up the Detroit attack on the whole, two Titans, Joe Mader and Bob Price, combined for 19 points. Mader made 10 and Brice, a Chicago boy, 9. GOPHERS WIN, 44-30

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 20 [Special].—Minnesota presented a brand new basketball team tonight and a brand new hero stole the show as Sophomore Tony Jaros scored 20 points in a 44 to 30 victory over Creighton. It was Minnesota's fourth straight nonconference victory and the first defeat for the Blue Jays.

Jaros who shattered all Minneapolis scoring records in high school, came back from a shaky debut a week ago to register seven field goals and six free throws. Ralph Langer, forward, led Creighton with 10 points. Lineup:

Leo vs. De Paul.

Leo High, national Catholic basketball champion, paced four teams into the semi-final round of the eighth annual St. George tournament yesterday in St. George's Evanston gymnasium by whipping Catholic of Joliet, defending tournament champion, 54 to 41, in the feature game of four quarter-final contests.

Accompanying the Lion quintet into the semi-finals were De La Salle, which turned back St. Rita, 46 to 39, Mount Carmel, which conquered Fenwick, 32 to 20, and De Paul, which triumphed over St. Patrick's in the final game of the night.

De Paul eliminated St. Patrick's, 31 to 25, in the final game of the night.

Semi-final Games Tonight.

Tonight Leo will meet De La Salle in the first semi-final, after which De Paul will oppose Mount Carmel. All except De Paul are south side quintets.

Leo had too much punch for Joliet in the second half, altho the Lions were held to a 27 to 23 margin in the first half. After the intermission Lou Knox and Jim O'Halloran began dropping the ball thru the basket, Knox connecting for 15 points and O'Halloran for 14.

The Lions' total of 54 points set a new high for the tournament so far, and their aggregate of 95 established a new all-time tournament record.

De Paul entered the semi-finals for the second time in the eight year history of the tournament. In 1934 Dick Evans led the Demons into third place. Yesterday, another Dick Evans led them into the semi-finals.

De La Salle Five Coasts.

In the afternoon games, De La Salle coasted to victory in the opener by outscoring St. Rita in the first half, 27 to 13. St. Rita scored 26 in the second half as against 19 by De La Salle, but conceded too much in the opening period to overcome.

Johnny Kempfer, winner of last year's outstanding player award in the tournament, led Mount Carmel to victory over Fenwick. Kempfer registered four field goals for eight points, tho top scoring honors were taken by John Finn of Fenwick, who tallied 10 points with four field goals and two free throws, exactly half of his team's total in each respect. HAWKS OF 1941 MAKE AMENDS FOR 1940 START

Win Six of First Seven on Home Rink.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

A hockey review at this time of year is more complex than the recaps of such sports as baseball and football, which have determined their championships. The 1940-'41 National league season was completed way last spring, and the 1941-'42 regular season has just entered its second quarter in a schedule of 48 games.

Since the able bodied Blackhawks of the current season to date are much more successful than the injury riddled outfit of a year ago, it perhaps will be all right to compare the accomplishments of this year's team in its first 13 games with those of last year's team.

In the home opener last season the Hawks lost to the New York Americans, 1 to 0 This year the Chicagoans won from the Americans, 1 to 0.

A Flying Start.

In their first seven home games this year the Hawks won six and lost one. In their first seven home games last year the Hawks won two, lost four, and tied one.

The current team has not shown such an edge in the home games during the first quarter of the season. In six games abroad they have won one, lost three, and tied two. Last season they won three of their first half dozen road games, tied two, and lost one.

After 13 games this season the Hawks had won seven, lost four, and tied two. They had scored 36 goals to their opponents' 34. In their 48 games all last year the Hawks won 16, lost 25, and tied 7. They made 112 goals to 139 by their opponents.

Reward at the Turnstiles.

The Hawks' early splurge at home this year was rewarded at the turnstiles. In their second, third, fourth, and fifth home games they played to S. R. O. crowds, the four capacity-plus turnouts breaking all hockey records.

On Nov. 16 a crowd of 18,146 saw the Hawks beat the Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 2. The following Thursday 18,222 saw them whip the world champions, Boston Bruins, 3 to 2. On Nov. 23, 18,491 jammed Chicago Stadium and saw another 3 to 2 Chicago victory, this one over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Nov. 30 there was a crowd in excess of more than 18,000, but no 3 to 2 victory. In fact, the Hawks looked terrible, taking their first home defeat, 1 to 5, at the hands of the New York Rangers, the only team in the league they were unable to defeat in their first 13 games of the current season.

Run Up 9 to 2 Score.

The spirited Hawks refused to go to pieces as a result of their poor showing against the Rangers, and in their next home game, Dec. 4, set a new scoring high for the season with a 9 to 2 triumph over the Montreal Canadiens. Three nights later they beat the Americans for the second time in Chicago by a score of 5 to 4. The Americans, by the way, had changed their home identification from New York to Brooklyn between their two visits to Chicago.

The Boston Bruins are expected to retain the league championship and the Stanley cup, but may not be so emphatic about their supremacy this season as they were last. The Bruins had one span of 23 consecutive games in which they were not defeated. And in the final series of the Stanley cup playoffs they were in much the same mood, for they defeated the Detroit Red Wings four out of four.

The Order of Finish.

The final standings in the regular season of 1940-'41 were as follows:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	G.	OG.
Boston	26	8	13	65	164	106
Toronto	28	14	6	62	145	99
Detroit	21	15	11	53	111	98
N. Y. Rang.	21	19	8	50	143	125
CHICAGO	16	25	7	39	112	139
Montreal	16	26	6	38	121	147
N. Y. Amer.	8	29	11	27	99	186

Paul Thompson continues this season as manager of the Hawks, and entered the race with a well conditioned team as a result of arduous drills in Hibbing, Minn.; Champaign, Ill.; Kansas City, Mo., and Chicago before the regular season began.

CHICAGO VOTES REISER AS MOST VALUABLE ROOKIE

Harold [Pete] Reiser, in the eyes of the Chicago baseball writers, was the most valuable major league rookie during the 1941 season. In the voting to determine the winner of the annual J. Louis Comiskey plaque the Brooklyn Dodger center fielder attracted 250 points while Phil Rizzuto, Yankee shortstop, drew 154 for second place.

Seventeen ballots were cast, 16 of them giving Reiser first place which carried 15 points. The other top place went to Rizzuto. Each third place vote was good for eight points, fourth place for seven, etc.

Reiser will be awarded the Comiskey trophy at the Baseball Writers' association dinner to be held the evening of Jan. 6 in the Morrison hotel. The points were distributed as follows:

	Pts.
Pete Reiser, Brooklyn	250
Phil Rizzuto, Yankees	154
Ernie White, Cardinals	111

LAND OF THE CHRISTMAS TREE

Christmas trees in American homes this week-end bring back memories to sportsmen who have roamed the trails and portages in northern vacationland. Lined with snow covered spruces, balsams, and cedars, these trails in the land of the Christmas tree now are scenic wilderness highways like the one shown above.

McNeill Hits Bottom; Riggs Reaches Top in '41 Tennis

BY WILLIAM FAY.

Champion Don McNeill was the man to beat when the 1941 tennis season started—and how they beat him!

Bobby Riggs, Frank Kovacs, and Frank Parker took turns beating Don from the indoor tournament in Oklahoma City in March thru the national singles at Forest Hills in September.

Kovacs won the indoor tournament; Parker thumped McNeill and Riggs to win the clay court title; then Riggs took charge. Bobby whipped all three of his leading rivals—Kovacs, Parker and McNeill—during the eastern grass court season and, finally, climaxed his comeback by walloping Kovacs in the final round of the national singles.

Parker Spurts; Then Fades.

Parker had a skyrocket season. He defeated McNeill three weeks running in the midwestern spring tournaments, then subdued Riggs in a bitter five set final in the clay court tournament on the River Forest tennis club courts.

Parker employed a stout forehand in subduing Riggs. It appeared that something new—and badly needed—had been added to Frankie's tennis equipment. There was talk that Parker, at long last, was on his way to the national championship which has eluded him for many years.

Parker was all fireworks in the midwest, but he made a dead stick landing in the east. The forehand which flourished on high clay court bounces could not cope with slithering chops and slices on turf.

The grass court season narrowed to a fight between Riggs and Kovacs—and Riggs was the convincing winner. He murdered Kovacs in straight sets at Southampton and repeated the slaughter at Forest Hills.

A Warning for 1942.

Ted Schroeder stepped up his singles game during July and August. He gave Riggs the fight of his tennis life in the national semi-finals before losing a deuced fifth set. If either Parker or McNeill has designs on the 1942 title—now that Riggs and Kovacs have turned professional—Frank and Don had better consider ways and means of sidetracking Ted.

Of course, Schroeder—with Jack Kramer's help—retained the national doubles title at Brookline, Mass., in August. The Schroeder-Kramer combination outclassed the doubles field all year long. Their domination was made the easier because Riggs and Kovacs—who together would have made a formidable team—were too wrapped up in their singles feud to care much about doubles. Both teamed indifferently with mediocre partners—Riggs with the faded Gene Mako and Kovacs mostly with Bill Crosby.

Alice Marble's move into professional tennis gave Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke the chance she had been waiting a decade for—altho Pauline Betz was the popular choice to succeed to the title, and some thought the veteran Helen Jacobs might win thru.

A Big Year for Mrs. Cooke.

But Mrs. Cooke put out Miss Jacobs in a three-set semi-final match, then volleyed decisively past Miss Betz in the final, adding the singles title to the doubles crown she wins annually with whichever partner she chooses. This year it was Margaret Osborne.

Chicago moved closer to the national tennis picture — competitively speaking. Seymour Greenberg, Northwestern's Big Ten champion, compiled a promising grass court record. By August eastern writers were calling Seymour "the greatest left handed player since Johnny Doeg."

Jimmy Evert, the Senn high graduate now a freshman at Notre Dame, brought home two national junior titles. Jimmy won the indoor singles last Christmas at Camden, N. J., and—during the summer—teamed with Bob Smidl, also of Chicago, to win the doubles at Culver, Ind. Evert also reached the singles semi-finals before losing to Victor Seixas of Philadelphia, runner-up to Budge Patty of Los Angeles.

Umpire Trouble for Larned.

That Patty won the national junior title is traceable to the generosity, or—more truthfully—the irascibility of Gardner Larned, the Chicago youngster who won the Illinois state men's title and compiled a fine spring record in southern tournaments. Stroke for stroke, and stratagem for stratagem, Gardner surpasses any 18 year old player in the United States He was seeded No. 1 at Culver and advanced easily to a quarter final meeting with Patty. Gardner ran thru the first nine games, and held a 6-0, 4-1 lead before he began to have umpire trouble, 99 per cent of which was self-induced.

While Larned argued with the umpire, Patty played his uninspired, get-'em-back tennis, pulled out the second set, then soundly whipped a sputtering Larned in the third. It was one of the most weird matches in the history of junior tennis. A betting man who fancied Patty's chances could have gotten 100 to 1 odds from any of the spectators after Larned had romped thru the first nine games [Gardner lost only six points in the opening six games].

The Western tournament was held in Indianapolis the week following the clay court tournament. Parker passed up the Western for his annual junket to Spring Lake, N. J., but the big three—McNeill, Riggs, and Kovacs—were on hand, and it was in this event that Riggs started the spurt which carried him back to the national title he held in 1939. Bobby gave Kovacs a good beating in the semi-finals, then administered the same treatment to McNeill in the final. After that he was the confident, crafty Riggs of 1939—not the careless, indolent Riggs of 1940 and early '41.

CHRISTMAS TREE BRINGS MESSAGE OF NORTH WOODS

BY BOB BECKER.

At this time of the year the outdoors makes one of the most pleasant and colorful invasions of the American home that any peace-loving nation could want, for up from the south comes the holly, mistletoe, and long-leafed pine, and out of the snow swept woodlands in the north come hundreds of thousands of trim, symmetrical spruces and fragrant balsams to become Christmas trees.

And the outdoors makes other valuable contributions to the celebration of this holiday season, for the custom of the Yule log, and the decorative use of holly laurel, the ivy, and other winter greenery also are a part of our Christmas. The practice of these decorations adds much natural beauty to our homes at a time when we want a festive atmosphere around us.

An Old Custom.

In introducing flowers, sprays of long-leafed pine, the balsams and spruces, the mystic mistletoe, ground pine, winterberry, and other green decorations into our homes we are following a custom that has existed universally and for many centuries. Even some pagan peoples considered attractive delightful home decorations from garden and forest a manifestation of rejoicing and worship. In fact, early in the history of Christianity the use of green wreaths and other similar decorations was forbidden because of this association with pagan usage.

But of all the Christmas decorations that we take from the outdoors in order to adorn our homes probably none holds such an important position in our hearts as the Christmas tree. Its everlasting green stands as a symbol of the eternal spirit of Christmas.

Altho the Christmas tree which dominates the home at this time of year is primarily for the use of Santa Claus, it serves as a pretty good messenger from the north woods to remind thousands of outdoorsmen of vacation lands, fishing, hunting, and cheery camp fires.

Message from Woods.

We know this tree will be broadcasting some north woods call letters which spell bass fishing, canoe trips, broiled trout, portage trails, and other summer season features which lure millions of outdoor fans into the north country each season.

There may be interference from tinsel, glittering ornaments, and red candy canes to block these calls from the home of the Christmas tree, but they'll come thru just the same.

Portage trails in the land of Christmas trees are covered with snow. Camp sites on which tents and cooking fires were located six months ago are obliterated at this season. Fishing holes are frozen over, but if you'll listen to the message which your Christmas tree brings down from the northland, you will begin to get ready for next summer's fun.

LIVELY LADY IS YACHT OF YEAR; WINS 5 TITLES

Hail Milwaukee Sloop as Lake Michigan's Best.

Chicagoland waters were the center of more freshwater yachting last season than any time since the sport began officially in this area back in 1875. Nearly every Great Lakes sailing title was decided in Chicago. Record fleets competed in all but one of the long distance events except the race to Mackinac. However, the 50 yachts racing to Mackinac Island enjoyed more varied weather than the calms encountered in the 1939 and 1940 races. The 50th annual Michigan City race across the lake drew 115 starters, 30 more than the previous record. But Lake Michigan was so becalmed that not one of the yachts finished within the time limit.

Lively Lady, Otto Dreher's South Shore [Milwaukee] Yacht club Q class sloop, was the outstanding racing [Universal] division yacht of the year on Lake Michigan. Skipper Dreher started by capturing the Chicago-Milwaukee race that opened the season. The sloop also defeated the racing fleet in the Lake Michigan Yachting association's annual regatta held at the Milwaukee Yacht club, won the Daily News regatta off Navy Pier, and the Lutz trophy series for the Lake Michigan Q championship. Lively Lady was sailed to more firsts than any other sloop during the Commodore Otto F. Barthel trophy series for the Great Lakes large sloop title.

Southern Cross Leads Big Yawls.

Southern Cross, owned and sailed by Commodore Robert Benedict Jr. of the Jackson Park Yacht club, was the leading large cruising yacht of the season. The 59 foot yawl won cruising time prize honors in the Chicago-Milwaukee race, the Daily News regatta, the Black Lake-Chicago race from Macatawa Bay, Mich., and the tri-state race over Labor day.

Highlight, Chester Krusienski's Racine [Wis.] Yacht club cutter defeated all cruising competitors in the Lake Michigan Yachting association regatta in Milwaukee, and in the Commodore W. G. D. Orr Memorial regatta. Only 24 feet long, Highlight is the smallest yacht in several years to take major honors from the larger craft.

Lively Lady and Breeze, Sumner W. D. Scott's cruising ketch, won the annual Mackinac race in the racing and cruising divisions respectively. The special William Moore regatta honoring the Jackson Park Yacht club's race committee chairman, brought out more than 100 sail and power yachts. Calypso, the Driscoll-Swift syndicate R class sloop, and Betty Bro, Commodore Milton Friend's mahogany yawl, were major victors.

Noble Trophy to Revenge.

The annual Commodore Sheldon Clark regatta was called off on its scheduled date because of a 40 mile wind. When resailed, it was won by Scimitar, the Spencer-Faurot-Wiman syndicate Q class racer, and Onaway, S. C. Pirie Jr.'s yawl.

Revenge, Blair Walliser and Ken Griffin's 10 meter cutter, regained the Noble trophy in leading the tri-state fleet on its last leg from Michigan City to Chicago.

Ed Schnabel Sr. sailed his R class sloop Yankee to victories in the Sir Thomas Lipton cup series, the Chicago Yacht club R class season championship, and the St. Joseph-Michigan City leg of the tri-state race.

Lake Ontario Crew Wins.

A Lake Ontario crew headed by Skipper Elmer Doyle won the Berthel Trophy crew series, sailed in Q boats in Chicago. Commodore Alexander [Sunny] Winton of the Cleveland [O.] Yachting club, was skipper of the crew winning the Great Lakes R class crew series.

The Inland Lake Yachting association's annual regatta was sailed at Lake Geneva, Wis., for the first time in four years. Two Chicago skippers, Jack Vilas Jr. and Charles B. [Cuppy] Goes won the A and C class championships respectively. The E class title went to John R. Huff of the Minnetonka [Minn.] Yacht club.

Star class racing in Chicago brought more entries and more regattas than any year before. Lockwood Pirie and Harry Nye Jr., shared honors, each winning their fleet eliminations in order to represent the Wilmette and Southern Shore yachts in the world championship regatta off the Pacific coast. Skipper Nye came so close to winning the international title that the Star Class association voted to sail the world regatta in Chicago in 1942.

Nye's Gale Is Successful.

Skipper Nye, sailing his Gale, won the annual Sheridan Shore Yacht club race week. Skipper Pirie's Twin Star took the Sterling Morton trophy series. Bubbling Over, Dr. Stanley Fahlstrom and Bert Williams' sloop, won the Great Lakes Star class championship. Robert Cameron and Ed Schnabel Jr. won the new Great Lakes green star title for novice sailors, in Cameron's entry.

A Burnham Park Yacht club crew of youths won the Great Lakes junior sailing championship. The Great Lakes Snipe class regatta at the Wilmette Yacht club was captured by Nancy, an Oshkosh [Wis.] Yacht club sloop.

Fleet Capt. Ken Schmid's Dry Sue won the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club's Snipe class championship. Warrent Hatch, in his Folly, won the club's Lightning class title.

1941 Turf Titles Undisputed; Whirlaway and Alsab Reign

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The 1941 racing season ended with undisputed champions, Whirlaway and Alsab in the 3 year old and juvenile divisions, respectively, and with Big Pebble occupying a fairly strong position at the top of the handicap class. Meanwhile Petrify was giving what was generally considered the best account of herself among the juvenile fillies. Thus an unusual unanimity of opinion prevailed among the followers of the turf.

Both Whirlaway and Alsab went thru campaigns which will be long remembered in the history of the American turf. Whirlaway, which is owned by Warren Wright of Calumet farm, won nine stake events and was no worse than second in his other five stake engagements. This son of the imported stallion, Blenheim II., finished first in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness, Belmont, American Derby, Travers, Dwyer, Lawrence Realization, Wilson and the Arlington Special. He was second in the Jockey Club Gold cup, the Narragansett Special, the Classic, the Derby Trial and the Blue Grass stakes.

Defeats Inconsequential.

In the case of his five defeats, no horse ever beat him twice. Of the five which beat him, none established a record in any way comparable to that of the Calumet farm color bearer. Our Boots beat Whirlaway in the Blue Grass stakes, Blue Pair turned the trick in the Derby Trial, Attention whipped him in the Arlington Classic, War Relic did it in the Narragansett Special and Market Wise in the Jockey Club Gold cup.

Aside from their victories in the Classic and the Derby Trial, Attention and Blue Pair accomplished nothing during the season. Our Boots added only the Yankee handicap to his victory in the Blue Grass stakes. War Relic and Market Wise continued to run well as the season advanced but their accomplishments were insufficient to earn them a rating anywhere near that of Whirlaway.

War Relic Among Leaders.

In addition to the Narragansett Special, War Relic scored in the Massachusetts handicap, the Governor's handicap and the Kenner stakes. Market Wise began his campaign auspiciously with a victory in the Wood Memorial in the spring, lapsed a bit thereafter and came on strong again toward the close of the year. In addition to his successes in the Jockey Club Gold cup and in the Wood Memorial, he scored five other stake victories during the season—in the Pimlico Special, the Gallant Fox handicap, the Governor Bowie handicap, the Edgemere handicap and the Rockingham Park stakes.

Among the 2 year olds, Alsab created the greatest sensation of many years. This colt, which Al Sabath of Chicago purchased for $700 at the Saratoga yearling sales in 1940, won 11 stake events, piling up a total of $110,600 in earnings. Inasmuch as he was a member of the first crop of foals of an unproved sire, Good Goods, his breeder, Thomas Piatt of Lexington, Ky., hadn't nominated him for the traditionally fashionable futurities such as the Belmont, the Pimlico and the major juvenile events at Saratoga.

Nothing Stops Alsab.

Thus, when he began to show remarkable ability early in his campaign, it seemed unlikely that he would get much chance to establish himself as a champion. Before the season was over, however, he demonstrated that no combination of circumstances could keep him down. Beginning with a purely local reputation around Chicago, he built up his prestige until the most aloof eastern turf authorities were forced to admit that he was one of the finest juveniles in the history of the American turf.

He won his races the hard way, asking for no breaks of luck, coming out of the pack when he got the worst of crowding on the turns. He won his races in remarkable time, too, leaving a succession of tied and broken records behind him.

His stake victories were scored in the following events: the Joliet, Primer, Mayflower, Hyde Park, Washington Park Juvenile, Prairie State, Champagne, Washington Park Futurity, Eastern Shore [a dead heat with Colchis], Spalding Lowe Jenkins, Walden and a special match race against Requested.

12 Victories in 13 Stakes.

This made 12 victories out of 13 stake appearances. The defeat occurred in the Myles Standish stakes but Alsab came right back a few days later to dispose of this rival, Eternal Bull, once and for all. Tho he competed in only one stake in which really big money was involved—the Washington Park Futurity—Alsab ran his earnings to $110,600, much the largest sum accumulated in his division in 1941.

The Calumet Farm stable, not content with dominating the 3 year old situation with Whirlaway, made a strong showing in the juvenile division with Sun Again and Some Chance. The former won the Arlington Futurity and then had to withdraw from campaigning because of a leg ailment. Some Chance, which had run second to his stablemate at Arlington, went on to win the Belmont Futurity.

Requested, owned by B. F. Whitaker, gave a good account of himself, winning six stakes and finishing second in four others. Greentree stable's Devil Diver and Woolford farm's Contradiction also made their marks, the latter scoring in the Pimlico Futurity. Devil Diver's most important victory was in the Hopeful stakes.

$159,437 Handicap Earnings.

Among the handicap horses, Big Pebble was generally considered to have the best record. He won the Widener handicap, the Hollywood Gold cup, the Washington Park handicap and one division of the McLennan handicap. He earned $159,437 during the season.

Mioland won five stakes, his most important being the San Juan Capistrano in which he earned $44,310. His total for the year was $116,020. He and Big Pebble were the only ones to go over $100,000 in this division.

Bay View took the rich Santa Anita handicap, which carried a winner's purse of $89,360 but that was his only achievement of the year. Eight Thirty made only two starts and won both—the Metropolitan and the Toboggan handicap.

Fenelon took the big distance race of the year—the New York handicap, which was worth $40,500 to the winner. He also scored in the Brooklyn, the Manhattan and Whitney stakes and the Merchants and Citizens handicap.

Warren Wright, Chicago and Kentucky sportsman, who owns Whirlaway, champion 3 year old of the 1941 season.

100 Skiiers to Seek College Titles in Sun Valley Meet

Sun Valley, Ida., Dec. 20 (AP).—More than 100 entrants, representing 21 universities, will compete in the intercollegiate ski meet Dec. 29 to Jan. 1. Ted Jilli, secretary of the Sun Valley Ski club, said Bobby Blatt of Stanford, and Janet Quinney of the University of Washington, would defend their titles.

DETROIT ELEVEN GAINS TWO 1941 SOCCER FINALS

But Eastern Teams Win National Titles.

BY OFFSIDE.

Pawtucket, R. I., and Fall River, Mass., only 16 miles apart, established their neighborhood as the soccer capital of the United States during the 1940-'41 season. The Pawtucket Rangers won the National Open title, while the Fall River Football club gained the National Amateur championship.

Had both of these teams lost in title battles, however, the capital would have been Detroit, Mich., and both championships would have gone to the Detroit Chryslers. This club won the season's hard luck award after setting a record by reaching both the open and national finals—only to meet defeat on each occasion.

Vikings Sweep Chicago Titles.

The Chicago Spartans, who shared the national open title a year previously, failed to maintain their high standard of play. In fact, the Spartans were shut out from title honors in the Illinois district where 72 teams, exclusive of high schools and colleges, performed in league competition.

It remained for the Vikings to make a clean sweep of the year's soccer honors in Chicagoland. They won the major division title of the International league, the Peter J. Peel cup tournament, and the Illinois State cup championship series. Furthermore, the Vikings' second eleven won the reserve division trophy in the International league.

Sam Redas Undefeated.

The Sam Redas of Chicago were undefeated in leading the International league's second division, while the Wisla Football club dropped only one point in topping the league's B section. Summary of 1940-'41 champions:

NATIONAL.

Open—Pawtucket [R. I.] Rangers; Detroit [Mich.] Chryslers, runner-up.
Amateur—Fall River [Mass.] Football club; Detroit Chryslers, runner-up.

ILLINOIS.

Peel cup—Chicago Vikings.

EDDLEMAN GETS 36 POINTS AND TWO AS A GIFT

Centralia, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP).—Dwight Eddleman of Centralia High school not only added 36 points to his own scoring record against Springfield last night but was given credit for two more points when Carl Kestner, Springfield forward, dropped the ball thru the wrong basket. Eddleman, as captain of the Centralia team, was awarded the points.

The game, won by Centralia, 61 to 18, brought Eddleman's total for the season to 114 for five games, an average of 22.8 points.

Special Trains to Bowl Games Called Doubtful

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The nation's railroads told Bowl game managers today that because of wartime demands it was doubtful if special trains or cars could be provided to handle football crowds. The advice was telegraphed by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, to universities whose football teams are scheduled for Bowl games.

ABOYNE WINS IN RAIN AT OPENING IN TROPICAL PARK

Captures Feature Before Crowd of 9,382.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 20 (AP).—Mrs. G. C. Winfrey's Aboyne splashed from out of the pack to victory in Tropical Park's $2,500 inaugural handicap today before an opening day crowd of 9,382—off 1,099 from the start of last year because of dripping skies.

The fleet field of 11 was rounding the turn into the stretch in the six furlong handicap when Jockey J. Skelly made his bid with Aboyne. The horse just nipped Mrs. A. M. Creech's Dekalb in a photo finish to return $71.60 for a $2 win ticket. The place price was $28.80 and the show players got back $12.30.

Dekalb paid $25 and $11.20. Maechance, only favorite to run in the money, showed for $5.40. The sloppy track held the time to 1 minute 12.4 seconds—2.4 seconds off the track record.

The 21 day meeting got off to a rousing start when J. Freedman's Liberty Sand and Mrs. E. B. Carpenter's Ginocchio ran to a dead heat in the first race.

Hunch players got a taste of things to come in the second race when Mrs. A. Carroll's Marny came thru to return $98.30 to win, $43.40 to place and $17.80 to show.

BABA WINS

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 20 (AP).—Baba, short on name but long on stamina, won the two mile endurance claiming purse today as the Charles Town meeting ended.

Baba, owned by J. Degnan and ridden by Buddy Root, won a length and a quarter ahead of B. T. Pitts' Mystic Man, the pacemaker most of the way. Peppery was third in the field of eight.

The winner paid $5.80 and was clocked in 3:47.

Soccer Teams Play Today in 3 Cup Games

One National Open and two National Amateur cup matches hold the spotlight of today's soccer schedule, including the replay of a first round open game between the Vikings and the Nickeloids in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Koster avenue. These rivals were deadlocked after playing 14 minutes of the extra half hour period when darkness fell.

The Vikings came out of the last game with two of their players disabled. Ray Camplin, goalkeeper, will be replaced today by Jock Joahannsen, player manager. Eddie Camplin also is a doubtful starter.

In amateur games, the Hakoahs, strengthened by the addition of several Macabees, oppose the South Side Swedes at 5600 Roosevelt road; while the Slovaks meet the Falk Corporation team in Milwaukee. Both are second round engagements.

All games are scheduled for 2:30 o'clock. The Sparta seconds and the Catholic Youth Organization team meet at 12:15 in a preliminary game in Sparta stadium.

6 DAY BIKE RACE IN COLISEUM TO OPEN ON JAN. 25

Promoter Harry Mendel announced yesterday that Chicago's 44th international six day bicycle race would be run in the Coliseum Jan. 25 to 31. Mendel said: "The Stadium is filled with hockey dates, and rather than wait until the spring I have decided to return to the Coliseum, a building that has housed most of Chicago's successful six day grinds."

"Despite the war," Mendel said, "I already have conducted one successful six day bike race in Montreal and have four more scheduled—in Milwaukee the first week in January, in Chicago, in Cleveland the second week in February, and in Buffalo the last week in March. Races also are scheduled tentatively for Pittsburgh, Detroit, and San Francisco."

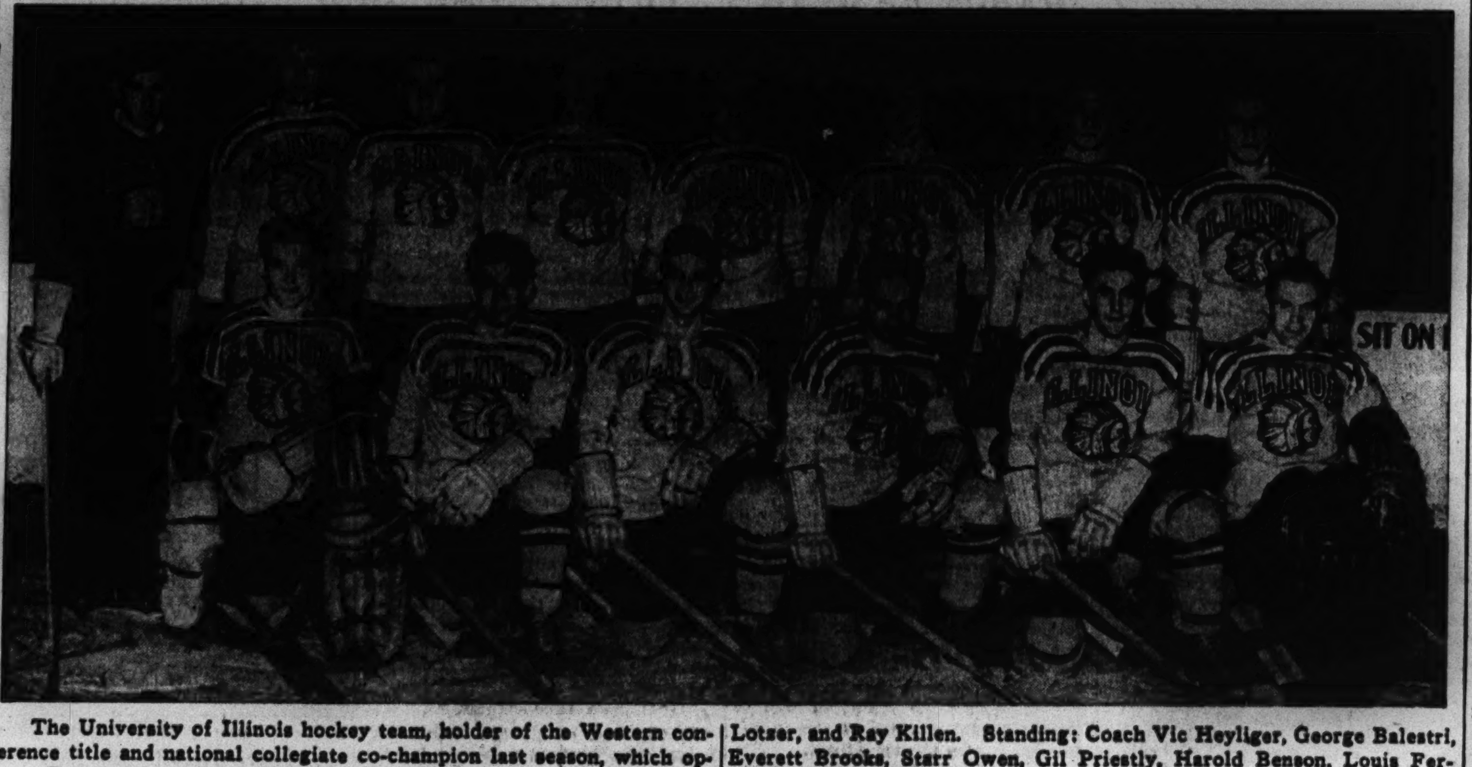
DARTMOUTH'S FOE—ILLINOIS' HOCKEY CHAMPS



The University of Illinois hockey team, holder of the Western conference title and national collegiate co-champion last season, which opposes Dartmouth tomorrow in the Chicago Arena. Left to right, kneeling: John Gillan, Aldo Palazzari, Amo Bessone, Robert Miller, Joe Lotzer, and Ray Killen. Standing: Coach Vic Heyliger, George Balestri, Everett Brooks, Starr Owen, Gil Priestly, Harold Benson, Louis Feranti, and Russ Priestly.

Illini to Meet Dartmouth on Arena Rink

Illinois and Dartmouth, two of America's finest teams, will introduce major college hockey to Chicago for the first time when they meet in the Chicago arena at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

Last year's Illinois team, which won 17, tied 1 and lost 3 out of a 21 game schedule, shared the national intercollegiate title with Southern California. All but two regulars of that team are back this year.

Star Sophomore Line.

Dartmouth, third in the eastern league last season, lost only three lettermen while gaining the services of the finest group of freshmen in the school's history.

Leading the Big Green attack is the sophomore line of Bill Harrison, Dick Rondeau, and Jack Riley. This unit shattered all sorts of eastern college hockey records last year, hitting a peak in the game with the Princeton frosh when the three boys piled up a total of 14 goals. Seven of them were scored by Harrison, who Dit Clapper of the Boston Bruins rates as the best prospect he has ever seen in college hockey.

Illini May Lose Two.

Vic Heyliger, Illinois coach, is undecided on the make up of the squad he will bring to Chicago. His decision is delayed by uncertainty about the status of Gil Priestly and Starr Owen, who are in the United States army and stationed at Chanute field, near Champaign. They have been permitted by Chanute field officials to continue both their school work and hockey playing up to now, but Coach Heyliger has been notified that they can expect a call to active service at any time.

Two of the Illini squad, Defenseman Amo Bessone and Left Wing Aldo Palazzari, are on the Black Hawk reserve list. Palazzari is one of the fastest skaters in college hockey.

After tomorrow's game, the Dartmouth squad will accompany the Illini to Champaign for another game there on Tuesday, then move on after Christmas for two games with Minnesota.

Chicago Alumni of Dartmouth have planned a luncheon in the Union league club, and a buffet dinner at the University club tomorrow.

BRUINS TO FACE INDIANAPOLIS FIVE TONIGHT

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 20 [Special.]—The basketball game between the Chicago Bruins and the Indianapolis Kautskys will precipitate a clash between some particularly accurate sharpshooters here tomorrow.

Jewell Young, former Purdue star who is now a member of the Kautskys, is setting the National league scoring pace with 71 points in six games. Last week, against Sheboygan, the Indianapolis team ran up 67 points for a league scoring record.

The Bruins have Wibs Kautz and Ralph Vaughan to pit against Young. Kautz has made 53 points and Vaughan 49 in four games, so each has a better average than Young.

Mike Novak, Bruin center who is suffering from a foot ailment, will get into the game for a short time and so will George Ratkovicz, six foot six inch rookie center, but most of the evening's duties in this job will be taken care of by the veteran Otto Kolar.

The Bruins' next engagement will be in the Chicago Coliseum on Christmas night.

LAST 2 ROUNDS IN CYO BOXING MEET SLATED ON JAN. 6

Semi-final and final bouts of the Catholic Youth organization's eleventh annual boxing tournament will be held Jan. 6, Thomas F. O'Connell, director of boxing of the CYO, announced yesterday.

O'Connell also said the finals would be held in the CYO gymnasium, 31 East Congress street, rather than in the Stadium or Coliseum, scene of former CYO tournament finals. The gymnasium has undergone complete renovation and expansion to accommodate the anticipated turnouts.

The semi-final and final bouts will feature open division fighters. Fourteen novice and 14 beginner boxers already have been crowned champions in the earlier rounds of the tournament.

RECORD FLIGHT broke slowly and trailed back to the final three furlongs, then came thru on inside and just failed to get up. OFF KEY had plenty of speed but weakened in last sixteenth. Gophers, Irish Lead Parade in '41 Football

Ohio State. Thus, the Buckeyes, who held Michigan to a 20 to 20 tie in the final game of the campaign, were eliminated from the championship race. Ohio State's remarkable record under its new coach, Paul Brown, included victories over Missouri, Southern California and Pittsburgh in addition to conference triumphs over Wisconsin, Illinois, and Purdue. Ohio State was the only team to defeat Missouri.

Brown was the coach of the year in the Big Nine altho this ignores Bierman's perfect record. Just before the final game of the year at Northwestern, Bob Zuppke, head coach at the University of Illinois for 29 years, resigned. With Zuppke's departure Bierman became dean of the Big Nine football coaches.

For a second consecutive year an all-time football attendance mark was set in the conference. A total of 1,811,388 saw Big Nine teams in 49 games. In 1940 attendance was 1,799,898 which surpassed the previous mark established in 1927. One more game was played this year, however, so the 1941 average attendance was 36,967 compared to 37,737 in 1940. Capacity crowds of 85,753 saw the Wolverines play Minnesota and Ohio State in Ann Arbor.

First Year Success for Leahy.

Notre Dame's unbeaten record was obvious tribute to Frank Leahy who returned last spring to serve his alma mater when Elmer Layden resigned to become commissioner of the National Football league. The Irish whipped Arizona, Indiana, Georgia Tech, Carnegie Tech, Illinois, Navy, Northwestern, and Southern California. They were held to a scoreless tie in the rain and mud by Army. Notre Dame was the only team to beat Navy.

Notre Dame's statistical honors were divided between Angelo Bertelli, probably the greatest sophomore forward passer in history; Steve Juzwik, and Owen Evans. Bertelli completed 70 forward passes in 123 attempts. The passes gained 1,027 yards, scored eight of Notre Dame's 28 touchdowns, and set up seven other touchdowns.

Evans scored 67 points and made eight touchdowns from inside opponents' 10 yard lines. He carried the ball 141 times from his full back position, gaining 480 yards, and averaging 3.4 yards. He punted 66 times for a 38.2 yard average.

Juzwik, right half, scored 61 points, carried the ball 101 times for an average of 4.2 yards, and caught 17 passes for 305 yards. He returned 23 punts 290 yards. Bob Dove, left end, caught 15 passes for 187 yards.

Three Stanford Defeats.

Stanford's three defeats on the Pacific coast paved the way for a two time loser, Oregon State, to take the title. Santa Clara had an indifferent year. Duke had the best record of all southern teams but the calibre of its opposition kept it from top ranking in the national poll. Pennsylvania was beaten only by Navy. Duquesne was unbeaten but its schedule was mediocre.

Harvard triumphed over Yale and Princeton for Big Three honors. Navy whipped Army for a third consecutive time under Coach Swede Larson. Nebraska set a record with five consecutive defeats, including a 6 to 0 loss to Missouri.

REISER LEADS IN 6 DEPARTMENTS OF 1941 BATTING

Wins 5 N.L. Titles; Shares Another.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Yankees had their Joe DiMaggio and the Red Sox had their Ted Williams last season but the Brooklyn Dodgers, pennant winners in the National league, had their Harold [Pete] Reiser, a young man who proved that nothing was too much for a rookie.

There has been no secret about the prominence of the Reiser bat during the Dodgers' dash to an ill-fated world series rendezvous but all his various freshman feats were confirmed yesterday with release of the official averages.

In addition to the batting crown, Reiser carried off so many other mementos that there is an alarming lack of wall space in his St. Louis home and additional alarm in the offices of the Brooklyn club. They are trembling over what the youngster may suggest as satisfactory salary in the near future.

Compiles 299 Total Bases.

Reiser set the pace in the percentage column with a final mark of .343 and wasn't even closely pursued. He scored the most runs—117. He was tops in total bases with 299, led in triples with 17 and split the two base hit honors with Johnny Mize, who recently was moved from the Cardinals to the Giants. Each doubled 39 times. By way of sweetening his loot, Reiser turned in the league's longest hitting streak—18 straight games.

Altho the Cubs finished sixth in the team standing and fifth in team batting they snared a few stray items. The veteran Stan Hack, as in 1940, led in total hits with 186. Of these 141 were singles, which also was a one man high. The Cubs attracted the attention of the record keeper because Hack, Phil Cavarretta, and Bill Nicholson hit consecutive home runs off Lon Warneke on Aug. 11 in St. Louis. This tied a mark held by many clubs.

Cubs Pitching Is Poor.

The Cubs' inability to get anywhere in the race is explained partly by the run production. The Cubs scored 666 times but allowed 670 enemy runs, possibly an indication that their dive into the second division was due as much to poor pitching as to featherweight hitting. Only one team—Brooklyn—excelled the Cubs in homers and that was only by the difference between 101 and 99. Of the Cubs' homers, Nicholson furnished 26, which was all out of proportion to his skimpy batting average of .254.

The figures show that Brooklyn's pennant job was accomplished on pitching as well as power. While they were scoring 800 runs their pitchers yielded only 581 to the opposition. The Dodgers also made the most hits, 1494, and topped the field in total bases with 2221. But they didn't go in strongly for stealing. They copped only 36 bases, tying for low with the Giants. The Phillies stole 65 but the effort didn't mean much. They still finished a hopeless eighth.

Park, School Officials Aid Hale America

William H. Johnson, superintendent of Chicago public schools, and V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the Chicago park district, yesterday pledged coöperation with the Hale America movement by announcing plans for an extension of playground and general athletic activity.

Carl Stockholm, director of physical fitness for the 6th civilian defense region, said he had received word from Johnson that beginning in January all schools which have supervised playgrounds will keep these recreational facilities open until 4:30 p. m. instead of closing at 3 p. m. as had been customary.

At the same time Brown stated that the recreation division of the park district is revising its program to increase physical activities. Longer use of facilities and increase in the number of participants will be the park district's objectives.

WEIGHT LIFTERS HOLD 10TH AAU TOURNEY TODAY

The 10th Central A. A. U. novice weight tournament will be held tomorrow in the National hall, 3310 South Morgan street, at 2:30 o'clock. Many service men are entered, indicating interest of armed forces in weight lifting. Among the army entries is Bill Brier of Naperville, Ill., 175 pounds, who expects to lift 700 pounds in the three Olympic lifts.

The Duncan YMCA, coached by Phil Piantone, a former national champion, is expected to be a threat for team honors.

LEO FREISINGER QUITS SKATING; COACHES CYO

America's greatest ice speed skater, Leo Freisinger, announced last night that he is retiring as an amateur in the sport but will remain as coach of the Catholic Youth Organization, succeeding Pete Miller, who now is president of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States.

Freisinger held the national title six times and was thrice North American champion. He won five international titles in Europe during the 1938 season.

BOWLIUM HOLDS FORMAL OPENING FOR FOUR DAYS

Match Game Champion to Perform Tomorrow.

The Bowlium, Chicago's newest half million dollar bowling enterprise, holds its formal opening this week, starting with two singles matches tomorrow night and continuing with a program thru Friday.

The establishment, one of the most ornate in Chicago, is located at Sheridan road and Montrose avenue. It features 30 bowling alleys in line and without a post to mar the view of spectators. It is managed by Bill Dudley, formerly of South Shore recreation. Adele Pfeiffer is instructor.

Hank Marino Vs. Ned Day.

Tomorrow's feature match will bring together Hank Marino, former match game champion, and his star pupil, Ned Day, current match game champion who retained his title in the match ended last week in the All-Star tournament. Marino and Day will meet at 11:30. At 2 a. m. Tuesday Joe Puccinelli and Eddie Zajac, Classic league stars, will meet in a second match.

Joe Wilman's Budweisers will meet the Mineralites at 9 o'clock Tuesday night and two hours later a picked team from the Chicago Tribune league will clash with a team representing the American Colortype league.

Small to Oppose Wilman.

Wilman is to oppose Johnny Small, a member of the Budweiser team, at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, following which Carl Berger of the Classic league Washington Shirts and Joe Janis will clash in another singles match.

A demonstration by stars of the Chicago High School league is set for 2 p. m. Friday, in which two picked teams—one of boys and one of girls—from the South Side will meet teams from the North Side.

The final match scheduled is at 9 o'clock Friday when two teams from Tam o'Shanter Country club meet two teams from Medinah Country club.

Bowlium has been in operation since October, but Helsing's Vodvil lounge, to be run in conjunction with the bowling establishment, has just been made ready. Bowlium already has 23 leagues operating, newest of which is the Owl circuit, begun two weeks ago and already having a membership of eight teams. This league bowls at 4 a. m. each Monday.

La Motta and Bolden Meet at Marigold

Nate Bolden, south side light heavyweight, will aim for his fourth straight victory in a 10 round bout against Jake La Motta of New York in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

Bolden's recent victims include Henry Jones, George Mitchell, and Jack Whittinghill. The conquest of Jones on Dec. 1 was Bolden's 28th decision in 43 matches. Of the others, he fought three draw fights and lost 12 verdicts. He never has been stopped.

Nate Is Confident.

Altho La Motta floored Jimmy Reeves five times while losing a disputed decision in Cleveland last Sept. 24, Bolden is confident his chin will be too elusive for Jake tomorrow. In his modest way, Nate says he is a better fighter than Reeves and can absorb punches better than the Clevelander.

Thus far, Nate's safety first tactics have been a reason for inability of opponents to score on a vulnerable spot. If he chooses to follow this procedure tomorrow, chances are La Motta will have a difficult time trying to land with telling effect, but Jake might catch the eyes of the officials.

Pierce Opposes Murczek.

In a five round secondary feature Billy Pierce, Milwaukee middleweight, will face Stanley Murczek. Four round events bring together Jimmy Crow, Danville 160 pounder, and Danny Villa; Frank Pintero, West Allis junior welterweight, against Johnny Dudley, and Willie Moon, Chicago featherweight, and Jerry Hoffman.

A tournament to determine amateur boxing champions of Franklin park will be held in the park gymnasium, Kolin avenue and 14th street, Jan. 7, Danny Spunt, fight coach at the park, said yesterday. . . . Jackie Wilson, Cleveland welterweight, who stopped Mike Kaplan recently, is scheduled to be inducted in the army in Los Angeles Tuesday. . . . Chris Dundee, manager of Georgie Abrams, sailor fighter stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., who lost a chance for undisputed possession of the middleweight title when defeated by Tony Zale, refutes reports Agrams is thru as a fighter by saying his protége will return to action the last week in January.

LINK LYMAN IS DROPPED FROM NEBRASKA STAFF

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 20 (AP).—The University of Nebraska board of Athletics announced today that the contract of Roy [Link] Lyman as line coach of the football team would not be renewed for next year.

The statement of the board read: "Because of the general state of uncertainty respecting the future of intercollegiate athletics and in the best interests of all concerned, the athletic board of control of the University of Nebraska has decided not to renew the contract of Roy William Lyman of the football coaching staff."

Lyman, a former star Nebraska tackle, came to the university as line coach in 1935 under Dana Bible, then head coach and athletic director. Lyman had spent several years as player and line coach in professional football, most of them with the Chicago Bears, before joining the Cornhusker staff.

Sonja Henie and Ice Cast Arrive Today

Sonja Henie and Santa Claus, for the fifth consecutive year, arrive in Chicago at almost the same time. Miss Henie, slightly ahead of schedule, will reach the La Salle street station today, followed in the evening by more than 100 skaters, musicians, technicians and directors, who'll go to work tomorrow setting the stage for Sonja's 1942 Hollywood Ice Revue. The show, running in Chicago Stadium for 10 nights, starts on Thursday and ends Jan. 4. No performance is scheduled for Jan. 1 because of the Blackhawks-Detroit hockey game in the Stadium.

The revue finished a week's run last night in Buffalo, N. Y. Before getting back to work, Sonja will attend the Bears-Giants pro football championship game with her husband, Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn club.

This year's revue, assembled at a cost of $200,000, including $72,000 for costuming, offers 23 ensembles of star skaters, tested for six weeks in stops at Omaha, St. Louis, and Indianapolis.

In addition to Miss Henie and the chorus, the cast includes Jeff Stevens, English comedian; Fritz Dietl and Gene Turner, national figure skating champions of 1940 and 1941, respectively; Jimmy Caesar, Mary Ann Kramer, Charlie Hadlett, Dorothy Caley, Adria Thomas, Helge and Inga Brandt, Tommy DePauw and Peter Killam.

Turner will team with Miss Henie, succeeding Harrison Thomson and Stewart Raeburn, who, in order, previously served as her skating partner.

COACHES PONDER CHANGE IN RULE ON SUBSTITUTES

Coach H. O. [Fritz] Crisler of the University of Michigan, president of the National Football Coaches association, said today the rules committee meeting would open the annual three-day convention of the association. Coach Lou Little of Columbia is chairman of the committee.

With an expected attendance of 500 coaches, discussions of the laws of the game are sure to permeate the hotel lobbies. The coaches may recommend changes to the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association at a later meeting.

The coaches' own year-old revision—the unlimited substitutions rule—is listed as topic No. 1. There has been scarcely any agitation for its repeal, but the coaches are seeking means of preventing a defensive team from holding up the play by substitutions at vital moments.

DU SABLE HIGH TEAM TO DEFEND TOURNEY TITLE

Play Starts Saturday in U. of Chicago Meet.

More than 400 basketball players representing all 40 of Chicago's public high schools will convene on the Midway next Saturday afternoon for the 24th annual interscholastic basketball tournament of the University of Chicago, with Du Sable favored to retain its title.

The meet, in the university's field house, will continue seven days, with the finals on Jan. 3. If Du Sable's title defense is successful, and the team's record this season indicates it may well be, it will be the first time a team has won in two consecutive years since the tournament, once a nation-wide affair, was limited to the city's public high schools in 1935.

Clifton Is Back Again.

Led by Nathaniel Clifton, a 6 feet 6 inch center, Du Sable last year beat Tuley in the final round. Clifton is back again as one of the foremost players in the city.

The extra day added to the tournament last year, when the number of competing teams was increased to the full 40 instead of the 32 invited in previous years, will be retained as the tournament gets under way Saturday at 1 p. m., with Lake View meeting Parker in the first elimination round battle. Following games will be at 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9 o'clock, with Du Sable beginning its title defense in a contest with Kelvyn Park at 7.

Second Round Dec. 31.

The first round proper will begin Dec. 29 with the same schedule, and will be completed Dec. 30. The second round will be played Dec. 31 as the field is reduced to the eight quarter finalists who will play New Year's day at 3, 4, 7, and 8 o'clock. The semifinals will be on Jan. 2 at 7 and 8 p. m., with the finals slated for Jan. 3 at 4 p. m., following the third place game at 2:30.

The two other games on the first program will bring together Fenwick and De Paul and St. Patrick and St. Ignatius.

Three additional first round games will be held on Saturday night. This program will be featured by the appearance of Leo High's juniors, who won the meet last year in addition to the Catholic league championship. The Lions will oppose St. Michael. Riggs, Kovacs Start Play as Pros Friday

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—Another professional tennis tour—starring Don Budge, Fred Perry, Bobby Riggs, and Frank Kovacs—will begin its cross-country whirl here Friday night in Madison Square Garden. The troupe will appear in Boston, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh before playing in Chicago. The Chicago appearance will be delayed until Sonja Henie's ice revue concludes its Chicago Stadium holiday run.

Budge, generally considered the world's greatest player, paradoxically is the only one of the four who doesn't own an important 1941 championship. Perry won the world's professional title this spring in the Chicago Town and Tennis club tournament, but Fred's ascension to the throne previously occupied by Budge was aided considerably by Don's fall down a flight of stairs a week before the tournament opened.

Riggs won the national amateur title in September and was ranked No. 1 for 1941 by the United States Lawn Tennis association. Kovacs, Riggs' most persistent rival, was ranked No. 2.

DE PAUL FIVE AND OKLAHOMA PLAY SATURDAY

De Paul university's basketball team yesterday acquired a sudden addition to its schedule in the University of Oklahoma quintet of Norman, Okla. The game, which will be played in the De Paul gymnasium, 2219 North Sheffield avenue, next Saturday night, was arranged to create a break in the Sooners' westward journey home.

Ruth Hits One for Defense

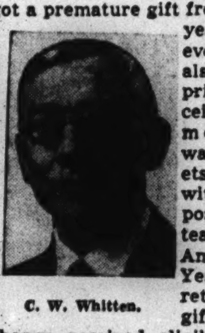
[Acme Photo.]

Babe Ruth, former baseball home run king and highest salaried performer, examines $50,000 worth of the $100,000 purchase he made in New York Friday of United States defense savings bonds. Ruth will get the second $50,000 worth after Jan. 1. A treasury ruling forbids purchase by an individual of more than $50,000 in defense bonds in one year.

Five Morton Athletes Trade Gold Watches for Eligibility

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

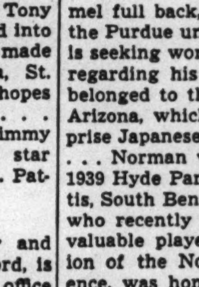
Five Morton High school athletes got a premature gift from Santa Claus yesterday. However, the athletes also turned over prizes they received last summer — gold watches and jackets for playing with the Berwyn post baseball team—from the American Legion. Yesterday they returned these gifts, and in exchange received eligibility for prep competition.



C. W. Whitten.

The five—Ray Sawins, Charles Tourek, Joe Vydra, Anton Demkovich, and Martin Papelka—were suspended three weeks ago along with several other Morton athletes by C. W. Whitten, executive secretary of the Illinois High School association when it was learned they had accepted the illegal awards. They will be able to rejoin Morton teams after the holiday vacation.

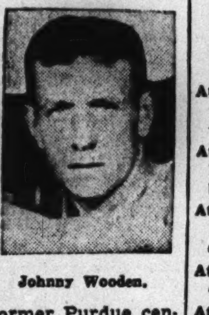
Ray Adams, De Paul academy basketball coach, is a professor when he is not directing the quintet. . . . He teaches history at the academy. . . . Jack Higgins, the only junior to break into Fenwick's starting backfield last fall, has been named captain of the 1942 Friars eleven. . . . Higgins began his prep football career as an end, was shifted to full back by Coach Tony Lawless in 1940, and was pressed into half back duties when injuries made it necessary. . . . Bill Shea, St. Philip's high scoring forward, hopes to attend De Paul university. . . . Shea's basketball hero is Jimmy Cominsky, the Blue Demons' star forward, who is a product of St. Patrick. . . .



Ray Adams.

Jim Laude, athletic director and basketball coach at East Rockford, is employed in the Rockford post office during the holiday mail rush. . . . Harry Palmer, football coach, pushes a truck in a Rockford factory. . . . Rockford's schools have been closed since Nov. 7. . . . Rockford voters approved an increased tax levy at a special election last Tuesday and the city's schools will operate for nine and one-half months next year. . . . Pete Varini, former Joliet Catholic star, recently was elected captain of the 1942 St. Joseph's [Ind.] college football squad. . . . Clarence Elbel is the new swimming coach at South Bend Central, succeeding John Wilmore, who handled the squad since 1930, winning the state and Northern Indiana conference titles six times during that period. . . .

Johnny Wooden, South Bend Central basketball coach, and former guard at Purdue, just can't stay out of lineups. . . . Wooden quit professional basketball two seasons ago, but the lure to play was too much and he now performs in a Municipal league. . . . On the team are two of his assistants, Charles Stewart, former Purdue center, and Walter Kindy. . . . Proviso's Pirates have announced their 1942 football schedule. . . . They will open against Emerson of Gary in Maywood on Sept. 11. . . . The annual game against Oak Park will be on Nov. 7. . . . North Muskegon, Mich., High's class C football team has won the West Michigan conference title for the last five years. . . . Several Chicagoans were members of the Campion academy [Prairie Du Chien, Wis.] football team which was undefeated in nine games. . . .



Johnny Wooden.

Those ever alert members of THE TRIBUNE's sports department were asked during the week to delve into the available record books to find the state prep basketball consecutive victory list, and they reported Paris, Ill., High's juniors from 1936 to 1940 won 80 games before they were beaten by Carbondale, 30 to 23. . . . Dundee holds the senior record with 44 triumphs, accomplished in 1938 and 1939. . . . The boys now are at work attempting to answer two difficult queries: What is the speed of a duck and are there any moose in Sweden? . . . Bob Sellergren, former Oak Park half back, was elected co-captain of the University of Dubuque football team last week. . . . However, Sellergren will not be in the Spartans' line-up next fall, having plans to soon join the army air corps. . . .

Joseph Lauro, brother of Frank Lauro, Leo High's star guard, is a member of the royal Canadian air force and is stationed at Brandon, Manitoba. . . . George Fosga, Crane Tech left guard, recently was awarded the Ideal American boy trophy. . . . Everett Peacock, now at Illinois, was the 1940 winner, and Tony Girolami, now at Notre Dame, was selected in 1938. . . . Frank Zieman, who matriculated at the University of Washington, was chosen in 1939. . . . Mishawaka and Michigan City boast they have the tallest players in the Chicago district. . . . Mishawaka's Dean Trump is 6 feet 5½ inches tall, and Michigan City's Jimmy Kruse is 6 feet 7½ inches. . . . Yep, you guessed it, both are centers.

Frank Lauro.

Francis Meakim, former Mount Carmel full back, who was a member of the Purdue university eleven last fall, is seeking word from the government regarding his brother, Norman, who belonged to the crew assigned to the Arizona, which was sunk in the surprise Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor. . . . Norman was a half back on the 1939 Hyde Park squad. . . . Gene Kertis, South Bend Washington full back, who recently was voted as the most valuable player in the eastern division of the Northern Indiana conference, was honored at a banquet last Thursday. . . . Bob Nussbaumer, Oak Park's football star, has joined the Huskies' track team and plans to participate in several indoor meets this winter.

College basketball in the central states this week hits its annual doldrums, created by the Christmas holidays, with one game scheduled in Chicago and a total of only nine involving Western conference teams—only three of which will be played on home courts of Big Ten universities.

Two of these engagements are slated for Tuesday when Western Michigan plays at Chicago and Notre Dame at Illinois, while the third takes Nebraska to Minnesota on Saturday.

The other five assignments take Big Ten teams to foreign floors, as follows: Ohio State at Creighton and Iowa at Western Michigan on Monday; Indiana at Pittsburgh on Friday; Purdue at Butler, Indiana at George Washington, and Ohio State at Stanford on Saturday.

Long Rest for De Paul.

De Paul of Chicago gets a two weeks' rest before opposing Southern California on Jan. 3 in the second collegiate double header of the season in the Chicago Stadium. Loyola of Chicago meantime will be engaged in five more road games before returning to face Colorado in the Stadium, also on Jan. 3.

Loyola, which opened its holiday tour against Washington U. in St. Louis on Friday, travels westward for two showings this week—at Denver U. tomorrow and at U. C. L. A. on Friday. The Ramblers' game with San Diego State on Saturday has been canceled. The following week, Loyola plays at Santa Clara and California, and at Omaha en route home.

N. U. Idle Until Dec. 31.

Northwestern will remain idle until its annual New Year's eve clash with Notre Dame in Evanston. Wisconsin and Marquette do likewise, awaiting the season's first double header in Milwaukee, also Dec. 31, when the Badgers meet Dartmouth and Marquette opposes Michigan. The next test for Michigan is at Butler on Dec. 29.

Indiana's two eastern games this week mark the Hoosiers' only competition before the Big Ten race starts on Jan. 3 with a complete schedule of five conference games. Ohio State is en route west today for three games. After opposing Creighton tomorrow, the Buckeyes play at Stanford on Saturday and at California on Dec. 29.

Bradley at California.

All members of the Illinois College and Little 19 conferences, excepting Bradley of the I. C. C., will be idle for two weeks. Bradley plays at California on Tuesday and then rushes home to engage Harvard in Peoria on Saturday.

Harvard opens its midwestern invasion at Michigan State on Wednesday, and, after visiting Bradley, will play the following week at Illinois and Notre Dame.

Notre Dame and Illinois meet in Champaign on Tuesday in the 16th game of their basketball rivalry. Illinois leads, nine victories to six. During the last seven seasons, however, Illinois holds only a one game edge, five to four, gained by a 41 to 39 decision in South Bend last winter.

Seven Teams Play Intercity Table Tennis

The leading table tennis players from seven metropolitan centers—New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Detroit, and St. Louis—will battle for the national city title in the Bal Tabarin of the Sherman hotel in the eleventh annual national intercity tournament next Saturday and Sunday.

The New York squad, led by Lou Pagliaro, 1940 and 1941 national singles champion, will defend the title it has won in 9 of the 10 tournaments. Tibor Hazi, the ex-Hungarian star, Sy Sussman, who captured the national boys' crown in 1937, and Dick Miles complete the New York squad.

Chicago, strongest contender, will be led by Billy Halzrichter, western open and Illinois open champion. Also competing for Chicago will be Bob Anderson, 1941 California champion; Dan Kreer, 1939 intercollegiate champion; Eddie Ray, Cook county and Indiana title holder, and Wilson Dumez.

Jimmy McClure, three times world's doubles champion, will lead the Indianapolis team.

Officials for the tournament: referee, Reginald G. Hammond, former officer of the International Table Tennis federation and United States Table Tennis association; head umpire, George J. O'Connell, well-known lawn tennis professional; announcer, Coleman Clark, former world's champion and one of the country's leading authorities on the subject of table tennis.

54 Entered in Indoor Midget Races Tonight

Seven states are represented among the 54 drivers listed for the 100 lap indoor midget auto racing championship tonight in the International amphitheater. Wally Zale and Cowboy O'Rourke of Chicago, injured while competing on downstate tracks early in the summer, will return to competition. Zale, 1940 midwest indoor and outdoor champion, will drive the fast Offenhauser with which he set a new national high by winning 57 feature contests last year.

Ray Richards.

Ray Richards, who won the 100 mile national outdoor championship this year, will also be among the contestants. Other Chicago pilots who will face the starter in the time trials set for 7 p. m. are Ted Duncan, Tony Bettenhausen, Bob Muhlke, Mike O'Halloran, Jimmy Caris, Pete Romcevich, Emil Andres, Al Cummings, Dan Kladis, Warren Erwin, Al Sprang, Byron Fisher, Paul Blokell, and Shorty Sorenson.

Angott Wants to Turn Title Into Cold Cash

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Mike Jacobs' plan to have Sammy Angott defend his brand new, exclusive lightweight championship against Allie Stolz early in February didn't get far today because Sammy has other ideas—chief of which is to build up his bank roll.

The Louisville slugger collected only about $5,000 for punching Lew Jenkins down the trail in Madison Square Garden last night. Now that he's boss, both Sammy and Manager Charley Jones figure the main thing is to look for the spots where the sugar is heaviest rather than to risk the title immediately.

Sammy's In No Hurry.

As a result, after picking up the puny pay check, Manager Jones countered Jacobs' proposal with a suggestion for one or more over weight wars for his dark haired gladiator. He named Ray [Sugar] Robinson, New York Negro knockout specialist; Welterweight Champion Red Cochrane and Fritzie Zivic, ex-147 pound ruler, as opponents he wouldn't mind having his Sammy go to work with. After Angott gets a couple of paydays out of such shindigs, Jones would be willing to "put the title on the line with anybody who'd draw."

The chances of getting either Robinson or Cochrane in the near future looked about as bright as a blackout, however, since both are aiming at welterweight championship affairs before the winter's out. Robinson is slated to tangle with young Kid McCoy of Detroit Jan. 16, and the winner [Robinson is the betting choice] gets a shot at Cochrane's crown in February.

Jenkins Collects $9,000.

While Jacobs mentioned only Stolz as a title opponent for the first undisputed 135 pound champion since Lou Ambers, the word was out that Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia Negro who gave Jenkins a pretty fair cuffing around a few months ago, also was very much in the picture.

Angott stayed in town only long enough to get his purse. Then he headed for his home in Washington, Pa., from where he started his ring career before migrating to Louisville.

Jenkins collected less than $9,000 for blowing his end of the lightweight championship—the New York commission's version—and at the same time wasn't sure just when, if ever, he'd be back in action.

Rest Cure Suggested.

His original manager, Fred Browning of Dallas, told the skinny Sweetwater disappointment to take a few months off and try to regain his old knockout form. "Then," Browning added, "if you feel you're ready to try again, and if you want to, we'll talk it over."

The general opinion was that Fred ought to ask the 11,000 odd customers who saw Lew go thru last night's waltz how they felt about it.

PEORIA TO OPEN GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNEY FEB. 2

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 20 [Special].—The 13th annual Peoria Golden Gloves boxing tournament will be held Feb. 2, 3, and 16. Proceeds will go to the Red Stocking fund, which annually provides cheer for the needy of Peoria. Since the armory has been closed to all nonmilitary usage, the bouts, both preliminaries and championship, will be held in the Majestic theater.

There is another change from the usual procedure. The 1942 tournament will be run off in three nights instead of four. This is possible because many of the amateur boxers in this area are now in the nation's armed forces.

FARM CHRISTMAS MONEY HIGHEST IN LAST 20 YEARS

Packers Boost December Outlay Near 1919 Level.

Christmas spending money on farms this year will be more plentiful than for 20 years, Chicago live stock interests said yesterday. A review of the nation's major markets showed last week's sales of meat animals were above any parallel period since 1931, and that payments by packers were the largest for December since 1919.

Farmers received higher prices per pound than in December of any recent year. Buyers paid about $48,604,000 for the 1,137,000 cattle, hogs, and sheep purchased at 20 principal markets, compared with $30,223,000 paid for 994,000 head during the corresponding week last year.

Part of the steep price gains resulting from America's entry into the war was lost late in the week as vast farm shipments put the markets under the heaviest pressure in years.

The week's average prices were up 50 cents on hogs to $11, unchanged at $12.40 on cattle, and up 40 cents on lambs to $12.20.

HASTEN SWITCH OF INDUSTRY TO WARTIME BASIS

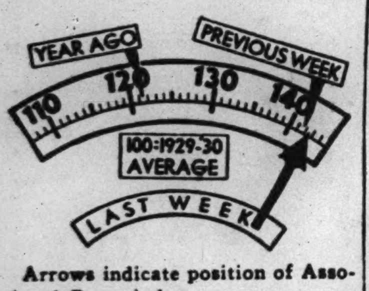
New Pressure Backs Federal Controls.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Industries and government agencies made further progress last week in their efforts to get the nation on a full wartime economic basis. As various federal controls were applied with increased pressure intended to hasten the dovetailing of the countless phases of production and finance into one big program, the pattern began to take shape.

Roughly, it was this:

Output of the basic war commodity—steel—was pushed a little nearer the limit, and the Office of Production Management took priority actions designed to speed creation of new plants and equipment that will add 10 million tons a year to ingot capacity. Most of the mills announced they will keep busy on Christmas day.



Arrows indicate position of Associated Press index.

Drastic Rationing Ahead.

As the government sought to conserve rubber, tin, alloy metals, and other goods for war use, prospects of a drastic rationing of many consumer goods appeared. The OPM let business men know that it is ready to take stern measures, such as the seizure of plants, if necessary, to attain objectives.

The armed forces prepared to pour new military orders into factories, even small ones not heretofore reached. An example of what is coming was the disclosure by Col. Donald Armstrong, deputy chief of the Chicago ordnance district, that the eight state area will be called on to produce 1½ billion dollars worth of ordnance materials alone.

Some industries, in addition to steel making which are geared to the war program, moved faster than in the preceding week, while others, notably automobile manufacturing, slackened in conformance with the government program for curtailing consumer industries.

Bank Loans Increase.

Financial machinery was in the process of adjustment to war needs. Banks reported big gains in business loans. The treasury accelerated its drive to get wage earners and others to buy savings bonds. Banks' excess reserves fell sharply as the banks paid for subscriptions in the recent treasury financing and at the same time refrained from selling government securities, avoiding pressure on the bond market.

Meantime the Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity, based on 1929-'30 as 100 and seasonally adjusted, showed a gain and set a new 1941 high mark. It compared as follows:

	Latest wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago
Steel mill activity	137.7	137.1	129.9
Elec. pwr. prod.	*151.5	149.8	136.9
Car loadings	88.0	89.0	80.1
Composite index	*142.3	141.9	121.5

*New 1941 high.

Railroad freight loadings declined more than the usual seasonal amount. Electric power output, according to latest available figures, was at an all-time record level. Construction contracts were awarded in larger volume than a week earlier, and retail trade, Dun & Bradstreet said, recovered from the war shock and reached the largest volume on record for any corresponding week.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL TO PAY $1,800,000 BACK WAGE BILL

The Illinois Central railroad will distribute $1,800,000 to employés in back pay before Christmas under the recent wage increase awards, officials announced last night. The payment applies to the period Sept. 1 to Nov. 30, increases having been made retroactive to Sept. 1 by the President's fact finding board.

The road estimated the increased rates of pay, which became effective on Dec. 1, will add about $10,500,000 annually to its wage bill.

More than 40,000 checks were written by the Illinois Central to cover the back wages. It is expected that other railroads soon will announce their payments.

CHICAGO STEEL RATE TO REACH HISTORIC LEVEL

The Chicago district's ingot steel production rate will advance tomorrow to 104 per cent of theoretical capacity, an all-time high, from 103.3 per cent last week, mill schedules disclosed yesterday. The four largest producers will operate open hearths on Christmas day.

The only interruption will come when Republic Steel shuts down for eight hours Thursday to install a water line connection. Finishing mills, however, will be inactive.

Normally virtually all steel mills shut down Christmas day, and at least one had planned to this year before outbreak of the war.

Mills Consume Record Iron Ore Tonnage

Cleveland, O., Dec. 20 (AP).—Daily average consumption of Lake Superior iron ore hit an all-time high in November and lower lake supplies of ore were at a record peak on Dec. 1, the Lake Superior Iron Ore association reported today.

Consumption amounted to 6,501,027 gross tons, against the record mark of 6,612,186 tons for October when there was one more working day. However, daily average consumption rose to 216,700 tons, from 213,296 in October. The previous daily peak was 214,917 tons in September.

Furnaces consumed 69,273,701 tons of the raw material in the first 11 months of 1941, compared with 56,253,276 tons a year ago, and it is likely the full year's total will exceed 75 million tons.

Sufficient for Six Months.

Stocks of ore at furnaces were 40,244,516 tons on Dec. 1 and on Lake Erie docks 5,290,117 tons for an aggregate lower lake supply of 45,534,633 tons, highest in history. This is sufficient for over six months' operation at the current rate. Stocks amounted to 43,945,751 on Nov. 1, and a year ago were 41,711,704 tons.

With the addition of a new furnace by Bethlehem Steel corporation at Lackawanna, N. Y., during November, 177 of an available 188 stacks were in blast on Dec. 1, compared with 176 on Nov. 1, and 166 on Dec. 1, 1940.

Record Lake Season.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20 (AP).—The biggest shipping season in Great Lakes history has officially ended. The navy hydrographic office issued its final "notice to mariners" for 1941 and said no more traffic remained to clear thru the Sault Ste. Marie locks.

More than 100 million tons of iron ore, an all-time high, moved thru the locks during the eight month season. The last ore carrier passed Detroit downbound Monday.

Despite the official closing, five vessels of the Nicholson Transit company continued to operate from Detroit to Lake Erie points.

TWO BIG PLANTS TO BOOST OUTPUT OF PLANE FUEL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—Moving to increase America's supplies of superfuel for fighting planes, the petroleum coördination office announced plans today for the establishment of two large plants costing more than 5 million dollars. The announcement said the government was assisting in financing the Cities Service company in building a 100 octane plant "in the middle west." The location was not given.

Stanolind Oil and Gas company, Humble Oil and Refining company, and Humble Pipe Line company were reported to have arranged to invest more than 3 million dollars in the world's largest gas cycling plant in the Katy gas field of Texas, for the production of butanes and other components essential to the manufacture of aviation fuel.

The petroleum office said plant expansions costing up to 150 million dollars either were under construction or ready for a quick start by the various refiners.

Chicago Bank Clearings Mount to 516 Millions

Bank clearings showed a pronounced expansion in Chicago last week as the Christmas shopping season neared its final phase. They totaled $516,200,000, compared with $422,100,000 in the preceding week and $379,600,000 in the corresponding 1940 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported. The report follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 85,500,000	$11,300,000
Tuesday	95,800,000	6,600,000

Priority Job Loss Acute in Illinois Towns

Priorities struck hard blows in Illinois last month, especially in the smaller cities and towns, the state department of labor disclosed yesterday. Employment declines were most severe in metal and machinery plants without large arms orders.

In the metropolitan Chicago area November employment was 1.3 per cent and pay rolls 0.8 per cent above the October levels, but in the 20 larger downstate cities employment declined 1.3 per cent and pay rolls 3.4 per cent. In the smaller cities employment was reduced by an average of 2.3 per cent and pay rolls were 5.4 per cent.

For the state as a whole employment increased 0.5 per cent and pay rolls declined 0.4 per cent.

Exceeds Past Average.

The state-wide change was more favorable than normal, since the average November trend of past years has been a decline of 0.4 per cent in employment and a loss of 1.5 per cent in pay rolls. It was the first month since last January, however, in which both pay rolls and employment haven't increased.

Losses were sharpest in Moline, where four farm equipment companies drastically curtailed operations in preparation for federal orders to cut production 20 per cent. Employment dropped 8.7 per cent and pay rolls 15 per cent.

In Chicago, in contrast to most other cities, the metal and machinery groups showed gains. Other Chicago industries in which gains were reported were transportation equipment, leather and related products, food, beverage, and tobacco.

Divisions Showing Largest Gains.

Largest gains thruout the state were in wholesale and retail trade, in which employment advanced 4.8 per cent and pay rolls 4.2 per cent. Employment declined 0.1 per cent and pay rolls rose 1.1 per cent in manufacturing establishments, while nonmanufacturing groups averaged 2 per cent larger employment and 1.5 per cent higher pay rolls.

The average weekly pay of wage earners in November was $31.52, 40 cents lower than in October.

War Brings Rush of Flag Orders, and Problems, Too

Chicago flag manufacturers said yesterday that orders have been pouring in since America entered the war. But they said the industry has its problems. Women sewing machine operators are hard to find, and cloth is difficult to get under priority regulations, the manufacturers said. The industry was said to be hopeful that it can get a priority rating on the ground that display of the flag boosts morale.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

UTILITY STOCKS.

Utility stocks have been declining in recent weeks and many issues are selling at the lowest prices since 1938. In some instances utility holding company stocks, mainly common issues, are quoted at record low prices.

The market action of these securities reflects in part heavy tax selling which is a more important market factor than in former years. Many investors expect more stringent capital gain and loss provisions in 1942 and are taking whatever tax benefits they can by selling holdings on which they have losses.

Taxes appear to be the primary headache of the utility industry. It is estimated that the electric power division will show a revenue gain of 8 per cent or more in 1941, but after taxes net profit will be about 10 per cent under 1940.

The application of the excess profits tax to earnings before the normal income levy is particularly burdensome to the industry.

As an example, Commonwealth Edison company, which paid no excess profits tax in 1940, provided $3,936,000 for that tax in the first three quarters of this year. Total taxes and operating expenses of the company rose to $80,308,000 in the 1941 period from $71,035,000 the preceding year. Altho operating revenue gained 8 million dollars over 1940, profit decreased to $19,161,000 from $21,074,000 a year ago.

Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, and United Gas Improvement company, a holding company, are others whose net income has been reduced by soaring taxes despite substantial increases in operating revenue. Reduced profits have caused the latter three companies to cut dividend rates.

The utility holding company is suffering both from smaller income because of the reduced income from operating company investments and from the shrinkage in the market value of its investments. United corporation, one of the holding companies whose stock has been declining, owns blocks of common stocks of Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, and United Gas Improvement.

Utility rate structures usually are difficult to adjust to meet higher taxes and operating costs. The integration proceedings under the holding company act are also responsible for the decline of holding company shares.

Soy Beans Rise on Hopes for Higher Ceiling

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Soy beans jumped to within a fraction of the 6 cent advance permitted in one day's trading on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday as word came from Washington that oil and fat price ceilings probably would be jacked up slightly. Profit taking shaved early gains, the market closing 3⅜ to 4¼ cents a bushel higher.

Almost all grains shared in the better feeling that emanated from the bean market. Wheat advanced ⅛ to ⅜ cent a bushel, with contracts for May delivery closing at $1.25⅞. Corn closed ⅛ cent higher. Oats were unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Rye rose ⅜ to 1⅝ cents. Lard prices remained unchanged at the ceiling established by the Office of Price Administration.

Processors Raise Prices.

Back of the advance in soy bean futures were reports from Illinois towns that oil processors were offering to pay farmers 7 to 8 cents a bushel more for their soy beans than they paid on Friday. It was believed that the advance came after Sen. Prentiss Brown [D., Mich.] told the senate that he had been in conference with OPA officials and that he felt it safe to say that the ceiling on cottonseed oil would be lifted to 12¾ cents a pound from the present 11¼ cents.

The bureau of agricultural economics reported that consumption of primary fats and oils this year would approximate 11 billion pounds, compared with 9.7 billions in 1940. It said supplies of fats and oils from domestic sources and probable imports would be sufficient to maintain domestic consumption and exports in 1942 at prevailing levels.

Ample with Pacific Closed.

The bureau said that even if imports of oils from the Pacific areas were shut off entirely supplies would still be ample for 1942. However, under such circumstances, stocks would be reduced considerably and some substitution required.

Grain men said the doubling of prices on Jan. 1 of alcohol made from corn, a step to increase production, probably would not be a market factor altho consumption of corn by the distilling industry might be increased considerably. They said the Commodity Credit corporation had turned over about 12 million bushels of corn to the distillers a month ago without causing a ripple in the market.

PLAN RATIONING OF POWER FOR SEVERAL AREAS

OEM Asserts Supply Is Far Below Need.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 [Special].—Rationing and pooling of electrical power in several parts of the country, including the middle west, will be necessary during the next two years, the Office for Emergency Management warned today. The OEM explained that war production demands are expected to cause serious power shortages in all armament industry areas unless abnormally heavy rainfall relieves the situation in the hydroelectric districts.

Scheduled for rationing programs, according to the OEM, are the southeast, southwest, Pacific coast and certain areas in the midwest. Certain large cities, notably St. Louis and Buffalo, face shortages, it said.

Counts on Power Pooling.

Total national power capacity at the end of 1940 was about 50 million kilowatts, it was estimated. From 1941 thru 1943 that capacity must be increased by 7 millions, OEM declared. It warned that even this expansion was not big enough and "all sorts of devices will have to be resorted to" in order to keep the armament industry going full speed.

"Of these, probably the most effective will be power pooling on a grand scale," the statement said. "This is a procedure whereby the power systems in a large section of the country are hooked together so that power not needed in one part of that section can be sent to another part where it is needed. It was tried out during the power shortage in the southeast in the late fall of 1941 with much success."

POOL PLAN OPPOSED

Plans of OEM for closer interconnections of the nation's utility systems to avert power shortages in certain localities were criticized in Chicago utility circles yesterday. One executive said that extensive interconnection now would run up against the problems of labor and material shortages. Large amounts of copper, aluminum, and steel would be necessary to make the connections. Further, he said, there is a large power loss from transmission lines when power is moved long distances.

A better solution for the power situation, he said, would be to move key industries to those areas where there is no shortage. The fact that Chicago was not mentioned as among the places where a shortage might develop was taken to indicate that there is an adequate supply here for the present. The Chicago power pool is rated as one of the largest and most effective in the world.

'SELL 'EM BEN' TO QUIT STOCK EXCHANGE FIRM

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Bernard E. Smith—"Sell 'Em Ben" to wall street—will relinquish his partnership in the stock exchange firm of Thomson & McKinnon to devote his time to industrial activties, it was learned today.

Smith has paid little attention to brokerage work lately, according to financial quarters, concentrating instead on his interests in airplane, mining and contracting companies.

"Sell 'Em Ben," who [so the story goes] ran a borrowed $100 into $35,000 at the age of 15, earned his reputation, after the 1929 crash. He is 53 years old.

DEFENSE TRAINS FIND FACTORIES FOR ARMS WORK

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—Those three red, white, and blue special trains which toured the nation in an effort to spread war contracts were credited today with uncovering some 11,000 factories whose owners believe they are qualified to help.

Floyd B. Odlum, director of the OPM's contract distribution system, said about 50,000 small business men visited the specials and viewed the exhibits aboard, many of them indicating a desire to "turn out some of the bits and pieces we had on display."

October Air Line Travel 22 Pct. Above Year Ago

Domestic air lines flew 141,265,424 passenger miles in October, 22.33 per cent more than in October, 1940, Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport association, announced yesterday. The 1941 total to Nov. 1 was 1,158,359,962 miles, 30.14 per cent above the like 1940 period.

Stocks Mixed After Week of Price Slumps

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The stock market today finished another declining week with an irregular performance. Altho many issues managed to tack on modest advances during the brief proceedings, recessions were in the majority.

Restraining buyers, brokers said, was the discouraging news from the far east, including heavy fighting in the Philippines, growing fears Hongkong had fallen or would fall to the Japanese, and further difficulties of the British in Malaya. Nazi reverses in Russia and Libya provided some comfort.

The better action of scattered stocks was attributed to the belief the market was "oversold" and that a recovery was due if there was an optimistic turn in international affairs. The business situation provided scant speculative stimulus as widening priorities and rationing in many lines clouded earnings and dividend prospects.

Average Is Unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was unchanged at 36, but showed a net loss of .9 of a point on the week. Tax selling continued a volume motivator. Transfers of 628,550 shares compared with 629,310 a week ago and were the second largest for a Saturday since Dec. 28, 1940.

Gains were held by Bethlehem Steel, Santa Fe, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott, Standard Oil [New Jersey], Westinghouse, General Electric, Eastman Kodak, and General Motors. United States Rubber preferred was an isolated weak spot, losing 5½ at 72½, a new low for the movement.

Mild demand for stocks that may benefit from the mounting armament program gave the market its only average upturn of the week on Monday. Tax offerings gave trends a backward tilt Tuesday, and the Japanese push in the orient knocked prices down to lowest average levels since April, 1938, on Wednesday and Thursday. The retreat was stemmed Friday, but rallies were small.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS.

Advances exceeded declines on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday for the first time in a week in transactions of 29,000 shares. Trading was heaviest for a short Saturday session this year.

The volume leaders, Commonwealth Edison, with 2,100 shares traded, and Consolidated Oil, with 1,400 shares traded, closed unchanged. Of other heavily traded stocks General Motors advanced ¼ and Chicago corporation and Libby, McNeill & Libby recorded fractional declines.

In an unusually busy last half hour Borg-Warner, Consolidated Oil, General Motors, and Marshall Field declined ⅛ from the New York close, while Commonwealth Edison Omnibus corporation and Studebaker advanced ⅛.

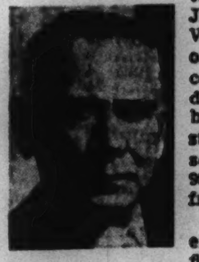
RAILROAD HELD ACCOUNTABLE IN PENNROAD LOSS

Suits Ask Recovery of 95 Millions.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Pennsylvania railroad was held liable today by Federal Judge George A. Welsh for losses of the Pennroad corporation in a decision on a suit by Pennroad stockholders who seek to recover 95 million dollars from the railroad.



Judge G. A. Welsh.

Two stockholder groups, which filed the suit two years ago, charged the losses resulted from investments by the Pennroad corporation of more than 95 millions in several eastern railroads, in a freight forwarding company, and in the railroad's efforts to dominate the railroad situation on the eastern seaboard in the early 1930s.

The suit charged that the Pennroad officers and directors at the time the action was filed used their interlocking positions in the Pennsylvania railroad to invest Pennroad funds. Most of the officers and directors, some still living and some dead, held positions with the railroad.

Judge Orders Audit.

Judge Welsh ordered an audit be made to determine the exact loss. In the only specific finding of loss, Judge Welsh held that the railroad was responsible for upwards of 4 millions in the National Freight Forwarding company which was organized by the Pennroad directors in March, 1929. In addition, he also ruled the railroad liable for all profits made from the freight firm while it was in existence for four years.

The decision exonerated nine officers and directors of Pennroad of personal liability for the losses for two reasons: 1. Altho they made "improvident" investments of Pennroad funds for the benefit of the railroad, they did not profit personally and were innocent of "moral turpitude"; 2. And that recovery against the officers and directors by Pennroad stockholders is barred by the statute of limitations.

Liable for Excess Prices.

Judge Welsh declared he was not holding the railroad liable for the full 95 millions claimed by the stockholders but only for "excess" prices the Pennroad directors paid for the stocks of other railroads.

The exact amount of the loss is not immediately ascertainable, he said, because of conflicting testimony by railroad and financial experts for both sides during the trial which started last Feb. 10 and lasted 79 days.

The testimony, he said, was on the real value of securities bought by the Pennroad and it will be necessary for either the court or a special master to calculate the loss.

One of the suits, filed by Mrs. Grace Stein Weigle of Chicago, charged that nearly the entire $140,285,000 subscribed in Pennroad stock was used for the benefit of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Day by Day on the Farm
By BOB BECKER

Christmas on the Farm.

December 20, 1941.

CHRISTMAS, the gayest and yet the most deeply significant of all holidays, has an extra meaning for farm residents everywhere. The manger . . . shepherds . . . the yule log. These and many other associations of Christmas are directly connected with farms and farm living. They serve to join the first Christmas with everyday life on farms today, for as the men, women, and children prepare for the big day, all about them are many reminders of the humble manger of Bethlehem.

Families on the Wheaton farm now are busy getting ready for the holiday season. The housewives have decided upon their menu for Christmas dinner and are going over their basement supplies of jelly, mincemeat, relishes, canned vegetables, cider, and other delicacies which will be on the holiday table.

The children have made out their Christmas lists for the benefit of Santa Claus and all are excited about the rôles they are to portray in school plays this week. The men go about their regular jobs as tho Christmas was furthest from their thoughts, but they, too, are planning on how they can make the day more enjoyable for their families.

A Bountiful Feast.

One of the farm women tells us her Christmas menu will include roast turkey, mashed potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, bread dressing with oysters, three types of pickles, spiced peaches, apple jelly, cranberry jelly, green beans, baked squash, vegetable salad, apple cider, pear cider, mince pie, and pumpkin pie.

Virtually all of the Christmas dinner accessories will come from her basement shelves, including the relishes, spiced peaches, jellies, vegetables, cider, and mincemeat. The turkey will come from the farm barnyard, and potatoes will be brought up from the cellar. About the only items she will have to buy will be oysters and cranberries.

Count on Santa Claus.

One nine-year-old girl who lives on the farm showed us the list of gifts which she has submitted to Santa Claus. There were 16 items on it, but she decided it would be advisable to include everything she would like and let generous old St. Nick choose those he thinks she should have and she won't be disappointed if she doesn't get all the gifts on her list.

All of the farm children have been invited to a Christmas party in one of the farm homes Christmas eve. Santa Claus has promised to make an advance appearance to give each boy and girl a toy, an article of clothing, and a stocking full of Christmas candy and fruit.

All of the farm residents look forward to a happy holiday season and hope that the readers of this column, wherever they may be, may share in the joys of Christmas season.

Give Courtesy for Christmas and Here Are 12 Suggestions

BY HAL FOUST.

Six suggestions for pedestrians and the same number for motorists are published by the National Safety council as part of a "Give Courtesy for Christmas" campaign. Traffic fatalities reach the year's peak during the holidays when darkness comes early, shoppers are numerous, and social festivities increase drinking.

The pointers are as follows:

For Pedestrians.

1. You expect the driver to cross streets on the green light only. Show him the same courtesy.
2. Don't taunt the driver by deliberately loafing across the street after the light has changed against you.
3. Cross at intersections only. When you pop out from behind a parked car, you risk your own life and take 10 years off the driver's.
4. On rural highways walk on the left side, facing traffic, and step off the pavement when a car approaches.
5. Don't load your arms with so many Christmas bundles that you can't see, and then expect the driver to look out for you.
6. Stand on the sidewalk, not in the street, while waiting for a green light.

For Drivers.

1. Stay in line. Don't bull your way thru traffic by squeezing in and out.
2. Don't sneak thru intersections on the yellow light.
3. Dim your lights when meeting cars at night.
4. Give pedestrians a chance to reach the curb when they are marooned in the street by a changing light.
5. Don't block pedestrian crosswalks. And remember—pedestrians have the right of way when you're making a turn.
6. Signal your intentions to the driver behind, and get in the proper lane before turning.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

DEADLY SAFETY ISLANDS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—I am referring only to the most dangerous and deadliest killer in the city, the death trap street car islands. If any person is in doubt of these traps, drive down State street south to 103d street and north to the loop and see how many of them have been marred. Those that are marred, you can be sure have taken an innocent life or more.

Some of the lights are missing. Where there should be two, one is removed and an automobile was probably wrecked besides. They have never been replaced and you can leave it to the street car company to take their time in replacing it. The lights are so smudged with street dirt and scum that a person driving at night can hardly see them flicker at 25 feet away and most of these accidents do occur at night, and I say they are unavoidable due to these menaces. If a man gets caught in the rails on a wet day, you can be sure an accident will follow trying to get off of them and a death trap island will do the damage.

Only Saturday night accidents occurred that were fatal due to these traps; one on Western avenue, killing two young men, and one on State street, injuring an innocent man going to work, which, in the end, will probably be a fatal accident.

The city calls them safe. I don't. I think they have been asleep on the job. I firmly believe that these death trap islands should be removed permanently and make this a safe city.

H. F. OKLESHEN.

WRONG PARKERS.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Any day on my way downtown I notice on our main streets more and more double parking, also a lot of angle parking which forces the traffic to the middle of the street. Now much of this wrong parking is absolutely unnecessary as very often I see it only a few feet from a space where the car would be out of the way of the traffic, but these unthinking, not to say selfish, drivers prefer to stop anywhere, causing not only inconvenience to others but accidents which could be avoided by parking only a few feet further.

The angle parkers include the laundry drivers loading or unloading. Why can't they park parallel with the sidewalk even if it is not quite as easy, just a matter of making a few more steps. They should not be permitted to block the traffic as they do. In fact no one should have that privilege.

The city spends millions of dollars to widen streets to no avail to the general driving public. Why not have the police make a drive against these traffic violators?

M. D.

ANOTHER "DEATH CORNER."

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Just how many accidents are required before any attempt is made to put a stop light on a busy and dangerous intersection? I'm referring to the intersection of Burr-Oak and South Halsted street. It is generally known as "death corner," hardly a week goes by that there aren't a few accidents, and I've also been informed that a few people have been killed by automobile accidents on this busy corner. Don't you think it's about time a stop and go light is installed?

S. R. CAROL.

"I GOTTA DRAG."

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Isn't it about time that our tin horn arrogant politicians obeyed the traffic laws of Chicago? I am referring to the arrogant: I-got-a-drag, me-first-the-devil-take-the-rest idiot, driving a Cadillac with a low number license today between 3:30 and 4 p. m., northbound on La Salle street. He reluctantly stopped for the red light signals along the street, altho always well across the pedestrian cross walk. But he evidently got tired of being just another automobile driver, and so turned left over the red light at Eugenie and La Salle, in the face of fast moving, on coming southbound traffic from Clark street.

If a plain private citizen, who helps pay this pompous idiot's salary, had hit him, I haven't the slightest doubt, that "I gotta drag" would have immediately pulled out his little tin badge, and raised particular hell with the private citizen. After all, who is a private citizen, compared to jackasses in office. Politicians from the highest to the lowest give me a plain old-fashioned bellyache. Gov. Green should abolish all gotta drag licenses.

FLORENCE G. BRUCKNER.

FAVORS 30 M. P. H. TOP.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—In the interest of national defense, I believe this would be an excellent time for you to sponsor a movement for automobile drivers to refrain from going over 30 miles per hour.

If the public can be educated to this, it will save tires, gas and oil. When a car is driven at this rate of speed instead of a higher one, the car owner will save ⅓ on these items, and every one knows that a person driving fast does not reach his destination very much sooner than the one driving at a moderate rate of speed.

All of the above articles are vital to our national defense program and they must be conserved to the utmost.

If the American public will adopt this policy in driving, it will eliminate a great number of accidents and enable us to "speed up" our defense program. Also, by driving sanely, it will reduce the wear and tear on the owner's automobile, which, under the present conditions, he will have to keep for a much longer time than he has in the past.

P. FELDMAN.

JINGLE BELLS [STREETCAR].

Chicago, Dec. 17.—The Chicago Surface Lines, as a public utility, operates with the forbearance of public good will. The motormen, in a common nuisance practice, destroy this good will. They hammer their bells at automobile drivers who can't move due to signals or congestion.

FRANCIS SANFORD.

PLEASE KEEP LOOKING.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 10.—Can't you make it a little easier for your fans to find your Sunday automobile section? It's a weekly puzzle for me, and the index doesn't help. Sometimes I never find it.

G. R.

HORNS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—New York police enforce laws against unnecessary horn blowing. Why can't the Chicago police do as well? Get after them.

S. WILLIAM DAVIS.

Dealers Argue Against Production Cut.

BY HAL FOUST.

"Automobiles are not silk stockings." This is the title of a pamphlet issued last week by the National Automobile Dealers association, maintaining that the motor car is a necessity, not a luxury, and that, as such, should not be abandoned for the period of the war. Production of passenger automobiles for civilian use has been sharply curtailed to conserve materials, equipment and labor needed to produce weapons.

The pamphlet sets forth that every one of the 27 million owners of private automobiles in the United States uses his car, at least in part, for necessary driving. A reduction in the number of new machines available for replacements seems to be one of the many sacrifices that the public must make to win the war.

The dealers' association contends that a majority of the automobile owners cannot do without their cars, repairs and service. Its statement of "necessity uses" covers seven points as follows:

1. [Largest transit service.] The necessity driving of the nation by motor car is 274 million passenger miles annually. This is approximately 3½ times the passenger mileage of all other types of transportation.

2. [On farms.] The 57,245,753 farmers of the United States, with the exception of a few horse and buggy and bus line patrons, are solely dependent on automobiles for transportation. They own 38% of all the passenger automobiles in the nation. The average age of these farmer-owned cars is seven years. Replacements on farms during the next few years should be large. Otherwise, rural transit will suffer greatly.

3. [In small towns.] 12,678,823 persons who reside in 2,320 cities that do not have mass transportation facilities also are dependent on the automobile exclusively for their rides.

4. [City uses.] Six out of every 10 cars owned in the cities are usually driven to and from work.

5. [Defense plants.] Many new defense plants are being built in remote sections which have no public transportation. Millions of defense workers must depend on automobiles for transit.

6. [Suburban uses.] Believing that motor car transportation always would be available, thousands of persons have bought homes in recent years away from electric railway and bus lines. The 1940 census shows that in 92 of the largest cities of the country since 1930, the unincorporated surrounding areas increased almost five times as rapidly as the population within the city limits. These persons must have automobiles.

7. [In the army.] The necessity uses of the motor car are strikingly illustrated by U. S. army figures. A year ago the army possessed 29,867 motor vehicles. Today it has 153,000. The current program calls for 262,950 by next year.

News and Views

A thought for the last minute Christmas shopper: Why not buy something for your friend's car? D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager of Pontiac, says that many of the accessories now in dealer stocks will not be replaced until the emergency ends. Others will be available only at higher prices. Radios, heaters, and seat covers have been popular as Christmas gifts. This year, with whitewall tires out, a whitewall disc which gives the appearance of the luxury tire is reported popular as a gift.

For its services to members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the West Side Buick company has been presented with a flag by Mrs. Kathryn Cameron of the Emma Little Morton Tent, No. 80, Daughters of Union Veterans of the War of 1861-'65. Mrs. Cameron presented the flag in memory of her father, who was a member of the 2d regiment, New York heavy artillery.

Chevrolet reports that tests made by the American Automobile association on the Pikes Peak highway show that a truck equipped with a booster engine was able to travel at greater speed and at the same time cut down fuel consumption. The booster engine, which is installed in the regular truck chassis back of the cab, cuts in automatically whenever grade and load conditions impose too heavy a strain on the truck's conventional engine.

George H. Pratt, general sales manager of the Hudson Motor Car company, Detroit, during a recent sales conference in Chicago, reported that sales of new cars have been increasing steadily in recent weeks. New car sales, he explained, have been benefited by a brisk used car demand.

F. H. Akers, vice president and director of sales of the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation, says that the recognition of the vital part being taken by motor trucks in military and civilian transportation marks a real milestone in the history of the country's trucking industry. He adds that the service that the motor truck was able to perform in 1917 awakened the world to the possibilities the truck had in serving the nation. Then came the perfection of pneumatic tires for trucks which instantly increased the usefulness of these vehicles.

Engines of the new Chrylers are equipped with thermostatic controls which prevent water from the engine entering and flowing thru the radiator until the engine has reached its proper operating temperature. This device assists in a quick warmup.

HO! FOR WINTER

By LLOYD WENDT

FOR FUN, HEALTH, and the zest for work the nation needs, get out into the open air this winter. Whether you zip down a hillside on your skis, flash across an ice pond in your neighborhood park, or hike the gleaming trails of the forest preserves or the north woods, you'll find winter the most exhilarating of all times to be out of doors. And the vast and diverse areas of Chicagoland provide winter recreation for every taste and every range of purse.

Beginning at home, there are no fewer than 200 ice skating ponds and rinks and scores of ski runs and toboggan and sled slides in Chicago and the suburbs. Many are reached by public transportation, and equipment is reasonable in cost. The Chicago park district alone has 108 rinks—36 south, 40 north, 31 west, and one for the first time in Grant park, where loop workers can get in some skating during lunch hour!

The Chicago city park division has 39 rinks, widely scattered; the Cook county forest preserves rim the city and suburbs with 14 skating areas and 75 miles of available rivers and streams, and in addition there are numerous rinks maintained by suburban communities, and the facilities of Wolf lake to the south and Skokie lagoons to the north. Most of the regularly maintained rinks have space set off for ice hockey, and iceboat fans can work out on Wolf lake or Lake Geneva.

Those fond of skiing, but not sufficiently advanced for the big runs at Cary and Ogden dunes, will find thrills aplenty on the Riis park run, Fullerton and Meade avenues, or the junior jump in Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue. In Palos Park and other forest preserve areas are countless hills for skiing fans to practice their slaloms, christiani, and telemarks and to engage in cross-country runs.

Remember the little red sled you took to the hills as a child? Boys and girls, and adults, too, still love sliding, and for them the park district has a slide at almost every ice rink, and the forest preserve hills are calling. For those who want the superior excitement of tobogganing there is the big Swallow Cliff winter sports area of the forest preserves (state route 83, just west of La Grange road), with six big slides, 365 feet long, 100-foot drop. In addition the forest preserves have three junior slides, and there are 16 slides in the various city parks.

If, having tried your ski legs or cut a nice figure X aboard your skates, you yearn for the greater advantages of higher hills, wider ponds, and keener cold, you can dash to any one of a hundred spots in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, or Indiana for a day, a week-end, or a winter vacation. You can drive, for the roads are usually kept open, or take the winter sports excursions offered by the railroads. In Wisconsin there is Wausau, with its famous Rib mountain, boasting the longest ski tow in the nation, or nearer Slinger or Oconomowoc, or the entire Land o' Lakes region. In Michigan there are Ironwood, Marquette, Ishpeming, Cadillac, and scores of other places. Indiana offers its famous state parks.

Wherever you are thruout Chicagoland you'll find, if you listen, that the call of the open is ringing just outside.

Lana Jelke Has One—Plus Lively Set of Hobbies

By MARTHA MURPHY

DEBUTANTE MARY LOUANNA JELKE is just like any other 18-year-old girl. She has the same passion for collecting phonograph records and perfumes, the same addiction to new slang and a clever phrase, the same love for pretty clothes and exciting parties.

Yet few 18-year-old-girls would turn down a chance to trade places (at least for this year) with Miss Jelke, who is called Lana by her family and friends. Daughter of the John F. Jelkes of Lake Forest, she made her debut last summer at a formal tea at home and a pan-American dinner dance last fall at the Onwentsia club. For this year at least most of her time is spent at luncheons, teas, and dances, and choosing gowns to wear to these functions.

• • •

As the only daughter in a family of four children, Miss Lana has for her coming out year a wardrobe few movie stars could equal. Her closets hold 12 "good" evening dresses, 3 formal afternoon frocks, at least 10 soft wools, 3 good riding habits and "a few to flop around in," 2 ski suits, and 3 skating costumes.

She has 3 fur coats, a fur-trimmed cloth coat, several sports coats, 10 house coats, robes, and bed jackets; 12 new winter hats, 12 pairs of everyday shoes—1 pair of black suede with interchangeable mink, silver fox, and black Persian lamb bows; 5 or 6 pairs of evening slippers, 3 pieces of real jewelry, and drawers full of gloves, bags, compacts, cigaret cases, and costume jewelry.

Tall, dark, and olive-skinned, Miss Lana is as exotic and sophisticated as the gold hoop earrings she affects. No wonder, then, that a cherry red slipper satin evening gown and a red and black afternoon frock are her favorite costumes.

Most of Miss Lana's evening gowns are bouffant creations of tulle and flowers—but not at all what a sub-deb would term "sweet, simple, and girlish," since they all have a decided sophistication in their décolletage.

"I can hardly wait till next year to get out of these floppy things," Miss Lana says, casting withering glances at a pile of spun sugar gowns.

Perhaps the most exquisite are her tea frock and the dress which she wore to her dinner-dance. The tea frock is a drop-shoulder style of white net and lace over pale blue taffeta, and the ball gown a froth of grayed pink tulle with bands of self ruching streaming from the waist to the hem.

Another which would make any girl's mouth water is tier after tier of blue tulle ruffles topped with a tight bodice on which pink and blue feather birds are tacked. Almost all of Miss Lana's evening gowns—the pink slipper satin whose black velvet bodice streams down into the skirt in petals, the sequin-studded white net, the gold tulle, and the silver and white taffeta gown which she modeled in the St. Luke's fashion show and wore to the Baltimore Bachelors' cotillion—have the same molded bodice, narrow shoulder straps, and low neckline.

• • •

Only two pairs of her evening slippers are "fit to wear."

"They're old roués—been worn dozens of times. I can't afford to spoil my fun by breaking in a new pair of shoes at a party," she says.

The most delicate of her slippers are of fine plastic, twisted and woven to look like seed pearls. "Those cut my feet—they don't give," she says. Their soles show only one or two wearings.

Two of her three fur coats—the mink and the silver fox jacket—double as evening wraps. She also has a black velvet wrap which hasn't had much use since her family gave her the fox jacket as a combined debut and graduation from the Greenwood school gift. The mink was remade from one of her mother's.

The third fur coat, an Australian opossum jacket banded and buttoned in gray wool, tops a plaited gray wool skirt, but sees action also as a topper for her sports clothes. "I don't have time for sports this year," Miss Lana says. Her tailored frocks are worn mornings "around the house."

• • •

Only two of the 12 hats perched on individual stands on her shelves are tailored, and they're "odious," she thinks. The others are fur or feather trimmed and of rather extreme style. One of silver fox swoops low between the rolls of her pompadour, and its black jersey scarf wraps tightly around her throat. Another of cherry red velvet is banded in mink and caught at the front with two garnet pins.

A mirror dressing table hung with silver flounces stretches across one wall of her blue and silver room. Of the 21 perfumes and colognes on one corner, Shalimar, an exotic oriental scent, is the "love of her life."

• • •

Other "loves of her life" are the extension telephone just installed by her bed, Schopenhauer, the dachshund puppy she brought back from New York, and her real jewels. She has a diamond bracelet her grandmother left her as an 18th birthday gift, a strand of pearls, and a star sapphire and diamond finger ring purchased with the birthday money her grandmother left her.

She collects earrings as assiduously as the antique ruby glass which fills a tier of shelves behind her door. Brahms is "simply divine," but she has one of Carmen Miranda's phonograph albums, too.

Currently Miss Lana's reading Proust's "Remembrance of Things Past" and is a bit puzzled by it; "but then Gypsy Rose Lee was, too," she says. She's read Gypsy Rose's "G-String Murders" and thinks it's a "howl."

Two Paintings for Christmas Time

Two paintings especially appropriate at Christmas time are reproduced in their original colors on page one of today's Picture Section. They are Lucas van Leyden's "Adoration of the Magi" and Paul Strayer's "Christmas Cheer for Fort Dearborn."

AMONG the numerous paintings of the centuries that depict the three wise men before the Christ Child is Lucas van Leyden's noble masterpiece, which is in the Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson collection at the Art Institute of Chicago.

This painting was executed by the gifted Dutch artist in 1510 when he was only 16 years old.

Of the cycle of incidents in the life of the Savior one of the most popular thruout the history of Christian art has been the adoration of the magi, the representation of Melchior of Persia, Gaspar of India, and Balthasar of Arabia bringing their gifts of gold and myrrh and frankincense to honor the newborn King. In the renaissance the processions of the magi in the paintings and also in religious dramas became displays of richness and elegance. The kings wear jeweled crowns and ermine, silk, and velvet robes. The simple gifts become elaborate coffers, chalices, and masterpieces of the goldsmith's art. It was not uncommon in the late middle ages and the renaissance, as in this painting by Lucas van Leyden, to represent the third of the magi as a Moor from Ethiopia, suggesting that all races unite in the adoration of Christ.

Lucas van Leyden, who was born in 1494 and died in 1533, was an engraver as well as a painter. One of his most famous plates, the "Ecce Homo," was produced when he was only 15 years old.

Lucas van Leyden's "Adoration of the Magi" will be described in a "Great Artists" series broadcast over W-G-N at 2:15 p. m. Tuesday, Dec. 22.

The original painting "Christmas Cheer for Fort Dearborn," by Paul Strayer, is in possession of the Chicago Historical society. It shows the first Fort Dearborn by moonlight on Christmas eve, 1803, with pioneers, soldiers, and children bringing in a Christmas tree for the fort's celebration and wild game for the holiday feast.

The artist, a native Chicagoan and a resident of River Forest, is well known for his numerous historical paintings and his reproductions of deep sea square-rigged sailing ships. For this picture of the fort he collected considerable data as to its exact location and its appearance, and he is certain that the stockade and blockhouse as shown are properly oriented in relation to the river and the lake. He had for a model for the work the Historical society's Fort Dearborn model by the sculptor Vandenbergen. Moreover, the figures in the painting, which are shown moving over the snow-covered ice of the Chicago river, are correctly attired, since Mr. Strayer made a thoro study of the costumes of that early day.

Mr. Strayer obtained his academic training in art at the Art Institute of Chicago. Altho he never studied directly under the late Howard Pyle, foremost among American illustrators, he was fortunate in acquiring the benefits of that famous artist's criticisms. He believes that Pyle's work probably has influenced him more than that of any other artist.

PERFECT POEMS

This is another poem selected from "Fifty Perfect Poems," collected and edited by Rossiter Johnson and Charles A. Dana.

THE LOTOS-EATERS

By ALFRED TENNYSON

(Last week in this section was printed the first part of this poem, telling of the arrival of the mariners at the land of the lotos-eaters. They have tasted the lotos leaves and know they will never depart.)

CHORIC SONG

I.

There is sweet music here that softer falls
Than petals from blown roses on the grass,
Or night-dews on still waters between walls
Of shadowy granite, in a gleaming pass;
Music that gentlier on the spirit lies,
Than tired eyelids upon tired eyes;
Music that brings sweet sleep down from the blissful skies.
Here are cool mosses deep,
And through the moss the ivies creep,
And in the stream the long-leaved flowers weep,
And from the craggy ledge the poppy hangs in sleep.

II.

Why are we weighed upon with heaviness,
And utterly consumed with sharp distress,
While all things else have rest from weariness?
All things have rest: why should we toil alone,
We only toil, who are the first of things,
And make perpetual moan,
Still from one sorrow to another thrown:
Nor ever fold our wings,
And cease from wanderings,
Nor steep our brows in slumber's holy balm;
Nor hearken what the inner spirit sings,
"There is no joy but calm!"
Why should we only toil, the roof and crown of things?

III.

Lo! in the middle of the wood,
The folded leaf is wooed from out the bud
With winds upon the branch, and there
Grows green and broad, and takes no care,
Sun-steeped at noon, and in the moon
Nightly dew-fed; and turning yellow
Falls, and floats adown the air.
Lo! sweetened with the summer light,
The full-juiced apple, waxing over-mellow,
Drops in a silent autumn night.
All of its allotted length of days,
The flower ripens in its place,
Ripens and fades, and falls and hath no toil,
Fast-rooted in the fruitful soil.

IV.

Hateful is the dark-blue sky,
Vaulted o'er the dark-blue sea.
Death is the end of life; ah, why Should life all labor be?
Let us alone. Time driveth onward fast,
And in a little while our lips are dumb.
Let us alone. What is it that will last?
All things are taken from us, and become Portions and parcels of the dreadful past.
Let us alone. What pleasure can we have To war with evil? Is there any peace
In ever climbing up the climbing wave?
All things have rest, and ripen toward the grave
In silence; ripen, fall, and cease:
Give us long rest or death, dark death or dreamful ease.

V.

How sweet it were, hearing the downward stream,
With half-shut eyes ever to seem
Falling asleep in a half-dream!
To dream and dream, like yonder amber light,
Which will not leave the myrrh-bush on the height;
To hear each other's whispered speech;
Eating the lotos day by day,
To watch the crisping ripples on the beach,
And tender curving lines of creamy spray;
To lend our hearts and spirits wholly
To the influence of mild-minded melancholy;
To muse and brood and live again in memory,
With those old faces of our infancy
Heaped over with a mound of grass,
Two handfuls of white dust, shut in an urn of brass!

VI.

Dear is the memory of our wedded lives,
And dear the last embraces of our wives
And their warm tears: but all hath suffered change:
For surely now our household hearths are cold:
Our sons inherit us: our looks are strange:
And we should come like ghosts to trouble joy.

VII.

VIII.

In the hollow Lotos-land to live and lie reclined
[illegible]

Like a tale of little meaning

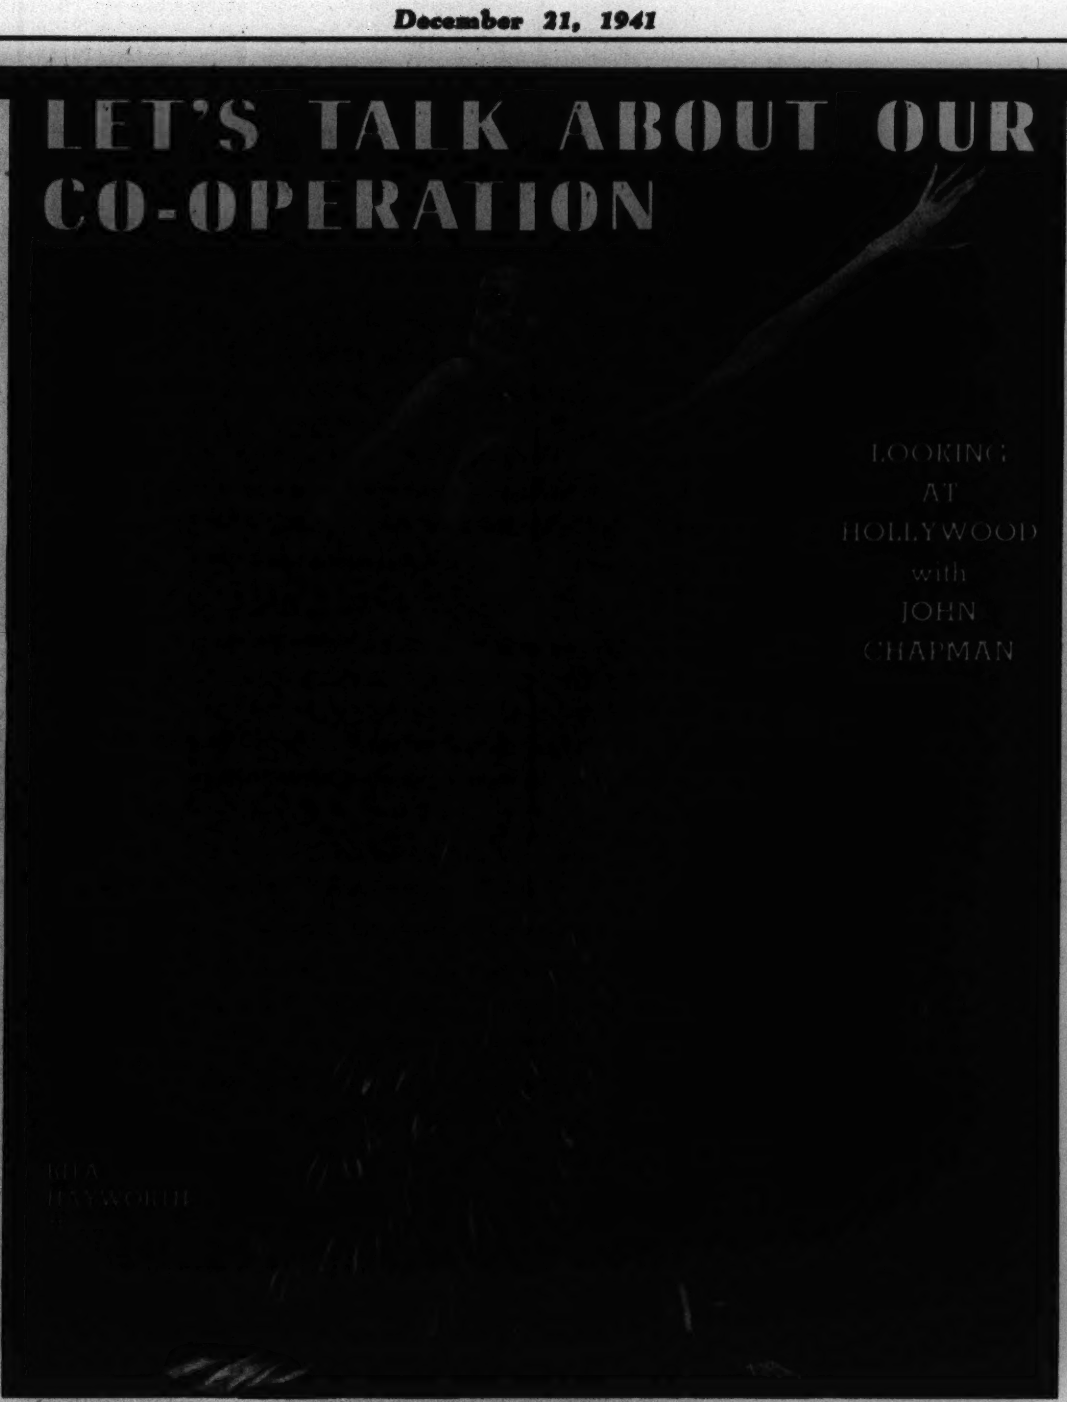
LET'S TALK ABOUT OUR CO-OPERATION

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD with JOHN CHAPMAN



Hollywood.

AT THEIR annual Christmas party the members of the Hollywood Women's Press club will announce the results of a poll that will bring joy to some players, pain to others. The gals will tell what stars they consider "most coöperative" and which ones are "least coöperative."

It has been reported in the trade press that candidates for the grand prize are Bette Davis, Ann Sheridan, Rita Hayworth, Clark Gable, Bob Hope, and Bob Taylor, and that the ones lined up for the booby prize are Jean Arthur, Ginger Rogers, Marlene Dietrich, Fred Astaire, Ronald Colman, and Bing Crosby.

This makes for a lot of chatter, which it was intended to do. The battle between reporters and photogs on the one hand and stars on the other has gone on ever since personalities first emerged from the flickering fog of early screen dramas.

The argument for the reporters is this: "We make these people. We plug them, we chatter about them. We rack our brains to make interesting copy out of many who are hopeless clucks. If it weren't for us there wouldn't be any stars, and they darn well better cooperate. If they don't, the heck with 'em. We'll brush them off—and see how fast they hit the skids."

Basically it's a pretty sound argument—but there are some chinks in it. Journalists have helped build many a star, like the 1941 upshooters, Rita Hayworth and Veronica Lake; but in the last analysis the movie customer's vote is what counts. From the beginning fans have been devoted to some stars who are regarded as poison by the press. One of the candidates for this year's Christmas honors, Marlene Dietrich, has almost always been regarded as "uncoöperative"—but Marlene has had a long and glittering career just the same. Her ups and downs have come from the fans, not the reporters; a series of bad pictures washes her up, and a good one like "Destry Rides Again" sets her going afresh. On the other hand, reportorial unfriendliness is conceded to have been the main factor in the collapse of Nancy Carroll's career.

FRED ASTAIRE . . . gentle.

ANN SHERIDAN . . . amiable.

• • •

The trouble with a "least cooperative" poll is that the poor actor doesn't get a chance to answer back. The reporter can snarl the word "Ham!" and the star has to take it.

We journalists have managed to conceal from the public the fact that in our trade is a streak of ham as wide as in the acting profession; that among us are mountains of conceit and just as much spoiled-childishness as there are in any other sample group of human beings. Suppose the screen actors' guild decided to call a vote on the least coöperative correspondent and the most high-handed photographer. We'd chitter like squirrels!

Let's look at some of the Women's Press club's least coöperative candidates. Jean Arthur, for instance. At the razzle-dazzle opening of "Wuthering Heights" a group of photographers deliberately turned their backs when she approached—as direct an insult as any actor ever got, and everybody said it was well deserved. This year, on the train returning from the opening of "Arizona" in Tucson, it was a matter for astonishment when Miss Arthur received in her compartment the correspondents who were aboard and chatted most pleasantly.

Miss Arthur is interview-shy. Of reporters she has said:

"I don't understand them and they don't understand me."

All actors are supposed to be extroverts, but a lot of them aren't; Miss Arthur is an introvert. She's terrified of interviews for two reasons: An intelligent girl, she wants to help all she can, and she worries because maybe she isn't contributing anything that makes any sense; and she also worries that she may be made to sound like a silly chump. I've talked with Jean Arthur, like her and have not had the slightest trouble. I'm convinced that her attitude is not one of ill will, but an almost unconquerable sensitiveness.

Ginger Rogers? A girl with a mind of her own and noted for her independence in many other departments besides public relations. When he finished "Tom, Dick and Harry" Director Garson Kanin told me: "I love Ginger. She's a swell girl and a swell actress—but I hope I never have to make another picture with her."

Well, so what? Ginger isn't a hail-fellow-well-met—and she wouldn't be Ginger if she were. She wouldn't be half so interesting, maybe. As Baird Leonard used to say, it takes all kinds of people to make a world.

Fred Astaire? He's shy, too, and gentle. In a town where everybody first-names everybody else Mr. Astaire says "Mister" to correspondents he has known a long time. Crosby? He's just the way he is in pictures and on the radio—so relaxed he doesn't even bother to shrug things off; just lets 'em lie. He is just as what-the-hell when he is playing gin rummy or bridge with cronies at the Lakeside Golf club as he is elsewhere, and he could be called an uncoöperative card player.

• • •

The fame and riches of stardom have cracked many a mind, have created too many small-time Napoleons and Catherine the Greats. A kick in the pants would help many a cruelly ambitious, corpse-vaulting, throat-slitting, and pigeon-minded star attain a better sense of proportion.

But there often is something to the actor's side of the story about press relations. Many a player quivers in terror when an interviewer poises a pencil, thinking, "O, good Lord, what am I going to be made to say now?" Pat O'Brien once was asked if he slept with his makeup on. From the beginning to the end of his career any player must answer many times as pleasantly as possible these questions: "What is your attitude toward love?" "Do you enjoy your screen kisses?"

When Marie Dressler was hopelessly ill a correspondent tried to get from her a message which could be printed after her death—an exclusive posthumous communication. When sound came in and the news ran around the world that "Garbo talks!" a writer wanted to conduct an investigation into the theory that Garbo (all-time prize-winner as least coöperative) was actually a deaf-mute and the talking stuff was laboratory trickery. Another journalistic Hawkshaw wanted to submit Mickey Rooney to tests to discover if he really was an ancient midget.

JEAN ARTHUR . . . shy.

CLARK GABLE . . . unspoiled.

The ones who suffer most from least coöperative stars are the studio press agents, and if they ever held a vote their list would be long and surprising. They are the go-betweens who have to set up the interviews and picture stunts. The memoirs of any of them would be a tale of torture and indignity. Sometimes, but not often, they can have revenge.

In the old days of D. W. Griffith at Mamaroneck, N. Y., Lillian Gish had earned the enmity of Griffith's press agent. This chap noticed that, altho it was now around 1924 and women were becoming emancipated, Miss Gish's legs had never been photographed above the ankles. Her skirts continued long. The fiendish press agent bet a New York Journal man $100 that he couldn't get a shot of Lillian's limbs. Well, the fellow took a week off and waylaid the star at every turn. He even disguised himself as a woman and tried to sneak a shot of her bathing on the beach near the studio—but she managed to foil him every time. Miss Gish's legs were thin, and it was a rule of the studio that they never be pictured.

Simone Simon was a problem for press agents. She repeatedly tried to embarrass one chap by arriving two or three hours late for appointments. Marlene Dietrich has tried to get publicity men and others fired because they caused displeasure. Ronald Colman is known for being curt and for denying statements. The list is long. It includes one imperious blonde who was noted for giving the wretches of the press the brush. Once she astonished a reporter by giving him 15 minutes of her time, and after that he thought maybe she wasn't so bad after all. He never knew that this girl had determined to give him 60 seconds—but every time she tried to back away she was firmly held in place by a press agent who had an iron grip on her elbow.

• • •

Much longer, happily, is the list of Davises, Sheridans, Gables, and Hopes. Hollywood is full of people who either know by instinct or have learned the art of winning friends and influencing people. They are naturally coöperative, not only with the press but also with everybody else. Clark Gable is instinctively a good guy and unspoiled, as anybody could tell in two minutes of looking at him on the screen. People like Clark coöperate with an audience.

Ann Sheridan was in the beginning a creature of publicity; fortunately for her and for us, the lightning struck in the right place. It struck a level-headed, good-natured girl whose amiable qualities come thru on the screen. The debt Miss Sheridan owes the press is not as large as the debt the press owes Ann for providing somebody who is pleasant and interesting to write about and fun to visit and handsome to photograph.

Miss Davis is another reporters' darling. She says the reporters help her do her work and she'll help them do theirs. When "All This and Heaven, Too" was being made, Charles Boyer demanded that the set be closed to everybody, including the press. Miss Davis offered no objection, figuring that this was Boyer's business. But she let it be known that any time anybody wanted to see her she'd leave the stage for a meeting. She is gifted in trying to help writers figure out new angles.

Pinning "least coöperative" labels on stars may be unjust and a little cruel in some cases, because inborn timidity and sensitiveness or frail health or natural unhappiness can be mistaken for arrogance and selfishness. But it's a pretty good idea in the long run, because it may offer a helpful lesson here and there. You'll find that any most coöperative vote will follow closely the list of stars most valuable at the box office. You don't make friends with people you don't like. It ain't human.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1835.

J. Brooks

JOHN BROOKS, patriot and soldier, was born in the year 1752 in a part of Medford, Mass., now within the bounds of Winchester. At the age of 14 he began reading medicine in the office of Dr. Simon Tufts, a local physician, and in 1773 he established himself in the practice of medicine in the nearby town of Reading.

As the captain of Reading's company of Minute Men he hastened to Concord on April 19, 1775, and joined in the battle and in the pursuit of the British. Soon after this he was promoted to major in the state militia and as such took part in the battle of Bunker Hill. He was received into the continental army as a major at the beginning of 1776, and after seeing action on Long Island and at the battle of White Plains he was elevated to lieutenant colonel of the 8th Massachusetts line regiment, which he led in the taking of Breyman's fort on Bemis heights, Oct. 7, 1777.

While he was stationed at Newburgh, N. Y., in the winter of 1782-'83, Colonel Brooks was named by discontented officers to a committee to present their grievances to congress. He became involved—altho blamelessly, his supporters contended—in the scandal arising from the famous "Newburgh Addresses," which called for action by the army to force congress to redress its grievances. Brooks, judging from letters written by him, thought the enterprise reprehensible and dangerous.

After receiving his honorable discharge from the army in June, 1783, he took over the medical practice of his old teacher, Dr. Tufts of Medford, and became a highly successful physician.

In 1786 he was appointed major general of the militia of Middlesex, and with this force marched to Worcester at the time of the Shay rebellion. President Washington made him federal marshal of the district of Massachusetts in 1789, a position which he retained until 1796. When war with France threatened, President Adams nominated Brooks for major general in the provisional army.

Having previously served in the lower house of the Massachusetts legislature, Brooks was elected to the state senate in 1791.

A veteran of the revolution and an experienced military leader, Brooks nevertheless staunchly disapproved of the War of 1812, altho his two sons served in it, one losing his life in the naval battle on Lake Erie. As adjutant general of the Massachusetts commonwealth, [illegible] from 1812 to 1816 Brooks greatly improved the efficiency of the state militia. In the latter named year he was nominated for governor by the Federalists and defeated Gen. Henry Dearborn, the Republican candidate, for the office. Reelected six times from 1817 to 1822, he presided over the series of [illegible] died in his home in Medford March 1, 1825.

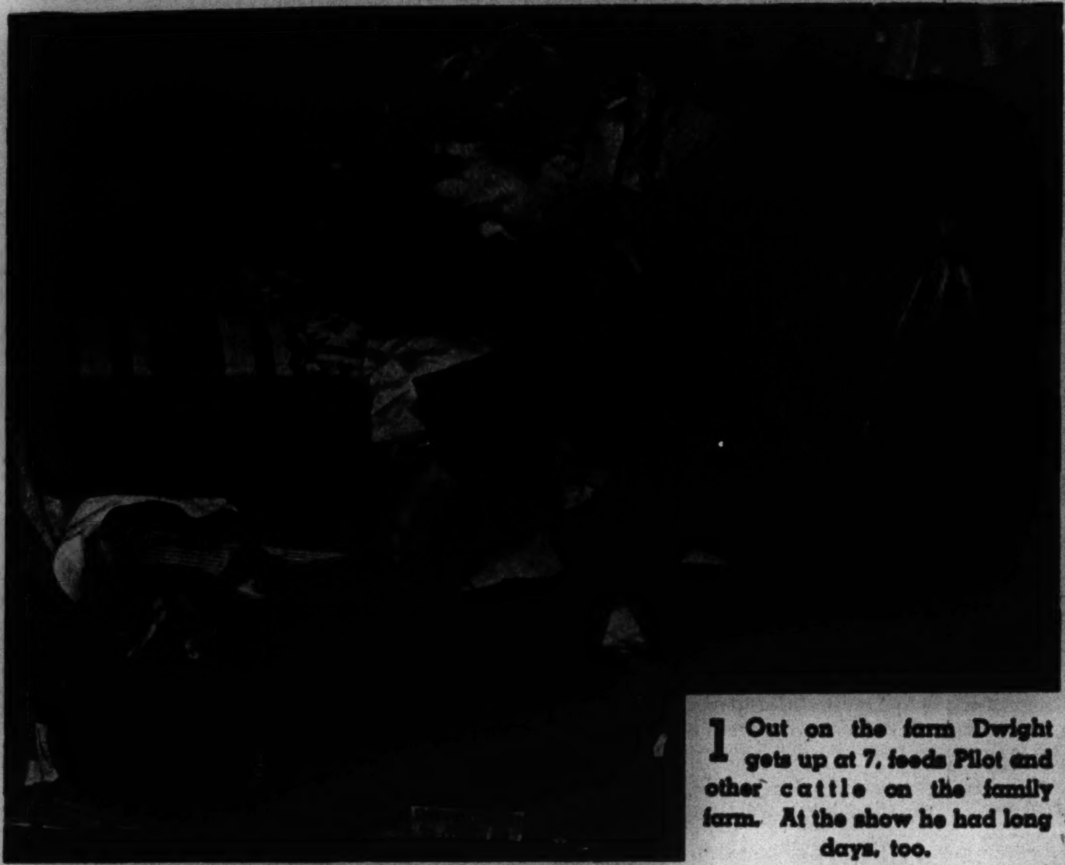
Farm Boy's Day

• From a 240-acre farm near Moville, Ia., came 10-year-old Dwight Tabke to the big city. With him came his Hereford steer, Pilot, to win seventh prize in its class in the junior feeding contest of the 42d annual International Live Stock exposition. Dwight was the youngest exhibitor, and here's a picture story of a day with Dwight.



1 Out on the farm Dwight gets up at 7, feeds Pilot and other cattle on the family farm. At the show he had long days, too.

2 Water for Pilot. Dwight's big steer won the reserve championship in junior competition at the home county fair.

THE CHRISTMAS CIGAR

Poems have been written about it. Jokes have been cracked about it. Wives and sweethearts have been kidded and kissed about it.

Yet what can take the place of The Christmas Cigar! To the Rich Man up on the Hill, it is the annual extra thoughtful token from the girl he married. To the young salesman, it is hours of undreamed luxury, the one fine gift from his sweetheart. The Christmas Cigar conveys the boss's personal thanks to the shipping clerk and bulges the pockets of the gruffest cop till he smiles like Good Saint Nicholas himself. After all, here's a gift that brings fond memories for many evenings to come... long after many a gift is idling on a shelf. Here's a gift that shows up time and again at the conference table, brings a dinner to a fitting close, helps a man forget his cares. Each friendly puff brings a new "thank you" for the one who gives a man cigars. It is a very personal gift, the cigar, yet one you can give to your dearest friend and to the most formal acquaintance you wish to honor, at Christmas. It is as much a part of Christmas as holly and mistletoe.

Don't you think you'd better give at least one man on your list a box of cigars this Christmas! They must be good cigars, of course—cigars, say, like Dutch Masters.

Mystery of Christmas Star

When they had heard the king, they departed; and lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood where the young child was.—Matthew ii., 9.

By LLOYD WENDT

FOR CENTURIES astrologers and astronomers have speculated concerning the star the three wise men of the east followed to Bethlehem at the time of the birth of Jesus. Some, of course, have regarded the entire story of the wise men as a lovely legend, but if the wise men actually visited Bethlehem, as seems probable, it must be assumed that the star of Bethlehem was not an inner vision, but an actual sign in the heavens. For the wise men were themselves astrologers, as indicated by the term magi, and they were accustomed to following closely celestial phenomena.

It is possible for astronomers to reconstruct the movements of the stars in past ages, and to judge their approximate positions at any certain time. However, the exact time of the birth of Christ has never been established. Indeed, for many centuries not even the exact year of His birth was known. Not until the 6th century was it fixed as 4 B. C., by records showing that King Herod, in whose reign Jesus was born, died in the year 750, according to the old Roman calendar, or 3 B. C., according to our calendar. Events intervening between Herod's order for the execution of Jewish firstborn, an order which caused Joseph to take Mary and the infant Jesus to Egypt, and the death of Herod, would indicate that the child was born in the latter part of the year 4 B. C.

• • •

The first mention of Dec. 25 as the date of Christ's birth is in the calendar of Philocalus (A. D. 354). However, this notation fixes the date as occurring on a Friday, in the year 1. Since Dec. 25 would fall on a Sunday in the year 1, and since it has been rather definitely established that Christ was born in 4 B. C., the Philocalus calendar has value chiefly in establishing that Christians celebrated Christmas on Dec. 25 as early as 354.

In 1613 Johann Kepler, sometimes called the father of modern astronomy, suggested that the star the wise men saw was actually a conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn, taking place in the constellation of Pisces, the Fishes. His critics have objected, however, that such a conjunction would not appear as a single star.

Another theory of the astronomers is that the star of Bethlehem may have been a nova, a variable star that becomes intensely bright during a short period and then again darkens. The first nova was discovered and explained by the astronomer Tycho Brahe in 1572, and others have been seen since. Should the wise men in their eastern lands have seen a brilliant nova, from their astrological training they would have expected it to be the herald of some portentous event. Were they familiar with the teachings of the Hebrew prophets, they might have expected the event to take place in or near Jerusalem.

Travelers approaching Jerusalem must ascend the Judean hills. While the wise men were amid the foothills, the star they sought might have been lost to sight, but once they had reached the Judean plateau it would suddenly have become visible in all its brilliance, conveying the impression that it was shining directly overhead, guiding them to their goal.

Another theory offered is that Venus, now particularly bright as an evening star in the southwestern sky, might have been the star of Bethlehem. It is said that Venus is especially brilliant when seen from the Holy Land and that one of the planet's brightest phases might have been observed the latter part of 4 B. C.

These theories, of course, have merely been advanced as interesting speculation, especially in recent years, when astronomy has become an exact science, completely separated from the mysticism of astrology. It is generally agreed that no one can ever know just what it was the wise men saw at Bethlehem, even tho it is possible in modern planetariums so show the positions of the planets on a given day centuries ago.

Miss Maude Bennot, director of the Adler planetarium, doubts that any star was observed standing over Bethlehem, for the movement of the earth would preclude the possibility of such a phenomenon. The stars would assume different positions as the earth rotated. "None of the alleged theories really fits the story," Miss Bennot said. "Probably the report of the star of Bethlehem should be accepted as a beautiful legend."

In any event there are many splendid beauties of the heavens to be seen during the Christmas period. Venus, the gorgeous evening star, is now in the southwestern skies for a short period after sunset. Jupiter, very bright, rises in the northeast as the sun is setting, and reddish Mars gleams in the south. Saturn, between Mars and Jupiter, may be seen directly below the Pleiades (Seven Sisters). High in the northwestern skies is the Northern Cross, symbol of Christmas, which may be seen during the early evening.

During the holiday period, with the exception of Christmas day, Adler planetarium is showing "The Architecture of the Heavens," tracing to the present man's ideas of the size, shape, and structure of the universe.

"We consider this a fitting subject for this month, when our minds naturally turn to creation," Miss Bennot said.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

A PICTURE STORY OF LIFE ON THE GRINNELL COLLEGE CAMPUS APPEARS IN TODAY'S PICTURE SECTION.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

IT'S THE PLAN of twinkly-eyed President Samuel N. Stevens of Grinnell college to set education before his 700 charges as an enticing feast rather than to force it down as one would the daily vitamin quota. At Grinnell there are few courses to meet arbitrary requirements. A student concentrates, taking only four courses at one time. In his senior year he takes only three.

Each student entering Grinnell is given quite complete testing for aptitudes, weakness, and general equipment, not so much to absorb but to explore fruitfully the illimitable field of knowledge. President Stevens is emphatic and eloquent on the necessity first for mastery of the English language. What price knowledge, he says, if a man be inarticulate?

He believes, too, that mastery of at least one foreign language is essential to life in this shrinking world. A student is expected to learn one foreign language in his first two years at Grinnell; in his junior and senior years reading assignments are made so that use of that chosen language is integrated with his whole educational program.

Student counseling on a four-year basis is another aspect of the president's plan of adapting the college to the student and of dealing with the aspirant on a human rather than a production line plane. A counselor meets individually with his handful of charges once each week.

There is considerable emphasis at Grinnell on student government, a facet of college education to which the school's dormitory system lends itself well. Six separate but connected halls form the men's dormitories on the west side of the campus; six halls connected by a closed cloister form the women's quadrangle on the other side. In both groups administration is student-controled.

The social plan, also student-governed, is extremely successful, providing elegant entertainment at the most moderate cost we ever heard of. Some of the coöperative club's parties are whooper-doopers. For one they recently rented 700 pairs of roller skates; for another the student body went en masse on a hay ride shindig. There are regular dances, theater parties, and special events that the youngsters invariably report as being the best kind of fun.

One traditional event at Grinnell seems to us typical of the easy charm and cultured atmosphere of the school. The night before the break for Christmas vacation the girls from all six halls have a formal candlelight dinner in the beautiful Main hall dining room, which is modeled after Christchurch at Oxford. Afterward they adjourn to the drawing room to sit happily in the soft light while the beloved Dr. Cecile Lavelle, teacher of the history of philosophy, reads aloud from the adventures of Alice. For every girl at Grinnell this is one of the highlights of the school year.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

LAST CALL FOR PUPS!

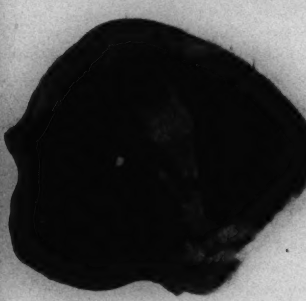
ONLY A FEW more days to pick the Christmas puppy! Already thousands of irresistible little pups have been selected to move into homes at Christmas, and indications are that the idea of a dog for a Christmas gift is stronger this season than it was in 1940.

A survey of homes which keep dogs and a checkup of the American Kennel Club registration figures show that rather small or medium-sized breeds like the cocker spaniel, Boston terrier, Scottish terrier, fox terrier, dachshund, and others are prime favorites with American dog fanciers who can keep only one dog in the home as a pet.

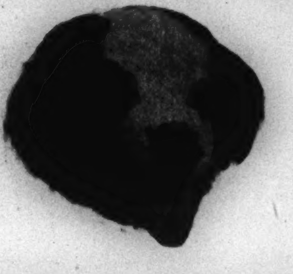
But there are scores of other recognized breeds which make delightful companion dogs and playmates or guards for children. In recent years some of the larger breeds have gained in popularity because of their placid dispositions, and also because their very size makes them ideal guards around the home.

The 15 most popular breeds according to registration figures include most of the medium-sized dogs so well known to Americans. In the next group of 15 popular breeds (pictured here) we find an unusual variety of dogs ranging from small terriers to big working dogs.

CAIRN TERRIER—One of the small terrier types developed in Scotland. Weighs around 14 pounds and is used against rodents. A plucky and practical little working dog which is amusing and alert.



BOXER—A comparatively new breed which is gaining popularity each year. When trained it makes an excellent companion and guard. Weighs 60 to 65 pounds and has a short coat.



ST. BERNARD—The huge, gentle "dog of the Alps" is friendly, intelligent, and possessed of a remarkable instinct for rescue work. Bred for many years by the monks of Switzerland to rescue travelers.

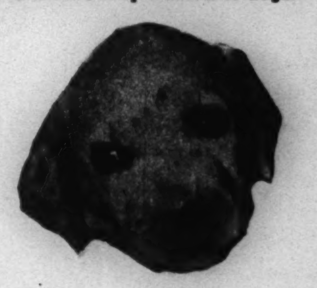
AIREDALE TERRIER—One of the largest of the terriers, weighing 35 to 45 pounds. An excellent guard and companion for active youngsters because it loves to play and has a protective nature.

CHIHUAHUA—One of the smallest of all the 109 recognized breeds, some specimens weighing under two pounds. Incorrectly called "Mexican hairless."

POODLE—Has distinctiveness, alertness, and intelligence. One of the most easily trained of dogs.

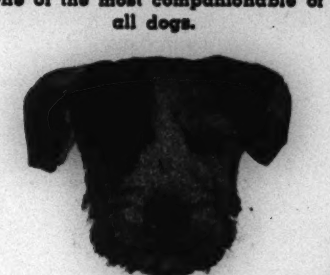
GERMAN SHEPHERD—One of the most respected of all breeds. Can be trained to do almost anything. A wonderful guard and companion for the family with a yard.

ENGLISH SETTER—A dog of beauty, style, and brains which serves as a double-duty dog in the hunting field and around the home. One of the most companionable of all dogs.



DALMATIAN—The "coach dog" is enjoying a deserved comeback. Has lots of poise, knows how to guard the home, and requires very little grooming.

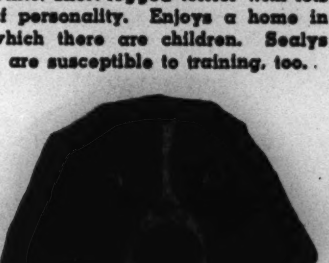
WELSH TERRIER—One of the smaller terriers, often mistakenly referred to as a "toy Airedale," as its coat is similar. A game dog of excellent disposition.



SEALYHAM TERRIER—A small, white, short-legged terrier with lots of personality. Enjoys a home in which there are children. Sealys are susceptible to training, too.

RETRIEVER—The dog pictured is a yellow Labrador, but all the retriever breeds are similar in size and temperament. They are primarily hunting dogs, but make excellent house pets in the off season.

IRISH TERRIER—A typical terrier, with plenty of pep and courage; all red, with a wiry coat, weighing 25 to 27 pounds. An excellent pet for active children.



POINTER—Primarily a stylish hunting dog, but any sportsman can testify to its excellent disposition. Its short coat is an asset in the home.

A THOUSAND SHALL FALL

INSTALMENT VI.

ESCAPE TO FREEDOM!

[illegible]

FOLLOWING only our instinct, we crossed the marketplace. In the market shed we felt strangely secure.

"Should we ask our way?" I said to Dr. Petit in a cautious tone.

"No."

We stepped out of the pleasant dusk of the market shed into the daylight. We found ourselves in a narrow but clean street with three and four story houses. On the house across the street a sign in bold letters said: HOTEL ST. MARTIN.

Our hearts hammered in our throats. Dr. Petit wanted to cross the street. I seized him by the arm. Two S.A. men were talking in front of the house. They were stout fellows with red cheeks. They looked like two beer barrels. Two beer barrels barred the way to paradise.

We waited near a flower stand. If we could only bring some one flowers, I thought. There were yellow, red, and violet dahlias. Daxer must have overcome his doubts by this time. We had at most two or three minutes before us.

The two beer barrels shook hands and parted. We looked to right and left. Behind the flower stand a woman was sleeping. Otherwise the street was deserted. We crossed and entered the hotel.

The house was silent. Cautiously we mounted a few stairs. The wooden steps creaked. Suddenly a woman's voice rang out from above: "Qui est là?"

"It's us," I answered, none too brilliantly.

But the answer had sufficed. A woman bent over the railing on the second floor. A deep, warm, masculine woman's voice said in French: "Come right up, children—we've been expecting you."

We dashed up the stairs.

• • •

Never shall I forget her face. Blessed art thou, Mme. Louis Bellonville, née Amalie Roquebrune, of Nancy. I shall include you in my prayers today, tomorrow, and forever. Never shall I forget you, in life and death, as you stood there in the door of your apartment, big and fat as you were; with a blue apron, your slightly graying hair in great noble waves, and in your bright eyes a heavenly light such as is given only to those on whom God has bestowed the most precious of gifts—a pure heart.

"Come right in, children," said Mother Amalie, half laughing and half whispering, trying to be cautious without frightening us.

She led us thru a large, bright kitchen, thru a broad, round salon, thru a spacious living room, and at length into a modern bedroom. She led us to a double bed. It all seemed like a page from "The Thousand and One Nights." On the bed, as tho conjured up by some jinni, lay a gray suit and a green suit, a colored shirt and a white shirt, two dark ties, two handkerchiefs, two pairs of socks; and at the foot of the bed a pair of black and a pair of brown shoes.

"You can have two hats, too," she said quickly, as tho that were the most important item. "Louis has plenty of them. Unfortunately he doesn't need them; he's a prisoner of war himself somewhere!"

She gave us a fine lunch. It was terrible not to be able to pour forth a flood of thanks.

"And you, madame? Why don't you eat?" we asked.

"I, children, you know——"

She broke off and blushed again. And only then did we begin to wonder where we actually were. In the Hotel St. Martin? But this hotel, whose whole first story was a private apartment, had no porter, no valet-de-chambre, no maid. It also seemed to have no guests. To be sure, I had seen a board with about twenty numbers on the kitchen wall, but there was a key hanging on every hook. The Hotel St. Martin seemed to attach no importance to guests. Now I remembered the round salon, the big round table, and the old plush sofa with its lace antimacassar. And the pink and blue coquetry of the living room was also rather strange.

"I guess I'll have to tell you," said Mme. Roquebrune, grown suddenly grave. "The fact is that this used to be a perfectly respectable hotel before the Germans came. If Louis knew what it has turned into! When the boches took over there weren't enough brothels for them, so they simply turned respectable hotels into bagnios. And my hotel was one of them. Of course I could have closed it, but I won't let them drive me out of my house. I'd rather die. I'd rather be a brothel mother. I know what I'm doing—don't worry. Every one has to fight the plague as best he can. I have my own methods." She took a sip from her wine glass. "And so," she said after a brief pause, "I have to eat lunch with my girls."

From morning to noon Mother Amalie worked for us. When we awoke she was out. At noon she came back laden with papers and a large black handbag. But her activities were shrouded in mystery. All she told us was that we would be leaving in one or two days. When we asked for details her only answer was, "Do you trust me?"

There was a little roguish twinkle in her eyes.

• • •

Mother Amalie discovered two men—Charles Boissière, a Swiss wine salesman employed by Bonard Frères, and André Morteau, a radio mechanic. They agreed to apply for passes at the kommandantur, and in addition to let us have their regular French identification cards. Both said she could do what she pleased with the documents. Once we were on our way, they would simply announce that they had lost them—and that would cover them. Next day Charles Boissière, a bald little man with a long beard, who looked less like a salesman than a clay dwarf in an old-fashioned garden, came to the hotel to help us make necessary changes in his identification papers.

The new date was written in fresh ink, contrasting sharply with the faded ink on the rest of the eight-year-old document. But we could not afford to be too difficult. The main thing was that each possessed a regular pass from the German commandant of Nancy, without photographs or fingerprints, expressly permitting André Morteau and Charles Boissière to go to Dijon. The pass was valid for four days, including the return trip—a privilege of which we had no desire to avail ourselves.

The night before our departure—after 10 o'clock, of course—Mother Amalie gave us a champagne dinner in the salon of the Hotel St. Martin. The real André Morteau and Charles Boissière attended as guests of honor. On account of the curfew our guests stayed overnight, sharing the attic rooms with their new namesakes.

• • •

My knees were like rubber as we cautiously went out into the Rue des Quatre Eglises the next morning. Mother Amalie had previously gone out to have a look at the street. I saw ghosts everywhere; it seemed to me that every German soldier stared at me, that every policeman's eyes followed me; and I was certain that Sergeant Daxer in person would be awaiting me at the station; but nothing of the kind occurred. It was pouring rain and the passersby were all in a hurry. No one looked up.

I felt curiously light. German soldiers with steel helmets and shouldered guns were patroling the station and the platform, but they showed no interest in me; they were too busy trying to keep out of the rain.

Dr. Petit arrived shortly after me. We took seats in two different compartments of the same car. Mother Amalie vanished and came back with newspapers. When I opened one I found a red dahlia in between the pages.

(Editor's note—After further thrilling adventures and many disappointments Habe, alone, finally reaches the last town separating him from unoccupied France. Here he calls on an old sausage maker, Nollet, who may help him to escape.)

What followed happened so quickly that it must be told quickly. Nollet's house was an old one-story house in the middle of the village. You went thru a kitchen to an old-fashioned sitting room. The old peasant woman was busy in the kitchen. Old Nollet sat in an armchair making cigarets. He was a white-haired man of about 70, but he must have been in the World war, for on his lapel he wore the ribbons of the Légion d'Honneur, the médaille militaire, and the croix de guerre.

The old man looked at me with good, understanding eyes while I spoke. Then he tapped on the floor with his stick. His wife came in and stood respectfully in the doorway. Standing like this, ready to serve, she was the symbol of peasant marriage and of good marriage in general—an upright, noble servant.

"Bring us a drink," said the old man.

The woman brought a bottle of spirits and two glasses. As the warming drink flowed down my throat I realized that my strength was at an end.

The old man stroked his silky white hair.

"Are your sons here?" he asked.

He called his children hers, in the manner of peasants.

The old woman went out into the garden and returned with her two sons. They, too, stood respectfully in a corner.

"Go and get all the fishermen you can find," said the father. And as both sons approached the door: "Richard, Jérôme, and Matthieu. Especially Richard!"

"Yes, father," said the sons. They were mature men, but they obeyed like little boys.

The room filled with people. Both sons came back. Each brought a fisherman. We waited a short time for Richard, but he, too, came finally, wearing a torn cap and smelling of brandy. He bowed respectfully and remained standing, altho the host asked him to sit down.

"Well," said Monsieur Nollet, "which one of you is going to take this escaped prisoner across the Doubs?"

His tone suffered no contradiction. He bent forward on his cane and looked at the three fishermen.

A voice said, "I'll take him!"

It was Richard who spoke. He was no more than 5 feet 3 inches tall, and he had the leathery face of a seaman. His eyes were bright blue like the waters of a mountain spring.

"Well said!" said the old man. He leaned back in his chair and drew the blanket over his knees.

"But we'll have to go thru Longepierre," said the fisherman. "And in Longepierre alone there are 200 German border guards."

A silence followed. We all awaited old Nollet's decision. I felt sick with hunger and nervousness. Mme. Nollet saw me turn pale and brought a second big glass of herb spirits.

"Alphonse!" said the old man to one of his two sons. "How much gas have we left?"

"The last gallon," said Alphonse.

"Good. You take the car and a load of 30 sausages to Mme. Debèze in Longepierre. Deliver the sausages to her store. And while you are busy with the sausages Richard and our soldier will get away. Won't you, Richard?"

"Yes, mon capitaine," said Richard. He laughed a kindly, silent laugh without opening his mouth. The wrinkles ran merrily up and down his face like the little cars of a scenic railway.

Ten minutes later the old Citroën rolled out with a rattle that sounded like a protest against the last gallon. Alphonse sat at the wheel, I beside him. Richard sat with his arms lovingly embracing the 30 sausages. I ran quickly back to the house; I wanted to kiss the old man's hands. But he took my head and kissed me on both cheeks.

"The anciens combattants," he said, "have done their duty in this war, too. God bless you, my boy!"

The kiss of a marshal decorating me for bravery could not have been sweeter than the kiss of the old sausage maker of Seurre.

We reached the frontier village of Longepierre in a few minutes. Alphonse immediately drove to the épicerie of Mme. Debèze—it was across the street from the headquarters of the frontier guards. Ten or twelve German soldiers were patroling outside their headquarters; an equal number, dressed in trunks, were taking a sun bath.

Alphonse got out first and went into the grocery. Then Richard and I began unloading the sausages and taking them into the tiny shop. We were deliberately slow and cautious. The proprietress, a woman of at least 80, stood behind the counter, speechless with amazement at the unexpected delivery. Then she cast a glance at me, and I saw at once that she understood.

A few seconds later we were no longer alone. Like all great military leaders, old Nollet needed no knowledge of the terrain to sketch a plan of battle; psychology sufficed. And no one is more susceptible to sausage psychology than the Germans. Within a few minutes not a single German remained outside the store. They crowded into the tiny shop with its cardboard bouillon cubes, its rolls of flypaper, and its smell of spices and paint. There was a welter of naked flesh, bayonets, guns, swimming trunks, boots, and bare feet; suddenly the whole shop was enveloped in a smell of human bodies and sweat. There was a scuffle, half serious and half joking, over the 30 sausages; but the jokes were no more than a pretense. The little old woman soon gave up all resistance and withdrew into her room behind the counter—I had a last view of her gray head in the doorway of a room full of lithographed saints. Then a mass of field gray, fat, bayonets, sausages, and heads passed before my eyes. That was the last I saw of the Germans.

Behind the "barracks" there was an open field. Richard made a sign to me, and we began to run. The field soon turned into a sort of dune. We ran across the sandy ground, stumbling over the rushes; we crossed a small woods.

I was hypnotized by the silvery gleam amid the green shrubbery.

"That is the Doubs," said Richard.

I went down to the bushes. I parted them and moved forward. Below me lay the river, silvery, gleaming, and clear, rushing impetuously downward. A few yards from the opposite bank was a clump of woods.

I stretched out my hand. "What's that over there, Richard?"

"The right bank of the river."

"Is that free France?"

"Yes. C'est la France libre."

My chest expanded.

I jumped into the water. The current was strong, and I had to fight against it. The waves broke over my head. The rushing current seized me like a pair of brutal hands trying to tear me apart. I swallowed a good deal of water.

And then—I touched land. The bank was brown, wet, loamy. A tangled thicket. Twice I pulled myself up and slid down again. Branches broke. The ground slid from beneath my feet. Finally I found a root to hold on to and pulled myself up. There was a crashing of branches, but I was on firm ground.

Suddenly I became aware that I was not on the opposite bank. I was on a narrow neck of land, a sort of peninsula between the two shores. Beyond the brushwood something glimmered. I had another, wider arm of the Doubs before me. Was I on French or German soil? I wondered. But even before I had time to consider this question it was answered. A few yards to my right I heard approaching steps—the steps of a German soldier.

I had no more than the fraction of a second to make a decision. Should I hide until he had passed me? Or jump into the water on the other side of the thicket and save myself by swimming? But wouldn't he shoot if I tried that?

I made my decision. Rather dead than a prisoner. I rushed thru the brushwood, unconcerned with the noise I was making. I jumped into the river. I tried to swim as fast as I could against the current, keeping my head under water except to breathe.

• • •

I was about 30 yards from the bank when the first shot rang out, immediately followed by another. The bullets splashed in the water with a curious little bubbling sound. The first shot landed no less than ten yards to the right of me, the second about five. The third was three or four yards to my left. Now I was considerably farther from the bank. Would the German improve his aim? Right, left, center. No—the fourth shot landed six or seven yards to my left. Each time I heard the splash. Now I had only five yards to go at the most. A big arm stroke. What did I think about? Once again I recalled my swimming instructor at the Lida when I was a little boy. Bend your knees as far as they go! he used to cry. He was a fat man with a rubber belly. Then I had a vision of the camp in Dieuze. Could it all have been a nightmare. I pulled my knees up to my stomach. One more stroke and my arms touched the bank and salvation.

I climbed out cautiously. Looking back, I saw the German soldier leaning his gun against a tree. And the thought passed thru my mind that he had not meant to hit me.

I ran across the meadow that sloped gently down to the Doubs. A young man was peacefully fishing at the bank.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

MOST AMATEURS know that retouching improves any picture, but most of them are under the false impression that it takes exceptional artistic ability and skill to do this work.

It took more than 200 exposures to make this unusually fine action shot of a leaping fish. Finally the jump was recorded in just the right instant with an exposure of 1/825 sec. at f:5.6 on fast panchromatic film.

Tiny light or dark spots, scratch marks, and fine hairlines appear on most prints, especially on enlargements. Their main cause is the presence of dust and lint on the negative, on the glass in the printing frame or enlarger, or on the paper. Experienced amateurs know how to prevent most of these blemishes, yet even they rarely produce a really clean print. They resort to retouching in order to clean up their prints.

When we speak of retouching we are referring to the type of print retouching known as spotting. The purpose of this retouching is to remove the spots mentioned before. Other forms of retouching, especially retouching on the negative, are a lot more difficult, owing to the small size of amateur negatives and also owing to the fact that you must figure your tone values in reverse.

But in the case of print retouching you see the final effect of your work right before you. If you want to darken or lighten certain spots on your print you will immediately see whether you have achieved the desired result, and it is easy to correct any faulty step.

If you plan on spotting your prints, make them or have them made on matte paper. Glossy prints can also be retouched, but the marks show more clearly even if you take the precaution of adding some glossy substance to your retouching materials.

Spotting can be done either with pencils or with retouching colors and a brush which can be obtained for a few cents at any photographic store. It is better to use colors, because they don't rub off as easily as pencil marks. In practice you will need most of the time only the black retouching color. By diluting it with water you can produce any shade of gray to match your print.

Start your spotting in the darkest portion of your print. Apply pencil or brush with a light stippling motion. Only a small speck of color should be placed on the print at a time. Every time you apply the brush to the print your mark will become lighter, because it carries less color. It is for this reason you should start in the dark tones and work toward the lightest ones. Then pick up some fresh color and again follow the same procedure. In the meantime your first marks will have dried and it will be easier to apply additional dots of color for filling in larger spots.

For spotting hairlines you should cross-hatch the lines with a pencil and blend your marks with a paper stump. Or you can break up the lines with a series of dots placed with the brush. After these dots have dried you can fill in the white spots between them.

If you want to retouch glossy prints, mix a small amount of mucilage with your colors. The mucilage will lend gloss to your retouching marks, making them less visible against the glossy print surface.

So far we have spoken only about darkening light spots. It is more difficult to lighten the dark spots which occasionally appear on prints. One way is to use an etching knife and carefully cut away some of the dark emulsion. This method is apt to spoil the print and is not recommended to beginners. It is much better to use a chemical bleach such as Farmer's reducer or tincture of iodine. By applying these chemicals with a toothpick or small cotton swab, local bleaching can be achieved.

I called out to him. He stopped fishing and came over to me.

Still fearful, I asked, "Is this free France?"

"Yes," he said.

"No Germans?"

He laughed. His teeth were white and he had a kind mouth.

"No. No Germans."

I took him in my arms and kissed him on both cheeks.

We sat for a few minutes on the meadow, and I tried to dry myself. Finally he took me to his mother. She was a poor fisherwoman. She had given clothes to 12 escaped prisoners. I was the 13th. But for me, too, she found a shirt, trousers, a coat, something resembling shoes. For me, too, she had cheese, wine, a baked fish.

The young fisherman's name was Robert. We sat outside his hut while his mother was preparing the fish.

"This is the happiest meal of my life," I said to Robert's mother.

"We must share what we have," she said.

I learned that there was a train from St. Bonnet-en-Bresse to Bourg, and from Bourg to the Swiss frontier. I made up my mind to walk to St. Bonnet the same evening so as to make the train the next morning. The town was nine kilometers away, and I set out. I said good-by to the old fisherwoman. But before I left I wanted to give my name and address to my hostess. She brought paper and ink.

With the pen in my hand I hesitated. Everything became suddenly and fearfully alive. The retreat. Ste. Menehould in flames. Vienne-la-Ville. Lieutenant Saint-Brice and his canal. The forgotten scouts. The names. Maurice Napier the interpreter. Charles Boissière. The sausage maker.

I wrote quickly: "Hans Habe, 21-ème Régiment de Marche des Volontaires Etrangers." And my address in Geneva.

I was myself again only after I had written down my true name.

Robert walked with me across flowering gardens to the main road. He showed me the way. Straight ahead to St. Bonnet. We waved to one another and I marched off.

I had the best things that a man can have on earth. I felt that a fight had not been in vain.

Night came—without fear of the morrow. There was a great silence around me. I inwardly folded my hands and was silent lest I disturb the divine calm. In a distant village the bells rang.

But before me lay the road—beautiful, wide, and free as life itself.

EPILOG

Next day at Annecy, on the Swiss border, I met my wife, who had been without news of me for two months.

Twice I illegally crossed the Swiss border to see my parents.

On Aug. 31, 1940, I was demobilized in the barracks of the Chasseurs Alpins in Annecy, as No. 9124.

A few days later I received a certificate from Colonel De Buissy, the commander of my regiment. It included these consoling words: "His conduct under fire has always been perfect."

There was the comfort of having performed my duty. But it did not sweeten the realization which soon came to me—that "free" France was not free. On Sept. 26 I crossed the Spanish border. There were other adventures, but of a kind that are the common lot of all those who have fled from Europe.

I shall always remember those who died for the cause of freedom. My comrades of the glorious 21st foreign volunteers, which went down in defeat but did not give up. . . . The heroic Pierre Saint-Brice, who is languishing in a German prison camp. . . . My comrades who escaped, and whom the new France, to thank them for what they had done, sent to concentration camps or delivered into the hands of the German executioners.

I shall never forget them.

(THE END.)

FROZEN TURKEY FOR CHRISTMAS

By MARY MEADE

A FROZEN TURKEY is a joy to stuff and prepare for roasting, because it has been so beautifully prepared for cooking that there's scarcely a lingering pinfeather to be removed. The interior is ready for the stuffing and the giblets have been carefully wrapped ready for cooking. When buying a quick-frozen turkey remember that you are buying drawn weight. A nine-pounder is the equivalent of a 12-pound bird not thus prepared.

Thaw a frozen turkey overnight before stuffing. Remove giblets and simmer gently in salted water until tender. Remove the liver as soon as it is tender. Heart and gizzard take longer to cook. Use giblets in stuffing or in gravy.

• • •

Stuff turkey with any good dressing, preferably a fluffy one. Don't use so much liquid in it that it becomes soggy. Go as heavily as you like on butter, because turkey is a lean-meated bird and a buttery dressing is not out of keeping.

Truss and tie turkey and brush all over with unsalted butter. Place breast side up in an open roaster (or breast side down if you have a rack which will hold it in place that way). Cover breast with a piece of cheesecloth saturated with fat. Roast at 300 degrees until tender, 22 to 24 minutes to the pound on the average. Keep breast and legs well greased during cooking.

Test for tenderness by moving the drumstick. If thigh joint moves easily the turkey is done.

Because the flesh is cold, a newly thawed turkey takes longer to cook than one which wasn't frozen to begin with.

Cookies so heavy with fruit and nuts that they seem like miniature fruit cakes are grand for holiday entertaining.

Why not a frozen turkey for Christmas dinner this year?

FRUIT COOKIES

(About eight dozen, two inches in diameter)

½ cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
3 eggs
½ cup evaporated milk mixed with
1½ teaspoons vinegar
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
Dash of nutmeg
3 cups raisins
3 cups currants
½ cup thinly sliced citron
3 cups broken nut meats

Cream butter until smooth and plastic. Add sugar gradually and continue creaming until all sugar is dissolved. Beat in egg yolks. Add milk and vinegar. Sift flour, then measure and resift with soda, salt, and spices. Stir into butter mixture with fruit and nuts. Add stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop from a spoon onto a well greased baking sheet. Bake at 325 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

CHURCH MUSIC TO GREET CHRISTMAS

CALL FOR BIDS ON WEST SIDE HOUSING SETUP

Construction May Be Held Up.

Bids will be received until noon Tuesday, Dec. 30, for the construction of the 4 million 800 thousand dollar west side housing project designated as Illinois 2-2-S. Whether construction will proceed, reports the Chicago Housing authority, depends on the project being designated by the government as defense housing and given a priority rating for the procuring of materials.

In the meantime negotiations are going on for buying all the property from Racine avenue to Loomis and from 14th street north to the alley south of Roosevelt road. More than 50 per cent of the 12 square blocks of property has already been purchased and the Chicago Housing authority has options on 203 of the 260 land parcels. The total cost of purchase and clearing will approximate 65 cents per square foot. The project will approximate a cost of $4,840,000 for 834 dwelling units.

The question of whether the housing project can be called defense housing has its problems. The area, before the demolition of slums began, was almost entirely Negro. The families who evacuated their homes are given first choice in the completed project. However, one-third of the residents are on relief, 10 per cent are receiving old age assistance, and the others are in such service jobs as porters, cleaners, and maintenance work.

Defense Workers May Move In.

According to William Gerhardt, superintendent of tenant selection, it is not certain whether all these residents can move into the new project or whether a certain number of defense workers must occupy the apartments in order to obtain priority rating for materials.

Work has proceeded slowly on the buying of the property because of extensive litigation. It was on July 28 that a number of city officials met with Gael Sullivan, Illinois director of Federal housing, for the opening ceremonies of the demolition program. However, only two houses since that time have been demolished. The delay is due to the shortage in Works Projects administration labor supplies. Bids for the wrecking were accepted from private concerns and the lowest bid was received from the Federal Wrecking company, 7437 South Western avenue, which amouted to $83,900.

The area was chosen for the new housing because of the physical deterioration of the buildings and because of its proximity to the Jane Addams housing project which fact will save managerial expenses.

Nearly All Old Buildings.

The percentage of owner occupied buildings was only 15.4 per cent. One-fourth of the buildings were erected between 1860 and 1865. Only nine of the buildings have been erected since 1905. Delinquent taxes in the area back to 1938 were $89,294. In 1938 the city levied $11,000 against the property in order to settle the back taxes. However, only 50 per cent of this was paid.

Pneumonia and tuberculosis figures for the area are twice as great as the city as as a whole. There were 32 out of every 100 children listed as delinquent. The rate of delinquency for the city is 4 children out of every 100.

There are nine times as many fires in the area than in any other section of the city which cost the city $22,646, as against an average of $871 for all other neighborhoods.

WAR VETERANS TO HONOR PRIEST AT GLEN ELLYN

The Rev. Eugene J. Luke, pastor of St. Petronella's Catholic church in Glen Ellyn, will be presented an American flag this morning by John J. Flannery post of the American Legion, of which he is a member. The presentation will commemorate Father Luke's 20th anniversary as a priest.

Groups assisting in the ceremony which will take place after the 11 o'clock mass are Chicago Police post, William A. Neer Teamster post, and the drum and bugle corps of Yarmo-Devere post.

Father Luke was born in Chicago where his father was employed in the packing industry. His early education was gained at St. Raphael school. He began his studies for the priesthood at Cathedral College of the Sacred Heart, now Quigley Preparatory seminary. He completed his studies at St. Francis seminary in Milwaukee, was ordained on Dec. 17, 1921, and said his first solemn mass the next day.

In recognition of his organizing ability, Father Luke was made assistant pastor of St. Pascal's parish and while there was for five years chaplain of the Chicago State hospital. His next appointment was to Holy Trinity parish where he also acted as chaplain at the Cook County hospital.

Father Luke's next transfer was to St. Anthony parish and it was here that a group of men calling themselves "The Twelve Apostles" was organized to help the poor and needy. For seven years he was pastor of St. Clement's parish.

The Happy, Ages-Old Hunt for Santa Claus Has Started in Earnest Again

Across the land tonight where houses stand alone or huddle together there are little boys and girls who are looking for Christmas. Their wishes are made of midget ships with real cloth sails and elephants with cotton ears. They are made of red fire engines and policeman's suits that come in small sizes. There is Bobby Deeley peeking under the bed and Frank Higgins Jr. looking out the window. There is Virginia Ryan peeking in ribboned boxes or Bobby Auchinleck watching at the door. Theresa Caputo is perched high on a chair to peek in the cupboard and Donald Dowling is peering down the stairs. They know Santa Claus will soon come winging thru the sky with the north star blinking directions. And so he will come thru thousands of Christmases just so long as there are boys and girls who look for him. These children are from the kindergarten classes at St. Patrick's academy, 2300 Washington boulevard.

A SURPRISE PACKAGE IS DELIVERED AT HOME OF RETIRED POSTMAN

John A. Walton, retired mail carrier, sat at his home at 809 South 11th avenue, Maywood, thinking the thoughts of a retired mail carrier. The evening's usual routine was interrupted by his brother-in-law, Walter W. Graves, who asked for directions in locating a home in the neighborhood.

Mr. Walton left his chair, exchanged his slippers for his shoes, and the two went out into the night together. When he returned to his house it was dark and quiet. But when he opened the door, the lights came on, and there was the singing of "The Gang's All Here." It is said of Mr. Walton that he was so surprised that he "broke out in a sweat."

Here all about Mr. Walton were the boys from the collection department of the Chicago postoffice. They had brought with them a turkey dinner. Anthony Vonech, superintendent of collection, presented Mr. Walton a gold medals from his group. They stayed until the early hours of morning.

Mr. Walton was toasted for never having been late during his 35 years of service. Maybe that alone would not have caused the boys to remember. One of them summed up why the surprise party was planned this way: "He was always so friendly to everybody."

Two Employes of Park District Retire from Jobs

Two park district employés were retired last week upon reaching the compulsory age of 65. They are Anthony Lewandowski of 3011 South Union avenue, a janitor at the Lincoln park zoo, who started as a laborer with the former South Park district in 1904, and Joseph Rodini of 2711 Harrison street, a park district laborer since 1939.

Railroad Men Make Others Happy at Yule

BY JUNE GESERICK.

"Let me speak to Joe, please." The voice of a caller is going to interrupt Christmas eve preparations in the Joseph I. Jauch home, 731 East 89th place.

Joe Jauch, a fireman for the Illinois Central railroad, is one of the many railroad men who will spend their Christmas running engines, unloading baggage, making up berths, or serving dinners for the thousands of Chicagoans and suburbanites who will be traveling to and from family gatherings in every part of the United States.

Mrs. Jauch; Robert, age 14; Virginia, 12; Ursula, 11, and Ronald, 7, are going to turn disappointed eyes to Dad Jauch as he hangs up the phone receiver.

Fun for the Family.

"Aw, never mind. We'll have lots of fun tonight and then you can save me some of that turkey—and a big piece of pie," Jauch will grin, attempting to dispel the gloom that has taken hold.

Long after the children have gone to bed—Ronnie to dream of Santa Claus—Mr. and Mrs. Jauch will sit in the kitchen—the table strewn with colorful paper and ribbons—wrapping gifts—gifts the opening of which dad will have to miss.

Early the next morning Jauch will prepare to leave the house. His wife, Margaret, will have risen to make ready a hearty breakfast of steaming coffee, bacon, and eggs. The day really starts when Jauch leaves his warm home, after bidding his wife to remember what Ronnie says when he opens a certain package, and goes

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

HARLO J. DUNN, assistant scout executive of the Thatcher Woods Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, has sent a letter to the presidents of villages comprising the area which reads, "The Boy Scouts of the Thatcher Woods Area council stand ready to play their part in the civilian defense organization of your community. Thru the office of civilian defense in Washington and our national Boy Scout headquarters, we have devised a plan of participation on the part of the Boy Scouts." The troops are mobilizing to assist police, fire, and health departments as guards, messengers, traffic crews, cleanup squads, and to locate food and housing.

Mr. and Mrs. Mario DiBenedetto, 2839 West Polk street, will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary today by attending a solemn high mass to be sung in St. Joseph's seminary at Villa Camarzia, St. Charles, Ill. The Rev. John Giambastiani, director of the Servite seminary, will be celebrant and the Rev. Paul Theado will be deacon. Brother Austin, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. DiBenedetto who is studying for the Servite priesthood, will be subdeacon. The DiBenedettos have been residents of the west side for almost 20 years and they have two younger sons, Edward and Ernest.

The golden wedding day of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gruninger, 5047 Ainslie street, was celebrated recently with a reception for 100 friends and relatives in the Gruninger home. They were married in St. Boniface church and have been residents of the city for a half century. The Gruningers have occupied their present home for 33 years.

TWO little girls on the west side who are not related recently celebrated their birthdays together. They are Gloria Janousek, 1611 South 60th court, and Jacqueline Spilka, 1622 South 61st avenue, who celebrated their 12th birthdays on the 12th day of the 12th month at the 12th hour and had 12 little guests. The two girls were born within a few minutes of each other shortly after midnight and are inseparable friends.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Smith, 5007 West Erie street, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary early in December. The Smiths are both in excellent health and never miss church services on Sunday.

LITTLE Beverly Patterson, 3 years old, is broken hearted. Her mother, Mrs. James Patterson, 337 North Lorel avenue, has made an appeal to newspapers to help Beverly find her 6 months old black and white wire haired terrier. Beverly, who has been ill since her puppy disappeared, calls him Cipy. The dog was wearing a black harness when he either walked off or was stolen from the Patterson yard.

A recent appointee to the personnel committee of the YWCA is Mrs. Leo Kritzer, 4751 West Van Buren street. The action was taken by the board of directors of the association. The committee is responsible for appointment of the 51 members of the YWCA professional staff and of the more than 200 members of the clerical and maintenance staffs. Other west side members of the committee are Mrs. A. H. Dyon, 619 North Central avenue; Mrs. Arthur Hauser, River Forest; Mrs. Edgar H. Williams, Oak Park, and Mrs. William C. Gilbert of River Forest.

Denied Strong Legs, He Gains Samson's Arms

Harold Brown was stricken with infantile paralysis when he was nine years old. Today, 12 years later, he is a volunteer instructor in gymnastics at the Duncan YMCA and during the last summer he set a new world weightlifting record of 375 pounds for the middleweight prone press. The paralysis hurt Harold Brown's legs so he strengthened his arms.

With gymnastics and weightlifting as his hobby, Brown is a plumber by trade and works with his father at 4926 North Springfield avenue. When he was a boy he rallied from his long illness to find he couldn't run any more. He had to get off the baseball team. He could walk slowly but that was all.

Gym Team Captain.

Harold Brown didn't give up. He liked to swing on the trapeze in the playgrounds and began practicing on parallel and high bars. In his senior year at Austin High school, Brown was elected captain of the gym team and also won the Junior Division championship of the Central AAU on the parallels and high bar.

Next came Harold's student days at the University of Illinois where he became a member of the exhibition gym team. As a sophomore he captured the men's championship of the Central AAU on the parallels and high bar. He started weightlifting and became a champion in that sport too. In June 1941 he was graduated as a major in history and sociology and wanted to become a teacher and gym coach.

Teacher of Boys.

He couldn't find a job. Then Harold returned to Chicago and became a volunteer instructor in gymnastics at the Duncan Y to teach boys and young men, who had never known his physical setback.

'FINISH SCHOOLING,' DRAFT HEAD'S ADVICE TO WAR-MINDED BOYS

Junior and senior boys at Proviso High school were urged to remain in school and finish their education by R. W. Cochran, an ex-service man and chairman of the Maywood draft board, in a recent talk before the school assembly.

"War today is more brains than brawn," said Earl K. Broberg, president of Maywood, also an ex-service man. "It augurs well for America when we have to appear before you and urge you not to hasten into the war. Please heed this advice: Stay in school."

Supt. Sifert read a letter from a retired naval officer who also urged graduation from high school. He said, "The thing for us to do is go ahead in a normal way of life, seriously mindful of events as they exist. We need to work on the home defense program, so that we can meet any emergency, and to be ever mindful of sabotage and undesirable propaganda."

OAK PARK YMCA BOYS TO BE FETED AT TWO PARTIES

Two Christmas parties for the boys of the Oak Park YMCA Boys' division have been planned for this week by the staff in coöperation with the Mothers' club.

Seven and 8 year olds will be guests at the party at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon under the supervision of O. K. Wright, assistant boys' work secretary, and Charles Y. Freeman, physical director. There will be games, refreshments, and a 10 cent gift exchange.

CHOIRS TO SING THE STORY OF CHRIST'S BIRTH

Throngs to Gather for Services.

Christmas will come again on Thursday. In spite of everything there will be holly wreaths hung in west side homes and glittering tinsel. There will be songs in the churches sung by plump angels with their wings tied to their shoulders and halos held up by wire. Thruout the west side neighbors and friends are wishing each other a Merry Christmas.

The pews will be decorated with giant evergreens in the Warren Avenue Congregational church and each will be trimmed with a lighted candle. At both 5 o'clock and 8 o'clock this evening the Rev. Charles Hoskinson will tell his congregation a Christmas story. The music accompaniment will be provided by Mrs. Ada Beth Lee, soloist; William Lee, choir director, and Miss Martha Carlson, organist. The quartet is composed of Ray Stacker, tenor; Hugh Crerar, bass; Mrs. Wilma Brady, soprano, and Mrs. Ann Silver, contralto.

The acolytes for both the 5 o'clock "Fiat Lux" program and the "Why the Chimes Rang" story at 8 o'clock will be Miss Jean Foster and Miss Gertrude Anderson.

The Herzl Junior college Girls' Glee club will be featured at 7:45 o'clock this evening in a Christmas music skit at the Austin Presbyterian church, Waller avenue and Fulton street. The soloists of the evening will be Annette Shier, Hadassah Linderman, Maizie Alder, and Anita Traynor.

The choir of the Austin Methodist church will present "The Star of Hope" by Catherine Bennett at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening. Ward Solberg will be the narrator and Delia Marshall the soprano. Others in the cast are Earl Bichel, Ernst Budde, Maldwyn Jones, Margaret F. Christy, Ruth Bellinger, Rhoda Gipson, Roberta Holmer, Ral Sturges, and Don Lathrope.

Jackson. The organist will be Esther Timmermann, and Dorothy Jackson, pianist. Vocal soloists will be Doris Brach, Elaine Miller, Jeannette Mohr, Margaret Parish, Gertrude Schaefer, and Hans J. Tenney as director of music at New First church. Soloists will be Margaret Lester, soprano; Lucy Hartman Delano, contralto; Walter Boydston, tenor, and Luke Gask, bass, with Dr. William Lester at the organ. The New First choirs will be augmented for this performance by members of the Austin Choral club, the combined forces numbering 200 singers.

St. Martin's Episcopal church, Midway Park and Waller avenue, will hold Christmas eve services beginning at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. Holy communion will be celebrated at 10 o'clock Christmas morning and the altar guild, under the direction of Miss Edith Hand, has planned on decorating the church exemplifying the Spirit of Christmas.

The Christmas story in song and pageant will be presented at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the First Church of the Brethren, Congress street and Central Park avenue.

RALLY CIVILIANS TO ENROLL FOR DEFENSE DUTIES

Suburb Leaders Assign Emergency Tasks.

With grim determination, leaders in the west suburbs have set about to organize for civilian defense.

"Modern warfare is no respecter of populations and distances," proclaimed Mayor Anton Janura of Berwyn. "We are organizing our civilian defense as our first duty in protecting our community and our nation. The object of civilian defense is that every citizen shall know what to do to promote the national defense, and how to act in emergencies.

"For this reason we are rallying all citizens to enroll in the civilian defense organization in our community. Thru this organization, civilians will be assigned to definite emergency tasks, and given special training so that whenever an emergency strikes us, we shall know what to do."

Ivan C. Nicholas has been appointed Berwyn defense coördinator. Chief of Police Joseph Pilat and four of his force already have been taking technical training at a school of the FBI. He is working on problems connected with air raid alarms. Fire Chief James Hrach has ordered all firemen to be call at all times and directed them not to leave the city without permission.

Asks Brookfield Support.

The proclamation issued by Charles W. Horak, president of Brookfield, earnestly enjoins all residents of the village to assist those who are fighting "our fight as well as their own, by every means in our power, by the purchase of defense bonds, the paying of added tax burdens without complaint and by contributions to all worthwhile war efforts."

At a preliminary meeting, Al Freitag, past commander of Edward Feely post, was chosen director of the Brookfield defense council, of which Capt. H. C. Crosley of the Brookfield police department, is coördinator. Capt. Crosby said that registration of all men and women, 16 to 60, would be one of the first objectives of the council.

George Brooks, president of La Grange, said it was obvious that La Grange and La Grange Park and the American Legion should work as a single unit in the emergency. A statement from Roy H. Webb, commander of La Grange post, reads:

"We of the American Legion rejoice in the steadfastness and patriotism of the young men who are so nobly responding to the call of our republic.

Proud of Soldiers.

"Almost 25 years ago, we of La Grange post, in company with more than four million of our fellow citizens, became actively engaged in a great struggle for the preservation of those ideals which have once again been subjected to the threat of extermination. We are proud of you who today are serving in the armed forces of this nation, and we give you who are about to enter into service our ardent applause.

"Our prayers shall be for you, and we look forward to that day when honorable and glorious peace shall come, and we may welcome you back to a richly deserved place as defenders of your and our homeland."

Thru activities of Mayor Tom Collis Jr., and the committee of which he is coördinator, Forest Park has been prepared for an emergency since late in the summer. Edward L. Bassey is chairman for the group. Moves to meet the situation since the starting of the war include the order by Police Chief Fred Licht canceling all days off for policemen until further notice, complete check of industrial water mains, and a conference of physicians, nurses, and transportation managers. Mayor Collis said he felt gratified that the village's two way police radio had recently been placed in operation.

Members of a civilian defense committee appointed by President F. H. McElhone of Hinsdale are Harold T. Moore, chairman; Jack De Rosa, secretary; Richard Schweidler, health and safety; R. S. Hopkins assisted by L. N. Sizer, mobile equipment; Frank W. Martin, village power plant; C. W. Cassell, registration and defense activity among children; R. A. Peet, registation of adult defense worker volunteers; Henry J. Domianus, fire defense; Ellis W. Test, plan commission; Henry Pullman, police defense; C. D. F. Merrill, American Legion, and D. E. Huntington, public information.

President McElhone said the idea was to organize the nucleus of a defense group and assign duties so that in time of a possible emergency the village will be prepared to act swiftly and with no lost motion.

To Register Volunteers.

In Oak Park, facilities for registering volunteers for civilian defense work has been set up in the new Red Cross headquarters at Oak Park avenue and Lake street. President Robert F. McMaster has been appointed defense director.

Police and fire department vacations have been canceled. The committee will work in coöperation with, and under the direction of, municipal officials as follows:

Name Coördinator.

Col. Robert Wigglesworth, chief of police of Melrose Park, was appointed coördinator for the village at a meeting of representatives of local industries, civic clubs, lodges, educational institutions, and the chamber of commerce called by President Andy Frenzel.

Col. Wigglesworth appointed the following committee chairmen: Lieut. W. E. May, police; A. J. Prignano, fire; Albert W. Lewis, public works; Lester Allen, utilities; Arthur P. Matters, maintenance of all vital services; William Collessi, public relations, and Dr. George Shockey, medical.

Enrollment forms have been made available at police headquarters. Citizens have been asked to enroll for types of service that include civilian protection; programs of unity, special services for men in uniform, education, and a clean up campaign.

Council in Maywood.

The Maywood Civilian Defense council created by action of the village board is headed by Earl K. Broberg, village president. Harvey G. Meyer who has been selected coördinator has as members of his committee Richard E. Hayes, John D. Senne, E. R. Sifert, Henry L. Warner, and Roy O. Williams.

Committee chairmen and vice chairmen selected to assist in forming, directing and instructing the emergency group are David Owen, chairman, and Otto W. McCulloch, vice chairman, police; George Miller, chairman, and Arthur Widell, vice chairman, fire; Dr. A. R. Morrison, chairman, and Dr. James B. Waddell, vice chairman, medical; William Barber, chairman, and D. T. Waby, vice chairman, utilities; Frank Cantore, chairman, and F. H. Ruhuke, vice chairman, public works; Thomas B. McCarthy, chairman, and Theodore Groenke, vice chairman, maintenance of vital services, and O. H. Peterson, chairman, and the Rev. R. A. Harris, vice chairman, education and morale.

Plans are being made for setting up 30 districts within the village with a captain and lieutenant in charge of each.

CIGARET DRIVE FOR VETERANS TO PASS GOAL

As the result of its annual cigaret drive, Cicero post of the American Legion expects to pass its goal of 2,500 cartons of smokes for hospitalized veterans by Christmas eve.

The post's first cigaret drive in 1934 under the chairmanship of Robert Valha netted 400 cartons. Since then as high as 5,000 cartons have been obtained in the drive at Christmas time in conjunction with radio station WHFC. Facilities of the station owned by Legionnaire Richard W. Hoffman are donated to the cause.

Past Commander Joseph S. Kral, drive chairman, said the goal of 2,500 cartons was set this year in order to coöperate with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Veterans of Foreign Wars in their drives of a similar nature.

HAS CHRISTMAS TREE ORNAMENTS DATING TO 1825

West Side Woman Owner of Large Collection.

Tucked away in everybody's memory and almost every one's attic are Christmas tree balls and bells, tinsel, and cotten angels. Mrs. Agnes Sasscier, 46 North Menard avenue, has found in a study and collection of Christmas tree ornaments a history of America and, in part, the story of our changing economy.

Mrs. Sasscier, 46 North Menard avenue, is a collector of many items. She has ancient and amorous valentines, a collection of Louisa M. Alcott first editions, a variety of ancient ink wells, a collection of decorated tin.

Writes for Magazines.

She has written a dozen articles for hobby and antique magazines and in one December issue her Christmas tree ornaments were used as illustrations. Mrs. Sasscier's oldest tree ornaments date back to 1825.

Several items from Mrs. Sasscier's collection are on display in the foyer of the Chicago public library as a complement to the holiday decorations prepared by library employés.

The story of Christmas tree ornaments begins in America with the arrival of Bohemian and Moravian immigrants. They introduced the idea of the Yule tree into Pennsylvania. An old daguerretype made about 1840 shows a domestic interior with two decorated trees in the room.

The earliest trees in America, according to Mrs. Sasscier, were trimmed with ground nuts, cornucopias filled with coriander seeds, little blown glass candle cups, sugar plums, and marzipan. Marzipan was a German fancy cake made of almond paste, corn meal, flour, and glue. Mrs. Sasscier has one of the original rolling pins used to make the marzipan.

Ornaments Made by Family.

Some of the oldest tree ornaments in Mrs. Sasscier's collection are bunches of grapes, ears of corn, and other edibles made from blown glass to resemble the first tree trimmings which could be eaten. The blown glass ornaments were made by farmers or glass workers in their slack season. The entire family would blow the ornaments in their home.

By 1850 there was used unglazed porcelain, doves, cherubs, and puppets made of cotton and paper. Many ornaments were made from hard wax. By 1890 the marzipan cakes had given way entirely to gaily colored cards with silk fringe. Then the 5 and 10 merchant began to import ornaments from Germany.

Until World war I. Christmas tree ornaments of all varieties came from Germany. In some the colors were delicate pastels and gold and silver.

Japanese Take Over.

After the war the German-made ornaments were gone and Japan took up the industry. The colors of Japan-made ornaments are harsher. The German angels were imitated and tinsel was kept on the American Christmas tree. For two years now Christmas tree ornaments have been American made.

Mrs. Sasscier has found her old ornaments in friends' attics and some were gifts from relatives. She has paid as high as $3 to get the old bells with clappers and the tiny birds with feathers in their tails.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Robert C. Koeber.

Robert C. Koeber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Koeber, 3012 Washington boulevard, former aviation cadet at the army air base, Albuquerque, N. M., has been commissioned as a second lieutenant in the air corps. He is a graduate of Crane Technical High school and Knox college, where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi national fraternity. Koeber took his primary training in aerial photography at Lowry Field, Colo., and then was assigned to the 38th reconnaissance squadron.

One of the men at the field artillery training center at Fort Sill, Okla., who is now tooting his horn for Uncle Sam instead of for a big time orchestra is Louis Soldat of Berwyn. He played for nearly two years with Harry James' orchestra as first trumpeter and was studying music in New York at the time of his induction last October.

The other two big time orchestra players in the same camp who make up a trio with Soldat are Charles Vance of Centralia, Ill., who has played with Jan Garber and Ted Weems, and Ned Yeagley of Defiance, O., who has played with Don Bestor and several others.

John A. Miner, 1515 North Massasoit avenue, has just completed a course of instruction in radio repair at the signal corps school of Fort Monmouth, N. J. He is the son of Arthur C. Miner and was employed by a photopress company as a film stripper before he entered the army.

Thirteen weeks of basic medical training in Camp Grant was completed recently by Thaddeus J. Rudnicki, 846 North California avenue.

DEAR GEORGE—Do you think it wise to put off any longer this business of finding a good, late-model car? Frankly I do not see the sense in delaying. Now is undoubtedly the time to get yourself a good backlog of miles which may not be available later, certainly not on such excellent terms. To find a large selection of good-looking late-models, follow the Tribune want ad section which prints more Used Autos for Sale want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper. I feel sure that you will see the reasonableness of this position and that I may expect some action from you, but soon! Thanks and regards, Yours, George.

You can buy him a successful future!

To a large extent your son's future pivots on the opportunities you are able to give him. But advantages for the young take money. If you want to make more money in your present job or in a better one, specialized training can help you. To get ahead faster, start now on one of the regular or short courses of training offered in the Trade Schools, Instruction, Musical and Dramatic, and Dressmaking and Millinery Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section.

Gold in your belfry?

Well—attic, then. And if not gold, something just as good. What about the bicycle Junior outgrew? And the electric train? Or the old porch furniture? Or that highboy you no longer use? Lots of people want them and will pay for them with cash or other useful articles. Investigate at once! And review the offers in the Barter & Exchange column.

Because want ad users get better results, they place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

WAR GIVES NEW NOTES TO YULE RADIO PROGRAMS

What to Tell Children of War, Forum Topic.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Christmas programs will fill the air this week. There will be numerous carol programs and many other programs with a joyous holiday note. But this year there will be few of the special Christmas broadcasts picked up from abroad by the networks. The only program coming from Bethlehem this year will originate in Bethlehem, Pa. The Bethlehem where Jesus was born this year is in the near east war zone.

Typical of the altered tone of Christmas broadcasts this year will be the presentation of the Northwestern Reviewing stand at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and Mutual.

The subject for discussion is "What Shall We Teach Our Children About the War This Christmas?" The speakers are to be three outstanding workers among children and young people: Dr. Paul J. Misner, superintendent of schools at Glencoe; Dr. Kenneth Heaton of the Northwestern university school of education, and Helen Ross, lecturer in psychoanalysis at the University of Chicago.

Good Fellows on Air.

The sixth annual Good Fellow choral program by a combined high school choir of 500 voices will be heard over W-G-N and W59C from 4:15 to 4:30 tomorrow as they sing in Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building. Students from Farragut, Lindblom, Steinmetz, and Waller high schools and Wright Junior college will sing familiar carols.

Christmas carol programs will be aired over W59C and from the amplifiers on Tribune Tower every evening from 5 to 6 p. m. These programs, featuring church choral groups, will be heard in part over W-G-N and Mutual. Details will be given daily in THE TRIBUNE.

Christmas Carol on W-G-N.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" will be broadcast on W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. from tomorrow thru Friday. The dramas will be continued in five daily instalments.

Tomorrow W-G-N and Mutual will present the first program of the new musical series, "Music That Endures." The W-G-N Symphonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, and Attilio Baggiore will be featured in special seasonal music. This program will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Tuesday will find W-G-N continuing its Christmas schedule. The Great Artist series will have a special dramatization of the painting of the "Adoration of the Magi."

Christmas music from around the world—hymns, carols, and traditional sprightly yuletide numbers—will give a realistic seasonal tone to the Northeners' program at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday. Harry S. Walsh will direct the octet.

Double Feature Broadcast.

A Christmas Eve double-feature broadcast will be presented Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen from the Chicago Service Men's center. A half hour musical show starring Marion Claire and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra will begin at 8:30 and the quiz show, "Shoot the Works," will be aired from 9:30 to 10.

Miss Claire's portion of the double-feature broadcast will feature a special program of Christmas music. She will be accompanied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler. The program will present some well known Christmas melodies as well as some unusual, almost unknown, but beautiful songs that have been passed down from Christmas celebrations of many years ago.

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" will be the theme melody of the program while other selections include: Bach's "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring," by the chorus and orchestra; "Hail Ye Time of Holiday," by the chorus and orchestra; "Madonna's Lullaby," by Miss Claire; "Dance of the Tumblers," by the orchestra; "Here a Torch," by the chorus; "Madrigal," by Miss Claire and the quartet; "Night Before Christmas," by Miss Claire; and "Humperdinck," by the chorus and orchestra.

Cash for Service Men.

At 9:30 p. m. the service men's attention will be centered on Marvin Mueller, quizmaster for the "Shoot the Works" audience quiz show. Announcers Jess Kirkpatrick and Guy Savage will travel thru the audience selecting contestants at random and Mueller will fire his questions from the stage.

Two programs of Christmas music will be broadcast on the Perfectionist's hour on W59C from 9 to 10 p. m. on Wednesday and Christmas night. The Christmas eve program will be devoted exclusively to carols; the Dec. 25 broadcast will present symphony orchestras in some of the best known music associated with the Christmas season.

President Roosevelt will be heard over the major networks in connection with the lighting of the National Community Christmas tree in Washington at 4 p. m. next Wednesday. Choral groups will sing and the United States Marine band will play.

NBC Yule Programs.

Special Christmas programs on NBC will include:

The Contended hour will give a Christmas party for 350 underprivileged youngsters on WMAQ-NBC at 9 p. m. tomorrow. The youngsters will be studio guests and will receive gifts.

A special Christmas program from Bethlehem, Pa., at 8 p. m. Wednesday over WENR-NBC will portray dramatically the founding of this city 200 years ago by the Moravian church.

The NBC Symphony orchestra at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday over WMAQ will present the "Nutcracker Suite," associated with the holiday celebrations.

Lionel Barrymore will give his annual reading of Dickens' Scrooge in his Christmas Carol at 9 o'clock Christmas night on the Rudy Vallee hour on WMAQ-NBC.

Christmas on CBS.

Holiday features on WBBM-CBS include:

The Columbia Workshop at 7 tonight will present "Miracle in Manhattan," a Christmas play by Charles Vanda.

At 2:30 p. m. Wednesday "The Night Before Christmas," with Nila Mack as director, will be aired.

Gregorian chants by monks from St. Meinrad seminary in Indiana will be aired at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Sir Thomas Beecham will conduct the Columbia Symphony orchestra in a carol program at 11:05 p. m. Wednesday.

In a special program, "Christmas in the New World," at 10 p. m. Christmas night, CBS will bring in Montreal, Buenos Aires, and Rio de Janeiro for contrasting glimpses of the holiday.

Citizens of Tomorrow Guests

When the Citizens of Tomorrow program was recorded last Wednesday leading players in the Harold Teen cast were guests. Left to right: Bob Jellison, who plays Jimmy on the Citizens' show; Beryl Vaughan (Jerry), Loretta Poynton (Lillums), and Charles Flynn (Harold Teen). For today only the Citizens of Tomorrow will be broadcast at 10:30 a. m. on W-G-N.

Marion Claire Record Album Just Released

An album of three records by Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the Chicago Theater of the Air, has just been released by Victor featuring six songs from operettas that have been given on the Theater of the Air broadcasts heard from 8 to 9 every Saturday night on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Musical background for the recordings was supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the W-G-N chorus directed by Robert Trendler. The album is made up of three recordings of six tunes, handsomely bound, with a cover bearing a picture of Miss Claire.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN TO BE FEATURED IN FM CONCERT SERIES

William Franklin, the first Negro to sing with a major operatic organization, will start a new series of programs on W59C, W-G-N's frequency modulated station, tonight. Franklin's baritone voice will be heard by W59C listeners from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. every Sunday. The Studio Salon orchestra under the direction of Harry Sukman will be heard with him each week.

William Franklin.

Franklin has won acclaim from many music critics. Cecil Smith of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE called him "undeniably one of the best Negro baritones before the public."

Franklin tonight will sing: "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," "Sweet Little Jesus Boy," two songs in tune with the Christmas season, and "The Hills of Home."

MAYOR KELLY TO DISCUSS CIVILIAN DEFENSE TODAY

Mayor Kelly, speaking as coördinator for civilian defense in the Chicago area, will be heard over W-G-N and other local stations from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. today. Mayor Kelly will be introduced by Alan Scott, W-G-N news commentator, who has been appointed deputy coördinator in charge of the radio division. The mayor will seek to answer questions the public may have about what they can do to help.

Lansing Hatfield Sings with Kostelanetz Today

Lansing Hatfield, baritone from Virginia, will sing two of the world's most beloved Christmas carols when he makes his second appearance of the season as guest of André Kostelanetz and Albert Spalding at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. The carols are "Silent Night" and "Adeste Fideles." Hatfield also sings "The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte. In addition, Kostelanetz directs the orchestra in "The First Noel," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear" [with chorus], "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

Christmas Programs Close Schools for Holiday Vacation

JEFFERSON SCHOOL

Christmas closed the geography and arithmetic books at Chicago public schools last week and the young scholars dressed themselves in all kinds of "let's pretend" costumes. Over at Jefferson school there was this living reminder of the "Old Woman in the Shoe." In the picture, left to right, Louise DePalma, Jean Galliano, and Luca Brandonisio.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Dec. 22.

A number of things must be considered if house plants are grown successfully. First, the soil must be moist but not saturated to the point that the roots cannot function properly. See that the ball of earth is moist thru and water when the soil needs it. The food supply must not be too generous or too little. Food should be given when the plant is in active condition and not when it is at rest.

Attempting to grow plants in too large containers should be avoided for too much soil is likely to result in over watering. Transplant when the pots are fairly filled with roots, but not rootbound. During the winter full light can be given most plants. Drafts and sudden changes in temperature should be avoided.

Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Begonias make fine house plants but they require close attention. Like all plants except desert plants, they require a humid atmosphere, which is not always possible to maintain in the home, but pans of water or specially constructed humidors to fasten to radiators can be used with good effect. Syringe about once a week to keep the foliage clean and free from dust.

Wash the leaves of plants like the rubber plant because its thick leaves are not injured from such treatment. Fresh air is essential, but be careful of sudden cooling of the temperature or drafts. Remember that plants are growing, living things and cannot endure in conditions that hinder their development.

Wednesday, Dec. 24.

It is difficult to regulate the temperature in the home, hence extra care is necessary when you are attempting to grow certain kinds of plants indoors. As an example, the cyclamen is a popular plant and likes cooler conditions than the begonia. The common date palm has narrow leaves, or leaflets, and will endure adverse conditions but it also likes a warm atmosphere.

Thursday, Dec. 25.

Viney plants that are growing in rooms should be kept trimmed back if they become long and unattractive. They may need repotting. The beautiful and dependable philodendron will do well in water alone for quite awhile or in a comparatively small container in half sand and peat mixed together. A little charcoal may be added; this tends to keep the soil sweet.

Many small plants are purchased as they stand in small but ornamental pots; these must be carefully watered because they often have no drainage hole and hence may become waterlogged.

Friday, Dec. 26.

Send for seed catalog and order seeds at once. Due to a shortage of many items, it is essential that extra care be exercised in conserving them.

Do not waste seeds, but sow thinly, giving each one an opportunity to develop properly.

Saturday, Dec. 27.

Altho the pruning of outdoor woody plants can be done from now until early spring, many gardeners prefer to get it over with as soon as possible. Grapes also may be pruned while dormant. However, few of the latter are grown in city or suburban gardens, but shrubs abound and many of them are sadly in need of attention.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

THEY MISS OWN YULE, BUT MAKE OTHERS HAPPY

Trainmen Must Forgo Holiday at Home.

A half hour later Jauch will arrive at the 27th street roundhouse of the Illinois Central. W. H. Goetz, 1342 East 76th street, will nod a welcome to the fireman. Goetz is engineer of the crew with which Jauch will serve.

Together the men will walk thru the roundhouse—past the circular row of engines, on which grease-covered men will be busily working. Out into the yard they walk, finally boarding their engine, which has just been brought from the roundhouse by a couple of hostlers, men whose job it is to see that the engines are turned on the roundhouse turntable and brought out into the yard for the engine crew to board. The engine is backed down the tracks to the Roosevelt road station.

Each to His Duties.

Jauch is in the engine tending the steam pressure and the stoker, which fires the boiler. The pressure must be kept at approximately 225 pounds per square inch. While the fireman inspects the many dials of the control board the engineer jumps from the cab and slowly walks around the engine, checking to see that the wheels and piston rods are in order.

"Hi, Joe," calls Francis O'Brien, assistant station master. O'Brien lives at 802 Dobson avenue. Jauch climbs from the cab to talk with him.

"I sure would like to be home today, eating that turkey with the folks—watching the kids open their presents," sighs O'Brien. "Mom and dad are coming over this morning." O'Brien's father, James, is the third oldest man on the Illinois Central's engineer board in point of seniority.

Watch for Signals.

"So long, O'B.," calls Jauch as he follows his engineer up into the engine cab. Both men lean out the windows to watch for the signals that will tell them to start.

"All aboard," shouts the conductor—and late passengers scramble to board the cars.

The engine puffs and hisses, the great driving wheels revolve, and the cars move slowly from the station. The train speeds thru Chicago, and the two men catch glimpses in nearby windows of families celebrating Christmas. Later the cars wind their way thru the suburban area. Little boys are trying their Christmas bicycles on slippery streets, and the fireman imagines the joy young Ronnie felt when he opened a package concealing a brand new electric train.

Kankakee and Return.

Most of the larger Illinois Central trains do not stop between Chicago and Kankakee; thus the crew's first chance to rest comes at that town, a little more than 50 miles from Chicago. A few hours' leave while their engine is moved from the southbound cars and connected with another Chicago bound train. Another crew on another engine will carry the cars headed for the southland.

The return trip seems even longer than the run from Chicago. Every turn of the wheels reminds the men that the engine is bearing them home. But night has already arrived. Dinner will surely be over, and the guests will be departing—but one happy thought is in the mind of each man as the engine speeds him toward his waiting family.

"Sure, we miss our Christmas at home, but we help other folks to get home to their families—and that makes us feel pretty good."

Plans Tea-Dance

Miss Mary Duggan, 16 North Mayfield avenue, is a member of the committee arranging the tea-dance which will be held by Gamma and Zeta chapters of Delta Kappa Chi sorority at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Graemere hotel.

YULE BASKETS TO HELP CHEER 1,000 FAMILIES

Christmas baskets for more than 1,000 families will be distributed Tuesday by the Cook county council of the American Legion auxiliary.

The baskets will be made up of 15,000 individual items of foodstuffs contributed to the project by those who attended a special presentation of the Morris B. Sachs amateur hour. Admission to the show was by cans or packages of nonperishable food.

DEFT CHANGES TRANSFORM OLD HOUSE INTO NEW

Home in Hinsdale Given Youth Treatment.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you have wondered what to do about an aging front porch that no longer does justice to your house, or what treatment to give a red brick fireplace that has grown a bit bleak and drab with the years; if you have debated with various family members over possibilities of small home improvements or large changes, you will find some interesting and practical answers to just such questions in a newly remodeled home at 552 York road, Hinsdale.

This five room home is now completely modernized, decorated and furnished, and open to the public during December. It is an excellent demonstration of how an aging house can be made young and very livable by the aid of a few deft and skilful changes. It is no drastic remodeling piece of work but the sort of project many people are hoping and planning to accomplish, the type of modernization which can change the personality of an existing house without any great structural changes or without any large outlay of money.

Lot Landscaped.

When modernization of this home started this fall the lot was landscaped and a heavy hedge across the front was removed and placed at the side. A new driveway was laid, brambles around the front porch were removed, and then the front porch and steps came off. These were replaced with new porch, steps, some neat pillars, and a new front driveway.

No other exterior changes were made but the house as well as the chimney were painted white.

In the original living room there was a fine old red brick fireplace, but the bricks needed cleaning and freshening, so it was decided to cover the brick. Then old lighting fixtures on the fireplace wall were ripped out and a mirror hung over the mantel. There are built-in bookcases at each side of the fireplace and gayly colored chintz curtains at the windows.

Kitchen Modernized.

The kitchen was troubled with a not uncommon ailment. It had more doors than it needed, so one door was blocked and a window built in its place. The kitchen was completely moderized. There's a blue and gray linoleum on the floor, Chinese red curtains with yellow figures at the window, and new sink, built-in cabinets, range, and refrigerator.

On the second floor there are two bedrooms and bath. The bath is tiled with dutsy pink wallpaper above tiling and blue and white striped curtains at the window.

In the master bedroom at the front the walls are papered a dusty pink above a wainscot of striped pink and white. The closet is carried out in pink and white, harmonizing with bedroom walls. There are Venetian blinds and drapes at the windows.

UNITED CHARITIES GIVE YULE PARTY IN CERMAK ROAD

The third annual Christmas party for 60 children in its health class will be given Tuesday afternoon by the United Charities of Chicago in the agency's west side office, 2118 Cermak road.

The annual party was started by Irving Salomon, a member of the United Charities board of directors, whose manufacturing plant was formerly located in the district. The party has become an important neighborhood event, with merchants of the district contributing refreshments and entertainment.

Mothers of the children are making decorations for the office and several toys have been contributed by former clients who are now independent. One of these residents formerly assisted by United Charities brought in doll cribs made from grape baskets.

Craftsmen Build Creche for Mission

NATIVITY SCENE BRIGHTENS NEAR WEST SIDE AREA

Labor Groups Donate Work to Mission.

A huge outdoor crèche will make its appearance on the near west side for the first time this year, the contribution of several labor organizations to the needy youth of the area. For the last week members of the Lathers and Plasterers' union of the Chicago Building Trades council have been building the Bethlehem scene for the Mission of our Lady of Mercy at 1140 Jackson boulevard.

The crèche will be more than eight feet high and 12 feet wide. The exterior surface will be modeled in the manner of the caves of the Brookfield zoo. The same men who built the natural habitat replicas at the zoölogical gardens and the 75 foot mountain at A Century of Progress exposition constructed the crèche under supervision of William Elliott and Andrew Aicker. George Moore of ahe lathers' union and Bryon Dalton of the plasterers' union made the necessary arrangements.

The Chicago Building Trades council went a step further in wishing a merry Christmas to the orphans and dependents of the mission. Patrick Sullivan, president of the council, and Earl McMahon, secretary-treasurer, presented a check for $310 to the director of the home, the Rev. Edward J. Kelly, and his assistant, the Rev. Joseph L. Donahue. Father Donahue was given a lifetime honorary membership in the lathers' union, local 74, having been a lather prior to making his decision to study for the priesthood.

The crèche is on display at the Jackson boulevard entrance to the orphan home. It will be blessed in an elaborate ceremony on Christmas eve just before the celebration of midnight mass in the chapel. Thru the evening the mission choristers will sing Christmas hymns.

APPEALS BOARD REFUSES PLEAS OF 43 DRAFTEES

Only Seven West Siders Win Deferment.

Seven west siders were granted deferment by the draft appeal board last week, while the appeals of 43 others were denied, it was disclosed by William H. King Jr., selective service administrator.

King's tabulation showed that for all of Cook county during the week, only 18 out of 154 cases acted upon, or about 12 per cent, resulted in deferments. This compares with 19 per cent in the previous week, and 30 per cent for the entire period since the draft began.

Robert Maxwell, 233 South Clinton avenue, was placed in Class 1 C when it was revealed he had enlisted in the navy.

Dependency deferments were granted to John Roberti, 1426 Polk street; Robert Berry, 1918 South Grove avenue, Berwyn, and Robert Sponhour, 1162 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park.

Two Classed as Students.

Raymond Costello, 5041 West End avenue, and Harold Maus, 3001 South Kedvale avenue, were given student classification. An occupational deferment was granted Louis Schloss, 323 North Pine avenue, an office manager and accountant.

Fourteen of the unsuccessful appellants claimed their wives as dependents. They were:

Anthony Caliendo, 2208 Polk street; Rubin Rein, 1516 South Ridgway avenue [who also listed his parents as dependents]; Rudolph Schragal, 536 Oakdale avenue; Edgar Bretag, 236 North Pine avenue; Charles Nelson, 506 North Parkside avenue; Arthur Stenberg, 449 North Waller avenue [who also listed his mother]; Harold Hill, 4203 Division street; John Watts, 5952 Fulton street; Charles Adams, 1550 South Christiana avenue; George Mazzone, 2225 Polk street [also listed mother and brother]; Robert Bernau, 2733 Flournoy street; Dan Apuzzo, 6128 Roosevelt road, Oak Park; Gordon Hoover, 3304 Clinton avenue, Berwyn, and Joseph Maes, 6316 Roosevelt road, Oak Park.

Cite Parents' Need.

Ten of the registrants asserted they were the principal supporters of their parents. They were: Anthony Leone, 4318 Cortez street; Clarence Laciak, 4855 Iowa street; Ben Cooper, 1536 South Millard avenue; Samuel Cooper, 1640 South Spaulding avenue; Harry Schwartz, 1542 South Millard avenue; Albert Siegal, 3603 Grenshaw street; Adrian Allen, 1515 West Monroe street; Clarence Nasierowski, 1809 West Race street [father only]; Milan Hrtanek, 1419 South 60th court, Cicero, and Bernard Thomas, 930 Home avenue, Oak Park.

Six who claimed their mothers as dependents were: David Siegel, 1221 South Avers avenue [also listed brother]; Walter Winter, 4742 Hubbard street; Charles Seefeldt, 5969 West Ohio street; Vytautas Klemka, 1426 South 49th avenue, Cicero; Charles Komarek, 5619 West 22d street, Cicero, and John Byszesky, 1618 South 59th court, Cicero.

Others and the dependents they claimed were: Morris Young, 4131 Washington boulevard; Raymond Nehmzow, 2621 South Kedvale avenue, brother, and Francis Sullivan, 3106 Arthington street, sister.

Fail in Job Pleas.

Five west siders unsuccessfully sought occupational deferments. They were: Jesse Ventura, 1032 South Peoria street, grocer; Joseph Bogolin, 2244 South Wolcott avenue, grinder apprentice; Frank Belle Jr., 1108 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, ordnance plant laborer; Gordon Pilz, 2316 North 75th avenue, Elmwood Park, manufacturing executive, and Chris Karrson, 122 West 147th street, Oak Park.

Three who were denied student classifications were: Valentine Leva, 1217 South Springfield avenue; Allin Yarwood, 725 Highland avenue, Oak Park, and Dwight Dawson, 332 Herrick road, Riverside.

Samuel Pryor, 5112 West Fulton street, and Patrick Savage, 4506 Wilcox street, sought deferment on physical grounds.

Three Ways to Help.

Only a few more days are left to join the Good Fellow drive which asks you to take a basket of food, toys, and candy to an unfortunate family on Christmas eve. There are three ways in which you can cooperate, explained by the Good Fellow coupon which appears in the metropolitan section. You can obtain the name of your Good Fellow family by calling Superior 0100 or visiting the Good Fellow bureau which is located in the Tribune Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street. All checks or money orders should be made out to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. [Good Fellow fund], and mailed to the bureau.

Tomorrow at noon the Fraternity Good Fellows, 500 strong, will hold its luncheon at the grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel and Tuesday morning at 10 oclock the Aviation Good Fellows will conduct their annual ceremony at the Chicago airport.

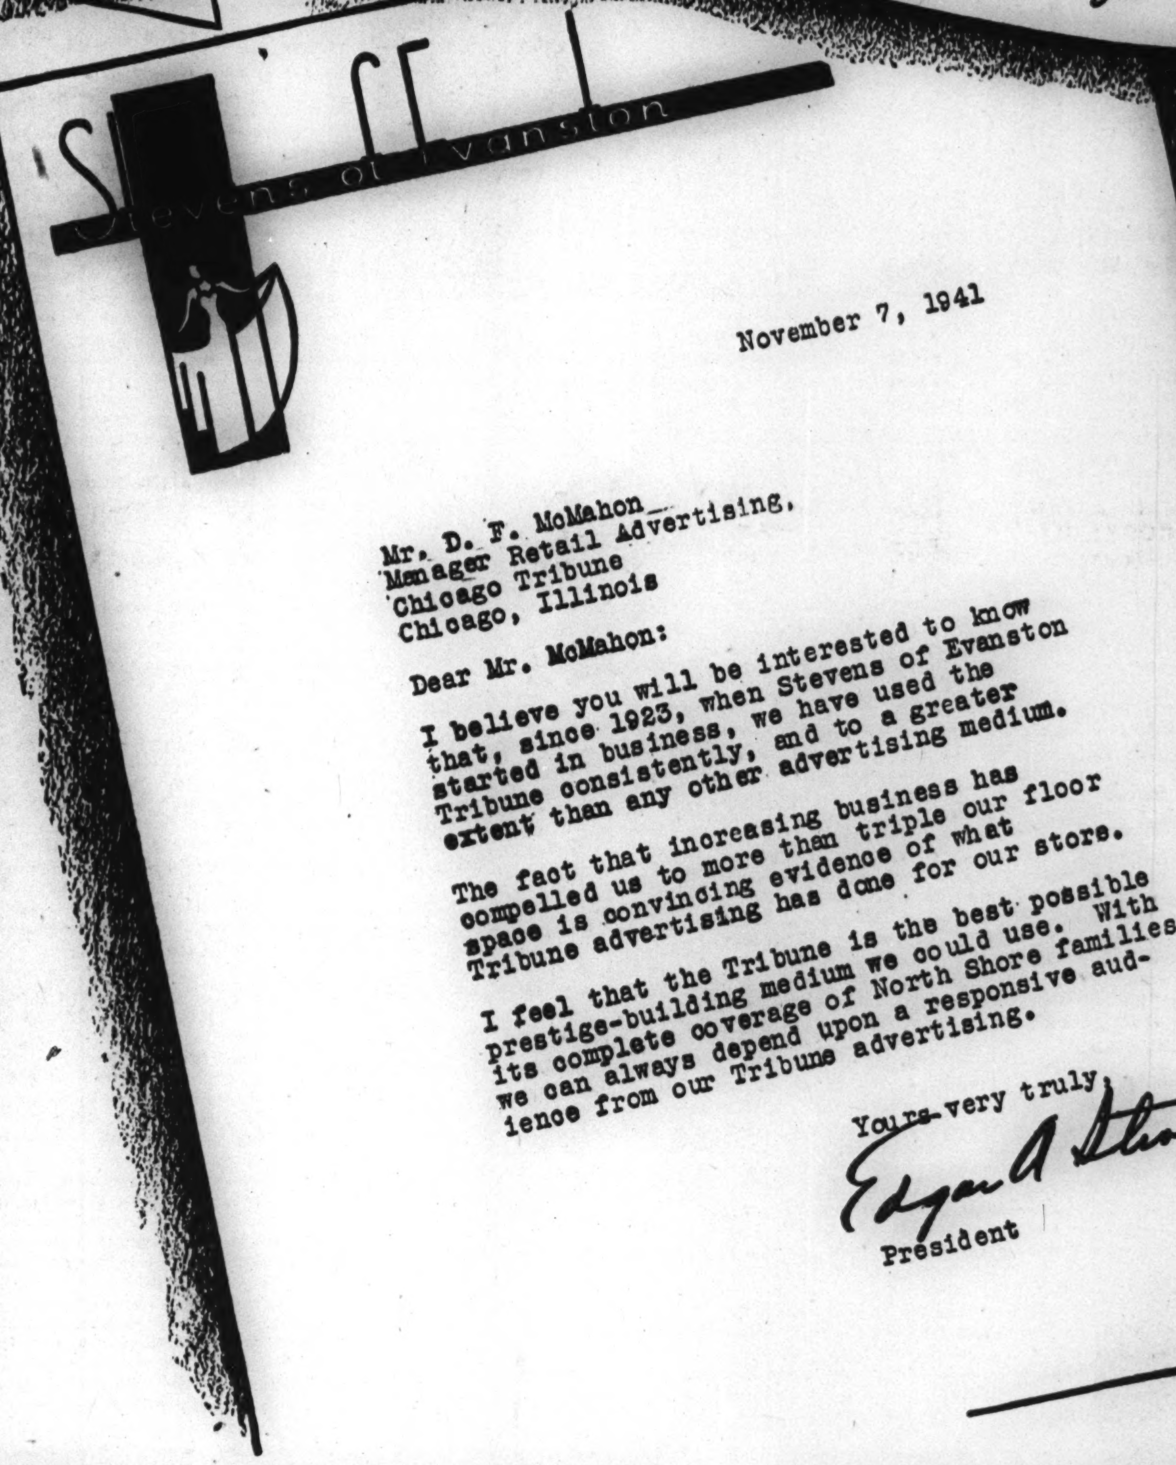
STEVENS of EVANSTON

"Convincing evidence of what Tribune advertising has done for our store"



Stevens of Evanston

November 7, 1941

Mr. D. F. McMahon
Manager Retail Advertising,
Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon:

I believe you will be interested to know that, since 1923, when Stevens of Evanston started in business, we have used the Tribune consistently, and to a greater extent than any other advertising medium.

The fact that increasing business has compelled us to more than triple our floor space is convincing evidence of what Tribune advertising has done for our store.

I feel that the Tribune is the best possible prestige-building medium we could use. With its complete coverage of North Shore families, we can always depend upon a responsive audience from our Tribune advertising.

Yours very truly,
Edgar A Stevens
President

FROM a yard goods store to one of the smartest women's apparel establishments in metropolitan Chicago—that's the story of Stevens of Evanston which, during all its eighteen years in business, has placed the preponderance of its advertising in the Chicago Tribune.

To build patronage, Stevens of Evanston shortly after its opening in 1923 began to advertise in the Daily Tribune.

With the launching of the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections in 1927, the store added the North Metro section to its schedule. On the basis of results, the store more than doubled its use of the Sunday Tribune in 1928.

Since that time, Stevens of Evanston has built its drive for business almost exclusively on advertising in the Metropolitan section of the Sunday Tribune. Since 1939, the store has used no advertising in any other Chicago newspaper—with the results reported by Mr. Stevens in the letter above.

Are you making the most of your opportunities for growth and bigger profits? Would you like more information about the low-cost, business-building force which the Metropolitan sections of the Sunday Tribune place at your disposal?

Last year 796 neighborhood merchants used the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections to solicit the patronage of the families best able to trade with them.

No matter what you are selling, you can sell more, at economical cost, with a consistent schedule of advertising addressed to the families who read the Metropolitan section edited for and circulated exclusively on your side of the city.

With higher industrial activity stepping up the buying power of the families in every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago, now is the time to ask a representative to show you how you can cash in to the full on your greater opportunities. Call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising.

THRONGS TO HEAR CHRISTMAS MUSIC

PORTRAIT OF A FAMILY OF TEN AWAITING YULE

Joyous Holiday for the Barrons.

BY PAUL HEALY.

This portrait of how a large south side family will celebrate Christmas this week was found in a snug bungalow at 9322 Colfax avenue. It is the home of William Barron, his wife, and eight lively little Barrons—one of the millions of units which make up the nation's backbone.

William Barron is a steel worker who labors in the South Chicago plant of the Carnegie-Illinois steel company. Realistic and self-reliant, he has no illusions about the world around him for he says he never was "in the money." Thus he plots the future of his brood and operates his budget with shrewdness. Mrs. Barron, a smiling, motherly woman, says he is indisputably the head of the house and she says it in admiration.

The Barron children are four boys and four girls between 4 and 14 years old. They are represented in nearly al; the grades at SS. Peter and Paul school, 91st street and Exchange avenue. Joan is in the 7th grade; Lovila, 6th; Wayne, 5th; Carol, 3d; Ronald, 2d, and Jack, 1st. Willene, the oldest, is a freshman in the parish high school and Edward, the youngest, stays at home.

Father Will Be Home.

The family's best Christmas present this year, they will tell you, is that daddy will be home. Fortunately, he had been given Wednesdays and Thursday off under the steel mill's 24 hour, seven day week schedule. This means that the traditional Yuletide routine in the house will not be disturbed.

As usual, after supper Wednesday evening the children will be put to bed early. After a few hours they will be awakened to scurry down to the living room where they'll find Santa Claus, looking as fat and jolly as ever. He always shows up Christmas eve with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith, of Hammond, old friends who have been appearing on the occasion for many years.

Each child will experience a minor crisis as he examines his gift and hurriedly tries it out. Somehow, after a bit, all will be persuaded to return to bed. Santa Claus and his friends will leave and Mr. and Mrs. Barron will set out for midnight mass, the only innovation in their routine this year.

See Strenuous Holiday.

A terrific holiday spirit will be in full swing all thru the next day, predicts Mrs. Barron, who admits she finds the ordinary weekday spirit around the house pretty strenuous. Highlight will be the sumptuous turkey dinner and by evening there will be eight well fed and sleepy children ready for bed.

"I always love the Christmas tradition better than anything during the year," says Mrs. Barron. "It's the

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

C. L. Jordan, superintendent of Joliet High schools, has been called up for active service in the United States Marine corps. Mr. Jordan, who served with the marines in the last war, held a captaincy in the Marine corps reserve. He came to Joliet in 1939 after serving as superintendent of the Streator and Waukegan High schools. He was born in Mount Carmel, Ill.

Joel A. Leach Jr., 7139 South Chicago avenue, recently was graduated from Kelly field, San Antonio, Tex. Joel, a former Tilden Technical High school student, was employed as a draftsman in a manufacturing company before enlisting. He is 22 years old.

Private First Class Jack Fleck, 6206 Ellis avenue, is the first soldier from the 124th field artillery, Battery B, to transfer to the air corps. Jack hopes to become an instructor in the aviation mechanics school. He is at Jefferson barracks, St. Louis, Mo., awaiting entrance to Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill.

Privates Raymond Paschall, 952 East 85th street; Walter Lusinski, 9122 Greenwood avenue, and Charles A. Lugton, 7202 Michigan avenue, recently won honors at Camp Roberts, Cal., firing the Colt .45 caliber revolver. Paschall won an expert's rating and Lusinski and Lugton achieved the level of marksman. Expert means at least 86 per cent and marksman 62 per cent. The percentages are based on a total number of points fired on ranges of 15 and 25 yards and at different speeds, including slow, quick and rapid fire.

George Burdo, of 1229 East 71st street, is stationed at Schofield barracks in Hawaii.

SERIES OF YULE PARTIES PLANNED BY ROYAL LEAGUE

The first of the Christmas parties to be sponsored by the Junior clubs of the Royal league will take place tomorrow evening at Marquette park fieldhouse, 67th street and Kedzie avenue.

The Richard Thompson Junior club will serve in a dual capacity during the program, acting as guests and participating in the presentation of the play, "A Christmas Eve Pilgrimage." In the lead rôles will be Bill Brucks, 7318 Perry avenue and Elsie Reger, 6534 Green street.

Mrs. Loretta Anderson, 6554 Seeley avenue, will supervise the staging of the play in which every member of the club will have a part.

Fort Dearborn Legion Post Offers Defense Services

John E. Devereaux, commander of the Fort Dearborn post of the American Legion, has announced the following resolution has been adopted by the post: "We endorse the action of the President and congress and offer the resources and facilities of the post in furthering the program of civilian defense." The post headquarters, said M. Devereaux, will be available for use as a meeting place for air raid instructions, for air raid wardens or for any other use.

Children Present Dramatic Version of Dickens' 'Christmas Carol'

"Here they come!" cries Tiny Tim, as he hears footsteps approaching and waits to see his father, Bob Cratchit. At this moment Martha Cratchit (Sandra Ruth Cordell, 6804 Merrill avenue) is about to run and hide in order to surprise her father. Their high spirits are refreshing to the dour Scrooge. Robert Ellis, 2402 East 77th street, is Tiny Tim in the Jack and Jill Players' production of the Dickens' "Christmas Carol." This scene, of course, takes place after Scrooge has learned about the Christmas spirit.

"In a dream, The Ghost of Christmas Past (Rae Jane Maxwell, 3010 Marquette road) has taken Scrooge (Jim Johnson, 6718 Paxton avenue) to look in on a Christmas party staged by the Fezziwigs, his former employer. Guests were drinking Christmas cheer and having a merry time, as Lois Jaeger, Calumet City; Greta Goldberg, 7038 East End avenue, and Joan Jaeger, Calumet City, seem to imply.

Next Scrooge is turned over to the Ghost of Christmas Present, as played by Therese Gregalunas, 2720 East 76th street. Scrooge is flabbergasted at the order to go to the Cratchit home for Christmas for little does he know how the Cratchit family will receive him.

Tiny Tim Cratchit was the only one who could soften up Scrooge. This is the way the Jack and Jill Players are interpreting the scene for club, school, church, and community groups.

250 CHILDREN WILL BE PARTY GUESTS TODAY

Beginning at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the Neighborhood Mothers' club will give a six hour party for 250 children at the Leo club house, 55th and Halsted streets. The club consists of residents in the area between 55th and 59th streets and Lowe and Union avenues who banded together for the purpose. Present will be Santa Claus and clowns with a variety of gifts, and refreshments. Some of the children will stage a talent show. Frank H. Ephraim, 5728 Lowe avenue, is toastmaster.

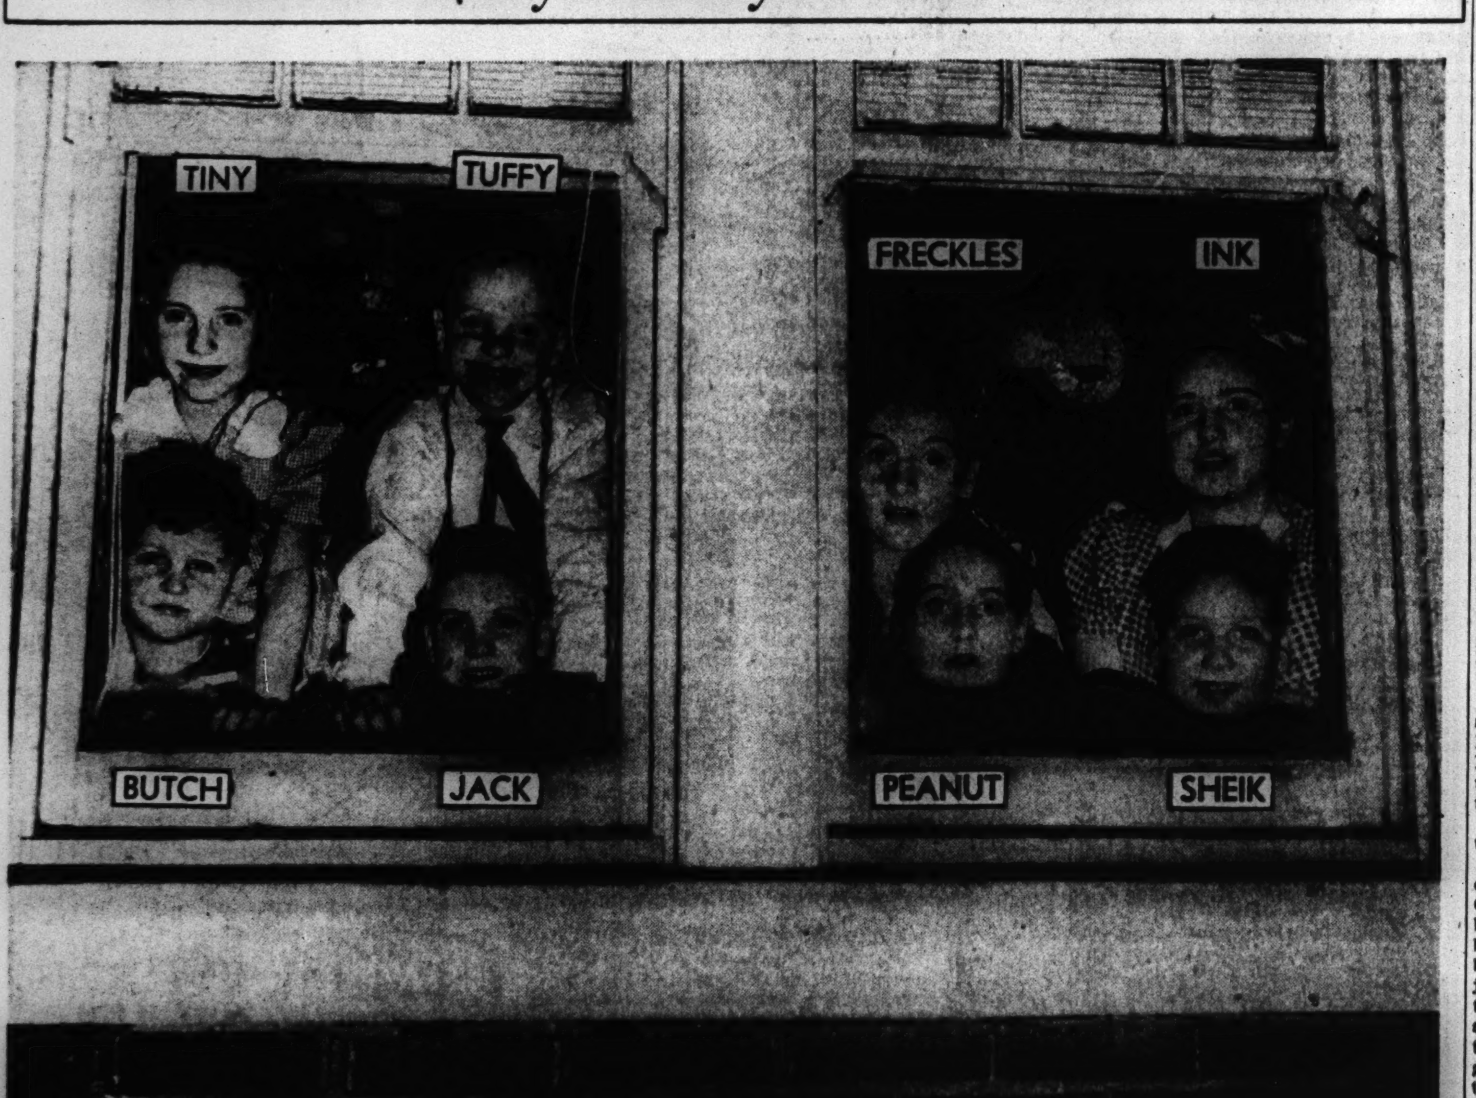
Leo High Mothers' Club Has Program Tomorrow

Christmas carols and a tableau will feature the regular meeting of the Leo High School Mothers club tomorrow afternoon in the school auditorium. The South Side Catholic Woman's club will present the carols and tableau. There also will be a skit by the Leo dramatic art club.

South Central Party.

The South Central office of the United Charities, 2959 Michigan avenue, will give a Christmas party Wednesday for all children in its nursery school. The party will be held in the coach house of the old Crane mansion, which is owned by the agency.

The Barron Family Is Ready for Santa Claus to Arrive



Santa Claus, here's the reception committee you'll find waiting for you Wednesday evening at 9322 Colfax avenue! They're the eight Barron children. Edward is "Butch," John is "Jack," Lovila is "Peanut," Wayne's the "Sheik," Carol is "Tiny," Ronald is the "Tuffy," Joan boasts of being "Freckles," and Willene is "Ink." Christmas eve in this household is something worth seeing, in the opinion of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Barron.

Railroad Men Make Others Happy at Yule

BY JUNE GESERICK.

"Let me speak to Joe, please." The voice of a caller is going to interrupt Christmas eve preparations in the Joseph I. Jauch home, 731 East 89th place.

Joe Jauch, a fireman for the Illinois Central railroad, is one of the many railroad men who will spend their Christmas running engines, unloading baggage, making up berths, or serving dinners for the thousands of Chicagoans and suburbanites who will be traveling to and from family gatherings in every part of the United States.

Mrs. Jauch; Robert, age 14; Virginia, 12; Ursula, 11, and Ronald, 7, are going to turn disappointed eyes to Dad Jauch as he hangs up the phone receiver.

Fun for the Family.

"Aw, never mind. We'll have lots of fun tonight and then you can save me some of that turkey—and a big piece of pie," Jauch will grin, attempting to dispel the gloom that has taken hold.

Long after the children have gone to bed—Ronnie to dream of Santa Claus—Mr. and Mrs. Jauch will sit in the kitchen—the table strewn with colorful paper and ribbons—wrapping gifts—gifts the opening of which dad will have to miss.

Early the next morning Jauch will prepare to leave the house. His wife, Margaret, will have risen to make ready a hearty breakfast of steaming coffee, bacon, and eggs. The day really starts when Jauch leaves his warm home, after bidding his wife to remember what Ronnie says when he opens a certain package, and goes into the cold—to a typical railroad Christmas.

Board the Engine.

A half hour later Jauch will arrive at the 27th street roundhouse of the Illinois Central. W. H. Goetz, 1342 East 76th street, will nod a welcome to the fireman. Goetz is engineer of the crew with which Jauch will serve.

Together the men will walk thru the roundhouse—past the circular row of engines, on which grease-covered men will be busily working. Out into the yard they walk, finally boarding their engine, which has just been brought from the roundhouse by a couple of hostlers, men whose job it is to see that the engines are turned on the roundhouse turntable and brought out into the yard for the engine crew to board. The engine is backed down the tracks to the Roosevelt road station.

The train flagman of the crew signals for Goetz to move the engine slowly backward until the rear of the engine is touching the front car of the train to which the crew has been assigned. The flagman sees that the automatic couplings are secure.

BUSINESS MEN SPONSOR CAROL SINGING CONTEST

A Christmas carol contest will be conducted in front of the Flamingo hotel this evening by the Fifty-Fifth Street Business Men's association. Silver cups will be presented to the best adult and juvenile singers.

The songs will be sung outdoors on the terrace facing the hotel. A public address system will carry the music several blocks. Each group must sing "Silent Night" in its program.

Among the earliest entries were the Tower Singers, a double quartet directed by R. J. Bailey; a quartet and a junior choir from the United Church of Hyde Park, directed by Mrs. Harry Kulle, and boys and girls choruses from Lindblom High school under the direction of Mrs. H. M. Rosenthal.

400 Children to Be Feted by Grand Crossing Center

Four hundred underprivileged children from nine public schools will be entertained at the fourth annual Christmas party sponsored by the Grand Crossing Community Aid center at 77th street and Ingleside avenue at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Daniel Foreman, director of the center, is general chairman, assisted by Mrs. Hugh Walker. Mrs. John Ott and Mrs. Cecil Ball are in charge of entertainment.

Bowen High Graduates Hold Reunion Saturday

A reunion of the Bowen High school class of January, 1940, will take place Saturday in the home of Joseph Piatkiewicz, 115 East 71st street. About 100 guests are expected to attend.

MIDNIGHT MASS, CAROLS TO TELL NATIVITY STORY

Many Churches Plan Candle Services.

South side churches will be bright with Christmas lights and music beginning today. The holiday season will reach its climax Wednesday evening and Thursday morning as the spiritual connotation of Dec. 25 is repeated thru sermons, playlets, candlelight processions, and hymns of the nativity. For the first time in many years Catholic churches will celebrate the coming of Christ with a solemn high mass at midnight Wednesday, as well as at noon Christmas day.

Typical of many south side Catholic churches is St. Philip Neri, 2132 East 72d street, which will have low masses Christmas morning in addition to the masses at midnight and noon. There will be masses at 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11 o'clock. The Rev. George Parker, pastor, will preach at the midnight and noon masses.

First Presbyterian Services.

Dr. Harold L. Bowman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, will preach on the theme, "Most Precious Are the Inner Gifts," at the Christmas worship service at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Special Christmas music by the church choir of 50 voices will include "Torches" [Prosser] and "And the Glory of the Lord" [Handel].

A Christmas pageant of the Holy Grail will be presented by First Church young people at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. A candlelight service will take place at 11:15 o'clock Christmas eve.

At the Windsor Park Evangelical Lutheran church, 76th street and Saginaw avenue, Christmas will be ushered in with a candlelight processional of the three vested choirs. Preceding this service there will be 20 minutes of music by Mrs. Ruth Blair at the organ and Miss Aileen Peters, harpist. Included in the musical program will be an organ number, "Christmas in Sicily" [Yon], "Lo, There Is Born a Savior" [Wilson] by the junior chorus, "Evening Star" [Wagner] on the harp, "The Morning Stars Sang Together" [Stevenson] by the senior choir, "The Infant Jesus" [Yon] by the King's Daughters, and carols. The Rev. Arthur H. Kaub, pastor, has announced that a second Christmas program will take place at 10:45 o'clock the next morning.

Carols at Midnight.

Christmas at St. Mark's church, 4427 Drexel boulevard, will begin at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday evening with carols by the choir, followed by a midnight service. Holy Communion will be distributed at 8 o'clock the next morning, and there will be a morning service at 10:30 o'clock. The Rev. William D. McLean is rector.

The Rev. Charles Yelton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, 2309 East 80th street, will give a sermon on the topic, "Is This Christmas?" at 11 o'clock this morning. He will discuss "The Garden of Christmas Happiness" at 7:45 o'clock this evening.

The Church of the Messiah, 83d street and Dante avenue, will have a service at 11 o'clock Christmas eve which will feature soloists Mary Jane Felicite and Marshall Batchelder. There will be a Holy Communion service at 10 o'clock Christmas morning. At 4:30 o'clock next Sunday the church will present "A Carol Service of Nine Lessons," the traditional portrayal of the Christmas gospel interspersed with modern and ancient carols under the direction of G. F. Austen. Soloists will be Irene Bolz, Marshall Batchelder, Florence Dowman, Iris Clarke Bain, and G. W. Vetter.

St. Petri Evangelical and Reformed church, 103d street and Avenue L, will have a candlelight and Holy Communion service at 6 o'clock Christmas morning with the regular holiday service four hours later. There will be a program by the church school at 7:30 o'clock the previous night. The Rev. Hans Jacoby is minister.

Two services will be held today by the Hyde Park Baptist church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue. There will be a special Christmas service at 11 o'clock in which the Rev. Rolland W. Schloerb will talk on the theme, "Where the Star Shone." The junior and senior choirs will sing. At 4:30 o'clock today there will be a Christmas pageant in song and story form. At 11 o'clock Christmas eve there will be another service.

The Immanuel Lutheran church of South Chicago, 9035 Houston avenue, is planning a children's program for 7 o'clock Christmas eve. The Christmas day services will take place at 9:30 and 10:45 o'clock in the morning. The Rev. W. C. A. Martens is minister.

Infant Class to Give Play.

"The Manger Service," a traditional Christmas play, will be presented by the infant class at St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Kenwood as part of the church school service at 3:30 o'clock Christmas eve. This will be followed by an organ recital and carol singing at 10:45 o'clock and a Holy Communion service at 11 o'clock. There also will be a communion service at 11 o'clock Christmas morning and a Variety of Entertainment to Mark Holiday.

Upward of 300,000 Chicago boys and girls will supplement their regular holiday schedule with Christmas parties sponsored by the park district during the next weeks. The most familiar figure at the parks will be Santa Claus, but other persons responsible for the great volume of candy, nuts, toys, and other gifts to be distributed are business men, civic leaders, and service organizations in the neighborhood. On the south side Yuletide parties will be given at Armour Square, Grand Crossing, Avalon, Bessemer, Calumet, Madden, Mann, Russell Square, Trumbull, Washington, and Tuley parks.

At Grand Crossing park the party will start at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. There will be carols by the park's civic music group, dance numbers, and specialty acts. kids that really make it worthwhile. I never had a whole lot but I'm content just watching the kids get their presents. They appreciate everything so. And I treasure the gifts they make for me at school."

Mr. Barron has earned a bigger income this year than he's had for a long time but he thinks the high cost of living will prevent the family from feeling it. The Barrons know thru experience how to get the maximum value from a dollar. Back in 1931 Mr. Barron worked only one or two days a week and even as late as 1940 he was on a four day week.

He Is Self-Reliant.

"But it's taught me one thing—to learn to do things myself," he laughs. "I still cut the kids' hair and sole their shoes. I also do the repair work on my car and take care of my own cleaning and decorating. Wayne has learned to tend the furnace but he can't build a fire yet."

In energy and capability, the children resemble their parents. The three oldest girls, their father points out, are "always practicing that sissy stuff," which means the taps, acrobatics and dramatics they study at Bessemer park. Mrs. Barron says the unbounded enthusiasm of the boys engaged in anything is almost frightening.

Both the Barrons have an American heritage. Mr. Barron, who was born in Oxford, Miss., is of Irish descent, tho his mother's family, which reaches far back into United States history, had a liberal dose of Indian blood. Mrs. Barron, a native of Chicago, is of German descent.

CALL OFF NEW YEAR FETE, GIVE FUND TO DEFENSE

There will be no New Year's eve party this year for the South Chicago Social club. In the belief that national defense is more important, the club has forwarded the $100 it usually spends on the party to President Roosevelt to be used in whatever branch the chief executive deems best.

"We felt that the burden of the present defense efforts should be shouldered by this generation and not future ones," said Superior Court Clerk Victor L. Schlaeger, who dispatched the check and a brief message to the White House. He is an honorary member.

Soon after becoming a sergeant, he topped the detective bureau efficiency list for a considerable period. His most celebrated exploit occurred March 25, 1922, when Tapscott shot a pistol from the hand of a robber who was about to shoot at him. For this act the sergeant received The Tribune $100 bravery award.

ST. MARK'S WILL DEDICATE NEW EDIFICE TODAY

Conducts Installation of Minister Also.

The new St. Mark's Lutheran church will be dedicated and its new pastor, the Rev. Martin E. Carlson, will be installed in a double ceremony at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The structure is located at 88th street and Langley avenue.

Dr. P. O. Bersell, president of the Lutheran Augustana synod of North America, will dedicate the church. Dr. Bersell, who is coming from Minneapolis, Minn., for the ceremony, also dedicated the original St. Mark's church 31 years ago. That was a little frame chapel at 720 East 91st place. Dr. Bersell will be assisted by Dr. O. A. Benson, president of the Illinois conference, and by pastors of the South Chicago district.

Gothic Architecture.

The church, which cost $28,000 and will seat 175 persons, is of Gothic design and suggests the small country parishes of England and Normandy. Above the entrance is a carved stone panel containing the winged lion, the symbol of St. Mark.

The church is built on a tripartite plan of nave, choir, and chancel, the focal point of which is a beautiful altar of silverdale limestone. Above the altar are three long, narrow windows of Graissle design.

Former Gary Pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Carlson, who arrived here on Nov. 1, had previously served as pastor of the Bethel Lutheran church of Gary for five years. The Rev. T. E. Matson, regional director for the board of home missions in this area and temporary pastor at St. Mark's for the last year, will preach on the theme, "This Temple Speaks," at a service of acknowledgment at 7:45 o'clock this evening.

RELICS OF POLISH PIONEERS SHOWN IN NEW EXHIBIT

The new exhibit at the South Chicago library, 9055 Houston avenue, includes relics of Polish pioneers in America and rare examples of Polish peasant art. The display was loaned by the Polish Roman Catholic Union museum, 984 North Milwaukee avenue.

Among the articles are a Polish primer published by John Barzynski in Chicago in 1878 and a Polish prayer book used by early Chicago settlers. The works of Cracow, Vilno, Liskow, Zegiestow, Lubin, Żabie, Zakopane, Koszyczek are featured in the peasant art collection.

Because Poles are the largest foreign language group in South Chicago, the library has its largest foreign collection in that language.

Railroad Families Have Own Christmas Schedules

THEY MISS OWN YULE, BUT MAKE OTHERS HAPPY

Trainmen Must Forgo Holiday at Home.

While Fireman Jauch gets up steam in the engine's stoker, train inspectors check the air brakes of each car to see that they are in good working order.

Each to His Duties.

Jauch is in the engine tending the steam pressure and the stoker, which fires the boiler. The pressure must be kept at approximately 225 pounds per square inch. While the fireman inspects the many dials of the control board the engineer jumps from the cab and slowly walks around the engine, checking to see that the wheels and piston rods are in order. [The mechanisms of each engine are inspected before the train leaves the roundhouse, but it seems to be traditional that engineers take a "check-up" walk around the engine.]

"Hi, Joe," calls Francis O'Brien, assistant station master. O'Brien lives at 802 Dobson avenue. Jauch climbs from the cab to talk with him.

"Cold, isn't it?" And both men pull their collars high around their necks.

"I sure would like to be home today, eating that turkey with the folks—watching the kids open their presents," sighs O'Brien. "Mom and dad are coming over this morning." O'Brien's father, James, is the third oldest man on the Illinois Central's engineer board in point of seniority.

Watch for Signals.

"So long, O'B.," calls Jauch as he follows his engineer up into the engine cab. Both men lean out the windows to watch for the signals that will tell them to start.

"All aboard," shouts the conductor —and late passengers scramble to board the cars.

The engine puffs and hisses, the great driving wheels revolve, and the cars move slowly from the station. The train speeds thru Chicago, and the two men catch glimpses in nearby windows of families celebrating Christmas. Later the cars wind their way thru the suburban area. Little boys are trying their Christmas bicycles on slippery streets, and the fireman imagines the joy young Ronnie felt when he opened a package concealing a brand new electric train.

Kankakee and Return.

Most of the larger Illinois Central trains do not stop between Chicago and Kankakee, thus the crew's first chance to rest comes at that town, a little more than 50 miles from Chicago. A few hours' leave while their engine is moved from the southbound cars and connected with another Chicago bound train. Another crew on another engine will carry the cars headed for the southland.

After washing some of the coal dust from their faces the men head for a nearby lunchroom. Hot coffee, soup, and a filling main dish warm the men after their cold run. The proprietor joins members of the crew in their discussions. Most of the talk is interrupted by frequent guesses as to what the "folks at home are doing now."

Engineer Goetz wonders what his 13 year old grandson, Kenneth, will think of a certain gift. The conductor is worried about the possibility of his wife not liking his selection of a lamp for her Christmas gift. Every one keeps his eyes on the lunchroom clock—anxious to get started toward home—and family.

Make Others Happy.

The return trip seems even longer than the run from Chicago. Every turn of the wheels reminds the men that the engine is bearing them home. But night has already arrived. Dinner will surely be over, and the guests will be departing—but one happy thought is in the mind of each man as the engine speeds him toward his waiting family.

"Sure, we miss our Christmas at home, but we help other folks to get home to their families—and that makes us feel pretty good."

HOLIDAY SEASON IN FULL SWING AT STEEL PLANT

Employes and Families Are Party Guests.

The Good Fellow club of the Carnegie-Illinois South Works steel plant is busier than ever this year. In addition to the Christmas parties sponsored for members and their children, the club will distribute holiday packages to 600 employés drafted into the nation's armed forces. Executives of the plant, headed by B. M. Livezey, superintendent, pooled their money to purchase the gifts for soldiers and sailors.

The Good Fellow carolers, who began their annual tour last week, will continue to sing publicly until Wednesday evening. Tuesday they will visit other industries, banks, hospitals, and fire department stations in South Chicago. The singers are employés who appear in costume under the sponsorship of the club, which was organized by the workers as a social and philanthropic unit.

As usual the club also will distribute baskets to families of employés and other needy families in the community.

To Distribute Wreaths.

South Works will have its annual wreath day and tree lighting ceremony tomorrow when Mr. Livezey goes thru the plant and passes out wreaths to the various departments. Trees are then lighted by floodlights at 83d and 89th streets. The supervisors' party will take place Tuesday noon in the Luncheon club. About 130 are expected to attend.

In Carnegie-Illinois' Gary plant the Good Fellow club will give children's parties Friday, and Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Dec. 29, 30, and 31 at a Gary theater. The club also will distribute about 250 Christmas baskets to needy families.

There also will be a children's party in the Gary welfare center Wednesday, a party for employés in the Lake County Tuberculosis sanitarium Tuesday, and special events planned for employés who are in Mercy hospital.

Carolers to Be Busy.

The Good Fellow Carolers will be heard in schools, hospitals, welfare centers, city halls, courthouses, banks, fire and police stations, churches, sanitariums, and plant departments.

A diorama of The Nativity, with a life size figure set on the lawn in front of the accounting department building, is expected to attract thousands of persons. It will be lighted at night.

The company's sheet and tin mill in Gary will display a 44 foot Christmas tree with 2,463 lights and 43 light changes.

Feliciteens Meeting.

The next meeting of the "Feliciteens," scheduled for tomorrow evening, will feature a short business meeting, a dramatization of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," and an informal and an formal dance.

COL. M'CORMICK TO SPEAK ON BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG

Special Program Will Be Aired Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in a special program from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday, will speak on "The Battle of Gettysburg." The program will be aired over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system during the regular Chicago Theater of the Air hour.

Specially arranged patriotic music, to be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will be aired during this program. Miss Marion Claire will be the soloist.

Musical selections for the program include: "America Marches On," by the orchestra and chorus; a Civil war medley, "Dixie," "Tenting Tonight," "Battle Cry of Freedom," and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," to be sung by Miss Claire, Mr. Baggiore, and the orchestra, and "The Vacant Chair," by Miss Claire and chorus.

The next regular Theater of the Air program will be presented Saturday, Jan. 3, on W-G-N and Mutual when Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the operetta series and Jan Peerce are to be starred in "Eileen."

The new year will mark the beginning of the fourth month of operettas for the winter season. The program has attracted one of the largest audiences in radio and has millions of devoted listeners.

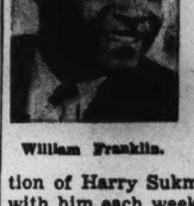
So faithful are some of the radio listeners that they have banded together in Chicago Theater of the Air clubs all over the country to listen every Saturday night to the operetta broadcasts. The club now has more than 200 chapters with 4,176 members in 43 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada.

The Theater of the Air is also conducting a $10,500 quest for a great American operetta and more than 1,000 persons, including some of the best known composers in the country, have entered. The winning operettas will be presented during the first three weeks of March.

'Christmas Carol' to Be Broadcast on Playhouse

Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol," will be broadcast in five instalments on W-G-N's Playhouse at 1:30 p. m. starting tomorrow. The central character in the dramatizations, Scrooge, the tight-fisted, grumpy miser, will be played by Edmund Gwenn, star of the stage and screen who is now playing in the Broadway production, "The Wookey." Supporting him will be a cast of experienced, top-ranking radio actors and actresses.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN TO BE FEATURED IN FM CONCERT SERIES



William Franklin.

William Franklin, the first Negro to sing with a major operatic organization, will start a new series of programs on W59C, W-G-N's frequency modulated station, tonight. Franklin's baritone voice will be heard by W59C listeners from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. every Sunday. The Studio Salon orchestra under the direction of Harry Sukman will be heard with him each week.

Franklin has won acclaim from many music critics. Cecil Smith of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE called him "undeniably one of the best Negro baritones before the public."

Franklin tonight will sing: "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," "Sweet Little Jesus Boy," two songs in tune with the Christmas season, and "The Hills of Home."

MAYOR KELLY TO DISCUSS CIVILIAN DEFENSE TODAY

Mayor Kelly, speaking as coördinator for civilian defense in the Chicago area, will be heard over W-G-N and other local stations from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. today. Mayor Kelly will be introduced by Alan Scott, W-G-N news commentator, who has been appointed deputy coördinator in charge of the radio division. The mayor will seek to answer questions the public may have about what they can do to help.

WAR GIVES NEW NOTES TO YULE RADIO PROGRAMS

What to Tell Children of War, Forum Topic.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Christmas programs will fill the air this week. There will be numerous carol programs and many other programs with a joyous holiday note. But this year there will be few of the special Christmas broadcasts picked up from abroad by the networks. The only program coming from Bethlehem this year will originate in Bethlehem, Pa. The Bethlehem where Jesus was born this year is in the near east war zone.

Typical of the altered tone of Christmas broadcasts this year will be the presentation of the Northwestern Reviewing stand at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and Mutual.

The subject for discussion is "What Shall We Teach Our Children About the War This Christmas?" The speakers are to be three outstanding workers among children and young people: Dr. Paul J. Misner, superintendent of schools at Glencoe; Dr. Kenneth Heaton of the Northwestern university school of education, and Helen Ross, lecturer in psychoanalysis at the University of Chicago.

Good Fellows on Air.

The sixth annual Good Fellow choral program by a combined high school choir of 500 voices will be heard over W-G-N and W59C from 4:15 to 4:30 tomorrow as they sing in Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building. Students from Farragut, Lindblom, Steinmetz, and Waller high schools and Wright Junior college will sing familiar carols.

Christmas carol programs will be aired over W59C and from the amplificers on Tribune Tower every evening from 5 to 6 p. m. These programs, featuring church choral groups, will be heard in part over W-G-N and Mutual. Details will be given daily in THE TRIBUNE.

Christmas Carol on W-G-N.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" will be broadcast on W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. from tomorrow thru Friday. The dramas will be continued in five daily instalments.

Tomorrow W-G-N and Mutual will present the first program of the new musical series, "Music That Endures." The W-G-N Symphonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, and Attilio Baggiore will be featured in special seasonal music. This program will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Tuesday will find W-G-N continuing its Christmas schedule. The Great Artist series will have a special dramatization of the painting of the "Adoration of the Magi."

The Northerners' Christmas.

Christmas music from around the world—hymns, carols, and traditional sprightly yuletide numbers—will give a realistic seasonal tone to the Northerners' program at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday. Harry S. Walsh will direct the octet, Lois Wallner, soprano soloist, the regular ensemble and the 50 voice Northern Trust employé chorus in a broadcast that will include one of the first Christmas carols sung in the United States. Helene Webb, the Northerners' arranger, has found a carol, "Twas in the Moon of Winter Time," which was first sung on Manhattan Island during the days of the settlers.

Lois Wallner's solo is Mozart's "Allelujah." The chorus will sing "Good Christian Men, Rejoice." After this will be heard a group of "Carols of the Americas"—Christmas songs of North and South America.

Double Feature Broadcast.

A Christmas Eve double-feature broadcast will be presented Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen from the Chicago Service Men's center. A half hour musical show starring Marion Claire and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra will begin at 8:30 and the quiz show, "Shoot the Works," will be aired from 9:30 to 10.

Miss Claire's portion of the double-feature broadcast will feature a special program of Christmas music. She will be accompanied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler. The program will present some well known Christmas melodies as well as some unusual, almost unknown, but beautiful songs that have been passed down from Christmas celebrations of many years ago.

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" will be the theme melody of the program while other selections include: Bach's "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring," by the chorus and orchestra; "Hail Ye Time of Holiday," by the chorus and orchestra; "Madonna's Lullaby," by Miss Claire; "Dance of the Tumblers," by the orchestra; "Here a Torch," by the chorus; "Madrigal," by Miss Claire and the quartet; "Night Before Christmas," by Miss Claire; and "Humperdinck," by the chorus and orchestra.

Cash for Service Men.

At 9:30 p. m. the service men's attention will be centered on Marvin Mueller, quizmaster for the "Shoot the Works" audience quiz show. Announcers Jess Kirkpatrick and Guy Savage will travel thru the audience selecting contestants at random and Mueller will fire his questions from the stage.

The questions are graded with degrees of difficulty ranging from $1 for the first correct answer to $32 awarded for the sixth correct answer. A contestant may stop anywhere along the question route and take his winnings or he may "Shoot the Works" and aim for the $32 top prize.

Two programs of Christmas music will be broadcast on the Perfectionist's hour on W59C from 9 to 10 p. m. on Wednesday and Christmas night. The Christmas eve program will be devoted exclusively to carols; the Dec. 25 broadcast will present symphony orchestras in some of the best known music associated with the Christmas season.

President Roosevelt will be heard over the major networks in connection with the lighting of the National Community Christmas tree in Washington at 4 p. m. next Wednesday. Choral groups will sing and the United States Marine band will play.

NBC Yule Programs.

Special Christmas programs on NBC will include:

The Contended hour will give a Christmas party for 350 underprivileged youngsters on WMAQ-NBC at 9 p. m. tomorrow. The youngsters will be studio guests and will receive gifts.

A special Christmas program from Bethlehem, Pa., at 8 p. m. Wednesday over WENR-NBC will portray dramatically the founding of this city 200 years ago by the Moravian church.

The NBC Symphony orchestra at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday over WMAQ will present the "Nutcracker Suite," associated with the holiday celebrations.

Lionel Barrymore will give his annual reading of Dickens' Scrooge in his Christmas Carol at 9 o'clock Christmas night on the Rudy Vallee hour on WMAQ-NBC.

Christmas on CBS.

Holiday features on WBBM-CBS include:

The Columbia Workshop at 7 tonight will present "Miracle in Manhattan," a Christmas play by Charles Vanda.

At 2:30 p. m. Wednesday "The Night Before Christmas," with Nila Mack as director, will be aired.

Gregorian chants by monks from St. Meinrad seminary in Indiana will be aired at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Sir Thomas Beecham will conduct the Columbia Symphony orchestra in a carol program at 11:05 p. m. Wednesday.

In a special program, "Christmas in the New World," at 10 p. m. Christmas night, CBS will bring in Montreal, Buenos Aires, and Rio de Janeiro for contrasting glimpses of the holiday.

Ready for Santa

Donna Reade, who plays the part of Vicky on W-G-N's Painted Dreams at 1:15 p. m. weekdays, is pictured getting her home ready for Christmas.

HAROLD TEEN CAST GUESTS OF W-G-N CITIZENS

A meeting of fictional and true life high school students will feature the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N today when Harold Teen and Lillums, chief characters of the Harold Teen program on W-G-N each Tuesday from 7:30 to 8 p. m., visit the THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S broadcast on which appear students from the high schools of Chicagoland.

A conincidence of the broadcast will be: Bob Jellison, who plays the part of Shadow in the Teen program also has the rôle of Jimmy, the typical high school student in the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast.

Tuley High school will be honored on the program to be aired over W-G-N at 10:30 a. m. today. Tuley, formerly known as the Northwest Division High school, boasts of such prominent alumni as William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, and the late Knute Rockne, famed Notre Dame coach.

Students from Tuley High school will participate in the program and the a cappella chorus, under the direction of Miss Lillian L. Schaefer, will sing "O, Come All Ye Faithful" and the old Welsh air, "Deck the Hall."

Deborah Slutsky, 17 year old senior at Tuley, and Donald M. Wynne, senior at Mount Morris, Ill., will be added to the long list of honor roll students by Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies.

Marion Claire Record Album Just Released

An album of three records by Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the Chicago Theater of the Air, has just been released by Victor featuring six songs from operettas that have been given on the Theater of the Air broadcasts heard from 8 to 9 every Saturday night on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Musical background for the recordings was supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the W-G-N chorus directed by Robert Trendler. The album is made up of three recordings of six tunes, handsomely bound, with a cover bearing a picture of Miss Claire, Mr. Weber and other members of the Theater of the Air.

APPEALS BOARD DEFERS SERVICE OF SIX DRAFTEES

16 Others Must Start Army Training.

Six south side draft registrants were granted deferred classifications by the draft appeals board last week, while the pleas of 16 more were denied, according to William H. King Jr., selective service administrator.

This ratio was nearly double that for Cook county as a whole, where only 12 per cent of all cases acted upon brought deferments. Out of 154 cases on which rulings were made, only 18 appeals were granted. In the previous week 17 out of 89 appeals were granted, or 19 per cent.

Claim Wives Dependent.

Three of the deferred south siders claimed their wives were dependent on them. They are Osceola Jones, 5716 South Park way; Charles Ruick, 4742 Woodlawn avenue, and Salvatore Costello, 67 East 69th place. Wallace Marczewski, 8744 Baltimore avenue, was given deferment because of his mother.

Nicholas Yaksic, 10131 Yale avenue, a gasoline station owner, and Richard Holcomb of Washington, D. C., a research worker registered in the 5th ward, were granted occupational deferments.

Of the 16 south siders whose appeals were denied, 11 claimed dependents.

Six maintained their wives were dependent on them for support. They are: Edward Plocharski, 8329 Kingston avenue; Carl Wegner, 8001 Muskegon avenue; Edward Stompor, 8812 Saginaw avenue; John Chichester, 4932 Lake Park avenue; Seymour Hite, Graymont hotel, 46th and Greenwood, and John Bresnehan, 7016 East End avenue.

Others Lose Pleas.

The others who asked dependency deferment, and those they claimed to be supporting were: Stanley Maloblocki, 8235 Escanaba avenue, parents and brother; Harold Trossman, 1660 East Hyde Park boulevard, mother and brother; Daniel Honorof, 4961 Lake Park avenue, parents; Andrew Murphy, 7711 Coles avenue, mother, and Carl Swanson, 7527 Dorchester avenue, parents.

Three unsuccessful south side appellants claimed student deferment. They were: Gustave Musser, 4626 Lake Park avenue; John Castles, 7804 Merrill avenue, and Harry Wagner, 8545 Phillips avenue.

Arthur Kennelly, 6840 Cornell avenue, an attorney, asked that he be given occupational deferment. Sylvan Wolkowitz, 6018 Dorchester avenue, asked to be classified as fit only for limited military service.

Nativity Play at Loretto

This is the principal scene from the three act Nativity play to be given in the Loretto (Woodlawn) academy auditorium, 1447 East 65th street, this evening. In the foreground are (left to right) Maristelle Dixon as a shepherd, Mary Bedford as Mary, and Shirley Wolff as Joseph. Angels in the background are Joy Gleason and Lorraine Delany. The play will be staged by the drama club after a pageant beginning at 7 o'clock. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Dec. 22.

A number of things must be considered if house plants are grown successfully. First, the soil must be moist but not saturated to the point that the roots cannot function properly. See that the ball of earth is moist thru and water when the soil needs it. The food supply must not be too generous or too little. Food should be given when the plant is in active condition and not when it is at rest.

Attempting to grow plants in too large containers should be avoided for too much soil is likely to result in over watering. Transplant when the pots are fairly filled with roots, but not rootbound. During the winter full light can be given most plants. Drafts and sudden changes in temperature should be avoided.

Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Begonias make fine house plants but they require close attention. Like all plants except desert plants, they require a humid atmosphere, which is not always possible to maintain in the home, but pans of water or specially constructed humidors to fasten to radiators can be used with good effect. Syringe about once a week to keep the foliage clean and free from dust.

Wash the leaves of plants like the rubber plant because its thick leaves are not injured from such treatment. Fresh air is essential, but be careful of sudden cooling of the temperature or drafts. Remember that plants are growing, living things and cannot endure in conditions that hinder their development.

Wednesday, Dec. 24.

It is difficult to regulate the temperature in the home, hence extra care is necessary when you are attempting to grow certain kinds of plants indoors. As an example, the cyclamen is a popular plant and likes cooler conditions than the begonia. The common date palm has narrow leaves, or leaflets, and will endure adverse conditions but it also likes a warm atmosphere.

Thursday, Dec. 25.

Viney plants that are growing in rooms should be kept trimmed back if they become long and unattractive. They may need repotting. The beautiful and dependable philodendron will do well in water alone for quite awhile or in a comparatively small container in half sand and peat mixed together. A little charcoal may be added; this tends to keep the soil sweet.

Many small plants are purchased as they stand in small but ornamental pots; these must be carefully watered because they often have no drainage hole and hence may become waterlogged.

Friday, Dec. 26.

The gardener should utilize the vacant lot that lies next to his own and plant it to vegetables. This will keep weeds from growing, add fresh material to the daily larder, and give the family a chance to gain some needed exercise.

Send for seed catalog and order seeds at once. Due to a shortage of many items, it is essential that extra care be exercised in conserving them.

Saturday, Dec. 27.

Altho the pruning of outdoor woody plants can be done from now until early spring, many gardeners prefer to get it over with as soon as possible. Grapes also may be pruned while dormant. However, few of the latter are grown in city or suburban gardens, but shrubs abound and many of them are sadly in need of attention.

The rule for pruning shrubs is to prune after flowering unless one knows the flowering season of a particular kind.

DEFT CHANGES TRANSFORM OLD HOUSE INTO NEW

Home in Hinsdale Given Youth Treatment.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you have wondered what to do about an aging front porch that no longer does justice to your house, or what treatment to give a red brick fireplace that has grown a bit bleak and drab with the years; if you have debated with various family members over possibilities of small home improvements or large changes, you will find some interesting and practical answers to just such questions in a newly remodeled home at 552 York road, Hinsdale.

This five room home is now completely modernized, decorated and furnished, and open to the public during December. It is an excellent demonstration of how an aging house can be made young and very livable by the aid of a few deft and skilful changes. It is no drastic remodeling piece of work but the sort of project many people are hoping and planning to accomplish, the type of modernization which can change the personality of an existing house without any great structural changes or without any large outlay of money.

Lot Landscaped.

When modernization of this home started this fall the lot was landscaped and a heavy hedge across the front was removed and placed at the side. A new driveway was laid, brambles around the front porch were removed, and then the front porch and steps came off. These were replaced with new porch, steps, some neat pillars, and a new front driveway.

No other exterior changes were made but the house as well as the chimney were painted white.

In the original living room there was a fine old red brick fireplace, but the bricks needed cleaning and freshening, so it was decided to cover the brick. Then old lighting fixtures on the fireplace wall were ripped out and a mirror hung over the mantel. There are built-in bookcases at each side of the fireplace and gayly colored chintz curtains at the windows.

Kitchen Modernized.

The kitchen was troubled with a not uncommon ailment. It had more doors than it needed, so one door was blocked and a window built in its place. The kitchen was completely moderized. There's a blue and gray linoleum on the floor, Chinese red curtains with yellow figures at the window, and new sink, built-in cabinets, range, and refrigerator.

On the second floor there are two bedrooms and bath. The bath is tiled with dutsy pink wallpaper above tiling and blue and white striped curtains at the window.

The house stands on a lot 100 feet by 100 feet.

Golden Day

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Crane who celebrated their golden wedding last week in their home at 6801 Clyde avenue.

GOLDEN WEDDING DATE IS MARKED BY C. E. CRANES

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Crane, who believe that a policy of give and take is the best basis for a successful marriage, celebrated their golden wedding last week with an informal open house party in their home at 6801 Clyde avenue. Mr. Crane has been a plastering contractor before he retired three years ago.

The Cranes met and were married in Casey, then moved to Mattoon, Ill., in 1902. In 1938 they came to Chicago to make their home with their son, John, at 6801 Clyde avenue.

There are two other sons—Clarence, of 14313 Wallace avenue, and Maring, of 7044 Euclid avenue—and a daughter, Mrs. Robert A. Wishart of Mattoon. There are four grandchildren.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

HOME owners and tenants on 90th street across from Tuley park were among the first to respond to Mayor Kelly's appeal to fly American flags last week. Tuesday morning 20 houses in the block between Eberhart and St. Lawrence avenue had the Stars and Stripes prominently displayed in front of them. Some were on flag poles, some were draped from windows, and others were stretched from the house to a tree.

Thirteen south siders from Culver, Ind., Military academy are home on a 25 day furlough for the holidays. They are Howard R. Baker, Clarence A. Beutel Jr., Theodore Bohn Jr., Donald Brown Jr., William G. Carlisle, Warren H. Chapman, Lee and Robert Merrion, Henry E. Miller, L. James Parkinson, Charles A. Pratt, Edward F. Scott, and Robert M. Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kassel of 3300 Lake Shore drive, announce the marriage of their daughter, Thais Marilyn, to Leonard Graff, son of Mrs. Samuel Graff, 1020 West 68th street. The couple are now living at the Saranac hotel, 5541 Everett avenue.

ONE of the first names on the Christmas list of the Woodlawn Lions club is the Arts and Scribblers club of La Rabida sanitarium in Jackson park. The club is made up of 24 young heart patients who like to express their thoughts in drawings and poems. Bags of candy will be brought to them this week by Lions club members.

Other groups which will benefit from the Lions' holiday program are the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children, the Jewish Orphans home, the Illinois Protestant Children's Home, and Protestant Child Haven. Dr. J. David Johnston, 1305 East 63d street, is president.

PARKS AGLOW WITH CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

YULE SERVICES IN CHURCHES TO REACH THRONGS

Sing Midnight Mass After Many Years.

Into their churches, sweet with the fragrances of balsam and fir and aglow with candlelight, the city's thousands of worshipers will throng Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, strong in the faith that the world will yet know the peace sung by heavenly voices on the first Christmas night.

For the first time in many years, midnight mass will be sung in most of the Catholic churches Christmas eve, permission having been granted for the resumption of this ancient practice in the archdiocese by Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch.

In St. Augustine's, the church of the Franciscans, at 50th and Laflin streets, a half hour of caroling by the boys' choir, singing from the sanctuary, and the senior choir will precede the midnight service. The pastor, the Rev. Justinian Kugler, will be the celebrant at the altar. The combined choirs will sing Steinfeldt's "Mass of St. Thomas the Apostle."

In Sacred Heart church at Honore and 46th streets the old Polish customs of pastoral singing at the crib will be followed at the midnight service, with the Rev. Francis J. Karabasz the celebrant at a low mass.

Episcopal Services.

Most of the Episcopal churches will hold midnight services, to be followed Christmas morning by the celebration of the holy eucharist. At the Church of the Annunciation, 7818 Lowe avenue, a midnight choral eucharist on Christmas eve and a Christmas morning service at 10 o'clock will climax the six year rectorship of the Rev. Hugh M. MacWhorter, who is leaving the parish on Jan. 1 to become the pastor of St. Andrew's in Downers Grove.

Festival midnight services will be conducted in St. Bartholomew's, 6724 Stewart avenue, and the Church of the Holy Nativity, 95th street and Longwood drive.

Christmas celebration begins tonight in Messiah Lutheran church, Wolcott avenue and 64th street, with a pageant. The Rev. Clarence F. Wittenstrom, taking "The Grace of God Hath Appeared" for his text, will preach at a Christmas eve worship service at 11:30 o'clock. At 5 o'clock Christmas morning the julotta, a Christmas matin service of Scandinavian origin, will be held.

Redeemer Lutheran church, 6430 Harvard avenue, where the Rev. Luther Schuessler is pastor, will hold a children's service at 7 o'clock Wednesday night. The senior and junior choirs will sing Christmas morning at 6 o'clock and again at 10:45.

Rites at Grace Lutheran.

At Grace Lutheran church, 6049 South Marshfield avenue, the principal service will be at 10:30 o'clock Christmas morning, when the Rev. Walter Wietzke will preach. An early candle light ceremony will be conducted at 6 o'clock. The special children's service will be at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night. Christ Lutheran church will hold services at 5:30 and 7 o'clock Christmas eve and at 6, 9:30 and 11 o'clock Christmas morning. The Rev. E. T. Lams is pastor.

There will be special music for both a candle light service at 6 and the regular worship at 11 on Christmas morning in St. Martini Evangelical Lutheran church, where the Rev. H. E. Brauer is the minister.

There will be Christmas eve services at 11:30 o'clock in Calvary Lutheran church, 62d street and Kenneth avenue, and Christmas morning devotions at 10. The Rev. H. Conrad Hoyer will give the sermons. The choir of Grace Evangelical church, 60th street and Albany avenue, will give a candle light musical at 7 o'clock Thursday night. The Rev. Karl Meyer will conduct worship at 10:30 o'clock Christmas morning. The children's junior and senior departments of Grace church are giving a pageant at 7:30 o'clock tonight, and the beginners' class for children will have a program at 7:30 o'clock on Christmas eve.

The Rev. H. Armin Fleer will conduct services at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night at St. Philippus Evangelical church, 2040 West 36th street, and at 7, 9 and 11 o'clock Christmas morning.

Plan White Gift Service.

The traditional white gift service of Garfield Boulevard United Presbyterian church, 55th and Throop streets, with the singing of carols and portrayal of the Nativity scene, will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight, and at that hour Tuesday night the children of the church will give a Christmas program. There will be a program of Christmas carols at the church on Christmas eve.

The two choirs of Emerald Avenue Presbyterian church, 67th and Emerald avenue, will sing for the 10:45 o'clock morning worship service today, and at 8 o'clock tonight will give a candlelight song service.

Walter Peterson will be the soloist with the choir at a special Christmas service at 11 o'clock this morning at Julia Gay Memorial Methodist church, 55th and Paulina streets. On Wednesday the Sunday school will visit the homes of shut-ins, singing carols. A Christmas cantata will be given at 8 o'clock tonight in Gresham Methodist church, 87th street and Emerald avenue, and the Sunday school will give Choirs to Tell Christmas Story at Messiah Church

. . . "It came upon a midnight clear, that wonderous story of old." . . . Tho the shadows have darkened, a thousand candlelit churches will echo and re-echo the eternal hope and faith of that Christmas song. Tonight, worshippers gathered in Messiah Lutheran church at 64th and Wolcott streets will hear a girls' choir sing it as the Nativity story is enacted in pageant. Left to right, first row: Gloria Lindberg, Ruth Werner, Evelyn Warner, Betty Werner, Aurdey Dahlstrom, Phyllis Lindstrom. Second row: Leora Wattman, June Dahlgren, Edna Nelson, Doris Olson, Eleanor Grund, Alice Anderson. Third row: Marilyn Benson, Betty Carlson, Doris Dahlgren, and Elaine Wyatt.

Railroad Men Make Others Happy at Yule

BY JUNE GESERICK.

"Let me speak to Joe, please." The voice of a caller is going to interrupt Christmas eve preparations in the Joseph I. Jauch home, 731 East 89th place.

Joe Jauch, a fireman for the Illinois Central railroad, is one of the many railroad men who will spend their Christmas running engines, unloading baggage, making up berths, or serving dinners for the thousands of Chicagoans and suburbanites who will be traveling to and from family gatherings in every part of the United States.

Mrs. Jauch; Robert, age 14; Virginia, 12; Ursula, 11, and Ronald, 7, are going to turn disappointed eyes to Dad Jauch as he hangs up the phone receiver.

Fun for the Family.

"Aw, never mind. We'll have lots of fun tonight and then you can save me some of that turkey—and a big piece of pie," Jauch will grin, attempting to dispel the gloom that has taken hold.

Long after the children have gone to bed—Ronnie to dream of Santa Claus—Mr. and Mrs. Jauch will sit in the kitchen—the table strewn with colorful paper and ribbons—wrapping gifts—gifts the opening of which dad will have to miss.

Early the next morning Jauch will prepare to leave the house. His wife, Margaret, will have risen to make ready a hearty breakfast of steaming coffee, bacon, and eggs. The day really starts when Jauch leaves his warm home, after bidding his wife to remember what Ronnie says when he opens a certain package, and goes into the cold—to a typical railroad Christmas.

Board the Engine.

A half hour later Jauch will arrive at the 27th street roundhouse of the Illinois Central. W. H. Goetz, 1342 East 76th street, will nod a welcome to the fireman. Goetz is engineer of the crew with which Jauch will serve.

Together the men will walk thru the roundhouse—past the circular row of engines, on which grease-covered men will be busily working. Out into the yard they walk, finally boarding their engine, which has just been brought from the roundhouse by a couple of hostlers, men whose job it is to see that the engines are turned on the roundhouse turntable and brought out into the yard for the engine crew to board. The engine is backed down the tracks to the Roosevelt road station.

The train flagman of the crew signals for Goetz to move the engine slowly backward until the rear of the engine is touching the front car of the train to which the crew has been assigned. The flagman sees that the automatic couplings are secure.

Wise men in that ancient day came across great distances to worship in the humble stable of Bethlehem where Immanuel was cradled. So is the scene portrayed in the pageant, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," in Messiah church. Kneeling at the crib are Audrey Swanson and Charles Wentstrom as Mary and Joseph. In the foreground, as the Wise Men, are (left to right) William Berglind, Norman Carlson, and Melbourne Olson.

Church Music Today Recalls the Nativity

Churches will ring tonight with the music of Christmas. With pageantry and in oratorio and ancient carol, choirs will tell again the eternally fresh and beautiful story of the Child whose birth was heralded to simple shepherds at their night watch by voices of angels singing above the Judean hills, whose star in the heavens guided wise men to the lowly stable in Bethlehem

The pageant, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" is to be presented tonight by the Luther league and the girls' choir in Messiah Lutheran church, Wolcott avenue and 64th street. In Drexel Park Presbyterian church, Marshfield avenue and 64th street, T. C. Barg's vested choir of 75 singers will give "The Messiah's Coming," Wildemere's contata. The choirs of four churches, forming a chorus of 125 voices, will be heard at vesper service at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Engelwood Methodist church, Stewart avenue and 64th street, in Handel's "The Messiah."

"The Adoration," a three part cantata depicting prophecy, advent and adoration, will be given at 11 o'clock this morning by the choir of Englewood United Presbyterian church, Parnell avenue and 65th street, and the 12th annual candlelight vespers will be held at 4:30 o'clock, with carol singing and procession of the vested choir, a picturesque ceremony in which each member carries a lighted taper. At 8 o'clock tonight in the Green Street Congregational church, 5600 South Green street, the choir

Park Offers Radio Course for Senior Boy Scouts

Instruction for senior Boy Scouts in radio communication is now available at Palmer park fieldhouse, 111th street and Indiana avenue, it was announced by Wesley W. Fotch, who is in charge. Classes are held each Wednesday at 7:45 o'clock. Registrations are now being received for the period from Jan. 3 to March 31.

Roseland Women's Party.

The Business and Professional Women's club of Roseland will meet for a Christmas party at 6:30 o'clock Monday, Dec. 29 at the South Side Swedish club, 7330 Ridgeland avenue.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

FOUR south siders are among the 18 Northwestern university students who recently were appointed members of the show board for the 1942 WAA-MU musical production. They are Marcia Louise Cruse, 7760 West 110th place, production co-manager; Wayne Lee Allen, 12107 Stewart avenue, stage technician; William Howard Kemp, 6811 Euclid avenue, stage manager, and Donald A. Freeman, 5345 Lakewood avenue, press representative. The show will be given next spring.

THE voice of Marley's ghost, as portrayed by Bill Sanders, 6321 Greenwood, will be heard at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon over station WHIP in the Chicago Boys club version of Dickens' "Christmas Carol." Twenty boys tried out before Bill's voice was judged to be the most convincingly sepulchral. Bill Brooks, 6338 Dante avenue, also a member of the Woodlawn branch of the club, was selected to enact Tiny Tim. Scrooge will be played by Bruno VeSota, 2556 West 48th street, and Bob Cratchit will be impersonated by Tony Blake, 2868 South Keeley avenue. Bruno and Tony are members of the Valentine branch. Carolers in the play will come from the Ogden Hill branch and will be led by Eugene Mills, 6515 South Wood street.

HOME owners and tenants on 90th street across from Tuley park were among the first to respond to Mayor Kelly's appeal to fly American flags last week. Tuesday morning 20 houses in the block between Eberhart and St. Lawrence avenue had the Stars and Stripes prominently displayed in front of them. Some were on flag poles, some were draped from windows, and others were stretched from the house to a tree.

Ten-year old Darlene Crosby, 8233 Woodlawn avenue, will dance at the program for underprivileged children in Chicago today at the Hotel Sherman. She is with the Gertrude and Ethel Morgan School of Dancing.

Fred E. Morgan, 9827 Damen avenue, was one of two senior engineering students of the Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia, Pa., who made application for commissions in the naval reserve last week. With other students he had been interviewed by Lieut. R. C. Hall of the district staff headquarters of the navy yard. The navy is seeking officers with engineering training for specialists' duties ashore.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kassel of 3300 Lake Shore drive, announce the marriage of their daughter, Thais Marilyn, to Leonard Graff, son of Mrs. Samuel Graff, 1020 West 68th street. The couple are now living at the Saranac hotel, 5541 Everett avenue.

MANY PARTIES FOR CHILDREN ARE ARRANGED

Santa Claus to Be Busy Individual.

The beehive bustle of Christmas preparation is on in the fieldhouses of the Chicago parks. Already many of the trees are up, their garlands of tinsel twinkling, their myriad colored lights gleaming. Mantles and hearths are banked with evergreens, and red and green streamers are looped at the windows and doorways. Park superintendents are digging into the storeroom to check on the Santa Claus frock coat for possible repairs and see to the currying and replenishing of the long white whiskers.

It is estimated that 300,000 boys and girls, many of them from homes where the luxuries of toys and candy are none too plentiful, will participate this week in the celebration of Christmas in the parks. Local business men, civic leaders and service organizations have made generous contributions of candy, nuts, toys, and other gifts for distribution from Santa's packs at the park parties. The park staffs plan dances, sport events, movies, amateur theatricals, operettas, puppet shows and caroling.

Some Parties Tomorrow.

On the southwest side parties will be held tomorrow afternoon thruout the Cornell square fieldhouse, 51st and Wood streets. THEY MISS OWN YULE, BUT MAKE OTHERS HAPPY

Railroaders Must Forgo Holiday at Home.

While Fireman Jauch gets up steam in the engine's stoker, train inspectors check the air brakes of each car to see that they are in good working order.

Each to His Duties.

Jauch is in the engine tending the steam pressure and the stoker, which fires the boiler. The pressure must be kept at approximately 225 pounds per square inch. While the fireman inspects the many dials of the control board the engineer jumps from the cab and slowly walks around the engine, checking to see that the wheels and piston rods are in order. [The mechanisms of each engine are inspected before the train leaves the roundhouse, but it seems to be traditional that engineers take a "check-up" walk around the engine.]

"Hi, Joe," calls Francis O'Brien, assistant station master. O'Brien lives at 802 Dobson avenue. Jauch climbs from the cab to talk with him.

"Cold, isn't it?" And both men pull their collars high around their necks.

"I sure would like to be home today, eating that turkey with the folks—watching the kids open their presents," sighs O'Brien. "Mom and dad are coming over this morning." O'Brien's father, James, is the third oldest man on the Illinois Central's engineer board in point of seniority.

Watch for Signals.

"So long, O'B.," calls Jauch as he follows his engineer up into the engine cab. Both men lean out the windows to watch for the signals that will tell them to start.

"All aboard," shouts the conductor—and late passengers scramble to board the cars.

The engine puffs and hisses, the great driving wheels revolve, and the cars move slowly from the station. The train speeds thru Chicago, and the two men catch glimpses in nearby windows of families celebrating Christmas. Later the cars wind their way thru the suburban area. Little boys are trying their Christmas bicycles on slippery streets, and the fireman imagines the joy young Ronnie felt when he opened a package concealing a brand new electric train.

Kankakee and Return.

Most of the larger Illinois Central trains do not stop between Chicago and Kankakee, thus the crew's first chance to rest comes at that town, a little more than 50 miles from Chicago. A few hours' leave while their engine is moved from the southbound cars and connected with another Chicago bound train. Another crew on another engine will carry the cars headed for the southland.

After washing some of the coal dust from their faces the men head for a nearby lunchroom. Hot coffee, soup, and a filling main dish warm the men after their cold run. The proprietor joins members of the crew in their discussions. Most of the talk is interrupted by frequent guesses as to what the "folks at home are doing now."

Engineer Goetz wonders what his 13 year old grandson, Kenneth, will think of a certain gift. The conductor is worried about the possibility of his wife not liking his selection of a lamp for her Christmas gift. Every one keeps his eyes on the lunchroom clock—anxious to get started toward home—and family.

Make Others Happy.

The return trip seems even longer than the run from Chicago. Every turn of the wheels reminds the men that the engine is bearing them home. But night has already arrived. Dinner will surely be over, and the guests will be departing—but one happy thought is in the mind of each man as the engine speeds him toward his waiting family.

South Central Party.

The South Central office of the United Charities, 2959 Michigan avenue, will give a Christmas party Wednesday for all children in its nursery school. The party will be held in the coach house of the old Crane mansion, which is owned by the agency.

Railroad Families Have Own Christmas Schedules

NORWAY SPRUCE WILL SPARKLE AT ORLAND PARK

Yule Tree to Be Lighted Tomorrow Night.

When the dark settles down tomorrow night over Orland Park, the branches of the slender young Norway spruce newly planted in front of the school house will blossom with jeweled lights. The town will have a community Christmas tree.

Last October the garden department of the Orland Park Woman's club conceived the idea of planting a Christmas tree to grow up with the community. Several bakery sales were held to raise money and the American Legion post and its auxiliary, the Boosters' club and parent-teacher association contributed to the tree fund. A 10 foot spruce was purchased and planted on the school ground.

Tomorrow at the lighting of the tree, Mrs. Stewart M. Loebe, woman's club president, will present the tree and Superintendent P. G. Rawland will speak for the school.

There will be caroling by the high school students, the woman's club, and all assembled for the ceremony. After the community sing about the tree the club will invite any or all delegations present to accompany the club singers on a caroling tour thru the town.

Chicago Lawn Juniors.

Former presidents and sponsors will be the guests of the Chicago Lawn Junior Woman's club at its members' Christmas party tomorrow night in the Marquette Park fieldhouse. There will be music by the club chorus, William Mount conducting, and Mrs. A. R. Osmun at the piano.

Last night, appearing under the auspices of the Allied Arts guild, the drama group gave a public performance of "Mary, His Mother," the Christmas play for which the club was awarded the 3d district prize. In the play four characters have speaking parts. As they converse, the story of the nativity is enacted in pantomime and tableaux. For these sequences a secondary stage was especially constructed for the club players on the stage proper in the Woodlawn branch library, where the play was given.

Englewood Woman's Club.

The painters group of the Englewood club will meet for a Christmas party Monday night, Dec. 29, at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Earle W. Grover, 6929 Stewart avenue. Several members will bring moving pictures of their last summer vacations.

Southtown Woman's Club.

The Southtown club will entertain the children of members and friends at a Christmas party tomorrow afternoon in Hamilton park fieldhouse. For the children there will be games, Christmas carols by the cradle roll members, a Christmas tree, and entertainment by Bob Lotz, the magician.

Marquette Manor Woman's Club.

The annual members' Christmas party of the Marquette Manor club will be held at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday. Mrs. Thomas Gifford, former 3d district president, will speak and there will be music by the club chorus. Miss Marie Sneider heads the committee on arrangements. Board members will confer at 10:30 o'clock and after their meeting they will have a luncheon party.

Chairman of Dance

Miss Frances Walz, 2559 East 72d street, is chairman of the St. Xavier Academy Alumnae club's annual formal supper-dance Saturday evening in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Many members of the club are grandmothers and mothers of students attending the academy today.

Honorary Colonel Also a Queen

Miss Cherie Gist, 9411 Pleasant avenue, heads the orchestra committee for the dance her sorority, Delta Kappa Delta, is giving tomorrow night in the Stevens hotel. The sorority is an organization of girls who attend Morgan Park High school. Last Friday the high school ROTC unit, with colorful ceremony, made Miss Gist honorary cadet colonel at its annual ball in the Del Prado hotel. Next Saturday she will be crowned as one of two queens, her sister queen being Miss Lois Berry, 10404 Leavitt street, by Phemfor fraternity at its annual dance in the Shoreland hotel.

UNIFIED SYSTEM IS NEW PLAN FOR SUMMIT SCHOOLS

Grade and High Boards Vote Move.

Unification of public elementary and high school effort in the village of Summit was voted last Monday by the boards of Elementary District 104 and High School District 217.

Under the new plan the entire public school teaching program from kindergarten thru high school will be coordinated completely, as is done in such suburbs as Wheaton, Hinsdale, St. Charles, and Geneva, according to Charles E. Wingo, principal of Argo Community High school, who is the new superintendent of the unified system.

Wingo suceeds C. B. Barrett, superintendent of the Summit elementary district, who resigned to devote his time to teaching in the national defense program at Navy Pier in Chicago. Barrett had held the Summit post for six and one-half years.

The new superintendent emphasized that the unification program is not a merger of two systems. Each district will maintain its own officials, and each will continue as a separate taxing body, so that no tax revenue will be lost to either system, he declared.

"This unified program merely establishes the management of the two schools in one superintendent's office and affords all the educational advantages enjoyed in a unit system."

"Our plan continues with the highest financial source the state affords for the dual system plan, and the two boards' personnel remains the same. Therefore, no finances are lost."

Herbert G. Swanson is president of the high school board. John Ginalick is secretary. Other members are Charles J. Bulow, Harry L. Stone, and Chris L. Dineff.

Martin Ferentchak is president of the elementary school board, and Harry C. Hanscom is secretary. The other members are Dr. Paul W. Rush, Frank P. Zurm, Frank M. Foran, William G. Borwn Jr., and W. Ewart Stephenson.

SOUTHWEST PTA COUNCIL BACKS MOVIE SERIES

Saturday Programs to Start Jan. 17.

Better and more suitable movies for children long has been a goal of Parent-Teacher associations. To further that program in its area, the Southwest council, representing 27 elementary schools, has for two years sponsored a series of Saturday morning movie programs especially for children. Plans for a third series have been completed by Mrs. C. B. Haste, 8048 South Paulina street, who heads the council's visual education committee.

The theater coöperating with the council is the Beverly at 95th and Ashland avenue. Last year the council was asked to guarantee an attendance of 1,000 at each show. A few more than that number of tickets for the series were sold. Already this year the entire 1,100 seats in the house have been applied for. The youngsters will see five shows for 55 cents. The pictures will be selected by a PTA committee. Each performance will include in addition to a feature picture a comedy or animated cartoon and a travelog or historical short.

The first show is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 17. All will be at 10:30 o'clock. It is the wish of the council that eventually all neighborhood theaters will adopt the practice of giving Saturday mornings to the children.

WAR GIVES NEW NOTES TO YULE RADIO PROGRAMS

What to Tell Children of War, Forum Topic.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Christmas programs will fill the air this week. There will be numerous carol programs and many other programs with a joyous holiday note. But this year there will be few of the special Christmas broadcasts picked up from abroad by the networks. The only program coming from Bethlehem this year will originate in Bethlehem, Pa. The Bethlehem where Jesus was born this year is in the near east war zone.

Typical of the altered tone of Christmas broadcasts this year will be the presentation of the Northwestern Reviewing stand at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and Mutual.

The subject for discussion is "What Shall We Teach Our Children About the War This Christmas?" The speakers are to be three outstanding workers among children and young people: Dr. Paul J. Misner, superintendent of schools at Glencoe; Dr. Kenneth Heaton of the Northwestern university school of education, and Helen Ross, lecturer in psychoanalysis at the University of Chicago.

Good Fellows on Air.

The sixth annual Good Fellow choral program by a combined high school choir of 500 voices will be heard over W-G-N and W59C from 4:15 to 4:30 tomorrow as they sing in Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building. Students from Farragut, Lindblom, Steinmetz, and Waller high schools and Wright Junior college will sing familiar carols.

Christmas carol programs will be aired over W59C and from the amplificers on Tribune Tower every evening from 5 to 6 p. m. These programs, featuring church choral groups, will be heard in part over W-G-N and Mutual. Details will be given daily in THE TRIBUNE.

Christmas Carol on W-G-N.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" will be broadcast on W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. from tomorrow thru Friday. The dramas will be continued in five daily instalments.

Tomorrow W-G-N and Mutual will present the first program of the new musical series, "Music That Endures." The W-G-N Symphonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, and Attilio Baggiore will be featured in special seasonal music. This program will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Tuesday will find W-G-N continuing its Christmas schedule. The Great Artist series will have a special dramatization of the painting of the "Adoration of the Magi."

The Northerners' Christmas.

Christmas music from around the world—hymns, carols, and traditional sprightly yuletide numbers—will give a realistic seasonal tone to the Northeners' program at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday. Harry S. Walsh will direct the octet, Lois Wallner, soprano soloist, the regular ensemble and the 50 voice Northern Trust employé chorus in a broadcast that will include one of the first Christmas carols sung in the United States. Helene Webb, the Northerners' arranger, has found a carol, "T'was in the Moon of Winter Time," which was first sung on Manhattan Island during the days of the settlers.

Lois Wallner's solo is Mozart's "Allelujah." The chorus will sing "Good Christian Men, Rejoice." After this will be heard a group of "Carols of the Americas"—Christmas songs of North and South America.

Double Feature Broadcast.

A Christmas Eve double-feature broadcast will be presented Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen from the Chicago Service Men's center. A half hour musical show starring Marion Claire and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra will begin at 8:30 and the quiz show, "Shoot the Works," will be aired from 9:30 to 10.

Miss Claire's portion of the double-feature broadcast will feature a special program of Christmas music. She will be accompanied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler. The program will present some well known Christmas melodies as well as some unusual, almost unknown, but beautiful songs that have been passed down from Christmas celebrations of many years ago.

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" will be the theme melody of the program while other selections include: Bach's "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring," by the chorus and orchestra; "Hail Ye Time of Holiday," by the chorus and orchestra; "Madonna's Lullaby," by Miss Claire; "Dance of the Tumblers," by the orchestra; "Here a Torch," by the chorus; "Madrigal," by Miss Claire and the quartet; "Night Before Christmas," by Miss Claire; and "Humperdinck," by the chorus and orchestra.

Cash for Service Men.

At 9:30 p. m. the service men's attention will be centered on Marvin Mueller, quizmaster for the "Shoot the Works" audience quiz show. Announcers Jess Kirkpatrick and Guy Savage will travel thru the audience selecting contestants rt random and Mueller will fire his questions from the stage.

The questions are graded with degrees of difficulty ranging from $1 for the first correct answer to $32 awarded for the sixth correct answer. A contestant may stop anywhere along the question route and take his winnings or he may "Shoot the Works" and aim for the $32 top prize.

Two programs of Christmas music will be broadcast on the Perfectionist's hour on W59C from 9 to 10 p. m. on Wednesday and Christmas night. The Christmas eve program will be devoted exclusively to carols; the Dec. 25 broadcast will present symphony orchestras in some of the best known music associated with the Christmas season.

President Roosevelt will be heard over the major networks in connection with the lighting of the National Community Christmas tree in Washington at 4 p. m. next Wednesday. Choral groups will sing and the United States Marine band will play.

NBC Yule Programs.

Special Christmas programs on NBC will include:

The Contended hour will give a Christmas party for 350 underprivileged youngsters on WMAQ-NBC at 9 p. m. tomorrow. The youngsters will be studio guests and will receive gifts.

A special Christmas program from Bethlehem, Pa., at 8 p. m. Wednesday over WENR-NBC will portray dramatically the founding of this city 200 years ago by the Moravian church.

The NBC Symphony orchestra at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday over WMAQ will present the "Nutcracker Suite," associated with the holiday celebrations.

Lionel Barrymore will give his annual reading of Dickens' Scrooge in his Christmas Carol at 9 o'clock Christmas night on the Rudy Vallee hour on WMAQ-NBC.

Christmas on CBS.

The Columbia Workshop at 7 tonight will present "Miracle in Manhattan," a Christmas play by Charles Vanda.

At 2:30 p. m. Wednesday "The Night Before Christmas," with Nila Mack as director, will be aired.

Gregorian chants by monks from St. Meinrad seminary in Indiana will be aired at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Sir Thomas Beecham will conduct the Columbia Symphony orchestra in a carol program at 11:05 p. m. Wednesday.

Chuckie to Get Reward from Santa

This bright young lad is Chuckie Shaw. Chuckie is 3 years old. So convincingly did he play the part of a soldier with the Children's theater in its Christmas play last Sunday at the College of St. Francis in Joliet that his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Shaw of 709 Buell avenue, say even Santa Claus was impressed, and that he has some special reward to tuck in Chuckie's stocking Christmas eve. 500 YOUTHFUL VOICES TO JOIN IN CAROL SING

6th Good Fellow Program Set for Tomorrow.

Dr. Helen Howe.

Five hundred boys and girls from the choruses of five Chicago high schools and one junior college will participate in the sixth annual Chicago High School Good Fellow carol sing tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 4:30 o'clock in the Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N building. They will stand in front of a 40 foot Christmas tree. The program, presented by Dr. Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools, will be heard on W-G-N from 4:15 to 4:30 o'clock.

Conductors Are Named.

The schools and their conductors will be Senn, Dr. Samuel Burkholder; Waller, Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess; Farragut, Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson; Steinmetz, Harriet Calverly and Willard L. Groom; Lindblom, Joseph R. Taylor, and the Wright Junior college, Erhardt Bergstrasser. The songs to be heard will be "Silent Night, Holy Night," "Here We Come A-Caroling," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Shepherds! Shake Off Your Drowsy Sleep," "Deck the Halls," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "Joy to the World."

Philip Maxwell, Good Fellow editor of THE TRIBUNE, will speak briefly on the radio portion of the entertainment. Assisting Dr. Howe in the presentation of the program will be Oscar Anderson, supervisor of music in the Chicago public schools, and Capt. Howard Stube, bandmaster at Tilden High.

Three Ways to Help.

Only a few more days are left to join the Good Fellow drive which asks you to take a basket of food, toys, and candy to an unfortunate family on Christmas eve. There are three ways in which you can cooperate, explained by the Good Fellow coupon which appears in the metropolitan section. You can obtain the name of your Good Fellow family by calling Superior 0100 or visiting the Good Fellow bureau which is located in the Tribune Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street. All checks or money orders should be made out to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. [Good Fellow fund], and mailed to the bureau.

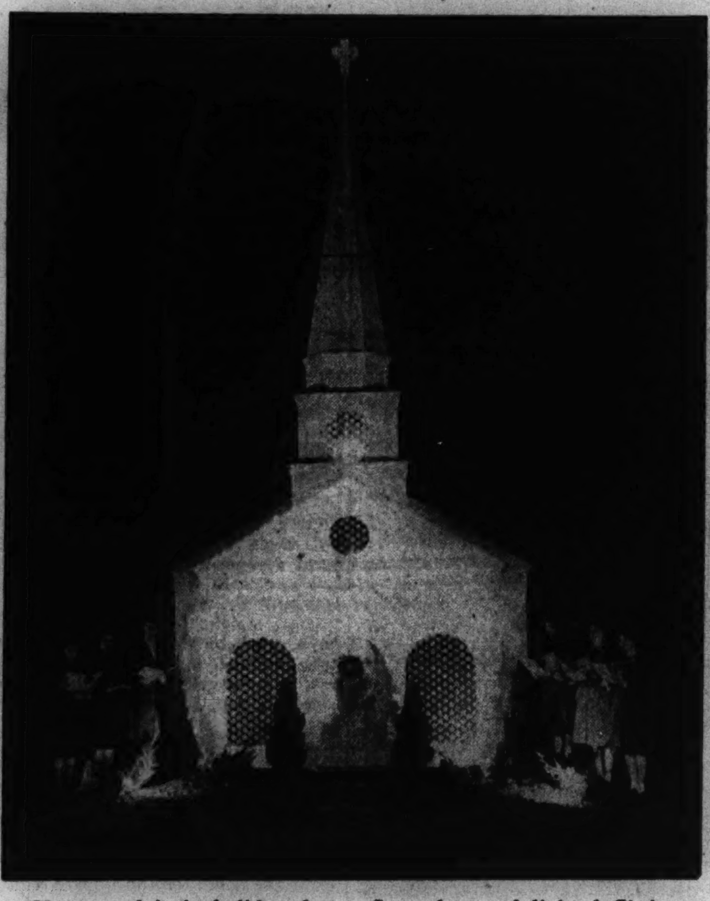
Tomorrow at noon the Fraternity Good Fellows, 500 strong, will hold its luncheon at the grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel and Tuesday morning at 10 oclock the Aviation Good Fellows will conduct their annual ceremony at the Chicago airport.

Turners to Give Annual Gymnastic Program Today

The Roseland branch of the American Turners will present their 51st annual Christmas gymnastic exhibition at Turner hall, 115th and Indiana avenue, Roseland, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The age of participants will range from 5 to 60. Rudolph Komm is physical director and Carl Apel is president of the Turners.

Homewood Puts on Holiday Garb



Homewood is in holiday dress. Long lanes of lighted Christmas trees line Ridge road and Harwood avenue, and at the intersection stands this miniature church, washed by floodlights. Concentrating their Christmas decorations along these two roads outside the main business section of town was a friendly gesture of the Homewood business men to neighboring towns, for it is along these two routes that most of the travel flows from surrounding communities. The carolers in the picture are, left to right, Kathleen Hunter, Barbara Cordt, Lee Steiger, Bonnie Jean Kentish, Nancy Sheehan, and Bertha White. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Dec. 22.

A number of things must be considered if house plants are grown successfully. First, the soil must be moist but not saturated to the point that the roots cannot function properly. See that the ball of earth is moist thru and water when the soil needs it. The food supply must not be too generous or too little. Food should be given when the plant is in active condition and not when it is at rest.

Attempting to grow plants in too large containers should be avoided for too much soil is likely to result in over watering. Transplant when the pots are fairly filled with roots, but not rootbound. During the winter full light can be given most plants. Drafts and sudden changes in temperature should be avoided.

Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Begonias make fine house plants but they require close attention. Like all plants except desert plants, they require a humid atmosphere, which is not always possible to maintain in the home, but pans of water or specially constructed humidors to fasten to radiators can be used with good effect. Syringe about once a week to keep the foliage clean and free from dust.

Wash the leaves of plants like the rubber plant because its thick leaves are not injured from such treatment. Fresh air is essential, but be careful of sudden cooling of the temperature or drafts. Remember that plants are growing, living things and cannot endure in conditions that hinder their development.

Wednesday, Dec. 24.

It is difficult to regulate the temperature in the home, hence extra care is necessary when you are attempting to grow certain kinds of plants indoors. As an example, the cyclamen is a popular plant and likes cooler conditions than the begonia. The common date palm has narrow leaves, or leaflets, and will endure adverse conditions but it also likes a warm atmosphere.

Thursday, Dec. 25.

Viney plants that are growing in rooms should be kept trimmed back if they become long and unattractive. They may need repotting. The beautiful and dependable philodendron will do well in water alone for quite awhile or in a comparatively small container in half sand and peat mixed together. A little charcoal may be added; this tends to keep the soil sweet.

Many small plants are purchased as they stand in small but ornamental pots; these must be carefully watered because they often have no drainage hole and hence may become waterlogged.

Friday, Dec. 26.

The gardener should utilize the vacant lot that lies next to his own and plant it to vegetables. This will keep weeds from growing, add fresh material to the daily larder, and give the family a chance to gain some needed exercise.

Send for seed catalog and order seeds at once. Due to a shortage of many items, it is essential that extra care be exercised in conserving them.

Saturday, Dec. 27.

Altho the pruning of outdoor woody plants can be done from now until early spring, many gardeners prefer to get it over with as soon as possible. Grapes also may be pruned while dormant. However, few of the latter are grown in city or suburban gardens, but shrubs abound and many of them are sadly in need of attention.

The rule for pruning shrubs is to prune after flowering unless one knows the flowering season of a particular kind.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

MORE DRAFTEES LOSING APPEALS FOR DEFERMENT

Ratio of Pleas Granted Is Lower with War.

Five registrants of southwestern Chicago and Cook county draft boards were granted deferments by the selective service appeal board last week, while 17 others lost their appeals, it was announced by William H. King Jr., appeal administrator.

This ratio of appeals granted was somewhat higher than the average of 12 per cent established during the week by the county as a whole, where only 18 appeals were granted out of 154 cases acted upon. The average for the previous week was 19 per cent, and for the entire period since the draft began, 30 per cent, indicating that the ratio has been falling as war drew nearer.

Three of the successful southwest siders were given occupational deferments. They are Melvin Brunke of Edgar, Wis., registered in the 19th ward; Fred Gehle, 3420 West 61st street, ordnance inspector, and Harold Williams, 3258 West 64th place, special machinist.

Wife's Dependency Wins Case.

Robert Spikings, 6543 South Maplewood avenue, won deferment because of his wife's dependency. His appeal was taken by the government appeal agent. Marion Idzikowski, 3421 West 61st place, was deferred so he could continue to support his parents.

Eleven of the 17 unsuccessful appellants from the southwest side told the appeals board they were needed to support members of their families.

Four who claimed dependent wives were: Eugene Franson, 524 West 103d place, who also said he helped support his mother, three sisters, and a brother; Steve Sokolowsky, 6243 South Keating avenue; Clifford Dahlin, 6752 South Oakley avenue, and Joseph Hofer, 6814 South Perry avenue.

Seven Plead Parents' Support.

Seven contended unsuccessfully that they were needed for the support of one or both parents. They are:

William Miller, 117 West 109th place, parents; Bennie Feldman, 5543 South Damen avenue, parents; Armando de Meo, 6514 South Morgan street, parents and two sisters; William Kraemer, 1335 West 80th street, mother; Arthur Boyens, 1310 West 97th place, parents; John Kirchbaum, 9401 Longwood drive, parents, and Sid Satinsky, 6147 Carpenter street, parents.

Clarence Jacobsen, 5748 South Honoré street, shipping clerk's assistant, was refused occupational deferment. Salvatore Padovan, 6502 South Justine street, was refused additional time to visit his parents.

Walter Kozlowski, Iowa City, Ia., who is registered in the 11th ward, and Russell Malloy, 7610 South May street, were denied student classifications. Thomas Stevenson, 9411 Longwood drive, and Aloysius Sawicki, 1437 West 51st street, sought without success to be classified as fit only for limited military service.

NEIGHBORS OF YALE AVENUE TURN LIGHT ON SECRETS TONIGHT

The secrets that the neighbors in the Yale avenue block between 121st and 122d street have been endeavoring both by subtle and not so subtle means to worm out of each other for several weeks will all come out tonight. This is the official opening day for the outdoor Christmas decorations, and the competitive spirit runs high.

A few of the plans leaked out. It is said that Clarence Evers is going to have a pipe organ effect with large red candles on his front porch, and that he is installing an amplifying system to broadcast carols. Frank Kiss is working out special lighting effects with a wreath, and John Jahura will have an impressive plastic candle display. Harvey Shollenberger is concentrating on tree lighting.

But unless the unexpected happens, Fred Sauer will take the honors with his eight foot "Holy City" panorama, in which the heralded angels, the Magi, a church interior, and the star of Bethlehem appear.

Southwest Kiwanis Club Host to Children Today

Each member of the Southwest Kiwanis club will be host to a child at a Christmas party beginning at noon Monday at 2300 West 95th street. Children between 6 and 12 years of age have been selected by the Family Welfare bureau. Music will be supplied by children from the Gresham Kiwanis handicraft classes. George Coffey and James E. Smith are in charge of the party.

DEFT CHANGES TRANSFORM OLD HOUSE INTO NEW

Home in Hinsdale Given Youth Treatment.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you have wondered what to do about an aging front porch that no longer does justice to your house, or what treatment to give a red brick fireplace that has grown a bit bleak and drab with the years; if you have debated with various family members over possibilities of small home improvements or large changes, you will find some interesting and practical answers to just such questions in a newly remodeled home at 552 York road, Hinsdale.

This five room home is now completely modernized, decorated and furnished, and open to the public during December. It is an excellent demonstration of how an aging house can be made young and very livable by the aid of a few deft and skilful changes. It is no drastic remodeling piece of work but the sort of project many people are hoping and planning to accomplish, the type of modernization which can change the personality of an existing house without any great structural changes or without any large outlay of money.

Lot Landscaped.

When modernization of this home started this fall the lot was landscaped and a heavy hedge across the front was removed and placed at the side. A new driveway was laid, brambles around the front porch were removed, and then the front porch and steps came off. These were replaced with new porch, steps, some neat pillars, and a new front driveway.

No other exterior changes were made but the house as well as the chimney were painted white.

In the original living room there was a fine old red brick fireplace, but the bricks needed cleaning and freshening, so it was decided to cover the brick. Then old lighting fixtures on the fireplace wall were ripped out and a mirror hung over the mantel. There are built-in bookcases at each side of the fireplace and gayly colored chintz curtains at the windows. The curtain colors are green and dusty pink on a cream background and harmonize with the green and dubonnet colors of the furnishings.

Kitchen Modernized.

The kitchen was troubled with a not uncommon ailment. It had more doors than it needed, so one door was blocked and a window built in its place. The kitchen was completely moderized. There's a blue and gray linoleum on the floor, Chinese red curtains with yellow figures at the window, and new sink, built-in cabinets, range, and refrigerator.

On the second floor there are two bedrooms and bath. The bath is tiled with dutsy pink wallpaper above tiling and blue and white striped curtains at the window.

In the master bedroom at the front the walls are papered a dusty pink above a wainscot of striped pink and white. The closet is carried out in pink and white, harmonizing with bedroom walls. There are Venetian blinds and drapes at the windows.

The second bedroom has an interesting wall treatment. The wallpaper has a biege background except where the bed stands. Here the walls are gayly flowered.

Winter Bride

YULE FLOWERS TO BE SEEN AT PARK EXHIBITS

Poinsettias, Christmas cherries, and other vegetation in keeping with the holiday season will feature the Chicago park district's 29th annual Christmas show that will open in the Garfield and Lincoln park conservatories today. The show, which is free to the public, will continue thru Jan. 4, and will run from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily.

The poinsettia is named for Dr. Joel Poinsette, former United States minister to Mexico, who introduced it here. The Mexicans call it "Buena Noche" because it is supposed to bloom on Christmas eve.

CHILDREN TO BE YULE PARTY GUESTS

There's Lots of Work for Mother in Turning a Boy Into an Angel

THE ANGEL

Scores of little boys and girls in Chicago will be taking part in Christmas cantatas and pageants during the next few days. Georgie Gumingo, 5 years old, 46 North Sangamon, is one of the youngsters who had a part in the pageant at Chicago Commons, 955 West Grand avenue. Georgie was an angel, and chances are he will be one for the next few days—for Santa Claus is coming to town. [TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gaiter.]

THE BOY | CLEAN EARS | THE FITTING

The last few hours before the pageant are busy ones for Mrs. Casimir Gumingo, Georgie's mother. Georgie's costume must be ironed, and she has to get dinner for her husband, her 7 year old son, Teddy, and Frances, her 2 year old daughter. While she makes ready Georgie's angel costume, she sends that young man to the store to buy meat. Georgie's return is delayed because he has somehow gotten involved in a tag football game in the corner lot. When he arrives home with the meat, he attempts to continue the game with Teddy (and the meat), but his efforts are stopped by Mother Gumingo. Dinner dishes are quickly gotten out of the way, and Mrs. Gumingo approaches the most difficult task of the day—young Georgie must be washed, combed, and garbed in his angel outfit. The final step of the preparations is putting water on Georgie's hair—that is the only way to keep his hair from standing up nearly straight. "Aw, I feel like I've got a girl's dress on," complains Georgie when he looks down at the gown and overblouse that are part of his costume. Brother Teddy's laugh and little Francie's amazed look seem to amuse Georgie, and the "angel" turns dressing into a game.

Denied Strong Legs, He Gains Samson's Arms

Harold Brown was stricken with infantile paralysis when he was nine years old. Today, 12 years later, he is a volunteer instructor in gymnastics at the Duncan YMCA and during the last summer he set a new world weightlifting record of 375 pounds for the middleweight profile press. The paralysis hurt Harold Brown's legs so he strengthened his arms.

With gymnastics and weightlifting as his hobby, Brown is a plumber by trade and works with his father at 4926 North Springfield avenue. When he was a boy he rallied from his long illness to find he couldn't run any more. He had to get off the baseball team. He could walk slowly but that was all.

Gym Team Captain.

Harold Brown didn't give up. He liked to swing on the trapeze in the playgrounds and began practicing on parallel and high bars. In his senior year at Austin High school, Brown was elected captain of the gym team and also won the Junior Division championship of the Central AAU on the parallels and high bar.

Next came Harold's student days at the University of Illinois where he became a member of the exhibition gym team. As a sophomore he captured the men's championship of the Central AAU on the parallels and high bar. He started weightlifting and became a champion in that sport too. In June 1941 he was graduated as a major in history and sociology and wanted to become a teacher and gym coach.

Teacher of Boys.

He couldn't find a job. Then Harold returned to Chicago and became a volunteer instructor in gymnastics at the Duncan Y to teach boys and young men, who had never known his physical setback at the hands of the grim disease. Today they listen carefully to his suggestions on how to be physically strong.

500 TO ATTEND SALVATION ARMY PARTY TUESDAY

More than 500 boys and girls are expected to attend the annual Christmas party sponsored by the family service department of the Salvation Army Tuesday evening in the Humboldt Park headquarters at 1710 North California avenue.

Major Fritz Nelson is chairman of the program which will include magic acts, band and choral music. Candy and other presents will be distributed to the children.

An extensive holiday program for the remainder of the week has been announced by Major Christian Dragsbak, commander of the Humboldt Park Scandinavian corps. The festivities will continue thru New Year's Day, when the members will hold their annual reunion dinner.

A party for members of the Sunday school and their friends has been arranged for tonight by Mrs. Ingra Gardella, young people's sergeant major. Dr. Harry Ironside, pastor of Moody Memorial church, will be the speaker at a midnight candlelight service on Christmas eve. A pageant will be provided by the young people with music by the Temple Corps Songsters.

Palatine Junior Women to Observe Guest Night

Members of the recently organized Junior Woman's club of Palatine will entertain many visitors on Tuesday evening. A stylist from a Chicago beauty salon will be present at the high school, the scene of the meeting, to advise members and guests on beauty preparations.

Youths Tell How St. Nick Lost His Face

It's a sad day when you find out there isn't any Santa Claus, agreed several students of Tuley High school, who while visiting the W-G-N studios to record today's "Citizens of Tomorrow" broadcast, were asked, "When did you stop believing in the old gentleman?"

"Why," remarked Dorothy Wilamowski, 2121 West Cortez street, "I remember, I was about 10 years old when I found out that Santa is only a myth. I had asked for a doll and a big doll buggy for Christmas. I went to bed early, because' that would bring Santa Claus sooner.' Pretty soon I heard a lot of bumping and thudding. When I poked my head from my bedrom door, I saw my dad trying to get my doll carriage thru the hall dorway. Then I knew—there is no Santa Claus."

Mother Is Caught.

"I was pretty disappointed when I found out there is no Santa Claus," explained Frank Banach, 1734 North Wood street, who is a freshman at Tuley. "We always used to get our presents on Christmas eve," he continued. "One night, when I was 6 years old, I walked out into the kitchen and found my mother ironing the Santa Claus costume my father used to wear. Gee, I think Mom felt worse than I did."

Senior student Rita Blazek, who lives at 2527 North Artesian avenue, had quite a problem on hand when she began to suspect that Santa Claus was a mythical figure.

"I figured it out by myself," she announced, "when I was about 9. I thought it was rather impossible for reindeer to fly thru the air and pull a sleigh. Then one Christmas eve I stood by my bedroom window for a long time. Santa never did come, and when I went down to open my gifts—marked "from Santa"—I felt real wise. My parents still thought I believed in the good old man."

Brothers Learn Secret.

Harold Blum, a 15 year old sophomore who resides at 2204 North Talman avenue, said: "We always used to go to church on Christmas eve. My mother and dad would always tell my older brother Marvin and me to go out on the porch and wait for them. Then one year, I guess I was about 8, Marv and I went into the house instead of waiting on the porch.

"And there," Harold said, "were my mother and dad—putting all our toys under the tree."

Laura Woolley, 2959 California avenue, is one of seven children. Two brothers and one sister are older than Laura, and when she was about 9 they began to tell her that "only babies believe in Santa Claus."

"One day my mother wasn't home," Laura said, "and we looked in a cupboard. I opened a package and found a doll—the same one my little sister got—from Santa—on Christmas morning." Laura agreed with the other students that, "It's lots of fun when you believe in Santa."

Tipoff From Dad.

Jerome Brand, who lives at 1339 North Spaulding avenue, and is a freshman at Tuley High school, asked for many gifts one Christmas when he was "about nine."

"My dad looked at me," chuckled Jerome, "and then he laughed. 'Gee, son,' he said, 'don't forget. There is no Santa Claus.'"

"Goodness, I felt awful when I found out that there is no Santa Claus," mourned Irene Wardach, a junior who lives at 2144 North Bell avenue. "I imagine I was about seven when I went shopping for gifts with my mother. I saw her buy some toys—the same toys that I found in my stocking on Christmas morning."

PLEDGE 2 MILES OF NEW LIGHTS ON MILWAUKEE

New street lights will be installed on Milwaukee avenue from Lake street to Division street, a stretch of almost two miles, in the near future, it was announced last week by Lloyd Johnson, commissioner of street and electricity, at a meeting of the Northwest Area council of the Chicago Motor club.

Repaving and widening of Milwaukee avenue in this section have been completed and council members pointed out that the increased traffic thus attracted would increase the hazard of poor illumination. The temporary system now in operation will be replaced within two or three months, said Johnson.

Make Wrightwood Thru Street.

Northwest side aldermen also informed the council that they had obtained an order to make Wrighwood avenue a thru street from Kimball avenue to Pulaski road. The council had urged that some form of protection be given the increasing number of vehicles using this thorofare. In addition it was announced that the state highway department will erect warning signs for Higgins road traffic at Mannheim road.

Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st] reported that the city had authorized the use of its share of motor fuel tax money to purchase the land now used by a filling station so that Foster avenue could be extended thru to Northwest highway. At present traffic detours one block north crossing Milwaukee and Central avenues before intersecting Northwest highway. Authorization for the purchase from the state is now being sought. Other recommendations included the installation of signal lights at the intersection of Graceland and Miner streets.

Many Groups Represented.

Representatives at the meeting included Judge Oscar K. Stahle of Park Ridge, Walter Miller, Northwest Federation of Improvements Clubs; Vincent Rozycki, Northwest Civic association; Charles A. Amenta, South Edgebrook Community club; Thomas M. Amlin, Edgewood Community club; James E. Bulger, Chicago Motor club; Ald. Cowhey, and James S. Davis, East Park View Improvement association.

Others were George H. Eck, Middle States Telephone company; George J. Eckhoff, Norwood Park Chamber of Commerce; Lee R. Foster, Des Plaines Traffic commission; Robert D. Hams, Kiwanis club of Park Ridge; H. W. Johnson, Park Ridge chief of police; John H. Kerr, Norwood Park Citizens' association; Marion G. Kudlick, Near Northwest Side Community council; A. G. Lauterbach, West Side Commercial league; Albert Pieper, Des Plaines Safety council; Charles E. Stevens, Milwaukee-Armitage-Western Business Men's association; George E. Wise, Forest Glen Progressive Men's club, and Harry G. Weimer, Kiwanis club of Logan Square.

Reinberg PTA Asks Help in Red Cross Activities

The Red Cross unit of the Reinberg Parent-Teacher association has invited all residents of the community to join members of the association in making bandages, knitting and sewing articles for the American Red Cross. Mrs. Ruth Cross, chairman, and Mrs. Irene Chauvin, cochairman, announced that material used in the project may be taken to a worker's home and the work done there.

NEIGHBORHOODS TO FETE 50,000 IN FIELDHOUSES

Santa Claus Will Be Welcome Visitor.

Nearly 50,000 boys and girls, many of them from homes where Christmas cheer is none too plentiful, will take part in Yuletide parties at 24 fieldhouses of the Chicago Park district on the northwest side, according to George T. Donoghue, general superintendent.

Santa Claus will be a welcome visitor at most of the parks, distributing candy, nuts, and toys to the children and group singing of Christmas carols will be features in many instances. NEED AN ANSWER TO SPORTS QUIZ? TOMMY HAS IT

How did Dizzy Dean get his nickname? What was Billy Herman's batting average in 1931? What is Joe DiMaggio's middle name? Who won the All-Star baseball game in 1933, and who was the losing pitcher? How many fans attended the world's series last year and why?

There's one easy way to find out. Just ask Tommy Franklin.

Tommy Franklin.

Tommy will also tell you that the Chicago Cubs hold the National league record for victories in a season, 116 in 1906; that Jimmie Foxx led the American league in batting in 1938 with an average of .349; or that it was in 1927 that Babe Ruth hit 60 homes runs.

Records Pile Up.

An unusual fellow, this Tommy Franklin, but don't picture him as a gray-haired sage. He's only 9 years old and in 3A at Beaubien school. He lives at 4850 Winnemac avenue. Ever since he has been able to read, however, he's been following the sports pages. Since last year he has filled five scrapbooks with pictures of baseball, fooball, and hockey players and his mind with countless details on their lives and habitats.

This sports obsession at first showed signs of becoming a strain on the family tie. "Every room in the house was piled high with old newspapers and sports magazines," sighs his mother, Mrs. Thomas Franklin. "I had to start throwing them out. But my friends kept telling me that I was throwing his future away."

Tommy has already started to make a name for himself by stumping Bob Elson, W-G-N sports announcer, with whom he has appeared on four broadcasts. Tommy's ability to remember batting averages amazes the veteran baseball expert.

Gum Puzzle Solved.

Some months ago he began laying in vast supplies of bubble gum. This situation worried his mother—especially when she noticed he never used it. She later discovered that each package contained a picture card of a major league ball player. His card file now numbers 477.

Naturally Tommy's taste in radio programs runs to sports commentators. He and his pals insist on playing hard ball like the major leagues. Kitten ball is for sissies, they say.

Altho his one-man fact finding board specializes in baseball, he prefers to play football, his ambition at the moment to be another great end—"like Don Hutson."

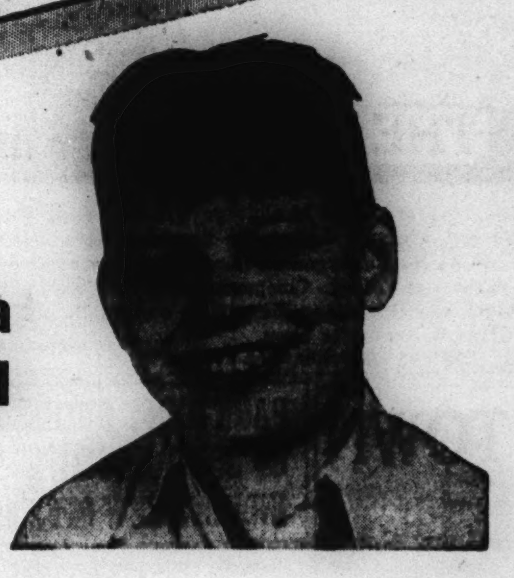
"—and take a memo to myself"

DEAR GEORGE—Do you think it wise to put off any longer this business of finding a good, late-model car? Frankly I do not see the sense in delaying. Now is undoubtedly the time to get yourself a good backlog of miles which may not be available later, certainly not on such excellent terms. To find a large selection of good-looking late-models, follow the Tribune want ad section which prints more Used Autos for Sale want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper. I feel sure that you will see the reasonableness of this position and that I may expect some action from you, but soon! Thanks and regards, Yours, George.



You can buy him a successful future!

To a large extent your son's future pivots on the opportunities you are able to give him. But advantages for the young take money. If you want to make more money in your present job or in a better one, specialized training can help you. To get ahead faster, start now on one of the regular or short courses of training offered in the Trade Schools, Instruction, Musical and Dramatic, and Dressmaking and Millinery Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section.

Gold in your belfry?

Well—attic, then. And if not gold, something just as good. What about the bicycle Junior outgrew? And the electric train? Or the old porch furniture? Or that highboy you no longer use? Lots of people want them and will pay for them with cash or other useful articles. Investigate at once! And review the offers in the Barter & Exchange column.

Because want ad users get better results, they place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

"CHICAGO'S LEADING CLEANERS"

THEY MISS OWN YULE, BUT MAKE OTHERS HAPPY

Railroaders Must Forgo Holiday at Home.

BY JUNE GESERICK.

"Let me speak to Joe, please." The voice of a caller is going to interrupt Christmas eve preparations in the Joseph I. Jauch home, 731 East 89th place.

Joe Jauch, a fireman for the Illinois Central railroad, is one of the many railroad men who will spend their Christmas running engines, unloading baggage, making up berths, or serving dinners for the thousands of Chicagoans and suburbanites who will be traveling to and from family gatherings in every part of the United States.

Mrs. Jauch; Robert, age 14; Virginia, 12; Ursula, 11, and Ronald, 7, are going to turn disappointed eyes to Dad Jauch as he hangs up the phone receiver.

Fun for the Family.

"Aw, never mind. We'll have lots of fun tonight and then you can save me some of that turkey—and a big piece of pie," Jauch will grin, attempting to dispel the gloom that has taken hold.

Long after the children have gone to bed—Ronnie to dream of Santa Claus—Mr. and Mrs. Jauch will sit in the kitchen—the table strewn with colorful paper and ribbons—wrapping gifts—gifts the opening of which dad will have to miss.

Early the next morning Jauch will prepare to leave the house. His wife, Margaret, will have risen to make ready a hearty breakfast of steaming coffee, bacon, and eggs. The day really starts when Jauch leaves his warm home, after bidding his wife to remember what Ronnie says when he opens a certain package, and goes into the cold—to a typical railroad Christmas.

Board the Engine.

A half hour later Jauch will arrive at the 27th street roundhouse of the Illinois Central. W. H. Goetz, 1342 East 76th street, will nod a welcome to the fireman. Goetz is engineer of the crew with which Jauch will serve.

Together the men will walk thru the roundhouse—past the circular row of engines, on which grease-covered men will be busily working. Out into the yard they walk, finally boarding their engine, which has just been brought from the roundhouse by a couple of hostlers, men whose job it is to see that the engines are turned on the roundhouse turntable and brought out into the yard for the engine crew to board. The engine is backed down the tracks to the Roosevelt road station.

Each to His Duties.

Jauch is in the engine tending the steam pressure and the stoker, which fires the boiler. The pressure must be kept at approximately 225 pounds per square inch. While the fireman inspects the many dials of the control board the engineer jumps from the cab and slowly walks around the engine, checking to see that the wheels and piston rods are in order.

"Hi, Joe," calls Francis O'Brien, assistant station master. O'Brien lives at 802 Dobson avenue. Jauch climbs from the cab to talk with him.

"I sure would like to be home today, eating that turkey with the folks—watching the kids open their presents," sighs O'Brien. "Mom and dad are coming over this morning." O'Brien's father, James, is the third oldest man on the Illinois Central's engineer board in point of seniority.

Watch for Signals.

"So long, O'B.," calls Jauch as he follows his engineer up into the engine cab. Both men lean out the windows to watch for the signals that will tell them to start.

"All aboard," shouts the conductor—and late passengers scramble to board the cars.

The engine puffs and hisses, the great driving wheels revolve, and the cars move slowly from the station. The train speeds thru Chicago, and the two men catch glimpses in nearby windows of families celebrating Christmas. Later the cars wind their way thru the suburban area. Little boys are trying their Christmas bicycles on slippery streets, and the fireman imagines the joy young Ronnie felt when he opened a package concealing a brand new electric train.

Kankakee and Return.

Most of the larger Illinois Central trains do not stop between Chicago and Kankakee, thus the crew's first chance to rest comes at that town, a little more than 50 miles from Chicago. A few hours' leave while their engine is moved from the southbound cars and connected with another Chicago bound train. Another crew on another engine will carry the cars headed for the southland.

The return trip seems even longer than the run from Chicago. Every turn of the wheels reminds the men that the engine is bearing them home. But night has already arrived. Dinner will surely be over, and the guests will be departing—but one happy thought is in the mind of each man as the engine speeds him toward his waiting family.

"Sure, we miss our Christmas at home, but we help other folks to get home to their families—and that makes us feel pretty good."

MODEL AIRPLANE FLYERS TO HOLD MEET SATURDAY

Annual Contest Slated at Pulaski Park.

Some people may look forward to the Christmas holidays because they mean gifts and a vacation from school and work, but to members of the Pulaski park and Holstein park model airplane clubs, the season means that they must get their planes in shape for the annual model airplane contest which will be held at Pulaski park, Blackhawk avenue and Noble street, on Saturday afternoon.

Chief among contest requisites is that models in the contest must be built and owned by the contestant. Contestants under 16 will be classed as juniors. The senior class will include all contestants over that age.

Must Show Plans.

Scale models must be turned into the park director's office, along with the plans from which the entry was built, before 10 o'clock on the morning of the contest. The office will be open at that time for registration.

According to the rules of the contest, the area of the main supporting surface of planes entered in the models event must not exceed 30 square inches. Each model must be hand launched. Flying models will be timed for their duration in the air. Three flights will be permitted for the rise-off-the-ground event. Nine flights will be allowed for the glider event. Three delayed flights will be equivalent, according to contest officials, to one official flight in the rise-off-the-ground event.

Limits of Area.

Competition in the contest will be confined to residents of section four of the park district. The section is bounded by Chicago avenue on the South, north branch of the Chicago river on the east, Diversey park way on the north, and Harlem avenue on the west.

John Zalinski, park supervisor of Pulaski park, is chairman of the meet. Bernard Schwartz is contest director, and judges will be selected from members of the Pulaski park staff. Christmas gifts and merchandise certificates will be awarded to the winners of the events.

WAR GIVES NEW NOTES TO YULE RADIO PROGRAMS

What to Tell Children of War, Forum Topic.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Christmas programs will fill the air this week. There will be numerous carol programs and many other programs with a joyous holiday note. But this year there will be few of the special Christmas broadcasts picked up from abroad by the networks. The only program coming from Bethlehem this year will originate in Bethlehem, Pa. The Bethlehem where Jesus was born this year is in the near east war zone.

Typical of the altered tone of Christmas broadcasts this year will be the presentation of the Northwestern Reviewing stand at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and Mutual.

The subject for discussion is "What Shall We Teach Our Children About the War This Christmas?" The speakers are to be three outstanding workers among children and young people: Dr. Paul J. Misner, superintendent of schools at Glencoe; Dr. Kenneth Heaton of the Northwestern university school of education, and Helen Ross, lecturer in psychoanalysis at the University of Chicago.

Good Fellows on Air.

The sixth annual Good Fellow choral program by a combined high school choir of 500 voices will be heard over W-G-N and W59C from 4:15 to 4:30 tomorrow as they sing in Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building. Students from Farragut, Lindblom, Steinmetz, and Waller high schools and Wright Junior college will sing familiar carols.

Christmas carol programs will be aired over W59C and from the amplificers on Tribune Tower every evening from 5 to 6 p. m. These programs, featuring church choral groups, will be heard in part over W-G-N and Mutual. Details will be given daily in THE TRIBUNE.

Christmas Carol on W-G-N.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" will be broadcast on W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. from tomorrow thru Friday. The dramas will be continued in five daily instalments.

Tomorrow W-G-N and Mutual will present the first program of the new musical series, "Music That Endures." The W-G-N Symphonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, and Attilio Baggiore will be featured in special seasonal music. This program will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Tuesday will find W-G-N continuing its Christmas schedule. The Great Artist series will have a special dramatization of the painting of the "Adoration of the Magi."

Christmas music from around the world—hymns, carols, and traditional sprightly yuletide numbers—will give a realistic seasonal tone to the Northeners' program at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday. Harry S. Walsh will direct the octet.

Double Feature Broadcast.

A Christmas Eve double-feature broadcast will be presented Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen from the Chicago Service Men's center. A half hour musical show starring Marion Claire and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra will begin at 8:30 and the quiz show, "Shoot the Works," will be aired from 9:30 to 10.

Miss Claire's portion of the double-feature broadcast will feature a special program of Christmas music. She will be accompanied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler. The program will present some well known Christmas melodies as well as some unusual, almost unknown, but beautiful songs that have been passed down from Christmas celebrations of many years ago.

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" will be the theme melody of the program while other selections include: Bach's "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring," by the chorus and orchestra; "Hail Ye Time of Holiday," by the chorus and orchestra; "Madonna's Lullaby," by Miss Claire; "Dance of the Tumblers," by the orchestra; "Here a Torch," by the chorus; "Madrigal," by Miss Claire and the quartet; "Night Before Christmas," by Miss Claire; and "Humperdinck," by the chorus and orchestra.

Cash for Service Men.

At 9:30 p. m. the service men's attention will be centered on Marvin Mueller, quizmaster for the "Shoot the Works" audience quiz show. Announcers Jess Kirkpatrick and Guy Savage will travel thru the audience selecting contestants at random and Mueller will fire his questions from the stage.

Two programs of Christmas music will be broadcast on the Perfectionist's hour on W59C from 9 to 10 p. m. on Wednesday and Christmas night. The Christmas eve program will be devoted exclusively to carols; the Dec. 25 broadcast will present symphony orchestras in some of the best known music associated with the Christmas season.

President Roosevelt will be heard over the major networks in connection with the lighting of the National Community Christmas tree in Washington at 4 p. m. next Wednesday. Choral groups will sing and the United States Marine band will play.

NBC Yule Programs.

Special Christmas programs on NBC will include:

The Contended hour will give a Christmas party for 350 underprivileged youngsters on WMAQ-NBC at 9 p. m. tomorrow. The youngsters will be studio guests and will receive gifts.

A special Christmas program from Bethlehem, Pa., at 8 p. m. Wednesday over WENR-NBC will portray dramatically the founding of this city 200 years ago by the Moravian church.

The NBC Symphony orchestra at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday over WMAQ will present the "Nutcracker Suite," associated with the holiday celebrations.

Lionel Barrymore will give his annual reading of Dickens' Scrooge in his Christmas Carol at 9 o'clock Christmas night on the Rudy Vallee hour on WMAQ-NBC.

Christmas on CBS.

Holiday features on WBBM-CBS include:

The Columbia Workshop at 7 tonight will present "Miracle in Manhattan," a Christmas play by Charles Vanda.

At 2:30 p. m. Wednesday "The Night Before Christmas," with Nila Mack as director, will be aired.

Gregorian chants by monks from St. Meinrad seminary in Indiana will be aired at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Sir Thomas Beecham will conduct the Columbia Symphony orchestra in a carol program at 11:05 p. m. Wednesday.

In a special program, "Christmas in the New World," at 10 p. m. Christmas night, CBS will bring in Montreal, Buenos Aires, and Rio de Janeiro for contrasting glimpses of the holiday.

Ready for Santa

Donna Reade, who plays the part of Vicky on W-G-N's Painted Dreams at 1:15 p. m. weekdays, is pictured getting her home ready for Christmas.

Chicago policemen serve six months on probation before they are accepted under civil service. In their first year as regulars they receive $2,140, in their second $2,260, and each year thereafter $2,500. After two years they are eligible for promotion to sergeancies, which pay $2,900. Lieutenants get $3,072 and captains $3,720.

Four Generations in Two Families

Four generations of women were united last week at the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Nichols Sr., who live on their farm at Mannheim road and North avenue. From great-grandmother to great-granddaughter in the picture above are (left) Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. Lillian King of St. Louis, Mo., Mrs. Leona Niles, and Glenda Dale Niles of Plano. More than 200 friends and relatives attended the celebration. The Nichols' six children presented the couple with a set of gold wedding rings.

YULE FLOWERS TO BE SEEN AT PARK EXHIBITS

Poinsettias, Christmas cherries, and other vegetation in keeping with the holiday season will feature the Chicago park district's 29th annual Christmas show that will open in the Garfield and Lincoln park conservatories today. The show, which is free to the public, will continue thru Jan. 4, and will run from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily.

The poinsettia is named for Dr. Joel Poinsette, former United States minister to Mexico, who introduced it here. The Mexicans call it "Buena Noche" because it is supposed to bloom on Christmas eve.

Lincoln's park's display will be featured by the Star of Bethlehem orchid, large star shaped flower native to Madagascar, which greatly intrigued Charles Darwin. Such spring flowers as tulips, hyacinths, and marigolds will be among the 26,000 other species represented in the show.

BOYS TO PRESENT DICKENS' 'CAROL' AT LANE SCHOOL

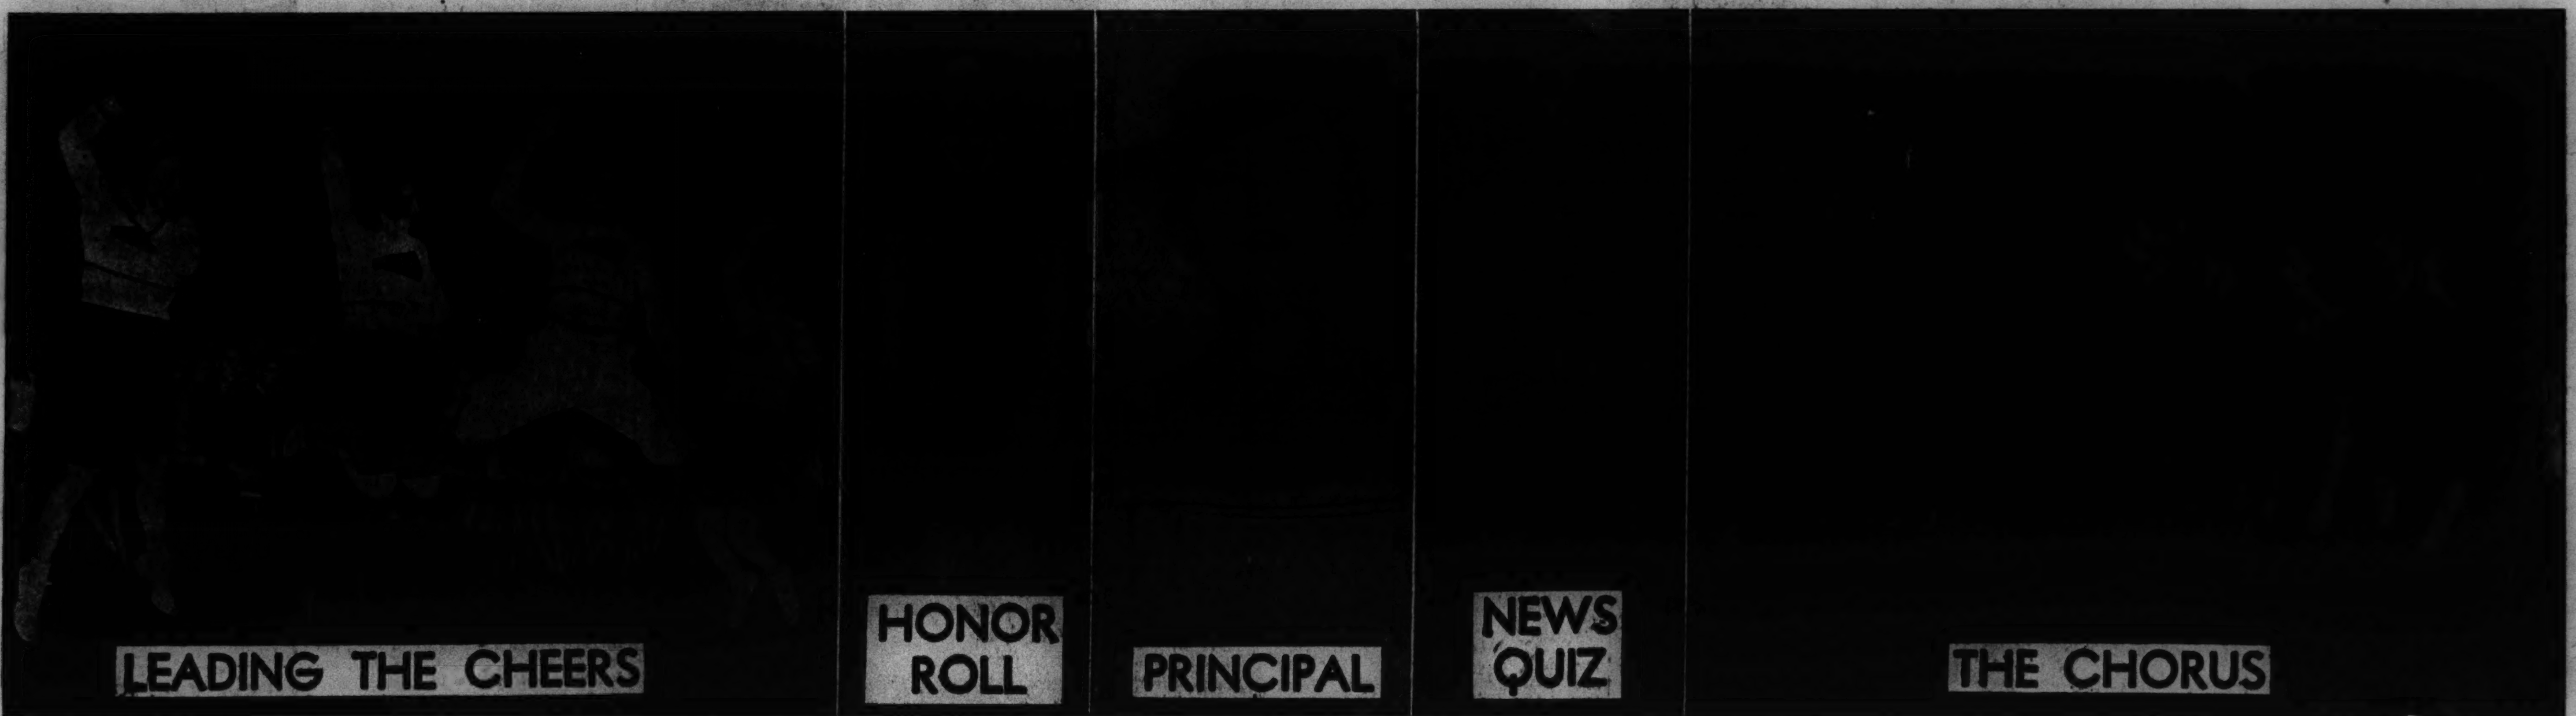
Tuley High School Will Present the 'Citizens of Tomorrow' Program on W-G-N at 10:30 o'Clock This Morning



Tuley High school will be honored on the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program over W-G-N at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The new hour for the broadcast was arranged because of the championship professional football game to be broadcast this afternoon. A capacity audience of students came to the main W-G-N audience studio Wednesday afternoon to make a transcription of the program to be presented this morning. Cheers are important to any high school gathering and those who lead them at Tuley are (left to right) Mildred Burgess, Ellis Fasseas, Lester Lerman, and Betty Rumney. An honor roll is announced at each program and Deborah Slutsky will be named for Tuley High. Miss Hazel L. Stillman, principal of Tuley, will tell of the achievements of the school and some of its history. Bernard Molina was among those representing Tuley in the news quiz portion of the program. Miss Lillian L. Schaefer, chairman of the music department, will lead the chorus in three numbers on the program. A number of special guests were present on the stage to watch the making of the record. They included Loyal H. Tingley, Richard A. Maske, Charles Mitchell, Charles Ford, Norman B. Collins, Norman Schaefer, John C. Gordon, and Marion G. Kudlick. Now that you have the pictures of the making of the record, turn on your radio at 10:30 o'clock this morning and hear the sounds of the half hour show. The "Citizens of Tomorrow" programs are sponsored by The Tribune. There will be no "Citizens" broadcasts during the school Christmas vacation. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

DEFT CHANGES TRANSFORM OLD HOUSE INTO NEW

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you have wondered what to do about an aging front porch that no longer does justice to your house, or what treatment to give a red brick fireplace that has grown a bit bleak and drab with the years; if you have debated with various family members over possibilities of small home improvements or large changes, you will find some interesting and practical answers to just such questions in a newly remodeled home at 552 York road, Hinsdale.

This five room home is now completely modernized, decorated and furnished, and open to the public during December. It is an excellent demonstration of how an aging house can be made young and very livable by the aid of a few deft and skilful changes. It is no drastic remodeling piece of work but the sort of project many people are hoping and planning to accomplish, the type of modernization which can change the personality of an existing house without any great structural changes or without any large outlay of money.

Lot Landscaped.

When modernization of this home started this fall the lot was landscaped and a heavy hedge across the front was removed and placed at the side. A new driveway was laid, brambles around the front porch were removed, and then the front porch and steps came off. These were replaced with new porch, steps, some neat pillars, and a new front driveway.

No other exterior changes were made but the house as well as the chimney were painted white.

In the original living room there was a fine old red brick fireplace, but the bricks needed cleaning and freshening, so it was decided to cover the brick. Then old lighting fixtures on the fireplace wall were ripped out and a mirror hung over the mantel. There are built-in bookcases at each side of the fireplace and gayly colored chintz curtains at the windows.

Kitchen Modernized.

The kitchen was troubled with a not uncommon ailment. It had more doors than it needed, so one door was blocked and a window built in its place. The kitchen was completely moderized. There's a blue and gray linoleum on the floor, Chinese red curtains with yellow figures at the window, and new sink, built-in cabinets, range, and refrigerator.

On the second floor there are two bedrooms and bath. The bath is tiled with dutsy pink wallpaper above tiling and blue and white striped curtains at the window.

In the master bedroom at the front the walls are papered a dusty pink above a wainscot of striped pink and white. The closet is carried out in pink and white, harmonizing with bedroom walls. There are Venetian blinds and drapes at the windows.

TWO MAINE HIGH MUSICIANS WILL PLAY FOR CLUB

The first postholiday meeting of the Des Plaines Woman's club will be held Monday afternoon, Jan. 5, in Rand park fieldhouse, on Dempster road.

Bill Edwards, a Maine Township High school student, will play a saxophone solo, and Martin Madsen will be heard in a trumpet solo. Both are first chairmen in the Maine Township High school band.

"Ringing Joy Bells of Life," will be the subject of Dr. G. R. Keepin, when he addresses the club women at their meeting.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Dec. 22.

A number of things must be considered if house plants are grown successfully. First, the soil must be moist but not saturated to the point that the roots cannot function properly. See that the ball of earth is moist thru and water when the soil needs it. The food supply must not be too generous or too little. Food should be given when the plant is in active condition and not when it is at rest.

Attempting to grow plants in too large containers should be avoided for too much soil is likely to result in over watering. Transplant when the pots are fairly filled with roots, but not rootbound. During the winter full light can be given most plants. Drafts and sudden changes in temperature should be avoided.

Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Begonias make fine house plants but they require close attention. Like all plants except desert plants, they require a humid atmosphere, which is not always possible to maintain in the home, but pans of water or specially constructed humidors to fasten to radiators can be used with good effect. Syringe about once a week to keep the foliage clean and free from dust.

Wash the leaves of plants like the rubber plant because its thick leaves are not injured from such treatment. Fresh air is essential, but be careful of sudden cooling of the temperature or drafts. Remember that plants are growing, living things and cannot endure in conditions that hinder their development.

Wednesday, Dec. 24.

It is difficult to regulate the temperature in the home, hence extra care is necessary when you are attempting to grow certain kinds of plants indoors. As an example, the cyclamen is a popular plant and likes cooler conditions than the begonia. The common date palm has narrow leaves, or leaflets, and will endure adverse conditions but it also likes a warm atmosphere.

Thursday, Dec. 25.

Viney plants that are growing in rooms should be kept trimmed back if they become long and unattractive. They may need repotting. The beautiful and dependable philodendron will do well in water alone for quite awhile or in a comparatively small container in half sand and peat mixed together. A little charcoal may be added; this tends to keep the soil sweet.

Many small plants are purchased as they stand in small but ornamental pots; these must be carefully watered because they often have no drainage hole and hence may become waterlogged.

Friday, Dec. 26.

Send for seed catalog and order seeds at once. Due to a shortage of many items, it is essential that extra care be exercised in conserving them.

Do not waste seeds, but sow thinly, giving each one an opportunity to develop properly.

Saturday, Dec. 27.

Altho the pruning of outdoor woody plants can be done from now until early spring, many gardeners prefer to get it over with as soon as possible. Grapes also may be pruned while dormant. However, few of the latter are grown in city or suburban gardens, but shrubs abound and many of them are sadly in need of attention.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

LIGHTS TO GLOW IN PORTAGE PARK HOME CONTEST

The 4th annual Christmas decorating and lighting contest of Portage Park will open Friday and close on Tuesday, Dec. 30. Twenty-five prizes of defense savings stamps and merchandise, will be awarded to the winners.

The contest is sponsored each year by the Portage Park Chamber of Commerce and the park district in conjunction with the Portage Park Kiwanis club, Portage Park post of the American Legion, Triangle Lions club, Portage Community club, Portage Community club, Portage Park Woman's club, Portage Park Parent-Teacher association and the Portage Park Garden club.

Lawrence Burwick, chairman of the contest committee, is assisted by William Kornbeck, Michael J. George, Ralph Hirschberg, George Severance, Miles Abel, Mrs. Donald Warbritton, Jens Sorensen, and Mr. and Mrs. August Hanke. Prize committee members are Mr. Hirschberg, Mr. George, Henry Kloss, and Leonard Fuog.

Since its conception, according to committee members, the number of entries in the contests has increased each year, until last year more than 600 were recorded. Judging of entries is based on originality, economy, and beauty.

PARKS TO FETE 300,000 AT PARTIES

CAROLS, SACRED MUSIC TO ECHO THRU CHURCHES

Services at Midnight Usher in Christmas.

Emphasis on spiritual defense will mark solemn rites in churches of every denomination on the north side this wartime Christmas of 1941.

Episcopalians will answer the summons of "Adeste, Fideles" with special devotions in all churches centering in the traditional midnight service on Christmas eve. St. James church, Wabash avenue and Huron street, will hold a carol and candlelight service at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to be followed by two holy communion services Christmas morning, the first at 8 o'clock, the second at 11 o'clock. Special music will be directed by Leo Sowerby, choirmaster and organist. Dr. Duncan H. Browne, rector, will conduct all services.

Midnight Carol Service.

St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 North Dearborn Parkway, also will have three services, the first being the midnight carol service starting at 11:30 o'clock Christmas eve. Holy communion services will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday morning and at 11 o'clock. Next Saturday afternoon St. Chrysostom's choir will broadcast an hour's program of Christmas music over station W-G-N. The Rev. Dudley Scott Stark is rector.

The choir of St. Peter's church, 621 Belmont avenue, will sing in the Edgewater Beach hotel Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. Ray Everett Carr, rector, will lead a choral eucharist and service at 11:30 o'clock Christmas eve, and two holy communion services at 7:30 o'clock and 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

Similar services will be held at the Church of the Atonement, 5749 Kenmore avenue; St. Luke's, St. Matthew's, and St. Mark's of Evanston, the Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest; St. Augustine's, Wilmette, Christ church, Winnetka; Trinity, Highland Park; Holy Comforter, Kenilworth; St. Paul's-by-the-Lake, Rogers Park, and All Saints, Ravenswood.

Party for 1,000 Children.

A gala Christmas party for 1,000 needy children from various churches and social welfare agencies will be held in the Sherman hotel tomorrow evening. The children will be guests of the Church Club of Chicago, Episcopal layman's organization.

Bishop Wallace E. Conkling will confirm a class of adults at 10 o'clock Christmas morning at the Cathedral shelter, Washington boulevard and Peoria street. After the service, Canon David E. Gibson will serve dinners to 1,300 homeless men.

Choirs of five Lutheran churches will give a carol recital in Kimball hall in the loop at 3 o'clock this afternoon directed by the Rev. Louis J. Schwartzkopf. The following churches will take part: Christ, Jehovah, Our Redeemer, and St. James. Emma Berger will be guest organist.

Three Choirs to Sing.

A Christmas concert will be given at 8 o'clock this evening at the St. James Evangelical Lutheran church, North Fremont street and Dickens avenue, by three choirs of the parish under the direction of John G. Scdmid. The Rev. Arthur C. Dahms is pastor of the church.

A program of carol music at 10:30 o'clock this morning will open special services at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, 2215 North avenue, and will be followed at 11 o'clock by the festival service. The Rev. B. W. Teigen, pastor, will speak on "Behold, the Bethlehem Babe—Christ the Lord." Robert Jacobsen will direct the choir and Roy Agdesteen will play the organ.

"Christ the Savior Is Born," a Christmas pageant, will be given for the last time this evening at the Christ English Lutheran church, North Long avenue and Le Moyne avenue. A musical prolog, beginning at 7:30 o'clock will precede the pageant. The Rev. Warner H. Grothman is pastor of the church.

Bethel Choir Concert.

The mixed choir of Bethel Evangelical Lutheran church, Hirsch street and North Springfield avenue, will give a concert at 7:45 o'clock this evening. Harold H. Pollex will direct the concert. The Rev. William Boehm is pastor of the church.

Under the auspices of the Lutheran Welfare society, the annual Christmas service will be conducted in the chapel of the Cook County infirmary, Oak Forest, at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. The address will be given by the Rev. Arthur A. Brauer, pastor of St. Paul's church in Chicago Heights. The missionary in charge of the infirmary is the Rev. William Greve, Blue Island.

The church school program of the Unity Evangelical Lutheran church, Balmoral and Magnolia avenues, will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening. At 11:30 o'clock Christmas eve the Rev. John C. Evans will preach on "The Mysteries of That Light." There will be appropriate music by the junior choir and Miss Dorothy Volkman, soloist. There will be Christmas matins at 6 o'clock Christmas morning. The senior choir will sing.

Evanston Girl Has Madonna Role in National College Play

Miss Theodore Lehmann of Evanston played the Madonna role in the Christmas oratorio, "Children of Bethlehem," this season's Christmas play at the National College of Education of Evanston. Miss Lehmann was selected for the role by her classmates, the seniors. With simple properties—a box-like creche, evergreen background, and soft cloth head covering and gown, the future teachers adhere to the humble surroundings that are so much a part of the Christmas story.

Two Employes of Park District Retire from Jobs

Two park district employés were retired last week upon reaching the compulsory age of 65. They are Anthony Lewandowski of 3011 South Union avenue, a janitor at the Lincoln park zoo, who started as a laborer with the former South Park district in 1904, and Joseph Rodini of 2711 Harrison street, a park district laborer since 1939.

CHRISTMAS 1941 IS HAPPIER FOR THESE FAMILIES

Lake Co. Workers Are Thankful for Jobs.

That new recruit on the labor front, the defense worker, greets Christmas, 1941, as a man with a job, a necessary job. There are thousands of him thruout the country, crowding into communities that have doubled in size for the emergency. On the north side, he lives close to the Waukegan-North Chicago industrial area.

Typical of him is James E. Carroll, 43 years old, who came to Waukegan from Casper, Wyo., last March. "I had relatives in this part of the country," says this American of Irish background, "and they told me there was work here. I'd been on a government job in Wyoming, but it was over."

Builds Own House.

Carroll went to work at the Waukegan plant of Johns-Manville. He operates a circle saw on the millboard work for defense orders. He hadn't been on his new job long when he bought a 120 by 150 foot lot along Lewis avenue near the Bonnie Brook Country club. Then he set to work on his house. It is little more than a big square with a roof slanted sharply from front to back. The insulation is partly of flattened out cardboard boxes. In June his family came—Mrs. Carroll, Theresa, 15; Blanche, 10; Jerry Louise, 18 years old, and the black haired little boy, James, 4 years old. The oldest, Donald, 19 years old, stayed in Casper to work his way thru his senior year in high school, and the second boy, Harry, 16, went to Milwaukee to attend a trade school.

Mrs. Carroll had never seen the prairies of Illinois before. And this fall, she encountered Illinois mud—"but I don't mind," she says. "This is our own home, humble as it is. And I can find work here, too. [She is a waitress in Waukegan] I could never get a job in Casper."

Best Christmas in 13 Years.

Thus the Carrolls face Christmas, 1941. It will be the first Christmas since 1928 that they could look forward to a good winter of steady employment. Carroll was an express truck driver that Christmas. Later in the season he became ill. When he came out of the hospital the market had crashed, and he didn't have a job. Since then he has worked where and when he could. For this war he is back in the neighborhood of his service in 1917. He spent 22 months at Great Lakes Naval Training station then.

Carroll works days. His wife goes on duty for the supper and night shift at the restaurant. He gets up at 2 o'clock each morning and goes after her. Carroll works five days a week. His wages were increased recently under a new labor agreement with his company. The family has to carry water across lots from a neighbor's well. There are no sidewalks, no improvements in the Illinois field where their house is built—but the Carrolls are happy and thankful.

Steve Glogovsky, who lives at 819 Eleventh street, North Chicago, isn't exactly a defense worker. He's been a tong man in the rod mill of the

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Corp. Gerald E. Farrell, son of Mrs. Margaret Farrell of 5758 North Campbell avenue, discharged recently from the 202d coast artillery at Fort Bliss, Tex., returned to Chicago and reënlisted in the army. He is now at Fort Sheridan awaiting assignment. Corp. Farrell previously had served a three year enlistment with the 122d field artillery.

John C. Millett Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Millett, Wilmette, was appointed a second lieutenant after graduating from an officers' training school at Fort Benning, Ga., recently. A graduate of the University of Illinois, Millett will report for duty at Camp Robinson, Ark.

Private George A. Pierce, 22, son of Mrs. Ruth Monnich, 104 North Hamlin avenue, will direct a one act play "If Men Played Cards as Women Do," presented on the Christmas program at Fort Sill, Okla. Pierce is president of the Fort's dramatic club. Prior to his induction into the army, Pierce was heard in dramatic skits over W-G-N and other Chicago stations.

Private John Striegl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Striegl, 1730 Sedgwick street, reënlisted for three years in the 3d armored division at Camp Polk, La., after serving one-half year. Striegl is a radio operator.

Capt. Leigh Hale Hunt, 2648 Lake View avenue, was promoted to the rank of major recently, according to information received from the war department.

The Christmas Story Fills the Family Evening Hour

This is the season when American parents tell the Christmas story to their little girls and boys. Mrs. George H. Howell, 638 Lincoln street, Winnetka, is busy with Christmas plans, but there must be a reading period when George Jr., Barbara Lu, and small Jimmy hear the story of Christ's birth. Georgie is a big boy—going to be 5 years old in February, so he remembers the narrative from last year. Barbara Lu is 7½ years old, and she's heard it before, too. Buy Jimmy is just 3 years old ,and he can think of several other things he'd rather be doing at the moment than listening to his mother read.

ST. NICK PLACES ORPHANS ON HIS PRIORITY LIST

They'll Share Huge Load of Gifts.

There will be no disappointed faces among the hundreds of Chicago orphans Christmas morning if holiday plans of various orphanages are an indication of what is to come.

More than 800 children, representing 23 nationalities and varying in age from 2 to 16 years, should have no cause for complaint at the Angel Guardian orphanage, 2001 Devon avenue. Celebration will begin this Sunday afternoon with a party for all 800 children sponsored by the Ladies of Isabella and the Knights of Columbus in the auditorium.

Make 800 Stockings.

The Ladies of Isabella will accompany Santa Claus on his annual visit to each of the 16 cottages—eight for girls and eight for boys—comprising the institution. Forty children live in each cottage as a family. A sister of the Poor Handmaids of Jesus Christ is in charge of each cottage. Santa will have 16 large baskets, one for each family. Gifts will include cap and muff set, stationery boxes, manicure sets, and toys. In addition each child will receive a stocking containing candy, fruit, cookies, and nuts.

Ladies of Isabella not only shared in the expense and filled the baskets, but made the stockings, more than 800 of them, from netting. Mrs. Josephine Langenbach of 3809 North Hamilton avenue is chairman. The Rev. George Eisenbacher is president of the orphanage, the largest in the city and one of the first, having been erected in 1865.

Crèche on Wheels.

Tomorrow the hospital's junior auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Orville E. Babcock Jr., will decorate 12 trees. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. James W. Thorne, member of the auxiliary board, will wheel thru the wards a candle lighted Christmas crèche depicting the story of the Nativity. This ceremony is traditional at the hospital. Four nurses, singing carols, will accompany Mrs. Thorne and candy will be distributed. On the night before Christmas Santa Claus will distribute more than 125 toy filled stockings donated by business houses, Girl Scouts, and church organizations.

Santa's rôle, as in years past, will be filled by Dr. Eugene McEnery of the hospital staff. Children will awake Christmas morning to find another stocking, filled with candy, cookies, and fruit, tied to each bed. Visitors and parents may visit the hospital from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock following the Christmas dinner. Alice Morse, director of nurses, is in charge of festivities. John P. Wilson is president of the hospital.

204 In New Homes.

At St. Vincent's orphanage, 721 North La Salle street, there will be a party on each of six floors, accommodating 177 children all under 3 years old. A physician, one of 29 child specialists employed at the home, will be Santa Claus. He will be assisted by 50 nurses. The number of children this Christmas is less than normal, orphanage directors declared, because of the great number of babies adopted during the year. More than 900 prospective foster parents applied. Of these, 204 succeeded in adopting a St. Vincent's baby.

More than 150 children of the St. Elizabeth Day nursery at 1146 North Franklin street will attend a Christmas party at St. Joseph's school hall Tuesday afternoon. The Knights of Columbus donated the clothing, toys, and candy which will be distributed to the children placed in the nursery by mothers who must work during the day. The Rosella clowns, a troupe of three professionals, will entertain. Mrs. Harry Starkey of 421 Melrose street is president of the nursery, now in its 48th year.

Jane Brown, 5217 Brown street, Skokie, president of the Student Activities council of Mundelein college, is general chairman of the Christmas formal, the Skyscraper ball, which will be held at the Drake Friday evening. Other north siders assisting Miss Brown are Dorothy Hein, 1619 Bryn Mawr avenue, president of the senior class. Rita Ann Mulhern, 6424 North Artesian avenue, president of the sophomore class; Rita Valenzano, 2136 North Avers avenue, and Kay Warner, 1535 Granville avenue, publicity; Mary Quinn, 2256 Lincoln Park West, and Jean Bemis, 6624 North Ashland avenue, reception.

CIVIC, SERVICE GROUPS TO HELP PROVIDE GIFTS

Children Have Roles in Holiday Plays.

More than 300,000 boys and girls, representing nearly 100 communities thruout the city, will take part in yuletide parties this week in virtually every park district fieldhouse, George T. Donoghue, general superintendent, announced recently.

Hundreds of members of artcraft groups have been busy for several weeks making gifts and decorations. Many decorations have been made from material collected by these groups in the wooded areas of the parks during the autumn.

Local business men, civic leaders, and service organizations are generously contributing food and gifts which will be distributed by Santa Claus. Dances, athletic and sports events, movies, amateur dramas, operettas, and puppet shows are included among the scheduled events.

Welles Park Party.

At Welles park, Lincoln avenue and Western avenue, a party will begin at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the fieldhouse. The newly organized Welles Park Little Theater group will present two plays, "The Silver Swan" and "Right About Face," directed by John C. Miller and Fred Tuisl. Members of the cast of "The Silver Swan" are Yvonne Smith, Louise Murphy, and Virginia von Asch. In the cast of the second play are Norene Gilbert, Eugene O'Bannon, Patricia Moseley, Harlan Mansnerus, Don Guinea, Ruth Hendry, and Yvonne Smith. The party will be in charge of Emanuel Schwartz, recreation supervisor, and Sara Gross, physical instructor.

At Chase park, Ashland avenue and Leland avenue, a neighborhood party will be sponsored by the following local civic and service clubs tomorrow evening: Uptown Chicago Business association and Clark Street Business Men's association, Sheridan Park Community club, Ravenswood post of the American Legion, and the Sheridan Park Neighborhood club.

Chase Park Plays.

Feature of the evening will be two Christmas plays presented by members of the Chase Park Children's theater. Members of the cast of "The Christmas Card" include Jean Ann Akers, Virginia Geiner, Vivian Heining, Frances Winters, Marlene Menig, Dolores Robinson, Elenore Scanlan, Ann Marie Gleason, Marylin Osterkorn, Peggy Heraty, Kitty Showalter, Rita Barkelar, and Marian Manning.

In the second play, "The Toymakers Doll," are Mary Jane Jellison, Mary Micili, Catherine Musso, Patricia Boheman, Dolores Harris, Geneva Bugbee, Joan O' Keefe, Carrie Clark, Dorothy Hartigan, Doris Wright, and Carol Smith. John Duffield, park supervisor, is in charge of the program.

Christmas carols and games will be part of the program arranged by Clara Boldenow, instructor, at Pottawattomie park, 7340 North Rogers avenue.

A Christmas story hour for boys and girls of the community will be held at Indian Boundary park, Lunt avenue and Rockwell street. Mrs. W. C. Lambert of the Story Art league will be the story teller.

400 to Have Party.

A party for 400 children will be held at Stanton park, Evergreen street and Vine street, beginning at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternon. The celebration is sponsored by the North Side Civic committee and the Stanton Park Community club. A visit by Santa Claus, singing of carols, distribution of candy, apples, and oranges, and a play will be included in the program. John Merlo, recreation supervisor, will be in charge.

YULE BASKETS TO HELP CHEER 1,000 FAMILIES

Christmas baskets for more than 1,000 families will be distributed Tuesday by the Cook county council of the American Legion auxiliary.

The baskets will be made up of 15,000 individual items of foodstuffs contributed to the project by those who attended a special presentation of the Morris B. Sachs amateur hour. Admission to the show was by cans or packages of nonperishable food.

Mrs. Laura Miller, chairman of the child welfare division of the Cook county auxiliary, is head of the Christmas basket drive. She will be assisted in the distribution by 100 members of the auxiliary, of which Mrs. Ann McManus is president.

Women of the auxiliary also are playing the rôle of Tribune Good Fellows in the campaign by distributing baskets to the 100 needy families recommended by the Chicago Tribune Charities.

Children Will Be Guests at Kenilworth Club Party

Small sons and daughters of members of the Kenilworth club will be guests at a Christmas party from 3:30 o'clock to 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the clubhouse. The guests will include children up to and enrolled in fourth grade. Mr. and Mrs. D. Robert Bower, Mr. and Mrs. Roland D. Feltman, and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Surpless are on the special entertainment committee.

There are three ways in which you can cooperate, explained by the Good Fellow coupon which appears in the metropolitan section. You can obtain the name of your Good Fellow family by calling Superior 0100 or visiting the Good Fellow bureau which is located in the Tribune Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street. All checks or money orders should be made out to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. [Good Fellow fund], and mailed to the bureau.

A check for $200 has been turned over to the Good Fellow fund by the Chicago Cleaners and Dyers Plant Owners association for the purchase of 40 baskets for unfortunate families. Among those taking a lead in this movement are Julius Daniel, president; Carl Stockholm, and Hymie Ditkowsky.

DEFENSE SETUP IN LAKE COUNTY PUSHED RAPIDLY

Air Raid Measures in Effect at Waukegan.

Special meetings in Waukegan and Lake county last week resulted in plans for setting up defense precautions which will operate efficiently in blackouts or other emergencies.

A Waukegan defense commission has been set up with Fred Bairstow as chairman to take over the city arrangements for defense against air raids. All defense efforts of the city will be centralized by a coördinator who is to be named within the week. The coördinator's job will be full time for at least a month and will carry no salary.

Divide Waukegan in Zones.

Henry Bleck, city engineer of Waukegan, has prepared maps dividing the city into 99 zones averaging 450 persons per zone with the exception of the major industrial plants. There will be an air raid warden appointed for each zone. There are 20 major industrial zones, and these will be responsible for their own air raid precautions. Five of the zones are combination industrial and residential zones, and the others are business and residential.

In North Chicago, Max Przyborski, former city attorney, will be appointed ex-officio chairman of the North Chicago Defense council tomorrow. His appointment will come from the mayor, John P. Dromey, and the two aldermen from each of North Chicago's five wards will act as air raid wardens at the request of the chief of police, Jacob Novak. Roy Shoup, police sergeant, is the North Chicago air raid precautions officer.

Fire Department Active.

The Lake County Firemen's association, under the leadership of the president, Norman Conrad of Waukegan, has set up an emergency program to enroll every department in the county to protect the two major service posts, Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan, and the industries. Conrad and the association secretary, C. B. Shultis of Antioch, will take a complete survey of every piece of fire fighting equipment in the county.

Each department will organize an auxiliary to increase training in first aid and rescue work.

CHRISTMAS 1941 IS HAPPIER FOR THESE FAMILIES

American Steel and Wire company for about 20 years. But defense orders made overtime last summer and kept up a steady working schedule even without the overtime.

Result—Steve Glogovsky, 45 years old, and his wife and eight children will celebrate Christmas, 1941, with the feeling that they've been catching up on their interest and payments for their home. Mrs. Glogovsky has a new coat. There's a new refrigerator in the family kitchen, and there is a new stove, too. It all makes Christmas, they say. The two oldest Glogovskys, Thomas, 19, and George, 17, are working, too. The third, Mary, 15, works part time after school.

Clarence Meumann is a carpenter at the wire mill, and his job isn't affected especially by the defense work. But there will be a special Christmas out at his attractive home in Gurnee this year. Mr. Meumann was a young widower with two handsome little boys. He met a young widow with two little girls. Their marriage provided a daddy for the girls, a mama for the boys. And now there's a new baby—a little boy who makes a family of five youngsters and is the special Christmas present for 1941.

WOMEN DONATE EXTRA DAY FOR RED CROSS WORK

Rogers Park Club to Help Twice Weekly.

The Rogers Park Woman's club, in response to the extra need for Red Cross work, has added an extra day to the weekly schedule of Red Cross activities at the clubhouse, 7077 North Ashland avenue. There will be Red Cross work from 10 o'clock Wednesday morning until 10 o'clock that evening in addition to the regular Thursday work from 10 until 4 o'clock. The new working plan will be effective with the opening of the New Year's program. The first Wednesday session thereafter will be on Jan. 7.

Mrs. Lulu Simon, housekeeper at the Rogers Park club, will celebrate her 25th anniversary there on Saturday. Members will present her with a bracelet. Mrs. Simon moved into the club when the building was still without hardware—there was a labor strike. She literally kept open house there for three months. There wasn't a door knob in the place.

Mrs. Simon helped to prepare for the first big event at the new clubhouse, open house on Jan. 1, 1917. Members wore evening gowns with trains, and every woman had long white gloves.

Another reminder of those days is the melting pot wherein members tossed donations for the building fund. The pot was removed after 10 years when the mortgage was burned.

North Town Woman's Club.

Philanthropy department members will meet at Indian Boundary fieldhouse, 2500 Lunt avenue, tomorrow, to make their annual Christmas tour. Mrs. Walter Holmes, 6042 North Washtenaw avenue, is chairman of the group. The clubwomen will go to the crippled children's ward at Cook County hospital to distribute Christmas stockings filled with toys, games, coloring books, and dolls. There will be entertainment, ice cream and cake for the youngsters as well.

Woman's Club of Evanston.

The board of management of the Evanston club, anticipating the increased national defense need, has created a new committee to coöperate with the Red Cross and governmental requirements of this time. Mrs. Frederick C. Minkler has been appointed chairman. Mrs. Howard Ginter wil be in charge of sewing, and Mrs. William C. French will be director of the military surgical dressing unit.

The general committee includes members especially training in war work, nursing, record keeping, and dietetics. They include: Mrs. H. J. Andresen, Mrs. R. C. Crain, Mrs. H. W. Croston, Mrs. T. J. Dee, Mrs. C. L. Emrich, Mrs. Joseph Flavelle, Mrs. William C. Fox, Mrs. J. N. McCabe, Mrs. R. F. Keller Jr., Mrs. J. A. Reitzel, Mrs. H. A. Quint, and Mrs. G. L. White Ninth District.

The clubs of the ninth district will hold Christmas parties at Olivet Institute, 1441 North Cleveland avenue, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. This will be for all children on the near north side. There will be a Santa Claus with candy and toys. Mrs. Albert Seidel, 5909 Kenmore avenue, is chairman of plans.

'Santa on the Air' at Boone School

SOLDIERS TO FIND A WARM WELCOME IN HIGHLAND PARK

Yule Entertainment Is Being Planned.

Highland Park is opening wide its arms to an estimated 1,000 service men this Christmas with churches, merchants, civic groups, and patriotic citizens all sharing in the program. Sponsored by the Highland Park USO the week of entertainment will begin with a gathering around a lighted community tree for a carol fest. Following a program service-men will be guests of a YMCA open house. Mrs. Theodore Osborn, chairman of the coördinating council, is directing the program.

On Christmas eve service men will be guests of the Alcyon theater. Christmas day the American Legion will hold an old fashioned open house at the community center from 3 o'clock to 7 o'clock.

Churches Coöperate

Harry Eichler, commander, and Mrs. Norman Culver, president of the Legion Auxiliary, are in charge of this phase of the program. Churches are coöperating by placing cards in each pew for members to fill out inviting service men to home cooked dinners on the holidays or during the week. Plans are already complete to entertain almost 500 men in the homes.

Among several dances and parties planned for the week is one sponsored by the Ravinia Women's club. Mrs. Gilbert Hardacre and Mrs. Edward Jones are in charge of plans.

To Display Greeting Cards.

The entire community plans to display special holiday greeting cards for service men on front doors and on automobile windshields. Cards are distributed free by the Singer Printing company and the Service Mens club.

Climax of the week will be a New Year's eve party, details for which have not yet been completed. Coöperating for the entire program are officers from Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes training station, the Service club, YWCA, Salvation army, Jewish Welfare, Community center, Chamber of Commerce, American Legion, Women's Auxiliary, the Army and Navy YMCA, the Coördinating council, and the USO.

New Stop Signs.

Eleven new stop signs and one arrow indicator have been erected on Highland Park streets by the Chicago Motor club, according to Charles M. Hayes, club president.

QUEEN TO REIGN OVER LAKE VIEW MILITARY DANCE

Marjorie Nelson of 622 Aldine avenue will be queen of the Lake View High school ROTC "Cadet Hop" Saturday evening in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Four other girls were chosen from a competing group of 31. Betty Beall of 4919 Cornelia avenue was elected maid of honor, and Alice Perkins, 3702 Fremont street; Marcella Ahern, 629 Cornelia avenue, and Doris Helston, 1060 Cornelia avenue, were chosen ladies in waiting.

Miss Nelson will be crowned at the ball, and with Cadet Lieut. Col. John DuMont will lead the grand march, highlight of the evening.

BLIND CHILDREN ARE FASCINATED BY STORY HOUR

Branch Librarian Has Rapt Young Listeners.

Usually a children's story hour brings to mind a semi-circle of little red chairs turned or tilted to suit the particular fancy of the tousled headed little people who sit upon them. The narrator is the center of attention for that little half moon of tousled heads, upturned faces, and wide eyes. That is the average story hour. Miss Beatrice Hammerman, children's librarian at Hamlin park branch library, has two story hours that differ somewhat. One is in the department for the blind at Burley school, 1630 Barry avenue, and the other in the department for crippled at Jahn school, 3149 North Wolcott avenue.

"Telling stories to these groups is always a satisfaction," the small brunette librarian explains, "because they appreciate the hours so much. And their reactions are interesting."

Mimic Teller's Actions.

For instance, the blind children copy Miss Hammerman's voice and gestures. "We can understand the voice mimicry, of course," the librarian says, "but how on earth do they know what the gestures are?"

Nevertheless, they do. And each child tells a story as tho he were a small copy of Miss Hammerman. That puts the burden of being especially careful of one's English usage in speaking to these little folk of the supersensitive ears.

"The blind also know how to listen in a way most satisfactory to themselves," the librarian says. "They all put their heads down on their desks and relax. They let the story just drift in. For an especially exciting part, up come their little heads, and their ears actually seem to prick up."

Won't Let Her Read Story.

Neither the blind nor the crippled youngsters will pay attention to a story that is read from a book, Miss Hammerman has learned in nine months at the schools. The blind react to sound effects based on the same technique as that used on the radio or in recording. Thus, Miss Hammerman uses a little drum to illustrate a jungle story. "But I don't use the little drum with the children that see. Then they all watch the drum and forget the story."

She has had to learn that a smile isn't appreciated by the blind, so to make them know she thinks something is funny she has had to cultivate a good healthy giggle.

Both crippled and blind love the funny stories. The blind like flowers and good scents better than candy, so Miss Hammerman carries posies to story hour when she has them.

"They love music, too. I think there is great possibility in what could be done for them in recordings. We do have talking books, now, but I think there is a great future for blind help in music records especially for those children."

COL. M'CORMICK TO SPEAK ON BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG

Special Program Will Be Aired Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in a special program from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday, will speak on "The Battle of Gettysburg." The program will be aired over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system during the regular Chicago Theater of the Air hour.

Specially arranged patriotic music, to be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will be aired during this program. Miss Marion Claire and Attilio Baggiore will be the soloists.

Musical selections for the program include: "America Marches On," by the orchestra and chorus; a Civil war medley, "Dixie," "Tenting Tonight," "Battle Cry of Freedom," and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," to be sung by Miss Claire, Mr. Baggiore, and the orchestra, and "The Vacant Chair," by Miss Claire and chorus.

The next regular Theater of the Air program will be presented Saturday, Jan. 3, on W-G-N and Mutual when Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the operetta series and Jan Peerce are to be starred in "Eileen."

The new year will mark the beginning of the fourth month of operettas for the winter season. The program has attracted one of the largest audiences in radio and has millions of devoted listeners.

So faithful are some of the radio listeners that they have banded together in Chicago Theater of the Air clubs all over the country to listen every Saturday night to the operetta broadcasts. The club now has more than 200 chapters with 4,176 members in 43 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada.

The Theater of the Air is also conducting a $10,500 quest for a great American operetta and more than 1,000 persons, including some of the best known composers in the country, have entered. The winning operettas will be presented during the first three weeks of March.

HAROLD TEEN CAST GUESTS OF W-G-N CITIZENS

A meeting of fictional and true life high school students will feature the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N today when Harold Teen and Lillums, chief characters of the Harold Teen program on W-G-N each Tuesday from 7:30 to 8 p. m., visit the THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S broadcast on which appear students from the high schools of Chicagoland.

A coincidence of the broadcast will be: Bob Jellison, who plays the part of Shadow in the Teen program also has the rôle of Jimmy, the typical high school student in the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast.

Tuley High school will be honored on the program to be aired over W-G-N at 10:30 a. m. today. Tuley, formerly known as the Northwest Division High school, boasts of such prominent alumni as William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, and the late Knute Rockne, famed Notre Dame coach.

WM. FRANKLIN TO BE FEATURED IN FM SERIES

William Franklin.

William Franklin, the first Negro to sing with a major operatic organization, will start a new series of programs on W59C, W-G-N's frequency modulated station, tonight. Franklin's baritone voice will be heard by W59C listeners from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. every Sunday. The Studio Salon orchestra under the direction of Harry Sukman will be heard with him each week.

Franklin has won acclaim from many music critics. Cecil Smith of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE called him "undeniably one of the best Negro baritones before the public."

Franklin tonight will sing: "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," and "Sweet Little Jesus Boy."

WAR GIVES NEW NOTES TO YULE RADIO PROGRAMS

What to Tell Children of War, Forum Topic.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Christmas programs will fill the air this week. There will be numerous carol programs and many other programs with a joyous holiday note. But this year there will be few of the special Christmas broadcasts picked up from abroad by the networks. The only program coming from Bethlehem this year will originate in Bethlehem, Pa. The Bethlehem where Jesus was born this year is in the near east war zone.

Typical of the altered tone of Christmas broadcasts this year will be the presentation of the Northwestern Reviewing stand at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and Mutual.

The subject for discussion is "What Shall We Teach Our Children About the War This Christmas?" The speakers are to be three outstanding workers among children and young people: Dr. Paul J. Misner, superintendent of schools at Glencoe; Dr. Kenneth Heaton of the Northwestern university school of education, and Helen Ross, lecturer in psychoanalysis at the University of Chicago.

Good Fellows on Air.

The sixth annual Good Fellow choral program by a combined high school choir of 500 voices will be heard over W-G-N and W59C from 4:15 to 4:30 tomorrow as they sing in Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building. Students from Farragut, Lindblom, Steinmetz, and Waller high schools and Wright Junior college will sing familiar carols.

Christmas carol programs will be aired over W59C and from the amplificers on Tribune Tower every evening from 5 to 6 p. m. These programs, featuring church choral groups, will be heard in part over W-G-N and Mutual. Details will be given daily in THE TRIBUNE.

Christmas Carol on W-G-N.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" will be broadcast on W-G-N from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. from tomorrow thru Friday. The dramas will be continued in five daily instalments.

Tomorrow W-G-N and Mutual will present the first program of the new musical series, "Music That Endures." The W-G-N Symphonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, and Attilio Baggiore will be featured in special seasonal music. This program will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Tuesday will find W-G-N continuing its Christmas schedule. The Great Artist series will have a special dramatization of the painting of the "Adoration of the Magi."

Christmas music from around the world—hymns, carols, and traditional sprightly yuletide numbers—will give a realistic seasonal tone to the Northeners' program at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday. Harry S. Walsh will direct the octet.

Double Feature Broadcast.

A Christmas Eve double-feature broadcast will be presented Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen from the Chicago Service Men's center. A half hour musical show starring Marion Claire and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra will begin at 8:30 and the quiz show, "Shoot the Works," will be aired from 9:30 to 10.

Miss Claire's portion of the double-feature broadcast will feature a special program of Christmas music. She will be accompanied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" will be the theme melody of the program while other selections include: Bach's "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring," by the chorus and orchestra; "Hail Ye Time of Holiday," by the chorus and orchestra; "Madonna's Lullaby," by Miss Claire; "Dance of the Tumblers," by the orchestra; "Here a Torch," by the chorus; "Madrigal," by Miss Claire and the quartet; "Night Before Christmas," by Miss Claire; and "Humperdinck," by the chorus and orchestra.

Cash for Service Men.

At 9:30 p. m. the service men's attention will be centered on Marvin Mueller, quizmaster for the "Shoot the Works" audience quiz show.

Two programs of Christmas music will be broadcast on the Perfectionist's hour on W59C from 9 to 10 p. m. on Wednesday and Christmas night. The Christmas eve program will be devoted exclusively to carols; the Dec. 25 broadcast will present symphony orchestras in some of the best known music associated with the Christmas season.

President Roosevelt will be heard over the major networks in connection with the lighting of the National Community Christmas tree in Washington at 4 p. m. next Wednesday. Choral groups will sing and the United States Marine band will play.

NBC Yule Programs.

Special Christmas programs on NBC will include:

The Contended hour will give a Christmas party for 350 underprivileged youngsters on WMAQ-NBC at 9 p. m. tomorrow. The youngsters will be studio guests and will receive gifts.

A special Christmas program from Bethlehem, Pa., at 8 p. m. Wednesday over WENR-NBC will portray dramatically the founding of this city 200 years ago by the Moravian church.

The NBC Symphony orchestra at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday over WMAQ will present the "Nutcracker Suite," associated with the holiday celebrations.

Lionel Barrymore will give his annual reading of Dickens' Scrooge in his Christmas Carol, at 9 o'clock Christmas night on the Rudy Vallee hour on WMAQ-NBC.

Christmas on CBS.

Holiday features on WBBM-CBS include:

The Columbia Workshop at 7 tonight will present "Miracle in Manhattan," a Christmas play by Charles Vanda.

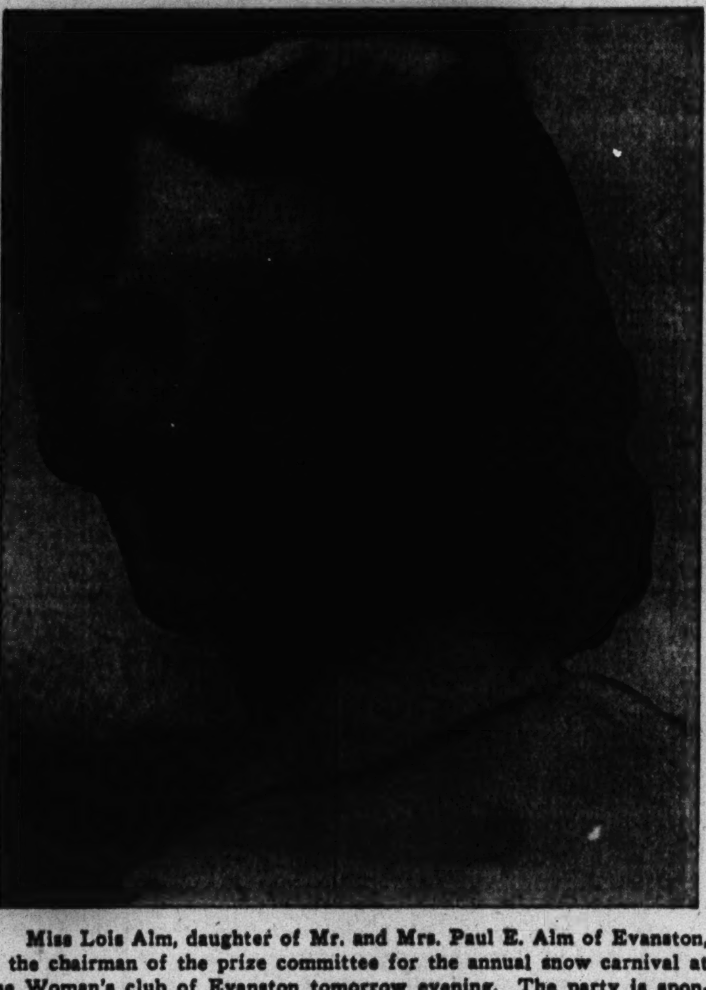
At 2:30 p. m. Wednesday "The Night Before Christmas," with Nila Mack as director, will be aired.

Gregorian chants by monks from St. Meinrad seminary in Indiana will be aired at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Sir Thomas Beecham will conduct the Columbia Symphony orchestra in a carol program at 11:05 p. m. Wednesday.

In a special program, "Christmas in the New World," at 10 p. m. Christmas night, CBS will bring in Montreal, Buenos Aires, and Rio de Janeiro for contrasting glimpses of the holiday.

Snow Carnival Prize Chairman



Miss Lois Alm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Alm of Evanston, is the chairman of the prize committee for the annual snow carnival at the Woman's club of Evanston tomorrow evening. The party is sponsored by the Torch clubs of the Evanston YMCA. John Erickson and Hooper Jones are co-managers of the event. [Morris Photo.]

Ready for Santa

Donna Reade, who plays the part of Vicky on W-G-N's Painted Dreams at 1:15 p. m. weekdays, is pictured getting her home ready for Christmas.

ONLY TWO NORTH SIDERS WIN IN DRAFT APPEAL

Board Refuses Pleas of 31 Others.

Among 33 north side draft registrants whose appeals were heard by the selective service appeal board last week, only two won the deferment they sought.

These two were Louis Simon Jr., now of South Bend but registered with Board 149 in the 48th ward, who claimed his mother as a dependent, and Bernard Citron, 3800 Sheridan road, who was given time to finish his training as an ordnance inspector.

Lists Wife and Parents.

Thomas Kearney, 2531 North Talman avenue, whose appeal also was denied, listed his wife and parents as dependents. William Beelow, 3441 North Seeley avenue, listed his mother and sister; Cyril Schafer, 4501 North Malden avenue, his mother and sister; James Wolfe, 1454 Belle Plaine avenue, his mother and brother.

Four unsuccessfully claimed their mothers as dependents. They were: Clarence Rosenberg, 5049 North Wolcott avenue; Italio Pizziconi, 5248 George street; Ralph Kiefer, 3157 North Hudson avenue, and Jacque Boyle, 1205 Sherwin avenue.

Ask Occupational Deferment.

Occupational deferments were denied: Richard Ryden, 3112 North Western avenue, a coil winder; Joseph Bulfer of Washington, D. C. In Her Eyes . . .
A LIGHT!
In Her Heart . . .
A HOPE!

So to sleep, beautiful one! Close your starlit eyes upon a world of grown-ups. Yours is a land of make-believe . . . a land full of milk and honey, chocolates big as ostrich eggs, tinkling bells, childish laughter, prancing reindeer, a man with a red, red coat and a long snowy white beard . . . little dwarfs and, oh, such sweet innocence.

When you awake there'll be a light in your eyes. Your little heart will be beating fast and so full of hope . . . a hope placed there by some one who loves you ever so dearly.

With a peal of joy you'll tumble from your bed and your little feet will scurry forth to find . . . happiness in one corner of a big room!

Ah, then, and only then, will we be young again. . . . For a few short hours there'll be joy in our hearts . . . for a few fleeting moments we'll hear a voice, calm, loving, strong, saying: "BE NOT AFRAID." The world will pause, a grim spectre will disappear and in its place there'll be AN IMAGE OF A CHILD BORN THAT MORN!

We, here at the Skokie Valley Laundry, wish you every Christmas Joy. We have worked hard all year. We feel we have brought happiness to many by lightening the task of homemaking. It is our wish to go on making people happy. So again, MERRY CHRISTMAS!

18 NORTH SIDERS TO CLOSE POLICE CAREERS IN 1942

Service Records Extend Past 35 Years.

Eighteen policemen who live or work on the north side are among the 64 department members who will end their service careers next year under the state law which compels retirement at the age of 63 years. This was revealed by James McSweeney, police department secretary.

Most of the retiring men have been on the force since the turn of the century. Many of them have been creditably mentioned on numerous occasions when they have gone beyond their routine responsibilities to distinguish themselves by their bravery and resourcefulness.

THEY MISS OWN YULE, BUT MAKE OTHERS HAPPY

Railroaders Must Forgo Holiday at Home.

BY JUNE GESERICK.

"Let me speak to Joe, please." The voice of a caller is going to interrupt Christmas eve preparations in the Joseph I. Jauch home, 731 East 89th place.

Joe Jauch, a fireman for the Illinois Central railroad, is one of the many railroad men who will spend their Christmas running engines, unloading baggage, making up berths, or serving dinners for the thousands of Chicagoans and suburbanites who will be traveling to and from family gatherings in every part of the United States.

Mrs. Jauch; Robert, age 14; Virginia, 12; Ursula, 11, and Ronald, 7, are going to turn disappointed eyes to Dad Jauch as he hangs up the phone receiver.

Fun for the Family.

"Aw, never mind. We'll have lots of fun tonight and then you can save me some of that turkey—and a big piece of pie," Jauch will grin, attempting to dispel the gloom that has taken hold.

Long after the children have gone to bed—Ronnie to dream of Santa Claus—Mr. and Mrs. Jauch will sit in the kitchen—the table strewn with colorful paper and ribbons—wrapping gifts—gifts the opening of which dad will have to miss.

Early the next morning Jauch will prepare to leave the house. His wife, Margaret, will have risen to make ready a hearty breakfast of steaming coffee, bacon, and eggs. The day really starts when Jauch leaves his warm home.

A half hour later Jauch will arrive at the 27th street roundhouse of the Illinois Central. W. H. Goetz, 1342 East 76th street, will nod a welcome to the fireman. Goetz is engineer of the crew with which Jauch will serve.

Together the men will walk thru the roundhouse—past the circular row of engines, on which grease-covered men will be busily working. Out into the yard they walk, finally boarding their engine, which has just been brought from the roundhouse by a couple of hostlers, men whose job it is to see that the engines are turned on the roundhouse turntable and brought out into the yard for the engine crew to board. The engine is backed down the tracks to the Roosevelt road station.

Each to His Duties.

Jauch is in the engine tending the steam pressure and the stoker, which fires the boiler. The pressure must be kept at approximately 225 pounds per square inch. While the fireman inspects the many dials of the control board the engineer jumps from the cab and slowly walks around the engine, checking to see that the wheels and piston rods are in order.

"Hi, Joe," calls Francis O'Brien, assistant station master. O'Brien lives at 802 Dobson avenue. Jauch climbs from the cab to talk with him.

"I sure would like to be home today, eating that turkey with the folks—watching the kids open their presents," sighs O'Brien. "Mom and dad are coming over this morning." O'Brien's father, James, is the third oldest man on the Illinois Central's engineer board in point of seniority.

Watch for Signals.

"So long, O'B.," calls Jauch as he follows his engineer up into the engine cab. Both men lean out the windows to watch for the signals that will tell them to start.

The engine puffs and hisses, the great driving wheels revolve, and the cars move slowly from the station. The train speeds thru Chicago, and the two men catch glimpses in nearby windows of families celebrating Christmas. Later the cars wind their way thru the suburban area. Little boys are trying their Christmas bicycles on slippery streets, and the fireman imagines the joy young Ronnie felt when he opened a package concealing a brand new electric train.

Kankakee and Return.

Most of the larger Illinois Central trains do not stop between Chicago and Kankakee, thus the crew's first chance to rest comes at that town, a little more than 50 miles from Chicago. A few hours' leave while their engine is moved from the southbound cars and connected with another Chicago bound train. Another crew on another engine will carry the cars headed for the southland.

The return trip seems even longer than the run from Chicago. Every turn of the wheels reminds the men that the engine is bearing them home. But night has already arrived. Dinner will surely be over, and the guests will be departing—but one happy thought is in the mind of each man as the engine speeds him toward his waiting family.

"Sure, we miss our Christmas at home, but we help other folks to get home to their families—and that makes us feel pretty good."

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Dec. 22.

A number of things must be considered if house plants are grown successfully. First, the soil must be moist but not saturated to the point that the roots cannot function properly. See that the ball of earth is moist thru and water when the soil needs it. The food supply must not be too generous or too little. Food should be given when the plant is in active condition and not when it is at rest.

Attempting to grow plants in too large containers should be avoided for too much soil is likely to result in over watering. Transplant when the pots are fairly filled with roots, but not rootbound. During the winter full light can be given most plants. Drafts and sudden changes in temperature should be avoided.

Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Begonias make fine house plants but they require close attention. Like all plants except desert plants, they require a humid atmosphere, which is not always possible to maintain in the home, but pans of water or specially constructed humidors to fasten to radiators can be used with good effect. Syringe about once a week to keep the foliage clean and free from dust.

or drafts. Remember that plants are growing, living things and cannot endure in conditions that hinder their development.

Wednesday, Dec. 24.

It is difficult to regulate the temperature in the home, hence extra care is necessary when you are attempting to grow certain kinds of plants indoors. As an example, the cyclamen is a popular plant and likes cooler conditions than the begonia. The common date palm has narrow leaves, or leaflets, and will endure adverse conditions but it also likes a warm atmosphere.

Thursday, Dec. 25.

Viney plants that are growing in rooms should be kept trimmed back if they become long and unattractive. They may need repotting. The beautiful and dependable philodendron will do well in water alone for quite awhile or in a comparatively small container in half sand and peat mixed together. A little charcoal may be added; this tends to keep the soil sweet.

Friday, Dec. 26.

Send for seed catalog and order seeds at once. Due to a shortage of many items, it is essential that extra care be exercised in conserving them.

Do not waste seeds, but sow thinly, giving each one an opportunity to develop properly.

Saturday, Dec. 27.

Altho the pruning of outdoor woody plants can be done from now until early spring, many gardeners prefer to get it over with as soon as possible. Grapes also may be pruned while dormant. However, few of the latter are grown in city or suburban gardens, but shrubs abound and many of them are sadly in need of attention.

Home in Hinsdale Given Youth Treatment.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you have wondered what to do about an aging front porch that no longer does justice to your house, or what treatment to give a red brick fireplace that has grown a bit bleak and drab with the years; if you have debated with various family members over possibilities of small home improvements or large changes, you will find some interesting and practical answers to just such questions in a newly remodeled home at 552 York road, Hinsdale.

This five room home is now completely modernized, decorated and furnished, and open to the public during December. It is an excellent demonstration of how an aging house can be made young and very livable by the aid of a few deft and skilful changes. It is no drastic remodeling piece of work but the sort of project many people are hoping and planning to accomplish, the type of modernization which can change the personality of an existing house without any great structural changes or without any large outlay of money.

Lot Landscaped.

When modernization of this home started this fall the lot was landscaped and a heavy hedge across the front was removed and placed at the side. A new driveway was laid, brambles around the front porch were removed, and then the front porch and steps came off. These were replaced with new porch, steps, some neat pillars, and a new front driveway.

No other exterior changes were made but the house as well as the chimney were painted white.

In the original living room there was a fine old red brick fireplace, but the bricks needed cleaning and freshening, so it was decided to cover the brick. Then old lighting fixtures on the fireplace wall were ripped out and a mirror hung over the mantel. There are built-in bookcases at each side of the fireplace and gayly colored chintz curtains at the windows.

Kitchen Modernized.

The kitchen was troubled with a not uncommon ailment. It had more doors than it needed, so one door was blocked and a window built in its place. The kitchen was completely moderized. There's a blue and gray linoleum on the floor, Chinese red curtains with yellow figures at the window, and new sink, built-in cabinets, range, and refrigerator.

On the second floor there are two bedrooms and bath. The bath is tiled with dutsy pink wallpaper above tiling and blue and white striped curtains at the window.

In the master bedroom at the front the walls are papered a dusty pink above a wainscot of striped pink and white. The closet is carried out in pink and white, harmonizing with bedroom walls. There are Venetian blinds and drapes at the windows.

FINE ARTS STUDENTS ASSIST RED CROSS BY PREPARING BANDAGES

Eleanor Erickson of 2645 Greenleaf avenue is one of three leaders selected to instruct women students attending the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts who recently started a program to assist the Red Cross by knitting and sewing bandages.

This work will be carried on by women after school, during lunch hour, during recess time and on Saturdays. Helen Fox, 3053 North Sawyer avenue, also will act as teacher. Mrs. Ruth Van Sickle Ford, director of the school, will supervise the work.

Lake Shore Club Giving Party for Children Today

The Lake Shore club's annual Christmas party for children will be held at the club, 850 Lake Shore drive, this afternoon. The feature will be a regular circus act with ponies and dogs. Costume Acce Make the Idea Christmas Gift

By
REA SEEGER

ACCENTS such as small but most effective costume accessories, for either daytime or evening clothes, provide superspecial gifts for any woman. Gloves and muffs are this season's star attractions, for with these items any otherwise simple and dull dresses are redeemed into costumes of distinctive subtlety and individuality, not only with color but with outline, area, and length. Jewelry of the costume variety features more handsome, almost conversation, pieces than ever before, designs of great originality in combines of metal, jeweled arrangements, and so on.

Muffs are made of fur, but the most exciting new affairs are of feathers, lace, and even felt, as well as velvet combined with fur or silk.

Huge bags are tremendously important. They are many times so large that they provide all the necessary accent for suits or street dresses of wool or silk. Some are of felt, broadcloth, sturdy wool, combinations of wool and braid, wool fringe, ribbon, and wool and fur, but whatever the materials, size is the most necessary factor.

Sketched, some of the newest costume accessories of the season, each a perfect Christmas gift. No. 1—Matched set of jeweled bracelet, earrings, and lapel or chest pin. 2—Jeweled heart pin to wear on your sleeve, the lapel of your suit jacket, or sunk in the center of your muff. 3—Romantic lace cuffs to sew into the short sleeves of a dark dress to achieve that Elizabeth Barrett Browning costume appearance. 4—Decorative collar made of snowy white angora and appliquéd gold kidskin. 5—White kidskin gloves embroidered in a wedding ring design and cuffed in double frills of pinked-edge kidskin. 6—Black gloves with black lace cuffs. 7—Huge arm muff made of rows of ostrich banding in cerise, red, green, black, or white.

No. 8—Gleaming gold bead bag, a year 'round model, because it accents all fabrics. 9—Lincoln scarf of knitted yarn in black, white, and colors with a pocket at each end, worn twisted around the neck. 10—Sensationally large handbag of soft wool edged with wide wool fringe, available in brown and black. 11—Luxurious large bag of fur in sheared beaver and other pelts as desired. 12—Extremely long gloves of a dull-textured material resembling bagheera, in red, emerald, and black. These boast very low price marks. 13—Matched glove and bag set in dull toned ooze leather. 14—Lace mantilla glistening with tiny rhinestones set in the center of each flower. The matched jewelry set consists of discs of smooth, bright gold metal set with a single rhinestone. All accessories illustrated will be found in a Chicago store. For information call Superior 0200.

ON THE SCREEN

Left: Gene Tierney is about to grace our screens again in "Sundown." She plays the feminine lead in this production opposite Bruce Cabot, George Sanders and Harry Carey.

Bing Crosby, Mary Martin and Brian Donlevy are very much in evidence in the musical film titled "Birth of the Blues," opening at the State-Lake Christmas day.

This young fella waving at you this morning is Timothy Q. Mouse. He's one of the characters in Walt Disney's technicolor cartoon "Dumbo." It's at the Palace.

Myrna Loy and William Powell portray the roles of the beloved Nora and Nick Charles in the latest version of the "Thin Man" series, "Shadow of the Thin Man." Chicago, soon.

Three New Plays to Light Chicago Stages for Holidays

Comedy, Farce and Operetta Are Scheduled

By Cecil Smith.

The sum total of Chicago's available entertainment in the legitimate theater, reduced to three plays last week, will be doubled during the holiday season by the arrival of three incoming attractions. Tomorrow evening a series of Christmas openings is initiated at the Harris theater by "Papa Is All," Patterson Greene's comedy of the Pennsylvania Dutch, featuring Jessie Royce Landis and Carl Benton Reid. On Christmas night [Thursday] the Shuberts will bring "The Student Prince" back to the Grand Opera house, on the assumption—no doubt well founded—that a popular operetta is just the thing for the family trade at Christmas and New Year's time. The following evening, Friday, will be dedicated to the third production of the new and indomitable régime at the Great Northern, a farce once seen on Broadway entitled "Take My Advice."

Barbara Scully. [Connelly Photo.]

The three continuing attractions, all of which have been successful contenders for public favor for a number of weeks, are Rose Franken's domestic comedy, "Claudia," at the Selwyn; the tense and vigorous dramatization of Richard Wright's "Native Son," starring Canada Lee, at the Studebaker, and the merry musical, "Louisiana Purchase," with such winning personalities as Victor Moore, William Gaxton, Vera Zorina, and Irene Bordoni, at the Erlanger.

• • •

At this point in our statistical survey one important defection from the anticipated schedule should be noted. Until a week ago, Robert Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne heading a notable company, had been expected at the Blackstone for a week's return engagement. With the outbreak of the war, however, Mr. Sherwood decided that the play's timeliness was completely a thing of the past, and that the rest of the tour should be canceled immediately. I have been told, indeed, that Mr. Sherwood was opposed to the resumption of the tour last autumn, and that the original plan was followed only because his fellow author-producers of the Playwrights' company overruled him.

The title of "Papa Is All" means "Papa is gone," or "Papa is dead," and derives its odd idiom from the colloquial speech of the Pennsylvania Dutch who people Mr. Greene's new comedy. Far from being a heavy documentary piece, "Papa Is All" retails the story of a Mennonite family headed by a very cantankerous Papa, whom the rest of the family dislikes heartily, and whose reported death they hail with joy.

• • •

Carl Benton Reid, last seen here with Tallulah Bankhead in "The Little Foxes," plays Papa, and evidently he does a good job of it, for one of the Washington reviewers was inspired to exclaim, "Pop's a pip." Mama is Jessie Royce Landis, the distinguished Chicago actress, whose expert and touching acting in William Saroyan's "Love's Old Sweet Song" we were unhappily not permitted to see in Chicago. Dorothy Sands, who enjoys a considerable reputation for her solo dramas, returns to coöperative playing as Mrs. Yoder, an addled and interfering neighbor. The other members of the cast of six are Celeste Holm, Emmett Rogers, and Royal Beal.

The Theater guild and the American Theater society are presenting "Papa Is All" to their members as the second subscription item for 1941-'42. ["Claudia" was the first.] The play is a Theater guild production, and will be taken to New York at the close of the Chicago engagement. The production was staged by Frank Carrington and Agnes Morgan, under the general supervision of Lawrence Langner and Theresa Helburn. Emeline Clarke Roche designed the costumes and settings.

• • •

When "The Student Prince" returns to the Grand Opera house Thursday evening, for an engagement limited to two and a half weeks, the part of Kathie will again be sung by Barbara Scully, the young newcomer who was discovered by the Shuberts in time for last spring's performances of the operetta in the same theater. The title rôle will be undertaken by Robert Davis, a graduate of the "Meet the People" company which played at the Grand a year ago. Others in the cast are Detmar Poppen as Lutz, Jay Presson as the Princess Margaret, William Kent in the chief comedy part, and, of course, the omnipresent and nearly all-important male chorus.

Advance items are exceedingly sparse about "Take My Advice," which will relight the Great Northern theater Friday evening. Elliott Lester's comedy, which had a run in New York several years ago, centers about the experiences of a college boy whose life is filled with transient complications, all of which are neatly disposed of before the final curtain. Frank Pacelli has been announced for this central part. Betty McDonald and Sunda Love are promised for supporting rôles. The producer is Clyde Elliott. The play will be sold at popular prices, which means $1.65 top.

HEADS CAST OF NEW PLAY

Jessie Royce Landis heads the cast of "Papa Is All," the Theater Guild play which opens at the Harris theater tomorrow night.
[Bruno of Hollywood Photo.]

Drama Notes

William Gaxton, who served in the navy during the last war; Vera Zorina, Victor Moore, Irene Bordoni, and the entire cast of "Louisiana Purchase" are donating their services in a special performance of the Erlanger theater's musical comedy hit on Tuesday afternoon for some 1,500 boys at the Great Lakes Naval station. The stage crew, the Erlanger orchestra and company musicians, and the theater attachés are also contributing their services without charge. This is the first time in the country that a major musical attraction has given such a performance, and it is sincerely hoped that the example of B. G. De Sylva, producer of the show, and Fred Crow, manager of the Erlanger theater, who have coöperated to make this possible, will be followed by others throughout the nation.

William Gaxton. [Bruno of Hollywood Photo.]

"Louisiana Purchase" will end its run on Jan. 17 after a local engagement of 11 weeks. This is the longest stay made by such a large-scale show in many a year. From here it goes to St. Louis, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Washington, and Boston. "Panama Hattie" will be heading this way early in the new year and should arrive at the Erlanger theater either on Jan. 19 or the following Monday, Jan. 26.

The matinee schedule for this week is as follows:

"Claudia," Selwyn theater—Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

"Louisiana Purchase," Erlanger theater—Saturday.

"Native Son," Studebaker theater—Thursday and Saturday.

"Papa Is All," Harris theater—Wednesday and Saturday.

"The Student Prince," Grand Opera house—Saturday.

"Take My Advice," Great Northern theater—Saturday.

"The Theater Guild's revival of Sheridan's "The Rivals" will not come to Chicago at this time after all. For those who have the time and money, however, they can see it at Milwaukee's Pabst theater on Jan. 2, 3 and 4. With a cast headed by Mary Boland, Bobby Clark, and Walter Hampden, it seems worth the effort of an out of town trip. Because of the guild's New York schedule, the comedy has to go straight to New York from Milwaukee.

James Hargis Connelly, in association with Eva Fitz-Gerald, announces that the final performance of their melodrama, "Rat-Holler," prior to the new year will be given tonight at their playhouse in the Kimball building.

Ruth Petty and Green Co-Stars at New Yorker

By Will Davidson.

The Petty girl is on hand again—at Harry's New Yorker. Not the Petty girl with the telephone, but the one named Ruth, with the somewhat cyclonic voice who has established a sizable crowd of fans during her years of singing around Chicago's clubs. Ruth's a good singer for Harry's, as she is crowd-wise, and a good salesman of tunes.

Co-starring with her is Jackie Green, the impersonator-emcee. Some of his satires need vulcanizing, but in the main they are corking good bits of mimicry. He's a deft show handler, too.

Then there's a standard vaudeville act, Dave Retter and Polly Day, that earns a lot of giggles. Retter wrestles with himself in a ludicrous display of contortions, and with Miss Day gives the rumba a rough going over.

Ted and Mary Taft are delightful dancers. They have a neat sense of comedy, and their high kicks leave you limping. That Dietrich-Astaire satire is clever. Claire Mangen of the Selma Marlowe Starlets line does a most commendable tap routine, and with her linemates continues the high standard of chorus work they established months ago. Arne Barnett's band tops the music department as usual.

Dancin' with Benson is the thing to do now in the Pump room. Ray Benson has come west from New York's de luxe dives to play a considerable amount of easy music for the Ambassador's smart room. There's a lilt and a paradoxically solid quality to his playing that compensates for the inevitable pogo stick quality of the "society" rhythm he affects, so that even I, case-hardened as I am in my minority rôle outside the pale of those who like society rhythm, envy his music very much. Ray is something of a genius at the piano, too, and his quiet, likable personality promises to make him a bandstand favorite in this blue café heaven.

'Golden Wings' Closes After Sixth Night

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—So far there have been only two major war casualties in the Broadway theaters. A play called "Golden Wings," after having been called "RAF" in London, went down by the head after six performances, and one called "The Admiral Had a Wife," scheduled to open the week the Japs led with their air fleet, did not open.

Fay Wray.

Naturally there have been innumerable minor casualties, and will continue to be. These are associated mainly with the matter of receipts at the box offices, and I refuse to get excited about that. Quite reasonably, the nights following the declarations of war there was no business in the theaters.

The night President Roosevelt talked over the radio, and his united people were glued to their instruments, there were some box offices reporting not a single ticket sold at the wicket. This, I hear, was true at the Plymouth, where "The Wookey" is being played. "The Wookey" reproduces a scene from the bombing of London, with sound effects recorded on the spot, and the citizenry wanted none of that on that particular night. But such is the resilience of a free and optimistic people that business picked up as usual once the shock was absorbed.

• • •

There is, I think, some cause to regret the quick passing of "Golden Wings." It wasn't a particularly good drama, but it did bring an authentic war atmosphere into the reflections of the times that was interesting.

Credited to the authorship of William Jay and Guy Bolton, it is reported that Jay really is an English airman named Lionel Aldous, who is now on duty in Egypt. When he came to write a drama around a squadron of RAF flyers who drift in and out of a Chilgrove service club near London, Aldous was reduced to the familiar situation of two girls and a man. But it was quite evident that he was also thinking seriously of certain social problems that now are being built up for England to face after the war.

Rex, a well-born lad who goes to war while he is engaged to Kay Travelyon of his own social class, was the hero of "Golden Wings." War is disillusioning and Rex shortly finds himself of a mind to defy the conventions of his class, and even the honor of his kind, and take over an exciting little bundle in Britain who is engaged to his pal, Tom.

• • •

This reasonably leads the boys to fighting words, a slap in the face, and the hysterical suggestion of Rex that Tom had better not get within range of his [Rex's] guns the next time they go up. Tom does, is shot down, and there is a nasty mess resulting in a court martial.

Nobody ever knows whether Rex was convicted or not. He denied the charge, insisting that once he was in the air all feeling of enmity toward Tom faded. It was the enemy that had done Tom in. As far as the audience is concerned, however, it still was an open question at the curtain. The squadron was going into the air again as the show ended, and Tom was being comforted by the hurt, but loyal, Kay.

Fay Wray of the movies, Lloyd Gough, and a bright little Scandinavian actress, Signe Hasso, played the "Golden Wings" triangle; Fay, the good girl, and Signe, the charmer. It was a nice production and a good performance, but a war excited public was apathetic. Suddenly England, and even the heroic RAF, seemed at the other side of the world, while the Philippines and Hawaii were like a house ablaze in the next block.

• • •

As for the withdrawal of "The Admiral Had a Wife," that comedy, written by Lowell Barrington, was based in Hawaii and dealt farcically with the home life of the men of the navy. Navy wives, according to the playwright, were flirtatiously inclined and the actions of their officer husbands were not above censure. All right in peace times, probably, but not with a war going on. Some little effort was made to write out the offending scenes, but without them there was no comedy. Hence the withdrawal, which cost José Ferrer, the "Charley's Aunt" comedian of last year, a generous slice of his savings, he being a principal backer of "The Admiral."

Otherwise Broadway is taking the war situation in its stride. Each company playing was appointed an air warden. Each theater staff has received instructions on how to act in an air raid. The object will be, on instructions from the authorities, to keep the shows going and to keep audiences in the theaters where they will be much safer than they would be on the streets.

• • •

All orchestras have been supplied with sheet music of popular and old-time songs, so everybody can sing above the sirens, if necessary. One actor in each troupe has been supplied with a speech that he is to make from the stage, informing those present of what is happening and what they should do to coöperate most effectively.

Even the none-too-popular electricians' union has, according to Ed Sullivan, been furnishing volunteer electricians to help with the control of the big electric signs along Broadway. These would certainly prove the bulls-eye of the target in an air raid. Now they will be blacked out seconds after a warning had been sounded. All theater skylights have been given a coating of opaque paint, and all dressing room windows likewise. All the cut-off switches have been painted a luminous white so they may be located quickly. Broadway is at war, too, and finds it terribly exciting.

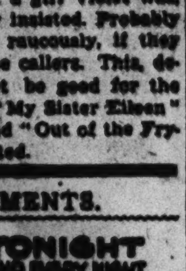
Minor upheavals continue to threaten in connection with the activities of the USO Camp Shows, Inc., the combination organized to do something about seeing that the service men have some place to go away from camp and something to do while they are in camp.



Eddie Dowling. [James Harris Connelly Photo.]

The Chodorov-Fields comedy, "My Sister Eileen," was in rehearsal three weeks, preliminary to a tour of the camps, when some one of the USO higherups saw the play and decided it would be a bad influence for the boys. There are a couple of scenes in "Eileen" in which strange men call at a Greenwich Village apartment rented by two Columbus, O., girls when they come to New York seeking their fortunes. The strange callers are looking for Violet, a woman belonging, presumably, to an old profession, who had previously tenanted the same apartment.

Soldiers and sailors would know at once what kind of a girl Violet was, the USO authority insisted. Probably they would laugh raucously, if they did not hoot at the callers. This, decidedly, would not be good for the camp morale. So "My Sister Eileen" was abandoned, and "Out of the Frying Pan" substituted.

Artie Shaw Will Play for Charity Event on Dec. 29

A charity event that has the swing fans wide eyed is scheduled for the Aragon ballroom Dec. 29. The Kenilworth center of the Infant Welfare society is bringing Artie Shaw and his 32 piece band there for his only appearance in town, outside of theaters, in a long, long time. In addition to the Shaw technique there will be an added interest for Chicagoans who have watched the work of Paul Jordan, a young and ingenious composer. Jordan has appeared a few times with an all-star band playing his own unusual compositions, but for the most part he composes for the fun of it. Shaw will play a number of Jordan's unique songs. Paula Kelly is Shaw's vocalist.

Vaudeville

The popular radio and film singer, Tony Martin, heads the holiday stage show at the Chicago theater. Fritz and Jean Hubert, comedy team; Lloyd and Willis, dancers; Al Gordon's Dogs, and the theater ballet also are on view. Two stage spectacles, "Christmas Fantasy" and "Yuletide Reverie," add to the appropriateness of the week's entertainment. On the screen is "I Wake Up Screaming."

A galaxy of performers who specialize in the "nineties" style of vaudeville can be seen on the stage of the Oriental theater where "The Bowery Follies" hold sway. The Rigoletto Brothers, Joe Termini, Dick Nash and Janet Evans, the Three Scorchers on a High Bike, the St. Claire Sisters and O'Day, Blake and Lambert, the Three Deans, the Aimée Sisters, and a chorus alternately attired as the Music Hall Cuties, the Gibson Girls, the Bloomer Girls, and the Floradora Belles make up the cast. "Melody Lane" is the film. The stage offering at the Oriental beginning on Friday will star Ted Lewis and his orchestra. The featured vocal soloist will be Jean Blanche.

1941 Opera Season Acclaimed as Box Office Success

Gallo Is Given Credit for His Able Direction

By Edward Barry.

The books cannot yet be closed on Chicago's 1941 opera season. There were too many interesting things about it which have not been fully discussed.

Take the smallness of the deficit. Twenty thousand dollars [the indicated figure] is mere cigaret money in operatic circles. The company this year actually lost less than $1,000 per performance [on an average] and in a curious business like opera this is regarded as a brilliant financial coup. There was one season in Chicago's history in which the loss per performance averaged about $15,000 [and the number of performances was 66, as against 1941's 26].

Fortune Gallo.

The principal reasons for the smallness of this year's deficit were the shrewd management of General Director Fortune Gallo and the surprisingly warm public response to his offerings. Not for many years, perhaps never, has the Chicago resident company attracted audiences which averaged 90 per cent of the capacity of the house over an entire season. Sixty-five per cent has been nearer to the true figure—in recent years at least.

• • •

The shortness of the season and the relative sparseness of the performances probably had much to do with this year's success. In 1939 there were 47 opera performances, two ballet performances, and an opera concert in a seven week season. 1940 had 40 opera and 11 ballet performances in a six week season. The general rule in 1939 and 1940 was six subscription performances a week, plus a few special and postseason performances. In 1941 there were five subscription performances a week for five weeks, with only one extra performance and no all-ballet programs.

The absence of outside competition also contributed to this year's good results. Usually Mr. Gallo brings his own San Carlo Opera company into Chicago for a two or three week engagement in October, and by the time the resident company opens its season much of the public's opera money has been drained away.

• • •

To return to the subject of Mr. Gallo's shrewdness [altho we have never really wandered very far from it]—his canny choice of operas was one of the things that sent queues of purchasers to the box office. In decades of experience he has learned that operagoers do not want to take the trouble to become familiar with new works and that it is the "Carmens" and "La Traviatas" that pack the house.

With few exceptions the 1941 répertoire of the Chicago Opera company was the répertoire of the San Carlo Opera company. Among the composers, Verdi, as might have been expected, won in a walk, with 10 performances of seven operas [altho three of these—"A Masked Ball," "Otello," and "Falstaff"—are not in the regular San Carlo répertoire]. Puccini was second, with four performances of his three most familiar operas. Other Italian works were Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," Donizetti's "The Daughter of the Regiment" [given once each, the last named in French], and Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" [sung twice]. "The Daughter" is not in the San Carlo répertoire and "The Barber" is given very infrequent representation by that company.

Two French operas [Bizet's "Carmen" and Gounod's "Faust"] accounted for five performances, and two German [Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Flotow's "Martha," the latter sung in English] totaled three.

Only four audiences out of a total of 26 were asked to hear unfamiliar or relatively unfamiliar works.

• • •

But this article must be giving the impression that the writer of it is acquainted with only one artistic criterion—box office success. Therefore he hastens to concede that the 1941 season, despite its small deficit, was not one of which Chicago can be too proud. Citizens fondly remember the days when the local répertoire offered a broad operatic grounding and when the company had a French wing which was regarded with enormous respect in Paris itself.

For that matter, we do not have to think back further than 1939 and 1940 to see how sadly the répertoire has deteriorated. Here is a list of operas which were given at least once during those two years and which did not appear in the 1941 répertoire: "Andrea Chénier," "The Jewels of the Madonna," "The Love of Three Kings," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Louise," "Manon," "Mignon," "Romeo and Juliet," "Don Giovanni," "Hansel and Gretel," "Der Rosenkavalier," "Salome," "Tannhäuser," "Tristan and Isolde," "Die Walküre," "The Bartered Bride," "Boris Godunoff," and "Halka."

In assessing the artistic value of an opera season other factors than variety and interest of répertoire cry for consideration. There is the quality of the casting and the quality of the actual performances. These will be discussed later.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Chicago Symphony orchestra. Since Christmas falls on Thursday this year the regular subscription concert of the orchestra for that night will be given on Saturday night instead. The Friday afternoon concert, which presents the same program, remains unchanged. Zino Francescatti, French-Italian violinist, is the soloist for the week, making his third successive appearance with the Chicago symphony in as many seasons. On the two previous occasions he has played here he has met with unusual demonstrations of public approval. Besides the soloist's two presentations the program offers three short items, traditionally played during the Christmas season, and one quasi-novelty. This is the "Adventures in a Perambulator" suite by the Chicago composer, John Alden Carpenter. Mr. Carpenter recently revised this score, and in its new version it was first given last season by the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra. This will be its first local performance. The Friday afternoon and Saturday evening programs, with Frederick Stock conducting and Mr. Francescatti as violin soloist, are as follows:

Zino Francescatti.

Pastorale, from "Christmas Oratorio"..Bach
Dance of the Angels, from "The New Life," opus 9..........Wolf-Ferrari
Prelude to "Hansel and Gretel"........ ....Humperdinck
Concerto for Violin, No. 3, G major [Köchel 216]..................Mozart
Suite, "Adventures in a Perambulator" ....Carpenter
[First Chicago performance of revised version.]
Tzigane, for Violin and Orchestra.....Ravel

Additional holiday programs provided by the Chicago Symphony will be given on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 30, with Hans Lange conducting and Mr. Francescatti as violin soloist; on Wednesday evening, Dec. 31, with Dr. Stock conducting [this is a popular concert]; on Thursday night and Friday afternoon, Jan. 1 and 2, with Claudio Arrau, Chilean pianist, as soloist in the Liszt E-flat concerto.

Illinois WPA Symphony orchestra. Tomorrow night the Illinois Symphony will present another concert in the 8th Street theater under the direction of Leo Kopp. Two transcriptions of works by Mozart and Ralph Vaughan Williams' Five Variants of "Dives and Lazarus" for string orchestra and harp will be given their Chicago premières on the program. The Mozart pieces include the Fantasy in F minor for musical clock or mechanical organ, arranged by Eric Werner, and a set of eight unspecified German dances, arranged by Fritz Steinbach. As soloist the orchestra will have Henri Rose, 17 year old Chicago pianist. Mr. Rose is a former prodigy, who is credited with a recital at the age of 4, an appearance with the Detroit Symphony at the age of 9, and a series of radio programs at the age of 10. He was one of two among 5,000 American applicants to receive a scholarship at Trinity College of Music in London, being chosen by the late Sir Granville Bantock. Monday's program:

Fantasy for a Musical Clock, F minor [Köchel 608]............Mozart-Werner
[First performance in Chicago.]
Eight German Dances..........Mozart-Steinbach
[First performance in Chicago.]
Five Variants of "Dives and Lazarus" ....Vaughan Williams
[First performance in Chicago.]
Divertissement ....Ibert
Concerto for Piano, E major, opus 59 ....Moszkowski

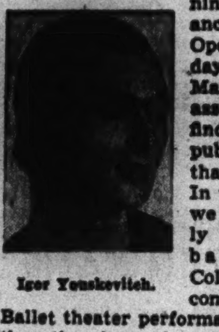
As its contribution to the holiday concert schedule the Illinois Symphony will present a concert in the Civic theater on Monday, Dec. 29, with Mr. Kopp conducting and Jackson Smith, bass-baritone, as soloist. The program promises Bach's Fifth Brandenburg concerto, Villa-Lobos' "Amazonas," William Grant Still's "Plain Chant for America," for baritone and orchestra; Jerome Kern's "Ol' Man River," and Dvorak's Symphonic Variation on an Original Theme, opus 78.

Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo Returns Friday

By Cecil Smith.

Holiday festivities in Chicago would not seem complete without the bright entertainment provided by the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. For eight years Leonide Massine has brought his brilliant dancers and his colorful repertory to the city at Christmas time, and we have come to associate Russian ballet as inseparably with the holiday season as the performance of "Hansel and Gretel" the opera company usually gives at this time.

When the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo begins a week's engagement of nine performances at the Civic Opera house Friday evening, Mr. Massine and his associates will find the Chicago public less jaded than a year ago. In the fall of 1940 we were virtually inundated by ballet—first by Col. De Basil's company, then by Ballet theater performances scattered thru the six week opera season, and finally, almost without a breathing spell, by the Massine company.



Igor Youskevitch.

• • •

This year our appetite for ballet is far from surfeited. The De Basil company gave a week and a half of performances early in the fall, to unprecedented business. Since then, however, our opportunities to see only brief snatches of dancing in the divertissements presented by the Littlefield ballet in the course of such operas as "Carmen" and "Aida," and the Littlefield ballet, it must woefully be admitted, scarcely gives the Russian companies and the Ballet theater any serious run for their money in matters either of taste or execution.

Leonide Massine, in his capacity as artistic director of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, continues the great Diaghileff tradition in matters of repertory. He is not willing to let his company coast along on the predictable success of the old war horses, as the De Basil company does. The schedule is refreshed and enlivened each season by novelties, some of which are highly experimental in nature, by revivals of older ballets which have lapsed from popularity, and by restaging of old favorites. To Massine, ballet is a living art only when it is constantly extending its boundaries.

• • •

This season, therefore, the company brings three new productions to Chicago. One of these, "Magic Swan," is technically a revival, tho its costumes and settings are new and its choreography is described as a "restoration." The other two, "Labyrinth" and "Saratoga," were introduced to the public for the first time during the company's recent New York season.

"Magic Swan" is the third act of the four act, evening-long ballet, "Swan Lake." [The single act ordinarily presented under the title "Swan Lake" is actually the second act of the original ballet, with interpolations from the fourth act.] The choreography was devised by the celebrated French ballet master, Petipa, upon whose patterns Alexandra Fedorova has based the present revival. Eugene Dunkel designed the costumes and scenery for "Magic Swan." The music, of course, is by Tschaikowsky.

"Labyrinth," which will be presented in Friday's opening bill, represents a further collaboration between Leonide Massine and the surrealist painter, Salvator Dali, who joined forces to produce the unique "Bacchanale" two seasons ago. To the music of Schubert's C major symphony [the seventh], they have worked out a fantastic scenario depicting the legendary battle between Theseus and the Minotaur in a labyrinth in Crete, and Theseus' success in escaping from the labyrinth by means of Ariadne's thread, which he had been forehanded enough to unreel on his way in.

• • •

"Saratoga," which will be seen first on Saturday afternoon, belongs in the category of Americana. Its story of the famous New York state race track in the '90s is danced to a score by Jaromir Weinberger, composer of "Schwanda the Bagpipe Player" and "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree." Costumes and décors are the work of Oliver Smith and Alvin Colt.

In addition to the novel items, the repertory is agreeably full of standard favorites. "Rouge et Noir" and "The Three Cornered Hat," both out of the list last year, have been restored: "The New Yorker" and "The Nutcracker" have been retained from last year's additions.

The names of Alexandra Danilova and Miss Toumanova head the list of feminine dancers, with other leading rôles entrusted to Nathalie Krassovska, Mlada Mladova, and Lubov Roudenko. In addition to Mr. Massine, the roster of male dancers includes André Eglevsky, Igor Youskevitch, Frederic Franklin, Marc Platoff, Roland Guerard, and George Zoritch.

• • •

Conducting duties will be divided between Efrem Kurtz and Franz Allers. The complete schedule follows, with detailed casts for the first three bills:

Friday at 8:30—"Vienna—1814," with Danilova, Krassovska, Massine, Youskevitch, Franklin, and Guerard; "Labyrinth" [first time in Chicago], with Toumanova and Youskevitch; "Gaité Parisienne," with Danilova, Massine, and Franklin.

Saturday at 2:30—"Serenade," with Toumanova, Youskevitch, and Zoritch; "The Nutcracker," with Danilova, Youskevitch, and Franklin; "Saratoga" [first time in Chicago], with Danilova, Mladova, Franklin, Beresoff, and Yvanov.

Saturday at 8:30—"Swan Lake," with Danilova, Youskevitch, and Guerard; "Scheherazade," with Danilova, Krassovska, Mladova, Franklin, and Jasvinsky; "The New Yorker," with Krassovska, Massine, Zoritch, and Franklin.

Next Sunday at 2:30—"Les Sylphides"; "The Three-Cornered Hat"; "Le Beau Danube."

Swedish Choral club. The first of the two major presentations of Handel's "Messiah" which adorn the season's music calendar will be given by the Swedish Choral club this afternoon in Orchestra hall. For over a week this performance has been sold out. Harry T. Carlson will conduct, and the soloists will be Esther Hart, soprano; Ruth Slater, contralto; Charles Sears, tenor, and Raymund Koch, bass. Stanley Martin, organist, and 45 members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will accompany.

The Apollo Musical club will give the second of these "Messiah" performances on Friday night in the same concert hall. This chorus is celebrating its 70th season, and its custom of giving the Handel oratorio at Christmastime goes back to the early years of its organization. Edgar Nelson will direct on Friday, assisted by a portion of the Chicago Symphony; Robert Birch, organist; Charlotte Symons, soprano; Eileen Law, contralto; Ralph Nylund, tenor, and John Neher, baritone.

Charlotte Symons.

The Budapest string quartet will give a program in Highland Park on Saturday night, Jan. 24, at the Elm Place school auditorium under the auspices of Mrs. Henry Getz. It is the quartet's only scheduled appearance in and about Chicago to date.

Argentinita and her group of Spanish dancers and instrumentalists are announced for a concert at the Civic Opera house on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 18.

Two Orchestra hall recitals of major importance will be given in January. The first by Zino Francescatti, violin soloist with the Chicago Symphony this week, will be played on Monday night, Jan. 12. The other will be offered by Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 18.

Anna Joseffer and Yvonne Angarola will give a violin and piano recital at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Allen, 645 North Michigan avenue, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. They will present Emile Bernard's Sonata in D minor, opus 34, and César Franck's Sonata in A major.

Christmas music will be featured in the church services and by the choral groups of Chicago during the week. In Orchestra hall this morning the Central Church chorus will sing Gaul's "Christ of the Snow," the "Hallelujah" chorus from the "Messiah," and arrangements of familiar carols.

A chorus of 150 children from the Civic Music association, conducted by Marx Oberndorfer, will offer seasonal carols at the 7 o'clock service in Orchestra hall. An hour later at the Sunday Evening club service in the same place Edgar Nelson will conduct the club's choir in Butcher's "The Virgin and Child," Gevaert's "A Joyful Christmas Song," and Holst's "Christmas Day."

Daily programs of carols are presented in the Chicago and North Western railway station.

The free concert of recorded music presented each Saturday afternoon by the downtown public library this week offers an all-request program, including the following numbers:

Excerpts from "Orpheus and Euridice" ....Gluck
Symphony No. 35, D major [Haffner] ....Mozart
Piano Concerto No. 2, C minor..Rachmaninoff

"Hansel and Gretel," Humperdinck's fairy tale opera, will be given its second performance by the Fine Art Opera company under the direction of Zerline Muhlman Metzger in the North Side auditorium, 3730 North Clark street, this afternoon at 3:30. The average age of the cast is 8 years.

Oscar Levant, pianist, raconteur, composer, and author, will appear in a program of piano music "with comments" at the Civic Opera house on Friday evening, Jan. 23.

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

Solutions to gift problems should easily be found among late Victor releases, for there are new recordings suited to many differing tastes.

Some one just starting a record library should welcome the new recording of the Franck symphony by the San Francisco Symphony orchestra under Pierre Monteux's direction. The work is performed with the gentleness and penetration which distinguish Mr. Monteux. There is no attempt to force effects, yet the significance of the music is imparted in the strongest terms.

For a person with a fairly complete library, the new recording of the scene at the tomb, from Donizetti's opera, "Lucia di Lammermoor," should be a safe choice, for the chances are good that he will not already own this music. Jan Peerce sings the gloomy soliloquy of Edgar with great poignancy. The small part of the chaplain is taken by Arthur Kent. The Victor Symphony orchestra and a chorus are used and Wilfred Pelletier conducts.

For the person whose tastes run to simple, unassuming music of the purest type, a good gift would be the pair of Mozart sonatas [No. 5 in G and No. 17 in D] recorded by Claudio Arrau, pianist. The two sonatas represent an early and a late period in the development of the Mozart piano sonata, the G major having been composed in 1774 and the D major in 1789. The album therefore offers opportunities for analysis and comparison as well as for a high type of musical pleasure.

For less expensive presents there are many new single records from which to choose. John Charles Thomas is at his most exuberant in "When I was a Lad," from Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore." On the reverse side he sings O'Hara's "There Is No Death." Norman Cordon, bass, offers another strikingly contrasted pair of songs—the fervent "Love me or not" by Secchi and the rollicking "Tavern Song" by Watson-Fisher. Two arias from Verdi's "Aida"—"Celeste Aida" and "O Patria Mia"—are recorded by Beniamino Gigli and Rose Bampton, respectively. Leonard Warren, baritone, is heard in Barnaba's Soliloquy from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" and Ford's Monolog from Verdi's "Falstaff." The Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, Fabien Sevitzky conducting, has recorded the Prelude and Intermezzo from Grieg's "Sigurd Jorsalfur" music. Two Preludes by Rachmaninoff, the well known G minor and the less familiar B minor, are played by Benno Moiséivitch, pianist.

Anderson Promises Play for Theater Conference

Maxwell Anderson has promised a new play for the uses of the National Theater conference next season. Like William Saroyan, who turned over his "Jim Dandy" to the organization this year, the play will be made available to all members of the conference—little, community, and university theaters—without royalty charge.

Wisconsin Men Continue Study in the Service

University of Wisconsin men in the armed forces who are "hitting the books" in their spare time are taking extension courses at their state's expense.

One army student, in a force building a permanent army base in Iceland, wrote of tackling his assignments in English literature "in the midst of a howling blizzard." Another, located in Hvalfjordur, uses the new environment as subjects for vivid description for themes in college English.

Winter cold settling down early on the island must be reckoned with in developing study techniques. October in Reykjavik was so cold that on some days an engineering student taking a drafting course employed the expedient of taking his India ink to bed with him to keep it from freezing.

In southern camps obstacles of different character have been reported by Wisconsin students. There, student letters revealed, studies sometimes are delayed until maneuvers are over, and occasionally lesson papers are lost in the confusion of field operations.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

We can never be grateful enough to the motion picture industry for providing us at this time with such inspiring pictures as "One Foot in Heaven"—and "Dumbo."

"When the devil is sick the devil a monk would be . . ." may, perhaps, have timely application, both to us and the picture makers. But it sometimes TAKES sickness to make folks value health. [Aren't you and you and you, these days, realizing pretty poignantly what home and human ties REALLY mean to you?]

• • •

"One Foot in Heaven," adapted from the novel by Hartzell Spence, is the story of much that occurred in the lives of members of the author's own family during the early part of the century. The simple chronicle of the day by day existence of a Methodist minister and his family—and his parishioners, during a period when his job was poorly paid, his home not permanent, and his creed bound by many restrictions which today are no more.

William Spence had intended to be a lawyer . . . then he received "the call" to preach.

His fiancée's parents were against him. But gentle Hope put her arms around his neck and looked steadfastly into his eyes.

"Is it what you want, William?"

"It is what I want, Hope."

"Then, it's what I want . . ."

On the rock of this perfect understanding is founded a happy and enduring marriage.

• • •

In those days a Methodist minister changed parishes very frequently. He was never really permitted to root himself and his family anywhere. This film shows the Spences carrying on in three parishes—and about to depart for a fourth.

It takes all sorts of people to make a congregation. . . . Dr. and Mrs. Spence have experience with every known variety.

One foot in heaven has the reverend, but one is planted very firmly on solid ground. . . . He can and does bring comfort and healing to souls. He can and does also give an erring sister or brother Sam Hill when occasion demands. . . . He will go hungry before he'll incur debt, but sees no wrong in reminding the marriage license clerk that the latter hasn't been sending many weddings lately over to the parsonage. [A fee DID mean so much! I know, being a Methodist minister's daughter.]

• • •

Bravely and beautifully—and with a twinkle, Mrs. Spence plays her rôle which calls often for the rarest sort of diplomacy and often for a positive callousness as to hunger.

A minister's child is supposed to be "an example to other children." The Spences have three normal and healthy children to whom being an example is just the last word in something or other.

Here is, you see, definitely a "whole family" picture. . . . A humorous, tender, romantic, in places exceedingly dramatic tale of real folks in real environment.

Miss Scott and Mr. March are ideally cast in the key rôles and are very splendidly supported by A1 players. Direction was shrewd and sympathetic.

Patronize such pictures as "One Foot in Heaven," will you? Encourage the movie makers to continue their good work of providing the public with oases from stress.

See you tomorrow.

More Shows for Loop Promised in February

With six shows in town by the end of this week it seems thankless to continue speculation about future theatrical fare, but the news is too good to neglect.

Early February will bring a Chicago company of the latest Noel Coward success, "Blithe Spirit." The producer and director, John Wilson, has assembled an admirable cast for the midwest showing. Dennis King, Annabella, Estelle Winwood, and Carol Goodner will have the leading rôles taken in the east by Clifton Webb, Leonora Corbett, Mildred Natwick, and Peggy Wood.

Ruth Chatterton, who has decided to appear in "Bow to the Wittiest," by Chicago's own Dorothy Day Wendell, wants to bring the comedy here before offering it in New York. It, too, should reach Chicago by February.

MOVIE BASKETS FOR NEEDY

This smiling Lady Bountiful is Adele Mara, currently appearing in Columbia's "Shut My Big Mouth." She is shown with a basket typical of the 50,000 the local motion picture industry hopes to display Tuesday at the seventh annual Movie Christmas Basket party. Some 250 neighborhood theaters will take part, offering special morning programs for a price of admission consisting of nonperishable foodstuffs for the needy.

Phil got into the next one in line. "Follow that cab," he ordered.

Action in Diamonds

He thanked Nick and they started out of the lobby.

The corner of Prentiss' eye suddenly caught the top of a round, sleek black head and the profile of a sharp little nose from around the side of a lobby chair. Luigi, Paul Klenner's bird dog! He motioned Phil with his eyes to look at Luigi and saw Phil's eyes slew around to study the ferret-like little man. But neither gave any sign as they walked out of the lobby and down the street to Prentiss' car, parked in mid-block. Prentiss had decided they would watch from there, but he had just pushed Phil in and was stepping in himself when Nick Spatillo sauntered out of his hotel and stood leaning against a pillar as he stared toward them.

"Uh, uh," Prentiss grunted. "Nick's awfully anxious about us. You got a good look at that man in the lobby, didn't you?" he asked as he started his car, and when Phil nodded, "That's Luigi, Paul Klenner's torpedo. My guess is he's trailing Slack on Klenner's orders, because he's carrying the money Klenner paid him for the diamonds, and Klenner figures to get it back again. I'd bet Slack's in the Navarre because Nick is so interested in us. We'll drive down the middle of the next block, park, and come back to the drug store on the corner. We can watch from there."

Two Men Watch Hotel from Corner Drug Store

They drove on past the hotel and Nick, standing in front of it. Swinging to the right at the first street, Prentiss drew up at the curb and they walked back to the drug store.

Phil walked to the cigar counter and bought a package of cigarets to give a reason for their presence there. Prentiss stood so that he could see the entrance of the hotel thru the drug store window.

"McNally." Prentiss suddenly called and the tenseness of his voice brought Phil hurrying to his side.

He followed Prentiss' pointing finger and saw Slack and a tall, gaunt man emerge from the hotel. They got into a cab and, as the cab pulled away from the curb, Luigi came out hurriedly. He took the next cab in line, excitedly pointing at Slack's cab as he entered it.

Phil and Prentiss looked at each other. They were caught flat-footed and they realized it. Their car was parked half a block away and there wasn't another cab in sight. They turned without a word and walked back to their car and got into it.

"They've got too big a start for us to chase them," Prentiss grinned ruefully, "so we've got to do more skull work. Where are they going from here?"

"The hot spots?" Phil suggested. "The flashiest."

"Right," Prentiss agreed. "There are—let's see, one, two, five of them in town. We'll comb them one by one. We are looking for two men and a ferret. Do you know Charlie Beale?"

"I've seen him a few times," Phil said. "I never met him. I'm sure he doesn't know me."

"That always helps," Prentiss said, "when you're tailing anybody. Well, here we go." The car pulled away from the curb.

An hour before midnight they had finished canvassing the Silver Swan, the fifth and last expensive night club on their list, without having seen or heard anything of the men they were hunting. When they left the place, they returned to their car which was parked in the middle of the block across from the Silver Swan which was on the corner, and directly opposite a small, inconspicuous little neighborhood bar.

"This," Prentiss said, "is one of the things that take the romance out of sleuthing. Nine-tenths of our work is drawing blanks like this." He grinned. "If crooks and murderers and kidnapers would only stand still and let us catch them, the work would be a cinch. But they never do."

"There are other spots," Phil argued. "There must be because Slack and Beale are in one of them."

"That's right," Prentiss agreed. "That looks like a quiet, harmless tavern, doesn't it? Well, I grant it is. The police never get any complaints about it. It's probably the most orderly bistro in this town. But it is owned by Paul Klenner. Remember? The fence you just saw us relieve of those hot jewels in which our Miami office is interested. It is run by Mart Henders, one of Klenner's most trusted lieutenants. And it is the hangout for all of Klenner's muscle men, torpedoes, and crooked gamblers. If anybody ever started anything in there, his life wouldn't be worth a plugged nickel."

"Why not take a look in there then?" Phil asked as a chill ran down his spine. "I should think it would be one of the first places Slack and Beale would make for."

Prentiss didn't answer. He had stiffened as he saw Luigi turn the corner and walk rapidly toward them. He nudged Phil and the two men watched as the slender little man walked past them and turned into the little bar.

"Listen," Prentiss snapped. "Luigi's still trailing Slack so he's around here somewhere. I'll go back to the Silver Swan and if he isn't there, I'll backtrack to the places we've visited tonight. You get into that bar and follow Luigi wherever he goes. He's almost sure to lead you to Slack. If he does and you get into a tight spot, call our office. Some one will be there and they'll send help. But until either of us contacts Slack, you and I are each on his own. Luck."

Phil got out of the car. As it pulled away, he walked into the bar.

The barroom was dimly lit and looked narrower than it really was because of the long bar that ran the length of one side of it and the six booths that were strung along the other. Each booth was furnished with bare wooden tables and benches whose backs rose to become partitions between them.

The first thing Phil noticed was the absence of women. There wasn't a woman in the place. There were 14 or 15 men lined along the bar. Their faces seemed duplicates one of the other. They were expressionless, still. A tall, heavy set, hard-faced man in a white coat dispensed the drinks.

Phil's spine was tingling as he swept the room with an uninterested glance and stepped to the bar.

"Beer," he ordered.

As the bartender drew his beer from the tap, Phil heard one of the men address him as "Mart" and believed he was looking at Mart Henders, Klenner's trusted lieutenant. His first glance had failed to reveal Luigi, but as he sipped his beer, Phil located him in the mirror. The little man sat alone in the booth next to the last near the back of the room. There was a small glass of wine on the table before him. He had the attitude of a man waiting for somebody or something and hope began to glow in Phil's breast. It looked as if Prentiss' hunch had been good. It looked to him as if Luigi were waiting there for word of Slack.

When his beer was finished, he dragged on. Luigi didn't move. He did not even sip his drink. The other patrons lost their interest in Phil little by little and one by one they left the place. Phil decided to play it safe, however. He drank whisky and then pretended a slight tipsiness.

With an apologetic smile at the bartender, he carried his drink to the end booth. Luigi's eyes lifted as he passed his booth, but there was no interest in his absent glance.

More time dragged along. Phil began to feel uncertain. Was he doing the right thing, sitting here waiting for Luigi to move? What if Prentiss' hunch were wrong and Luigi had no interest in Slack? Where was Prentiss now? What if he had located Slack and was trailing him at this very moment, maybe even arresting him? He became restless. Why didn't somebody do something? Nobody moved. Neither Henders nor Luigi, the only other two people in the bar. Impatience took possession of him. He wasn't going to stay here a minute longer. He raised his glass to finish it with the idea of getting out of the bar when the door opened joyously and Charlie Beale strode in.

"Mart!" he greeted the bartender uproariously and Phil saw that he was feeling high. "I haven't seen you since you handed over those six Chinks to me to fly from Cuba. How you doin'?"

Luigi Inquires About Slack from Aviator

As Hender's hard face cracked in a grin, Phil glanced at Luigi thru the mirror. The little man was making himself even smaller in the obvious hope that Charlie wouldn't see him. But he was disappointed. Charlie saw him and came grinning to him.

"H'y, Luigi!" he greeted. "How's Paul Klenner treating you? A friend and I saw Paul today. Slack. You remember him. Boy, what a time he's having by now! How about a drink?"

"What's this about Slack?" Luigi asked.

"Slack?" Charlie repeated. "O, Slack. He got himself a bankroll from Paul Klenner for something he had me fly him up from Miami to sell. And you know Slack. He insisted that I stick around and help him spend it."

"How do you know he has a lot of money?" Luigi persisted.

"Because I saw him put it in his money belt and strap it around him. Thousands. And he paid me double for flying him here. But listen. We went to the Red Pheasant. You know. Where Conchita's dancing and I wanted to see her. She's good, but not as good as the doll that stumbled against our table in there. She's a knockout. Dark. Big brown eyes. Beautiful skin and a build—Slack grabbed her when she almost fell and she sat down with us. And she went for Slack like a ton of brick. Honest! It looked like love. I never saw a dame fall so fast. After the first five minutes, she didn't even know I was there. Neither did Slack."

"Didn't she have a friend?" Luigi smiled.

"No. I asked her. So when they said something about going some place else, I got up and left them."

"So you don't know where they went," Luigi's smile broadened.

"The hell I don't. I know Slack and how he acts when he's plastered. I asked the taxi driver who took them. They went to Tarillo's bar on Jasmine street. Know where it is?"

"Yes, I know," Luigi purred. "Mart, bring us another drink."

Phil, under his mask of slight drunkenness, wondered what he would do. What he should do would be to call the office of the federal bureau and inform them where they could pick up Slack. But if he moved now toward the telephone booth, just 10 feet away from him, it would draw attention and certain suspicion to him. And if he left to get in touch with Slack himself, he would lose his contact with Luigi which he might not be able to pick up again.

And he had no assurance that he'd find Slack at Tarillo's Bar on Jasmine street, wherever that was. There was nothing to do but sit tight. He did that and listened to the conversation in the next booth.

"How long ago did you leave them?" Luigi was asking.

"O, an hour ago. Maybe two," Charlie said. "I don't know. That girl sure was pretty. She made me lonesome. I've just been wandering around ever since. I'm going to do some more of it. No. I'm going back to the hotel. If I keep wandering, I'll get drunk and if Slack gets in a jam I won't be able to help him out of it. I guess I'll beat it." He finished his drink and got up. "Well, so long. I'll be seeing you."

Phil had to hold himself in his seat by main force to keep from following Charlie back to the hotel until he reminded himself that Charlie would be no nearer to Slack than he was now. But he should put Prentiss or some other federal man on Charlie. There was no doubt that Slack would join him eventually. They were in a strange town together. But he didn't know how he could do it. He glanced at Luigi.

Luigi obviously was nervous. His fingers drummed on the table. He looked at his watch and then toward the telephone. He seemed to be expecting a call and impatient that it did not come. He finally got up from the table and went into the booth. Thru the glass sides, Phil saw him drop a coin and dial a number and listen. He held the instrument to his ear for three, four minutes. He got no answer. He hung up and dropped another coin and picked up the instrument and dialed again.

Phil turned his gaze from the booth to find Mart Henders staring at him, distrust in his eyes. So he got up and lurched across the room to the bar.

"Guess I'll have 'nother drink and go home," he said thickly. "I guess I feel all right."

Mart's distrust was replaced by amusement.

"Have one on the house," he invited. "What'll it be?"

"Whisky," Phil accepted. "Make it a small one."

He drank it quickly and said, "Good-night," and went out, staggering slightly.

Once on the street he hurried to the Silver Swan and from a booth in the entrance called the FBI offices. A voice he did not recognize answered.

"This is Phil McNally," he snapped. "I'm working with George Prentiss. We are trying to locate Raoul Slack, a——"

"I know," the voice said. "What can we do for you?"

"Slack was at Tarillo's Bar on Jasmine street some time tonight. He may still be there. Will you tell Prentiss I can't leave a man I'm trailing?"

"I will, if I can locate him," the federal man promised.

Phil hung up and went swiftly out of the night club. He was just in time to see Luigi climb into a cab. As it pulled away from the curb Phil got into the next one in line.

"Follow that cab," he ordered.

Luigi was in a hurry to get wherever he was going and his destination was quite a distance from Mart Hender's Bar where he had been waiting. Phil decided both these things as the two cabs hurtled around corners on two wheels and straightened out on a boulevard to do between 50 and 60 miles an hour. He surmised that Luigi must have been galvanized into his present impatience by something he had heard over the telephone. He must have got his number. His speculation came to an abrupt end as Luigi's cab swerved to the curb in front of an apartment building and Luigi bounced from it before it had come to a full stop. With a curt "Wait" to the driver, he hurried into the building.

Phil's cab reached the curb as the door of the building closed behind Luigi and Phil opened it again and followed almost on his heels. He realized he was on his own with a vengeance. He had no authority at all.

Luigi came to a pause before the open door of an apartment. He opened it wider and stepped in, so excited he didn't look behind him. Phil did the only thing he could do. He walked in softly and stood in a little vestibule looking at Luigi and a girl, unseen by either.

They were standing in the living room. The girl had her hand over her mouth. Her soft brown eyes were wide with terror. Her black hair was disarranged and it gave her an appealing wildness.

Phil's first thought was that this affair had nothing to do with Slack, therefore was no business of his. He looked behind him, ready to retreat thru the door he had entered. But Luigi stepped close to the girl and his first words drove all thoughts of retreat out of Phil's mind.

"Where's Slack?" he grated.

"He's gone," the girl told him in a pleasing husky voice.

"Was he here?"

"Yes, and I did what you told me and gave him the stuff."

"Wait," Luigi ordered. "Start from the beginning."

"All right," the girl agreed, and tried to swallow. "When you pointed him out to me in the Red Pheasant, I walked in and stumbled against his table. He caught me by the shoulders. He's very strong."

"I saw all that," Luigi snapped. "What happened then?"

"We had several drinks there and then I acted restless and he suggested we go some place and 'have ourselves a time,' as he put it. His friend asked me if I knew any girls and when I said I didn't he left us. So I took Slack to Tarillo's Bar, as you told me to, and we stayed there till a little after midnight."

"Did he drink much?" Luigi demanded.

"No," the girl admitted dreamily. "Neither of us did."

"Why didn't you?"

"I don't know," the girl explained. "We just sat there and talked. We didn't think of drinking. I finally remembered what you and Mr. Klenner had told me to do and I suggested that we come up here."

"Well, for crying!" Luigi barked. "Are you trying to tell me you fell for that mug?"

"No, no!" the girl protested too eagerly. "When we got here, we sat here on the couch for a moment and then I went into the kitchen and mixed two drinks. I poured that whole vial of chloral you gave me into his glass and carried the drinks in.

"He asked me to let him kiss me, but I said I wouldn't until we had finished our drink. He drank his without taking it from his lips."

"Go on."

Girl Explains How Drops Affected Slack

"Then—then he kissed me and took me in his arms. I didn't struggle. I waited for the drug to take effect. It took a long time, but when it did, it hit him all of a sudden. He said he guessed he was drunk and he struggled to keep awake. Then he said, 'It feels like knockout drops. You're going to roll me.' He began to fumble at his waist and he pulled a long knife from there and grasped my wrist. He said, 'You didn't think you could get away with it did you?' and he raised the knife. But the knife fell from his hand and his grip on my wrist loosened and he fell back unconscious."

"All right! What did you do then?"

"I was frightened. I wasn't sure that the drug I'd given him hadn't killed him. The phone began to ring, but I was afraid to answer it. I let it ring."

"That was me calling you," Luigi told her. "Go on."

"Then I was just starting to search him when a knock came on the door. I was afraid to answer at first, but then I thought it was you and I asked who was there. It was Charlie Beale, his friend, and he said the law was after Slack. He banged on the door again and I was afraid people would hear him so I opened the door."

"And?"

"He came in and he went to the couch and shook Slack and Slack rolled like a bundle of old rags. He said, 'He's sure blind,' and stood there a second. Then he leaned down and threw Slack over his shoulder and carried him out. It was only a minute before you got there. I don't see how you missed him."

"Is that all?" Luigi asked softly.

"That's all," the girl sighed.

"You're lying," Luigi told her and his voice was soft and gentle. "You fell for him like the tramp you are and you either let him get away with that money or you figured to steal it from us." His hand lashed out suddenly and struck her across the mouth. The girl's legs buckled under her and she fell against the couch.

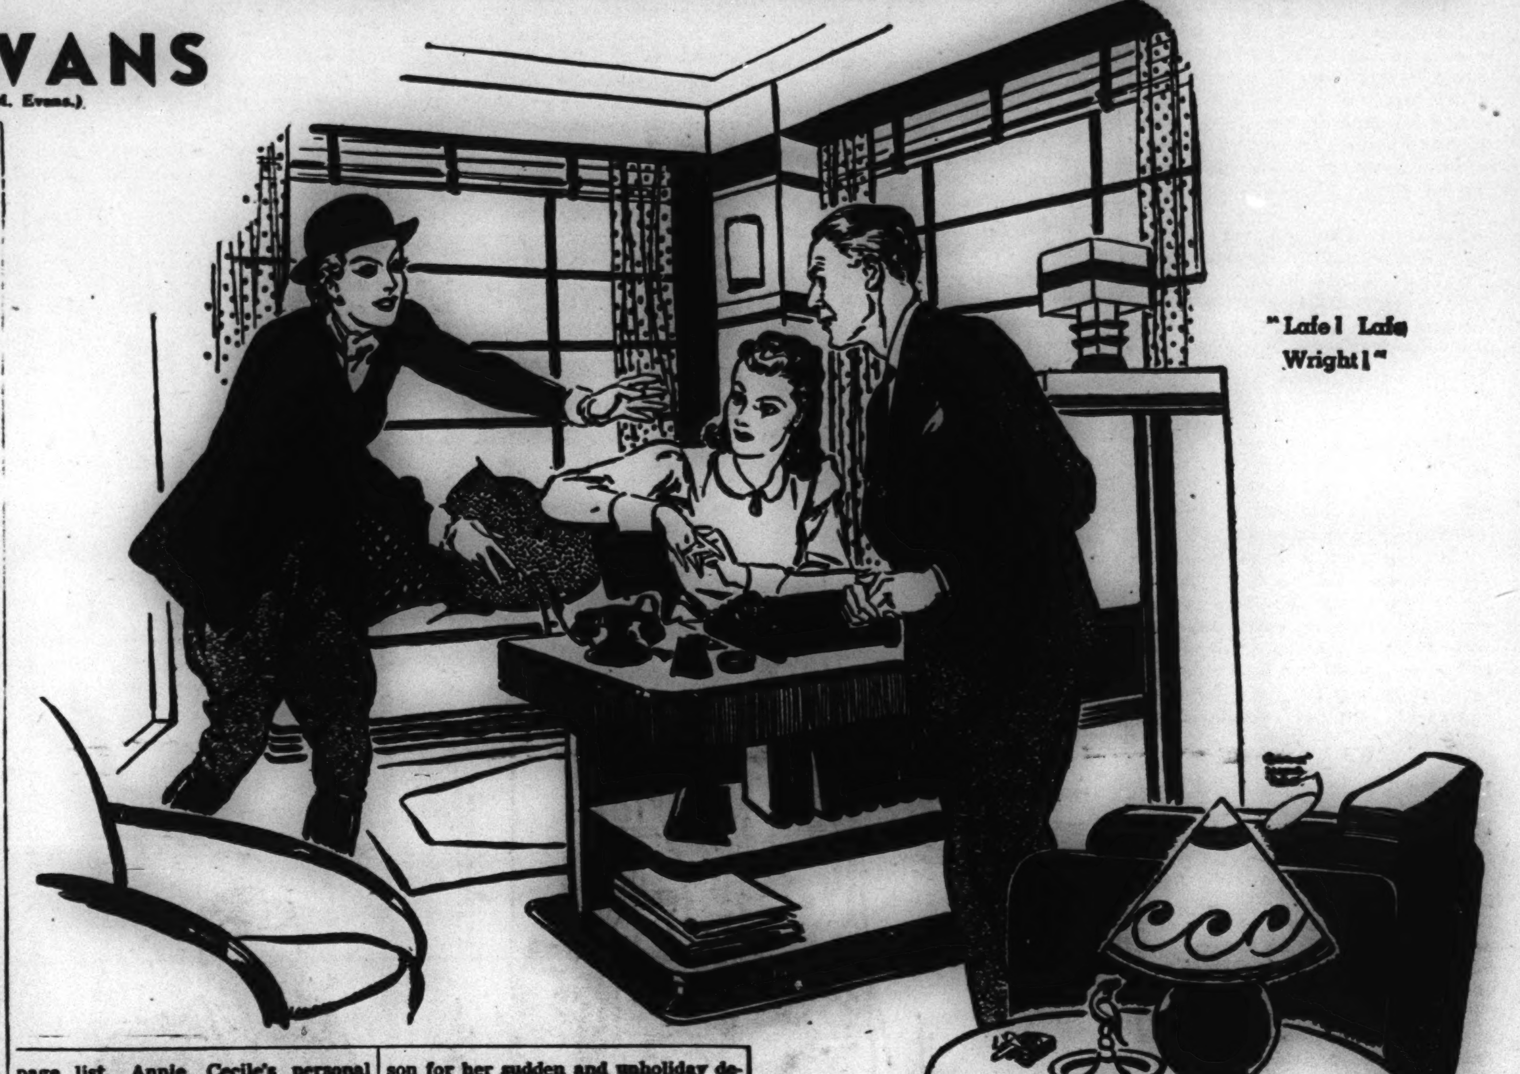
HOLLY AND CELLOPHANE

By

IDA M. EVANS

(Copyright: 1941: By Ida M. Evans.)



"Lafe! Lafe Wright!"

CECILE LARIMORE paused in the doorway of her bungalow on the studio lot, slowly drawing on her gloves.

As if pulled back against her will, her violet eyes went again to the 30-page Christmas list on the white and black desk at which sat Joan Bowryn, her secretary, with busy pencil.

Item 1: Sandel. Pacific ocean. Roses and orchids.

The famous flowerlike eyes, which took technicolor as a honey bee takes an orange blossom, were brooding. Cecile's posture, hand on door jamb, was taut.

Ten days before Christmas—this bright Monday. And six years ago, 10 days before Christmas, Sandel Denwell had saved Cecile and himself the expense and trouble of a divorce by tipping over a borrowed yacht about six miles out from Santa Monica Bay. The body had not been recovered. Sharks had been reported in the locality. The yacht on its split lee side had been towed into the harbor two days later.

"Be sure the roses are fresh, Joan. And white orchids."

"They're here, darling," Joan nodded toward a corner of the room and the gray and silver satin cardboard box the size of a steamer trunk.

She added with sympathy: "They're fresh. And white orchids."

"I'm a beast to put this on you, Joan. I ought to go, in person. But I can't! Last year I realized that not again could I look down from a plane at that horrible bright blue Pacific water and throw flowers down."

"Darling, I don't mind a bit."

"You mind terribly. You feel creepy. Like myself. But—attend to it, please?" Cecile consulted the tiny dial set into her handbag. "It's 10:15. I'll take a taxi to the jeweler's, or wait here until you return. Petersen has my car at the side entrance. You phoned the airport for a plane to be ready?"

"All set. And, darling, it IS six years. And after all——"

"I know. Silly of me to have the jitters every year. And, after all, as you started to say, we hated each other—wanted to be rid of each other's face." Cecile's laugh was shrill.

"Darling, don't!"

"My last words were, as every one in Hollywood has repeated over and over, 'Get out of my sight and life!' He treated me abominably. But I did not treat him well."

"You were misfits. But he is dead. And you love another man who would not know how to be abominable. And you're only 29 and beautiful. And your contract has been renewed for another seven years, without a non-marriage clause. By the end of that time, you'll probably have jitters only over Junior's teeth."

Joan Flings Flowers Into Sea from Plane

And Joan patted the lovely thin shoulder in broadtail, picked up the box of expensive flowers, and hurried between trellised topaz roses and a high board fence to the side exit of the studio lot.

Petersen waited at the wheel of Miss Larimore's long black car.

Miles of pretty streets with bright stucco homes with trimmed lawns and riotous roses sped behind the high-powered car. The airport lay like a great encampment in a circle of long curving blue hills.

As Joan alighted from the car, a rented plane wheeled out. The pilot was young and respectful. There was a turning, a soaring, a swift sweep of great wings, and the Pacific ocean was beneath them. She flung the flowers over and down. She murmured a brief contrite prayer. Silly to have distaste for harmless bleached bones somewhere down there. Only—she had heard how hateful he had been to Cecile.

Back at the studio Joan was glad to fling off her plaid sport hat and coat and seat herself at desk and 30-page list. Annie, Cecile's personal maid, came from the bedroom of the bungalow before Joan could call her.

"I know, Miss Bowryn. I've sent to the studio wardrobe for the white wig and the silver lamé costume she wore as Fair Rosalind in 'White Venetian Night.' She'll look beautiful in it tonight when she leads the parade on Santa Claus Lane."

Cecile had not waited. She had taken a taxi to Smoan's. Joan was relieved. By the time Cecile and fat, shrewd little Al Smoan had discussed purity and size of blood red gems for Lewis Ryland's stocking, jitters would have gone—until next year.

And next year Cecile's jitters would be Lewis Ryland's concern.

The unlisted 'phone buzzed. Ryland's voice, crisp, authoritative, and, now, anxious.

"Miss Bowryn, surely Miss Larimore did not try to——"

"No, I went, for her. But she is not here. No, she is not due for that retake until 2:30. Yes, I'll surely remind her to ring you at the bank when she comes."

Joan liked Ryland. He was lean, handsome, and courteous. Probably it was not his fault that he always made her feel as if she were trying at a window grill to cash a personal check on an overdrawn account.

Sandel Denwell, young star with genius-tipped talent—report said that his love and his hate for his wife had been colossal.

Petersen would swim among sharks to oblige Miss Larimore. Directors and their assistants, who are not vulnerable because ambition is their steel vest, followed Cecile, in a sarong or a nun's wimple, with abstracted eyes and had to be recalled to their megaphones.

Ah, the way all men looked at Cecile!

Joan had not known Sandel Denwell. Even now, she was only three years from a business college in Nebraska, where she had never, never expected to become secretary and friend to the famous Cecile Larimore.

And, now, she addressed herself in a long mirror with gilt frame opposite the desk: "All this and perquisites, too. You're certainly ungrateful, my dear. Drooling for love, too. O, be honest!"

Perhaps it was the quick nervous trip to the blue Pacific waters. Had Cecile's nervous mood been catching? Perhaps Joan's 24th year was the reason for her sudden and unholiday depression.

It is no brook, this 24th year, at which a maiden stands with reluctant feet. It is more like a turnstile. To what?

Joan sighed. She knew very well indeed that it would never revolve her into being an object of all men's desire.

The way all men reacted to Cecile's entrance into any room. The rigidity of shoulders, the hard stare of eyes, the sudden red at nape of neck and temples. Men's blatant awareness of the flowerlike eyes and absolute grace of body from narrow white velvet shoulders to high white instep.

Joan sighed again. Back in Nebraska, she had thought rather well of her own looks. So had other people. Her parents. A bank teller. Also a dentist.

Secretary Reports to Star on Her Mission

Out here, ah. Well, face it! Out here, where lovelies grew on bushes, her wide-spaced Scotch-gray eyes and bright thick brown hair were as commonplace as the Jack's bean-stalk red geraniums which grew untended in back yards, by the roadside, and all over vacant lots in Mexican neighborhoods.

Small comfort to be aware that in places where brilliant bougainvillea does not sprawl by the acre and hibiscus does not grow beside mail-boxes, a mangy, measly two-by-four geranium in a five-inch brown earthen pot gets love and attention.

Cecile entered.

"Everything went off well, Joan?"

"Perfectly, darling."

Cecile opened her bag and a small white velvet box which held a trio of what seemed pure blood drops.

"Sweet?"

"Beautiful! Mr. Ryland phoned. Will you phone him——"

"Haven't time now. I'm late for the retake. Phone him to meet me here at 7—O, no. I ride on Santa Claus Lane then. Make it 8, when I'll be back here to change."

Cecile went into the dressing room where Annie waited. She emerged in 20 minutes in a derby and riding boots. "Only a few retakes, which means three hours. If the man comes with fox chubbies, tell him I'm sorry."

Annie departed presently to go to the studio wardrobe department for the powdered and scented white wig of a hundred curls and the silver lamé court costume which tonight Cecile would wear as she rode along Santa Claus Lane.

Joan became absorbed in her work. The salesman brought the silver fox coats, took a receipt, and left them for Miss Larimore's selection. Joan suspected that one was for herself. Cecile WAS a darling. A designer's assistant came with a folio of sketches of gowns for the star's next picture, to be started on the 27th.

Item 18: Cigarets for encampments.

Item 19: Accordion for Cecile's maternal great-uncle in New York.

It seemed hours later that she realized an unexplained man in a gray suit was in the room. A tall, lean, cold-eyed man with a face too browned for even a California sun.

He stood inside the door, like a ghost or a process server.

Startled, Joan demanded: "Who are you? And what do you want?"

Something about his appearance, or face, was alien to lot, to the industry, to studio bungalows; and he did not belong on Cecile's public or private list.

"I used to know Miss Larimore. I wish to talk to her."

The man smiled thinly, seeing Joan's uneasiness.

"Have you an appointment with Miss Larimore?"

"No. How did I get to this rose-twined nest?"

"Well—how did you? Really, I don't like mystery stories."

Again the thin, amused smile. He drawled, "Six years ago the password for gatemen, guards, and personal maids to Miss Larimore's bungalow was Hillyway. A gateman remembered."

Six years ago? All the uncanny impressions of the morning rushed to demoralize Joan's usually sensible mind.

Perhaps he was a relative. Cecile had an army of them, all touchy. Better be tactful.

"Are you a relative of Miss Larimore's?"

"No."

"Then you will please state your business with her and she will later make an appointment."

"My business is for her ears. She isn't by any chance——" the curt voice stopped, went on—"off getting married?"

"That is Miss Larimore's business surely."

Men in far places fell in love with filmed beauty. Joan was most uneasy. She put out a hand——

"Don't press that button," he advised, curtly. "Believe me, Miss Larimore would not be pleased."

"Who are you?"

"What a persistent child!" he commented, amused.

"I am paid, and well, to be persistent," Joan said without warmth.

She was afraid.

"Miss Larimore is not here. She may not be here until tomorrow."

Annie entered, belatedly. On one arm billowed silver lamé in white cellophane. Yards of skirt, a wisp of a bodice. And on the other arm a powdered scented white wig of a hundred curls, and silver slippers with rhinestone buckles were visible thru more white cellophane.

"Miss Larimore's costume when she rides along Santa Claus Lane tonight," the man said pleasantly to Annie, who assumed that he was a reporter and nodded with pride and vanished into the bedroom.

Joan Tries to Get Rid of Her Visitor

Joan could have strangled obtuse Annie.

"I read the papers," the man said. "She rides in the costume of Fair Rosalind tonight. Turns the corner at Argyle street at 7 o'clock. I'll wait here."

Joan decided to try more tact.

"Miss Larimore has had a hard day. It is a sad anniversary for her. If you have legitimate business with her, she will——"

NEXT SUNDAY—"ONLY THE FUTURE," A SHORT STORY BY T. T. FLYNN

HOLLY AND CELLOPHANE

Suddenly, his manner took on passion and anger. He jerked a chair out and sat down.

“I'll wait! I shan't enjoy the wait. I am not enjoying the reason for my persistency. She won't enjoy it. But she won't thank you, my poor girl, if you postpone my meeting with her.”

Had Sandel Denwell not died? The body had not been found.

The long wait began. Joan would have called a studio policeman, threat or no threat from this tall, lean, tired-eyed man. But his mention of six years deterred her. Cecile might not thank her.

She returned to her typing, phoning, and pencil. Impossible to make appointments for Cecile while he sat in the room. She did the best she could.

Presently Joan put the question against her will. But she must know.

“You—you are Sandel Denwell? You did not die? How cruel!”

“Cruel not to die?” He laughed, and not pleasantly. “I gather you are fond of Cecile. So many people are.”

“Where did you go?”

“To Honduras. It seemed a good idea at the time.” Plainly he was entertained by Joan's flushed, stricken face.

“Why did you come back?”

“And now that she loves another man—and plans to marry him—and find the peace and protection she deserves——” Joan was incoherent.

“That is why I'm here uninvited. However, I am not Sandel. Merely his friend.”

“O, then he is still dead.” Joan was relieved.

“I said I am his friend. He is—alive.”

“O, how abominable.”

“Need it matter to you?” Again his smile was thin.

“Yes! I spent the best part of a good working morning in throwing $200 worth of roses and orchids into the Pacific.”

“That is too bad. I can see that you are a very busy young woman, too. Sandel will be regretful, too. Cecile deputed you in her place?”

“Naturally she wished to avoid any publicity. If you know anything about Hollywood——”

“I know too much about Hollywood,” he sighed.

It was the sigh which changed Joan's attitude toward him. She saw then that he, too, was tired. The way he leaned back in the chair he had taken, uninvited. The dark recession under his deep-set eyes.

Cecile Greets Caller with Outstretched Hands

The afternoon wore on. Gray fog crept at its usual time from the Pacific ocean, wrapping lots and stucco houses and lighted Christmas trees on lawns in impalpable gray chiffon. The sun had gone to China.

Finally Cecile came in haste and impatience. “Five retakes and four were unnecessary.”

The man rose.

“Lafe! Lafe Wright!”

Cecile's hands were outflung to him, her eyes were bright with pleasure.

Over her shoulder, the man smiled thinly at Joan, in I-told-you-so.

Tired Joan thought that he need not rub it in. She had only been trying to do what she was well paid to do.

He did not rub it in. He said to Cecile, holding her hands tight and looking down at the flower-face as a man looks at something very precious which he has not seen for a long while. “You've got a perfect little secretary, Cecile. And because I wouldn't let her put me out, her day has been ruined.”

“O, Joan's wonderful. Lafe—where have you been for six years?”

“Five and a half years, to be exact. In Honduras, Cecile.”

“But why, Lafe? I missed you after—after Sandel——”

“Cecile, I haven't come back merely to exchange greetings. My errand is hateful, dear.”

“What do you mean?” she cried, and the morbidity of a few hours back had control of her eyes again.

“It's about Sandel, dear.”

“But he—how could anything ever again be about Sandel?” she shrilled. “Tell me—tell me quickly! O—don't look at Joan. I've no hidden chapters from her.”

“Couldn't you guess, Cecile?” he asked, so gently that Joan wondered if it could be the same tired, thin voice.

“Guess? Guess what?”

“His body was never found,” he reminded her.

“He—he is alive?” she whispered. He gripped her hands to support her.

“Yes, Cecile.”

“Lafe! If this is a hoax,” she shrilled, slumping against him.

“Cecile, I caught the first boat from Honduras when it became absolutely necessary for some one to tell you,” he pleaded.

She pulled away from him. She was white and shaken.

“Let me go! I must have a minute or two by myself.”

She rushed into the adjourning bedroom from whence at once came out a scared Annie.

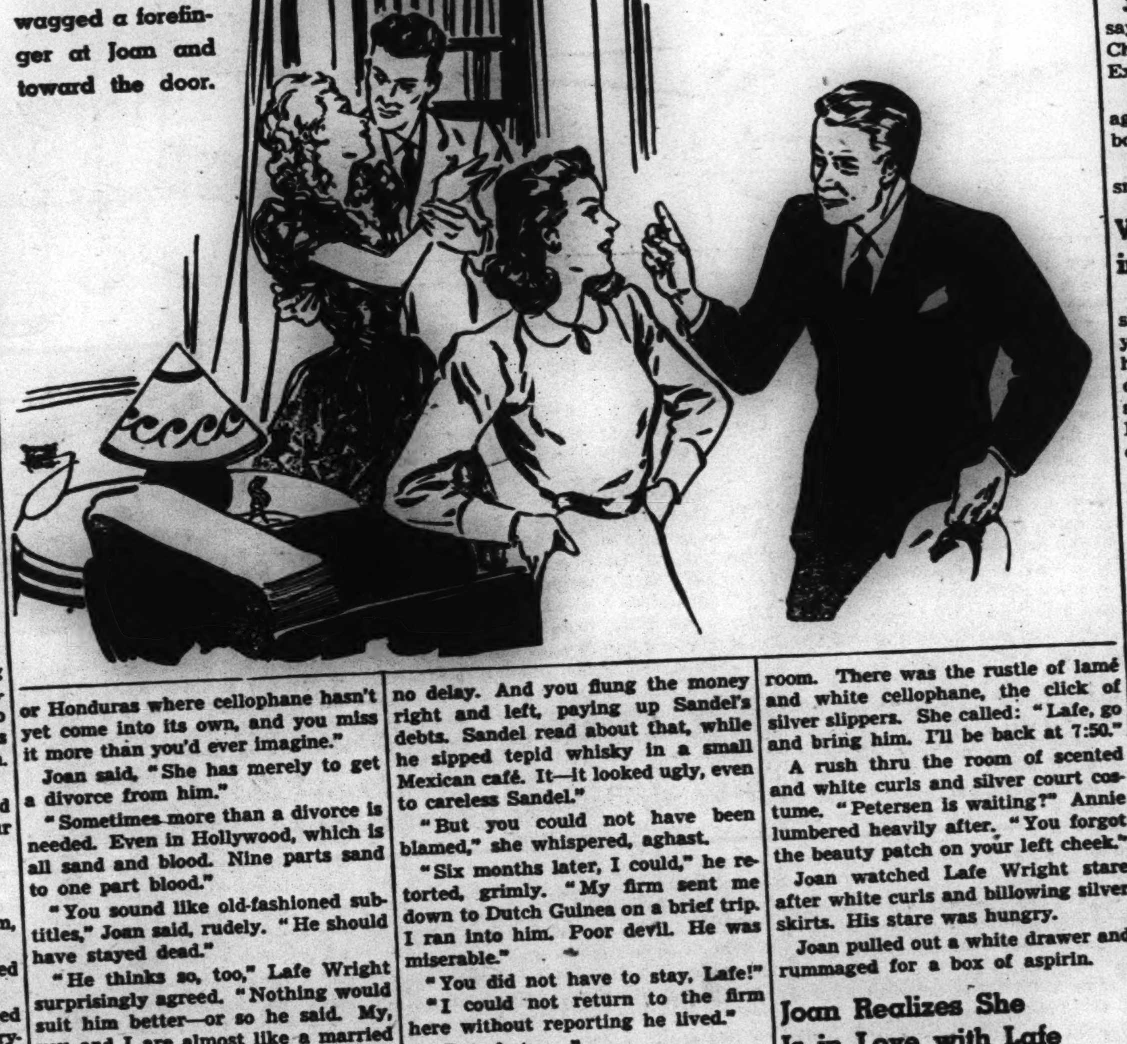
Lafe Wright paced to and fro. He looked curiously at the bright large litter of Christmas boxes wrapped in blue and silver cellophane. At the huge carton of Eastern holly.

“Funny,” he said, as if to himself. “When a man is here, Christmas is merely a rush and bustle and a lot of red berries and boresome lighted trees on lawn, too flat a check book, and too many quarts at $3.50 per. But get down in places like Dutch Guinea or Honduras where cellophane hasn't yet come into its own, and you miss it more than you'd ever imagine.”



Lafe Wright wigwagged a forefinger at Joan and toward the door.

Joan said, “She has merely to get a divorce from him.”

“Sometimes more than a divorce is needed. Even in Hollywood, which is all sand and blood. Nine parts sand to one part blood.”

“You sound like old-fashioned subtitles,” Joan said, rudely. “He should have stayed dead.”

“He thinks so, too,” Lafe Wright surprisingly agreed. “Nothing would suit him better—or so he said. My, you and I are almost like a married couple, aren't we? The way we talk and fight and curl our lip at each other.”

Cecile came from the bedroom. White as the fur-edged crêpe negligee into which she had changed from derby hat and riding boots. White—but not shaken.

Cecile Demands to Know Everything from Lafe

“I'm all right now, Lafe.” She sat steadily in the chair which he pushed forward. “And I want to know everything. No, stay, Joan. Why did he pretend to be drowned, Lafe?”

“To punish you. He meant the deception to last only a few weeks.”

“I would have given him a divorce for the asking.”

“He did not want a divorce. Good Lord, Cecile, what man would want a divorce from you?

“Cecile, Sandel did not plan to pretend to drown. He was not a yachtsman. A gale came. The yacht went over. He went into a salt billow. Two Japs in a small fishing boat with no license, but a goodish-powered camera, picked him up and refused to set him anywhere except on the Mexican coast. Sandel was always something of a cat, you know. He says so himself. His bad humor toward you was not helped by soaked clothes. He jumped at the heaven-sent way to punish you for something or other.”

“That morning we had quarreled over you. So silly. You were never anything but a good friend to both of us, I told him.”

“Never anything else,” Lafe Wright said, evenly. Joan knew that he lied; naturally he had been in love with Cecile. O, to be Cecile!

“How could he endure to stay away?” Cecile was shrill again. “Why, Hollywood was in his bones! A megaphone was his idea of symphony!”

“He did not dare to come back. Nor I—after I ran across him six months later in Dutch Guinea where my firm sent me on a business trip.”

“Lafe! What do you mean? Why must you drag it all out, like the suspense in a mystery picture?”

Lafe Recalls Writing Big Insurance Policy

“I was your and Sandel's best friend. I wrote his life policy for $400,000, you remember. And over the protest of a member of the firm, I saw that it was paid to you with no delay. And you flung the money right and left, paying up Sandel's debts. Sandel read about that, while he sipped tepid whisky in a small Mexican café. It—it looked ugly, even to careless Sandel.”

“But you could not have been blamed,” she whispered, aghast.

“Six months later, I could,” he retorted, grimly. “My firm sent me down to Dutch Guinea on a brief trip. I ran into him. Poor devil. He was miserable.”

“You did not have to stay, Lafe!”

“I could not return to the firm here without reporting he lived.”

“But—but——”

“He would have been jailed. You were not in funds by that time. And afterward—silence of even a few weeks made me an accessory. So——” He shrugged—“I decided to stay away.”

Cecile whispered wretchedly, “Lafe, I am a bad luck carrier.”

“A man's own lack of forethought is his bad luck carrier. That, and his self-acquired habits of thought and action and mood.

“I need not have made such haste to nag my firm into paying so soon. But I must strut as the Great Noble Friend looking after my Poor Dead Pal's beautiful Stricken Widow. I enjoyed it! Just wrapped myself round and round in Nobility and Friendship. Posed for the press, check in extended hand.”

“You meant to be kind, Lafe.”

“O, I daresay,” he admitted with weariness.

Cecile waited, whispered, “And in the end they found him, arrested him?”

“O, no. A group from Los Angeles ran into him in a small eating place in Honduras. But he knew they'd talk and there could be only one result. Both of us have plantations down there. He got in touch with me at once. And, together, we can scrape up about $100,000 as down payment on his freedom. He insists that I let him row his own boat.”

“I have a new contract, on which I can borrow.” She put a hand on the chair arm for support, as she rose. “When will he be in California, Lafe?”

“He is in a downtown hotel now. Waiting to hear—from you.”

“In Los Angeles! Now! Go and get him, Lafe—please! I'll go with you——” She wailed, “I can't. Look at the clock. I ride on Santa Claus Lane tonight—O, I've hardly time to dress——” She flew into the bedroom. There was the rustle of lamé and white cellophane, the click of silver slippers. She called: “Lafe, go and bring him. I'll be back at 7:50.”

A rush thru the room of scented and white curls and silver court costume. “Petersen is waiting?” Annie lumbered heavily after. “You forgot the beauty patch on your left cheek.”

Joan watched Lafe Wright stare after white curls and billowing silver skirts. His stare was hungry.

Joan pulled out a white drawer and rummaged for a box of aspirin.

Joan Realizes She Is in Love with Lafe

“Let me have a couple, too,” he begged, absently.

He departed. Joan watched him go. Six hours and a half he had been in that room. And she had learned the reason she left Nebraska. It was not to watch celebrities along Santa Claus Lane. It was not to throw flowers into the blue Pacific ocean. The reason was some one like Lafe Wright. The reason was—Lafe Wright.

A boy brought a tray with sandwiches and black coffee which Annie carried to the desk and which Joan ignored.

Item 41: Cigaret case, gold, for assistant director.

It was a long hour before Lafe Wright and a smaller, darker, moody-eyed man came. Lafe introduced Sandel Denwell to his wife's secretary. “And she's a nice girl, Sandel. Fond of Cecile.”

Sandel looked superciliously at the black and white color scheme of the room. “Used to be cream and silver,” he commented. “Bet Cecile left it to a studio decorator.”

Joan knew the nonchalance was as false as the papier-mâché of Cecile's silver float.

Sandel stiffened, almost like any corpse. His black eyes were red coals.

A rush of high heels, a whirl of scent and silver and white. Cecile was in the room, breathing hard and audibly. The two minor actors watched star and leading man.

“Sandel!”

“Go ahead, Cecile! Say it all! Get it out of your system. I can take it.”

“You treated me abominably! Always!”

“And did you treat me well?” he demanded, with twisted mouth.

“No—no! No! O, Sandel, my darling! I've wanted you so—I've wanted you so!”

“And what kind of a hell do you think I've writhed in for six years—my darling!” he groaned and his arms went out as hers had already gone.

Lafe Wright wigwagged a forefinger to Joan and toward the door. As unobtrusively as possible she picked up her plaid sport hat and coat and followed him out.

“You could have dropped a stone pot of poinsettias for all they would have noticed,” he commented as they walked between the trellised roses and the high board fence.

The roses were heavily sweet on the fog-laden night air. The high board fence was dark-shrouded and sightly.

They walked down a street of old Athens which presently detoured into a highway of Hongkong.

“Let's get off the lot,” he said, pulling her hand within his arm. “Lord, Cecile is beautiful. Sandel has had a hard time.”

They walked along a small side street of stucco houses and lighted trees on small lawns.

He said, “I'd forgotten how cool and quiet and satisfying are the little streets of Hollywood.”

Joan did not speak. What could she say? That her heart ached for his Christmases in self-imposed exile? Exile for friendship and love.

“They'll start the rows all over again. But now they won't fool anybody,” he remarked.

“You love her?” Joan said in a small voice.

Wright Calls Interest in Cecile Brotherly

“A lot of things besides boulevard-shirts can wear out in five and a half years,” he said. “O, I half ate my heart out. In Honduras. But—I dunno—seeing her today was like seeing a picture. Not real—for me. Except as a brother. But she's fine, or she wouldn't get so much loyalty.”

“O, good heavens. I did not phone Mr. Lewis Ryland.”

“That's too bad. I'll cry. Maybe Sandel will, too. Let Lewis read the newspapers in the morning.”

He picked a pink hibiscus from a bush which hung too far from lawn and over pavement.

“The owner won't miss it. What would you like best for a Christmas present, Joan?”

She gasped. “Twelve hours of sleep,” she managed to say.

“You mean I don't know you well enough to buy you a present. I've got 10 days to go.” He drew a long breath of sweet gray fog and scent of countless fir trees on lawns. “This is a nice little place at that. I don't know where else a man could walk into a black and white bungalow and find the right girl. That is, the right girl for the right man——”

It was nostalgia, Joan assured herself. And he had been lonely, and Cecile loved only Sandel. And she, Joan, had very nice rich brown hair and a pointed white chin, and her plaid sport coat and hat were becoming—— “You're all wrong. What you're thinking, I mean,” he said coolly.

“You do not know what I am thinking!”

“You're thinking I'm light-headed from homesickness, and therefore not to be taken seriously. You have a cellophane face, my dear girl.”

“I have not!”

“One can see right thru it to your mind. And, see! Again you're talking to me like a wife. It is an omen. We're meant for each other.”

Joan tried to make her face blank. Because she was thinking that, nostalgia or not, the risk of a flare up of old love for Cecile or not, she did not intend to let him get away for another woman to snatch up.

“That's better,” he said, watching her.

“O——” Joan turned red.

“See? Cellophane! Beautiful sweet Christmas cellophane—for my own. Joan, I'll never be sorry—if you never are.”

“I'll never be,” she thought, knowing how Cecile also felt.

ACTION IN DIAMONDS

INSTALMENT X.

SIX miles away the Tarpon Queen headed out to sea and Phil, standing at the wheel, was swept with alternate hope and doubt. He was sure he had interpreted Justin's message correctly. But then he wasn't sure.

It could mean something else. But what else could it mean? His doubts vanished at sight of a plane diving out of the blue light gracefully upon the water. He called Bill to him.

“Think you could handle the Queen all by yourself?” he asked.

“Sure, Cap'n Phil,” Bill answered. “Sure I could!”

“All right. She's yours till I come back. I'm going on that plane. You just keep her out here. Cruise around until you see me again. It may be a couple of days. Maybe even a week. But I'll land right around here and I'll expect to find you waiting for me.”

“Sure, Cap'n Phil. But where you goin'?”

“I won't tell you that, because if anybody asks you I want you to be able to tell them truthfully that you don't know.”

“Gee, Cap'n Phil! O, boy!” Bill was dancing up and down.

“Phil McNally?” the pilot hailed.

“Yes,” Phil answered.

“John Justin sent me for you. Better board me from your skiff.”

Ten minutes later Bill watched the plane climb in the sky and head westward. He didn't know which thrilled him more, watching Cap'n Phil fly away in an airplane or being the real captain of the Tarpon Queen.

At 9 o'clock that night, Phil McNally, having just landed in New Orleans after a 1,000 mile airplane flight from Whitewater Bay, sat in the office of Dan Nesbitt, special agent in charge of the FBI, and listened with Special Agents George Prentiss and Jerry Holm while their tall, suave, steel-eyed chief reviewed the present status of their hunt for Raoul Slack, notorious killer, and the stolen jewels he carried to an illegitimate market.

“We haven't located Slack or the jewels,” Nesbitt said, “but we know he's here and we've left only one outlet for him. Today I got warrants of search and arrest from the United States commissioner. Then we went to two of our three biggest fences. They were clean. A thoro search of their premises turned up nothing. That leaves only Paul Klenner. Ostensibly, Klenner is a tavern keeper. Really he is the master mind of New Orleans' underworld. He owns or controls night clubs and gambling joints. He finances criminal jobs and he buys stolen goods when they're expensive enough. We're calling on him now at his bar and grill. Let's go.”

Klenner's bartender greeted them impassively while his foot, pressing on a buzzzer which sounded in the rear office, brought Klenner leaping to a peephole. He identified two of his three visitors as federal men and thru the rear window he saw a third on guard. He sat down at his desk.

“What'll it be?” the bartender suavely asked.

“We want to talk to Paul Klenner,” Dan informed him and moved his coat so that the bartender got a glimpse of metal.

The bartender stared at Dan and opened his mouth to say, “He ain't here,” but two short buzzes sounded under his feet and he nodded his head toward the office.

“He's in there,” he said.

The federal men walked back and knocked at the door. At Klenner's growled, “Come in,” they opened the door and stepped into the room. Klenner was lounging at his desk. “What is it?” he asked without looking up and then looked and appeared surprised. “Why, hello, Nesbitt,” he welcomed. “What can I do for you?”

“We want the jewels stolen in a stickup of the Hendricky jewelry store in Miami,” Nesbitt informed him. “They were turned over to you by a man named Slack. We want him, too, for transporting stolen property over a state line. But in the meantime, we'll take the jewels.”

Klenner's little eyes leaped from Nesbitt to Phil to Holm as a surprised smile split his countenance. He shifted his short body and raised his hands.

“But why come to me?” he inquired reasonably. “I don't know anything about any Miami stickup. I don't know anybody named Slack.”

“That'll be fine for you,” Nesbitt smiled briefly, “if you have the jewelry and can prove what you said about the robbery and Slack, you only lose the money you paid him.” He glanced at the safe. “Open it up,” he ordered and threw his warrant on the desk.

What Has Gone Before

Phil McNally, waiting to be called to service as a federal agent, is making his living on Florida's southwest coast, taking fishermen out in his boat, the Tarpon Queen. When Hallie Kent, daughter of Gordon Kent, diamond merchant, appears on the dock one afternoon and insists Phil take her out to her father's yacht, the Sybilla, Phil takes her, even tho it means returning at night, as Welton Bayne, associate of Kent's, has chartered his boat for the next morning. En route they hear a broadcast of news about a Miami jewel robbery in which a well dressed girl acted as finger moll. Bayne arrives the next morning with two men, Altine and Slack. His companions go off in the skiff to fish in the waterways while Bayne has Phil take him to the Sybilla. When Altine and Slack fail to return Bayne sends Phil to look for them, accompanied by Hallie. In the meantime Bayne quarrels with Kent and Dr. Iwald, an ex-narcotic doctor and a diamond expert. For some time Bayne has been selling Kent stolen diamonds and is now trying to force him to pay more. Kent, a drunkard, is trying to quit the racket for Hallie's sake. They open Bayne's package and find that Altine and Slack have double-crossed Bayne and have taken the diamonds. They go in search of the double-crossers and find the skiff just after Phil and Hallie have spotted it. Altine has been stabbed to death, and Slack and the diamonds have disappeared. Bayne takes the body back to the Sybilla while Phil goes to Miami to report the murder. On the Tarpon Queen Phil finds a huge diamond which he asks John Justin, a retired federal agent, to trace for him and if possible let him help solve the case for the FBI. He is sworn in as a deputy and returns to the Everglades where Slack has disappeared. Slack has really fled to New Orleans, where he sells the diamonds to Klenner. He has hired Charlie Beale, an aviator with a shady reputation, to fly him there. Klenner has one of his men, Luigi, trail Slack and orders Ruby, a night club entertainer, to steal the money back from him. Kent again insists on breaking off his dealings with Bayne, but Bayne tells him he cannot, as Hallie was the finger moll in the robbery. Justin traces the stolen diamond and radios a code message to Phil. Hallie confesses to Phil that Bayne tricked her into being the finger moll.

Phil, watching Klenner, doubted that his safe would yield the stolen jewels. No fence, he thought, would be so stupid as to keep such damaging evidence where it could be so easily found. He quit thinking then because Klenner swung himself to his short height and moved over to the safe.

“I don't know anything about any jewelry robbery,” he repeated, “and I don't know anybody named Slack. But I picked up some diamonds today. It could be they might be the ice you're looking for.”

Nesbitt didn't say anything. He stood beside Klenner as the man swung back the door and reached into the safe. His hand came out with the square box.

“These are what I picked up,” he explained. “I don't know whether they're what you say you want.” He walked past Nesbitt and put the box on the desk and opened it. He turned the box upside down and the diamonds rolled out.

Nesbitt took the list from his pocket and spread it out on the desk.

“We'll look it over together,” he suggested. “Five carat baguette. Small uncut one carat——”

“I guess they're the ones,” Klenner agreed and fear slashed across his face. “But honest to God, I didn't know anything about any robbery. You know how this business is.”

“I'll give you a receipt for them,” Nesbitt said and wrote one out on the desk. Then he counted the jewels, checking them with the list. “Two gone,” he announced. “Better throw them in.”

Fence Denies Knowledge of Slack's Whereabouts

“Honest to God,” Klenner swore, “everything I bought is there.”

“All right,” Nesbitt decided. “I have to take you in on suspicion, Klenner. Merely a formality,” his grin stayed in his eyes. “Now where's Slack?”

“I don't know. Honest to——”

“All right,” Nesbitt told him. “Take him along, Jerry. Suspicion of buying stolen goods in excess of $5,000. I'm not interested in anything else, Klenner. The stolen property act doesn't give us much leeway. Even if you're holding out, we can't touch you. We can only arrest Slack because he transported the jewels.”

Klenner put on his hat. Jerry Holm walked out the door ahead of him and then took his place beside him. As they passed the bartender, Phil heard Klenner say:

“Get Tobias. Tell him I'm in on a federal rap. I want him to spring me. On bail, if he can. On a writ if they won't set bail. Close up at the regular time. I'll be back in the morning.”

Nesbitt and Phil went out the back door of Klenner's office to Agent George Prentiss on guard in the alley.

“All right, George,” Nesbitt smiled. “You and Mr. McNally know each other. McNally knows Slack. You know the town. I'm telephoning Craven in Miami that we found the jewels. I'll expect you two to bring Slack in.”

Phil and George Prentiss went and sat in the front seat of the latter's car which was parked near the alley behind Klenner's place. Prentiss was a serious, heavy-set man with gray eyes and a strong jaw. He was in his early thirties.

“In our line, McNally,” he explained, “we try to put ourselves inside the skulls of the criminals we're hunting. The better we are at it the more success we have. You know Slack pretty well, or at least know of him. What do you think he'll do?”

“Well,” Phil said slowly, “he'll have a lot of money and he'll shoot it on drink or women or both. But I'd say the best way to pick him up would be to go where he's staying with one of two classes of people—fishing guides, among whom he now makes his living, or ex-rum runners with whom he worked during prohibition. And I pick the ex-rum runners because fishing guides are steady, dependable, and colorless. Ex-rum runners are colorful. They like a splash.”

“That's good logic,” Prentiss grinned. “I string along with you. Let's see. There are four ex-rum runners running hotels here within a radius of four blocks of each other. The Orlins, run by George Chedar, is the nearest. We'll try it first. If we draw a blank, we'll go to Nick Spatillo's Navarre because Nick is the most colorful character of them all.” He started his car.

They drew a blank at the Orlins, and they then repaired immediately to the Navarre. They crossed the narrow little lobby and walked to the desk, one-half of which was hidden from the public by a frosted window. Behind it was the switchboard and a desk and a keyboard on which hung the room keys. Here was conducted the real business of the hotel. Nick Spatilla was presiding at that section of the desk which contacted the public. He watched their approach with veiled eyes.

“We're looking for Raoul Slack, Nick,” Prentiss said pleasantly. “He's with Charlie Beale, the flyer. I heard they were stopping here.”

Nick's nose twitched, as it always did when he smelled the law.

“No,” he said regretfully, “they ain't here. I wish they was. I knew both them boys. But I have not seen Charlie for six months. I haven't seen Slack for two—no, three years. They in N'Orlins? Last I heard of Slack, he was in Miami.”

Prentiss knew a brush-off when he got one. He hadn't missed the twitch of Nick's nose and he knew any direct action was out of the question.

Christmas Is Rich Experience for the Youngster

Give Child a Sense of the Noel Spirit

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

It often is in the cool afterthought of events that we get a true perspective. Many of us lose our sense of proportion when we are "in the midst."

But quite as often, I believe, it is when we are in the very thick of things, and are getting the full impact of happenings or atmosphere that, if we would stop only a moment, we'd be able to see most truly. I know, from personal experience and also as an observer, that this is so about Christmas. The leisure of an August day on the beach or a walk in a cool spring rain would not be nearly as vivid a time to evaluate your family's observance of Christmas as today, for instance, this very Sunday.

• • •

So stop, look, and listen, at this 11th hour before the great day. Do so especially if today finds you not a little weary and overwhelmed, with a week or more behind you of fatigue and hectic business, and probably irritability with the children, your husband, too, as a result. Far too many of us lose too much of Christmas in the weeks preceding it, for Christmas spirit isn't an emotion or an atmosphere which should exist only for the short hours of one day.

What kind of an experience have you been making of this lovely time for your family? How have you been pointing up Christmas for them?

Here for the taking is one of the richest experiences imaginable for children, an experience that is a blend [like the blend that life is], of spiritual and material things, of the response of mind and senses, of beauty and jollity and gayety and make-believe; of fragrant balsam smells, of festive decorations, of tender or jovial music, of practical busyness and good food, of giving and receiving, of loving and being loved, in effect, of being more aware in living than at any other time of the year.

• • •

Are you making Christmas all this for your children, or have your preparations for it, and your feeling about them, smothered the full Christmas spirit? It is a pity when this is so, when to children Christmas means only "What am I going to get?" when they have no delicious secrets and no fearful thrills of being nearly caught wrapping a surprise gift, when carols don't resound in the house, when Santa Claus plays the lead in the beautiful drama that is Christmas and the Christ Child has a minor rôle, when gifts are merely handed out. A child is cheated to whom Christmas is nothing more than that.

For Christmas, and by that I mean the whole season, holds not only all these enjoyable adventures for little children and big. It is, underneath, a wonderful opportunity for human experience of which every seeing parent should make the most.

• • •

Does that sound as if I wanted you to use as warm and spontaneous a festival as Christmas as a moral gymnasium? Perish the thought! But in the very full observance of it your children cannot help gaining in character and spirit.

Suppose your son or daughter, big and little, too, saves for weeks to buy gifts or the materials for making them. There you have willing self-denial and self-control.

Suppose your children create the presents they give. There is work which means one's self being given, and industry and perseverance to complete each job. Children receive so much from us, in the very nature of their relationship to us, that it's fine for them to have the experience of giving, the selfless pleasure in another person's delight. And children, if you don't happen to know it, are wonderful givers.

There's hospitality, too, which they see extended and come to recognize as part of living.

And, of course, there are all kinds of sharing: The sharing of the Christmas feast, the sharing of secrets, of loving conspiracy, and of work together.

Yes, Christmas is infinitely more than shopping and present-giving, than tiredness and confusion, than thinking of who should get what without any heart in it, than spending more than you can afford. Christmas is even more than bestowing upon your children out of the fullness of your heart every material thing you think they might desire. Christmas is a beautiful time and provides an opportunity for a rich, human, emotional, spiritual experience.

How may a child be taught obedience? Should children be permitted freedom of the house? You will find the answers to these and other problems in "You and Your Young Child." Whole Wheat Flour.

Only 3 per cent of all the flour sold in this country is whole wheat flour, yet it contains three times as much phosphorus, four times as much iron, and eight times as much vitamin B as does white flour. Both have the same number of calories.

Lady of the House

The Time of Light.

Filled with light and color are the weeks from the first Sunday in Advent—when, in olden days, the Christmas wreath was hung and the first of the four candles on it [for the four Sundays in Advent] was lighted—to the night when the tree shines for the last time. Another Sunday, and another candle burned on the wreath until there were four; and on the Holy Night the shimmering tree shone forth that today still reminds us of the age old customs of Christmastide.

Even in ancient times evergreen trees were used at the feast that marked the turning of the sun, but we are told that not until about 1600 were they hung with ornaments, and not until more than a century later were they lighted with candles. In some old country communities not even the dead were left in darkness; little lighted trees being placed on the graves.

• • •

In old Europe the month long celebration began on the eve of St. Nicholas day [Dec. 6], when little children prayed for his favor, placed their shoes on the window sills— with perhaps a bit of hay or straw for the good Saint's steed—and in the morning eagerly looked for the apples, nuts or sweets they hoped to find.

In some old towns the children themselves played the part—dressed in the red and white of Santa Claus, Sankt Nikolas, Father Christmas, Bonhomme Noel, Knecht Ruprecht, or Knecht Clobes — going about the streets and shops singing carols or reciting verses for which they exacted little gifts, much like the recent "trick or treat" of our own Halloween.

• • •

As in the summer the longest day, marking the turning away of the sun, was celebrated; so the returning sun was greeted with light and merriment to show that day by day there would be more light in the darkness. Not only was there feasting and joyousness, but gifts were offered to the gods—later to family and friends. Even the animals were not forgotten. Cattle were given extra food and their stables made snug and warm. Sheaves of grain were put out for fowl and birds.

The ancient custom of the yule fire also has survived, and here and there the yule log is still burned with due ceremony, not being allowed to be consumed but only to glow warmly and brightly so that a brand from it may light the new fire in a new year.

• • •

In the "star singing" the inhabitants of the town accompany the bearer of the turning star, lighted from within and mounted on a tall staff, singing the old hymns that date back centuries.

Much of the Christmas pageantry centered around cribs, like the elaborate hand carved ones of Bavaria and the Tyrol with their great numbers of figures, exhibited and sold at the annual crib fair in Munich. There is the historic crib of Oberammergau, the wooden figures faithfully copying the costumes of the Passion Play. And the famous 16th century Krippenuhr which stands in Dresden; this ancient clock picturing the Christmas story with figures that move thru it to the accompaniment of music.

So in many forms in many lands old customs are preserved. As the ancient gods journeyed thru the night, so the Wise Men of the east took the way pointed by the star, and light—more light—shall ever conquer the darkest night.

Birthday Cake.

A woman came into the baker's shop and ordered a "birthday cake for Jesus," explaining to the startled proprietor that she had been telling the Christmas story to her children and they had insisted that if Christmas was Jesus' birthday He should have a birthday cake. It must be an angel cake and covered with white frosting.

To the Candle in Your Window.

Christmas candle burning bright,
Send your beams into the night
On Christmas Eve.
Let your steady, luminous glow
Pierce the darkness here below
On Christmas Eve.
Little light, you seem to say
To the Christ child on His way
On Christmas Eve:
Welcome to you, come in; for
This house opens wide its door
On Christmas Eve.

Elizabeth Bush.

Perplexed.

[For the Children's Album].

My goodness! It is almost Christmas!
And now whatever shall I do?
I must get something for my Daddy—
And my dearest Mother, too.
Do you think they would care this Christmas
If I should give them just a KISS?
I haven't saved a single penny!
Now what would YOU do about this?

June Baker.

I wish I might send personal greetings to you all in words to help most with your own particular problems, but at this wartime Christmas I can only join my prayers with those of millions and millions of other mothers the world over and repeat what was said at another wartime Christmas many of us remember only too well: "Let us put aside all pettiness and selfishness, all the 'little things' that narrow our vision. Let us look up toward the coming peace with open hearts and minds and a real brotherliness." —M. M.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

Mrs. Milton J. Krensky. [Toloff Photo.]

As pretty as anything in the Christmas windows was Mrs. William K. Meyer as she stood in State street one evening recently with her husband, looking at the decorations. She wore a black fur coat, buttoned up close around her neck, and her delicate piquant face was framed by a tiny black hat ornamented with a cluster of pink roses. . . . To be gowned so that you are striking enough to attract attention when you stand on a platform in a huge room, and still not be overdressed, is an achievement for which every woman who presides at large meetings should work. Mrs. Milton J. Krensky was a perfect example of a chairman or president who achieved this success at the recent Chanukah breakfast of the Chicago women's division of the American Jewish congress. Tall and slender, with chestnut hair, she stood on the platform in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House looking as smart as the proverbial fashion plate in a black frock with a yoke and belt of sky blue the same shade as her becoming and chic hat. Several dewy white camellias were on one shoulder. . . . Miss Kay Kelly has a winter outfit for daytime in which she looked very much like the Christmas packages she was buying when we saw her the other day. Her frock was a bright bottle green, a sort of peasant style, with a full skirt embroidered in red and white flowers. Her hat was a squashy, turbanesque sort of beret of tomato red, matching the flowers, and trimming it were narrow bands of soft brown fur. Her short jacket was of the same soft fur. Weasel, perhaps. We learned just the other day, via a quiz program on the radio, that kolinsky is weasel and we have been dying to display our knowledge!

• • •

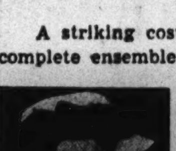
Miss Kelly's pretty young mother, Mrs. George A. Kelly, wears a most adorable evening wrap. It is a cape and hood of curly lamb, lined and edged with bright red wool. It makes a stunning evening wrap and it would be equally smart over a skiing outfit at Sun Valley, where the Kelly family goes several times each year. . . . Mrs. Donald S. Eddy has a becoming evening gown of cerise slipper satin, a shade as gay and glowing as neon tubing. The dress is perfectly plain, with a flaring skirt and V neckline, to which she pins a jeweled clip. To match the long, black, suede gloves which complement it, young Mrs. Eddy pins a flat black velvet bow across the back of her blonde hair. . . . Another attractive gown for gala nights is one from Mrs. James G. Shakman's wardrobe. It's of a plaid taffeta in subtle shades of silver, amethyst, and spring green. The necklace that goes with it is of large amethyst stones set in wrought gold.

• • •

Mrs. George T. Buckingham. [Tribune Photo.]

Mrs. Freeman Hinckley's brown hair almost matches the smart mink brown shade which she likes to wear. Recently Mrs. Hinckley wore a brown crêpe gown with her mink coat and pinned a large red camellia to her collar as accent. Another stunning mink is that which belongs to Mrs. George T. Buckingham. Mrs. Buckingham sometimes wears with her coat a pale blue felt disc, laden with bright felt flowers. . . . Very often, these days, the most striking part of a woman's costume is what she wears underfoot. Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, who is tall and slender, often wears a pair of low heeled, black suede sandals which are scarcely more than a series of narrow straps. Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw is another who likes to wear low heels occasionally. At a recent recital by Daniel Ericourt, Mrs. Shaw was wearing low heeled black suede pumps, their soles and square bows outlined by gold nail heads. . . . Miss Adrienne Ely and Mrs. Albert F. Winston who were among those at the same recital, also were smartly gowned. Miss Ely wore a soft blue wool dress with only a wide, jewel-studded belt as trimming. Mrs. Winston combined black with brown, a pert black felt cloche and black pumps with her sheared beaver coat. . . . Serious thoughts are exchanged over the luncheon tables each time the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations meets in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House, so it's not surprising that the smart Chicagoans who go there should leave their frills and furbelows at home. Black is an outstanding favorite in every Council audience, and altho the costumes are chic they are, for the most part, subdued and reserved, relieved by an occasional splash of color. Such bright spots were the double chrysanthemum of rust and amber velvet which bloomed atop Mrs. A. Watson Armour's black felt hat at a recent meeting, and the fresh red rose which Mrs. Walter R. Kirk tucked into her black pompadour toque. Both women were dressed in black.

• • •



Mrs. Edison Dick. [Tribune Photo.]

A striking costume at the council meeting was Mrs. Edison Dick's, a complete ensemble of mulberry wool. Her dress of soft looking mulberry wool had three-quarter length sleeves and a belt of metallic chains, and the coat which went over it combined mulberry plaid with the monotone material. Her little hat of the same shade was brimmed like a jockey's cap, and two gray feather balls, tipped in mulberry, bobbed above the visor. . . . At the same table was Mrs. Donald McPherson, in a handsome mink coat. When the speaker was introduced she took off her peaked felt hat trimmed in chartreuse feathers, in deference to those behind her. The giant-headed pin which had anchored it she left tucked into her crisp gray hair. . . . Mrs. Walter S. Brewster's broad brimmed hat of French blue felt recalled the Buster Brown days of one's childhood. With it she wore a black wool suit faintly ruled in blue. Her white satin blouse had a plaited jabot and frilly cuffs like an 18th century dandy's. Another devotee of the ever practical black wool suit, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson wore hers with a soft pink blouse and brace of silver foxes. . . . A ruby velvet scarf relieved Mrs. John Alden Carpenter's black wool dress. Her off-the-face hat, its brim turned up on one side, bore a velvet bow of the same glowing shade. Bows of ashes of roses faille were gathered at the front of Mrs. Alice H. Patterson's visor brimmed hat. Fastening the neckline of her black crêpe dress were two gold shells paved with jeweled stones. Mrs. John Paul Welling's becoming, small hat was frilled in black Spanish lace.

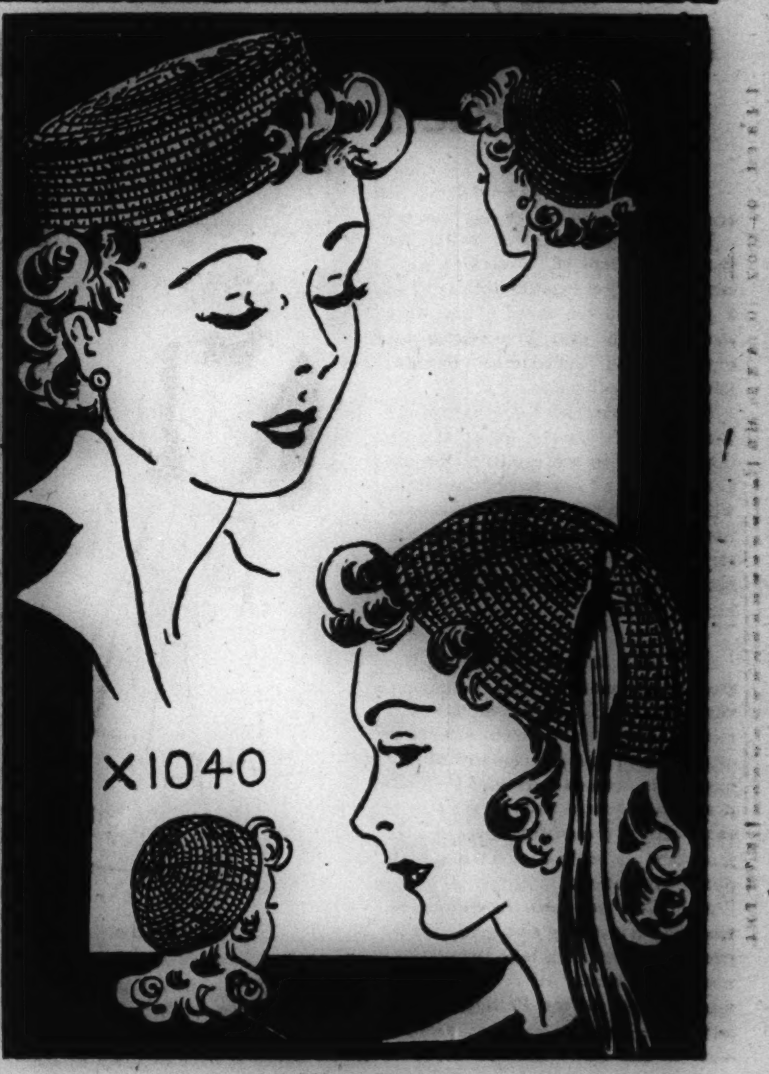
Pillbox and Beanie Hats



By Ellen Bruce.

The young and definitely flattering pillbox and crocheted beanie are two universal favorites in the hat field. These off the face caps are designed for comfort as well as beauty. They are easy to crochet and are inexpensive. Monotones and multicolored woolens lend themselves to these clever bits of headgear.

For instructions in crocheting the pillbox and beanie, No. X-1040, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Proper care of our procelain enameled plumbing fixtures, of chromium and nickel and stainless steel surfaces around a home are of vital importance if beauty is to be preserved. As an aid to the home mistress we have a free leaflet prepared on ways to retain the original loveliness of these fixtures and surfacings. We also have the name of an especially prepared cement for the cure of enamel surfaces with slight chips on them.

A chemical cleaner or soapless soap is on the market which home owners and apartment dwellers might well know more about. It is economical and at the same time has literally hundreds of uses around a house for cleaning and brightening purposes.

When a varnished floor begins to show worn spots at heavy traffic spots there are ways of doing a neat patching job so it will not show. A help around the holiday season, and afterward.

Composition boards that cut down noise have been with us for some time but it is only recently that public interest in them is mounting. A kitchen can be made less noisy by a perforated tilelike material that can be applied on a ceiling. This material can be cleaned or even repainted without impairing its noise reducing value.

If you are planning to buy a new refrigerator this Christmas season, but have need of the old one in some basement recreation corner there are ways of repainting it if the surface has become worn or scratched. In this way its looks can be definitely improved.

Unity.

When two people meet, or have dealings with each other, including family, marriage, business, and government, their two individual worlds overlap in part, but they do not entirely duplicate each other. Cooking Editor Reports What the American Army Eats

Laboratory Is Used to Test Food Products

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The American army is better fed than 60 per cent of the civilian population, nutrition experts declare. And I, for one, am convinced of that fact, more so now that I've visited the quartermaster subsistence research laboratory in Chicago.

The research "lab" is a part of the Chicago quartermaster depot, and it's the only one in the country. Rations and cans and packages, anything which plays a part in the army's food, have to pass rigid tests in this laboratory before they may be used in the menus for the more than a million men in training.

• • •

In this laboratory, exhaustive studies are made of the nutritional value of the foods which are submitted. Research chemists determine vitamin and calorie content of the food in its natural state, and then put it thru all sorts of tests to see how it rates after processing, cooking, or just standing around for a while without refrigeration.

And there are tests on containers, too. The laboratory has been testing packages which may take the place of metals, especially tin. Dried eggs were shipped to the Philippines and left there 10 months, then brought back to the quartermaster depot so that officers and research workers could see how efficient the packaging was in keeping the eggs in good condition. Shipments of flour were made to Panama, and other foods were sent to Iceland and Alaska to test packaging under cold weather conditions.

• • •

Dehydrated vegetables, fruits, eggs, and other concentrated foods come in for a good deal of experimental work, for, because of their comparatively small bulk, they are easier to transport than are fresh foods. And, what is more important, they keep longer.

Fresh fruits and vegetables and fresh meats and milk are the rule in army menus whenever and wherever they are obtained. Canned, packaged, and concentrated foods which need no refrigeration are necessary when soldiers are being fed from field kitchens while on maneuvers.

• • •

There are four types of field rations. Type A consists largely of fresh food supplies, and is as much like the garrison ration as possible. Type B consists largely of canned foods easily packed and carried. Type C is a canned ration for the individual soldier for one day, consisting of three cans of meat and vegetables for the three meals of the day, plus three cans containing bread, sugar, soluble coffee, and a concentrated chocolate. Type D is an emergency "last straw" ration, and consists of a great deal of food and fuel value packed into three 4 ounce chocolate bars, to be carried by the soldier.

Then there's a special "parachute" ration which weighs only 32.86 ounces, yet contains 3,726 calories [soldiers get from 1,500 to 3,000 more calories than the average well fed civilian]. This ration consists of concentrated foods including pemmican biscuit, bouillon, canned luncheon meat, soluble coffee, modified malted milk, lemon powder [which makes lemonade with water], and gum. The gum is to keep the saliva flowing and the throat moist.

• • •

I sampled many of these concentrated foods on my visit to the quartermaster depot. Some of them taste pretty good, some of them don't! But you may be sure that they contain the maximum in food value. There's a lot of energy value in one of those little reënforced and vitamin enriched cakes of chocolate.

I was particularly interested in some of the dehydrated fruits and vegetables which the research laboratory is testing. There was a large can of dehydrated cabbage which retained its color beautifully, and which even had a fresh cabbage odor! There were good little apple "nuggets," which tasted like candy. Potato shreds are highly regarded in this laboratory, because when cooked they taste like fresh mashed potatoes, and being light in weight and concentrated in form, they are readily transportable. They are sent in large amounts to Panama and the tropics, where the Irish potato is not grown, and where soldiers readily tire of sweet "spuds."

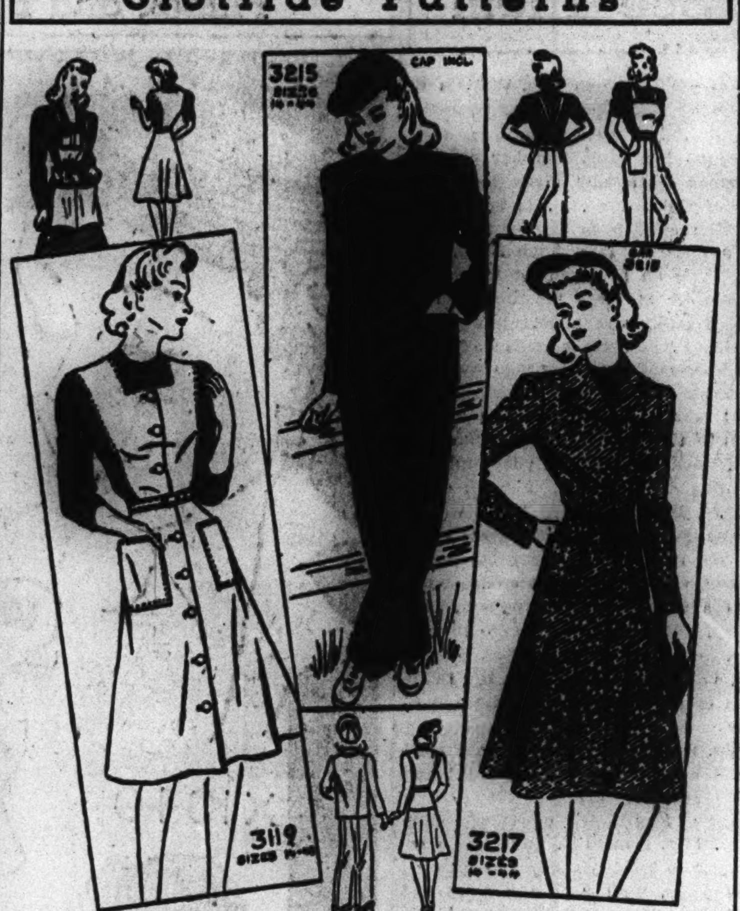
Clotilde Patterns



By Clotilde.

In the present crisis American women will be working harder than they ever have worked before, and their tasks won't always be dainty ones. Since it isn't sensible or even appropriate to wear finery for such labor, some new "uniforms" are in order, and today's patterns make a variety of serviceable work clothes for women who are putting their best effort into the nation's defense.

No. 3119 creates two types of aprons. The coverall type is not entirely lacking in glamor, for it has handsome jumper frock lines in spite of its obvious practicality. It's furnished with two huge pockets and buttons handily down the front. The work apron [sketched above] has multiple pockets for tools.

No. 3215 creates a smart looking overall outfit, complete with jacket and visor cap. There are four pockets in the jacket and two in the overall trousers.

No. 3217 is a sensible jacket ensemble for your more genteel doings, such as Red Cross and club meetings called for bandage rolling, benefit planning, etc. The lines of this outfit are traditionally good and suit all figure types.

Style No. 3119 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material for coverall apron; ⅞ yard for work apron.

Style No. 3215 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 5¼ yards of 39 inch material for overalls, jacket and cap. Cap is included in pattern and may be worn with the suit, No. 3217.

Style No. 3217 is designed for sizes 14 and 16 and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 54 inch materials for jacket and skirt.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

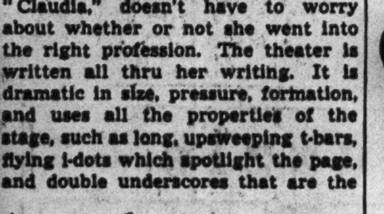
Your Handwriting

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER.

Marguerite Namara of the cast of "Claudia," doesn't have to worry about whether or not she went into the right profession. The theater is written all thru her writing. It is dramatic in size, pressure, formation, and uses all the properties of the stage, such as long, upsweeping t-bars, flying i-dots which spotlight the page, and double underscores that are the theaterwise emphasis on important words, and then a signature in Neon lights.



Yes, there isn't any doubt about your vocation, Miss Namara. The only place for that emotional setup is in the theater. In everyday life that much emotion would get in the way and there would be no proper outlet for the vivid imagination your writing reveals.

The fact that Miss Namara writes a backhand is another reason why a dramatic medium is best for her. Backhand writers have difficulty in expressing their emotions thru the normal channels. They pen up their feelings and then they have to have a chance to exaggerate them thru a creative medium.

For your own Handwriting Analysis send 10 cents [in coin] and a self-addressed envelope bearing a 3 cent stamp, together with a sample of handwriting, to Shirley Spencer, Box 116, General Postoffice, New York City. (IMPORTANT: Write 25 words and signature in ink.)

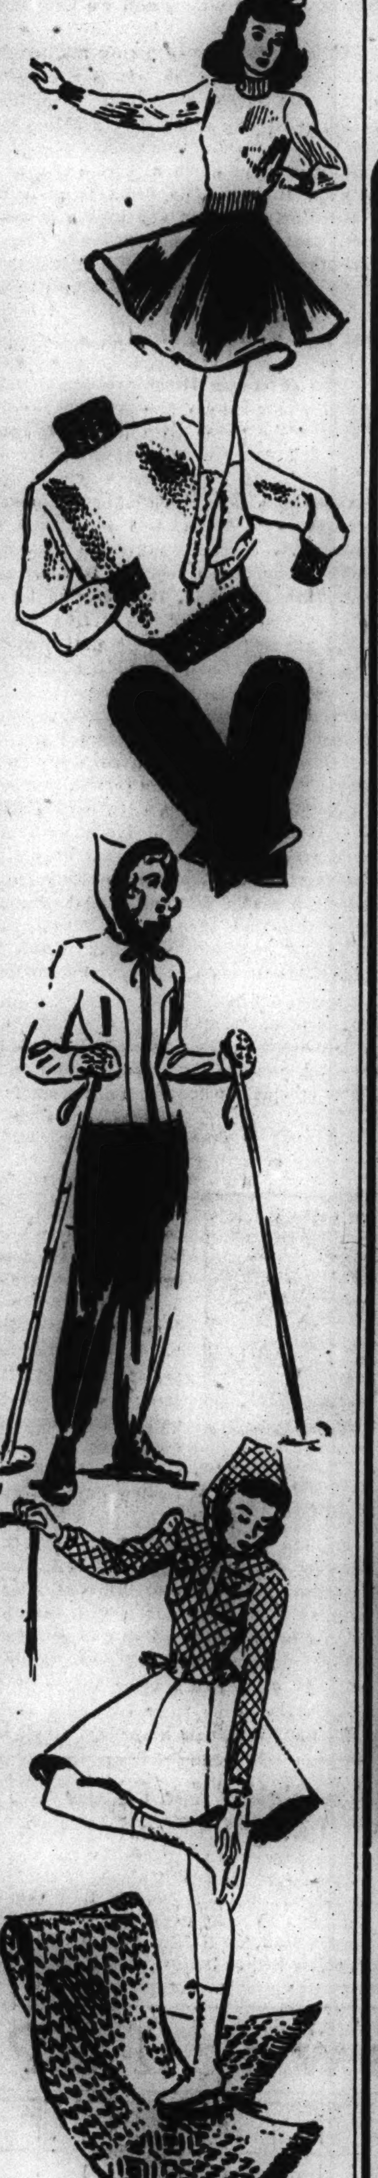
FASHIONS—

By Angela

If you're an outdoor girl you have to keep warm and comfortable, and in this latitude and longitude that means warm and comfortable clothes. You'll never learn to execute the figures if you are so cold your toes break off. And you can't ski in kid gloves and a silk dress. Altho I must say that skating skirts are designed more for comfort than for warmth, pride and a pair of long, thin, woolen tights will keep you cozy—and cute.

The aforementioned skating skirt is illustrated at the top of the sketch. It's short and with a wide circular flare to permit leaps and twirls and that one-footed technique [the other foot off on a mission of its own] with the utmost grace. The skirt is available in red, green, black, or gray, and is lined with a contrasting color of rayon taffeta. Under $4.

Wear a turtleneck sweater with it. The elasticity of a knitted sweater will take all the stress and strain you put on it. The sweater comes in red, green, or white 100 per cent wool.



The heavy leather mittens are a steal on those worn by professional hockey players, with the extra padding on the back for protection against a flaying hockey stick.

Ski-struck girls need lots of special equipment. In the way of outer wearing apparel we show you the black, brown, or red ski pants made of a heavy wool fleece and, to be worn with them, the gabardine, hooded jacket. A hidden feature of the jacket is a fleecy, lambskin vest which may be zippered in or out.

The hooded skating jacket is made of that fabulous material which is both wind resistant and water repellent, quilted for extra warmth. The one illustrated is red lined with white. Shirring at the waistline give it a neat, close fit. Under $6.

And when you need another layer of warmth around your neck, investigate the white wool scarf, soft and pliable and not the least bit bulky.

For information call Angela, Superior 0200. Mail requests should be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The last Sunday of the old year seems a fitting time to evaluate the progress made, and the assistance given, during the previous 12 months, to thank our readers for their constant and generous aid, and to ask continued coöperation during the perilous months ahead.

The fight against poverty, malnutrition, and neglect seldom is attractive or exciting. It is, to the contrary, often wearying and stifling, since it requires endless effort, and available help always seems to be insufficient to the demand. Like all difficult things, however, it offers rich rewards. The knowledge that one unfortunate family has been helped to its feet, that one lonely invalid has been made a bit more comfortable and hopeful, that a sickly child has been equipped to survive severe weather, that heat and warmth have been provided in some chilly basement home, is generous compensation.

• • •

In an effort to share the proof that our help has been needed and deeply appreciated, we quote from a very small fraction of the hundreds of "thank you" notes in our files, written by persons of all ages and creeds.

"I am writing to thank you for your kindness. Your reader's gift of a coat has added greatly to my husband's morale, as well as his appearance. He had no other means of obtaining a coat, and without it would have been unable to continue his trips to the hospital clinic, necessary as they are, since it is a long, cold walk from our home. It is impossible to thank either you or the donor enough, but I am sure you understand how we feel."

• • •

From an elderly blind woman: "Chicago surely is kind to the blind and when some one like you presents our need to the public, the response must be very cheering. Perhaps some time, and in some way, we may be able to do some kindness for those who so cheerfully responded to our call for help."

From an invalid: "No one can realize how very much pleasure the radio has given me since I received it, especially since I now am confined entirely to my small, dark room. It is a grand companion to me."

• • •

"I wish to express to you our heartfelt gratitude and deep appreciation for the gift of a wheel chair to our afflicted father. You have no idea what it means to him. He now gets up very early in order to get into his chair and move about the house, and the expression of deep satisfaction and contentment on his face is a revelation."

From a boy of 12: "I wish to thank you for giving my name to your readers, who gave me a complete uniform and some swimming trunks, too. Now I don't think there is a happier Boy Scout in all of our great America. I never will forget what you've done for me"

• • •

From a man who cares for an invalid wife and several small children: "I thank you very, very much for the washing machine. It is a life saver. I don't have to rub my hands sore now, since we have it. My wife still is sick, but the machine is surely a great help in caring for the family."

"I wish you could see my son standing in front of the mirror. He has had to wear shabby worn clothes for so long that he can't seem to see enough of himself in the nice suit one of your readers sent to him."

The majority of the letters of acknowledgment which come in seem to end with two familiar phrases: "Thank you, and God bless you," a sentiment which this writer echoes!

Infants should be allowed to creep in preparation for correct sitting and standing, as creeping develops the right muscles for this.

Writer Tells of Yuletides in Foreign Lands

By Cousin Eve.

Christmas is upon us again after a 12 month vacation. With all the barrage of Christmas cards and chic parcels given and received, its background of cocktail routs and family dinners it's the great hurly-burly of the year.

At midsummer one dreads Christmas and harbors wishes of a yogi-like sleep until all is over. But a fortnight before, when fir trees come in from the north, holly and mistletoe from the south, riot in the shop windows, Santa Clauses are calling on cold street corners, and little children babbling about their Christmas trees and stockings, one rises to the joy of it. It really is gorgeous, our holiday season, if only you will think so.

I remember some Christmases in foreign lands—a bleak one in England in a pea soup fog that blotted out everything. Another of stinging cold in Belgium with a very queer mince pie and a tough little turkey for dinner. There were others in France where Christmas is a religious festival, with fine music in the churches, nice fruit cake in the shops, and little hunched up men and women on the street corners selling roasted chestnuts from off charcoal stoves. And gay little spice cake Napoleon Bonapartes studded with almonds. The French celebrate New Year's with gifts and cards, breezing about with flowers, sweets and other "étrennes."

I spent one Christmas on shipboard, plunging thru foam capped blue seas. It was quite wonderful—no worry, no hurry, nothing to give or take; only a simple church service and the captain's dinner with roast goose and plum pudding.

The good Christmases are the home ones, the kind we specialize in in Chicago—with an avalanche of comfy things, the sense of duties done. Snow or starlight we have our Christmas events on the near north side—a company of caroling gallants. With lovely voices they sing their way up and down our gray streets and avenues, wearing colored top hats, bright mufflers and gloves, and having a reasonable thirst for hot wassail bowls wherever invited.

With the outbreak of war in the far east things here have changed in the twinkling of an eye. The women who have been qualifying all year as nursing aids and Gray Ladies suddenly snapped into their special assignments, and committees began to shape up for an enormous Red Cross drive to finance active relief, soon to start.

The last week of grand opera was especially brilliant, and the audiences were vast in spite of the war. This, however, is an extraordinary phase of war—it stimulates grand opera. Fortune Gallo says that the best year his companies ever had was after the United States had entered the World war in 1917. And the figures from London, Paris, Berlin, and Rome show that the public thirst for opera in those capitals is far greater now than in peacetimes.

Chicago has had a highly delightful opera season this autumn. It was gay, it was lavishly given with the best artists in the world, and excellent conductors. Best of all, the public liked the kind of opera that was being given, and came to the Civic Opera house in great numbers. The last opera matinée was "La Traviata." Helen Jepson sang the rôle of Violetta, and in all the many times one has heard and seen this Verdi favorite, no diva has dressed the part so artistically. Or one might say with such magnificence. And Jepson is slim, too, with a silvery voice, and you don't have to overwork your imagination when she dies of tuberculosis, as with some artists in the past who seemed to have really had elephantiasis. Jepson's first act ball gown was a ravishing white tulle, robe style sprinkled with silver sequins, a wonderful costume. Her second act gown was a ruffled white muslin garden frock polka dotted in red, and very chic. Her third act ball costume was a real knockout and the women in the box were all excited about it. It was a sweeping robe style à la Empress Eugenie of marine blue velvet with occasional large motifs of diamante and sleeves of sea green tulle. On her fair head was a tiara of multicolored feathers, pink, green, yellow, blue, and a fan of the same. The negligee in which Violetta dies was black velvet folded over white chiffon nightie. Gladys Swarthout also dressed in a charming way with definite feeling for taste and elegance and so did Bidu Sayao.

As we left the opera one of the leaders of the younger set remarked that the day had passed when famous singers could appear in costumes made by the little home dressmaker, and get away with it. Michael Bartlett sang the tenor rôle and later several young school misses flocked behind the scenes with Mrs. Frank Fuller to meet the young tenor. He was staying with the Arthur Meekers during his engagement here.

Our opera orchestra, our young "screamlined chorus" and the Littlefield ballet were other sources of joy during the short season. Well, it was lovely while it lasted, and over all too soon!

And now one hears we are to have in January another kind of opera, "Theater of the Opera," as given by Fritz Busch in England out in the country, about 40 miles from London. Mrs. Lytle Hull backed it in New York in its autumn run at the 44th Street theater, that doubtless being her pet way of losing money. Mrs. Hull is the former Mrs. Vincent Astor, and her new husband was a New York bachelor of large means and much charm. The repertory of the Opera theater is small, four plays in all, with Verdi's "Macbeth" as first favorite, "La Vie Parisienne," and Gluck's "Iphigenia in Aulis," I believe, are others. Fairly highbrow, one would say, and not for the multitude. As to Macbeth, it seems there's but one man in town who can really talk Macbeth face to face with Mr. Busch and analyze the score, and that is Giovanni Cardelli. The latter has majored in Macbeth and two months ago went to New York to study the production as given in the 44th Street theater, and the other pieces as well.

A little parrot relates that Cardelli in fact is bringing Macbeth here under high and mighty patronage early in 1942, and one hopes it is true. All theater productions are playing to crowded houses and we shall need diversion during the long winter that sets in today.

On the night before Christmas great goings-on are slated at Great Lakes Naval Training station. Mrs. John Cohane, erstwhile of New York, now of Chicago and chairman of Bundles for Bluejackets, will arrive at the naval station with members of her committee and 10,000 smartly filled Christmas socks. The city-wide drive to fill this gay tarletan hosiery for the sailor boys' Christmas has been accomplished in two weeks. The socks are red and the gadgets they hold are many and clever.

Mrs. John Crerar, chairman of the ladies' committee of sponsors for the drive, filled a dozen good looking socks, each anchored to a big box of candy. Mrs. P. A. Valentine's squad of hosiery were works of art and heavily ballasted on the outside with cigarets, playing cards, candy, and note paper "to write to mother." On the inside were sewing kits, pens, pencils, notebooks, photograph frames, games, puzzles, lucky pieces, handkerchiefs, and toilet articles tied with gay ribbons. The thousands of socks were filled by all sorts and kinds of people with warm hearts for our fighting men. Few of the socks will be as complete as Mrs. Valentine's, but all are from the heart.

The young matron who heads Bundles for Bluejackets, Mrs. John Cohane, has come with her husband and small children to live in Chicago only recently. She is a beautiful girl in her twenties, a daughter of Mrs. Robert L. Livingston of New York and a sister of another Manhattan beauty, Mrs. Teddy McVickar. Mrs. Cohane was educated in France, where her family divided their life between Pau and Paris. She made her debut as Denise Livingston some years ago in Bar Harbor where her cousin, Mrs. R. Hall McCormick of Chicago, gave a ball in her honor. In Washington the following winter Mr. and Mrs. Gist Blair had a large ball for her, to see their young relative safely launched in capital society. Mr. and Mrs. Blair were leaders among the celebrated "cave dwellers" and lived in a lovely old house in Pennsylvania avenue opposite the state department. It was a historic family, and a house where I have been latterly looking over the glass, china, and silver of the early American period, for which it was famous.

Jack Cohane is an advertising executive and as deeply interested in Bundles for Bluejackets as his wife. In the year to come Chicago will be thronging center for navy lads who are expected by the thousands—and patriotic citizens of our town will be planning ahead to give them a time they'll remember.

We have so few bachelors-at-large nowadays, that when one of them falls by the wayside, there's grief abounding. For three months Ove Vett, one of our best liked Americans of Danish birth, has been in the hospital. Altho he's been a resident of the Midway sector since World war days, the charming Ove has played on the north side of the Chicago river—and has innumerable friends there. After his recovery to health he took bachelor quarters in Oak street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster had a dinner-bridge last Saturday night in honor of Mr. Vett's return to circulation. The company was charmed with the guest of honor's uniform which was black with a short dinner jacket garnished with gold braid and gold buttons [the very same required by custom in Denmark for dinner when yachting with King Frederick VII.]. Our best bachelor said, as he patted his gold regalia, "I'm in the navy now."

The Fortnightly club had an unusually brilliant open meeting Thursday afternoon of last week, with the Hon. Hugh Wilson as honored guest speaker. The members lunched first, then listened to the address with their specially invited guests, after which there was the usual elaborate and handsomely served tea.

Hugh Wilson is an Evanston man, whose diplomatic career took him to Europe where he was minister to Switzerland, then ambassador to Germany. He was remarkably successful in Berlin, whatever he may say about that experience nowadays. The Germans liked Mr. Wilson and he was making headway toward good relations when he was summarily recalled to Washington. His recall was followed by that of Hans Dieckhoff, German ambassador at Washington.

Hugh Wilson's talk was all the more interesting, in that he used beautiful English and a charming voice. He evidently is irked by spectacles and kept taking off the wise looking specs that sat upon his nose. It's a wonderful thing, when you listen to these diplomats at large now and then; you think they've said something then later on you find you were mistaken. They really haven't said anything vital—which after all is a great diplomatic gift, one that pays dividends. Hugh Wilson has been staying with the Charles Littles in Evanston, Mrs. Little being a sister of the diplomat and one of the handsome, chic women of our north suburb.

George Chavchavadze, a princely Russian pianist who has dropped his title overboard, played a concert program at Orchestra hall Monday night. His audience was small, unluckily, because people in this sector know little about the artist who lives habitually in France, or his talents, which are much appreciated in Paris. The French rate him high as a pianist, and he plays at the Colonne and other concerts. But on the financial side Chavchavadze has nothing to worry about, as his wife, the former Elizabeth Ridgway of Pau, has enormous wealth. Her first husband was Comte de Breteuil, son of the Marquis and Marquise de Breteuil of Breteuil near Versailles. Mme. de Breteuil was a Miss Garner of Washington, heiress of one of the great cotton fortunes of the south, and indeed vast riches were needed to keep up the château of the Marquis de Breteuil, as it is in size second only to the royal Versailles.

Edward VII. of England was a great friend and frequent visitor of the Breteuils, and often entertained these French friends in England at shoots and race meets. His grandson, Edward, when he was prince of Wales and the world's prince charming, also was entertained regularly at Breteuil. So whether the distinguished Chavchavadze has a large or a small audience, matters not much to him.

Maxim Karolik, another musical Russian, used to give programs of song long after he married Miss Martha Codman of Boston, one of America's greatest heiresses. Karolik was fond of Chicago and fond of singing, so he hired Orchestra hall once annually and invited his friends.

I met Karolik last year in Washington where he had gone to sell his charming house in Decatur place to the Dwight Davises. Mrs. Davis formerly was Pauline Morton of Chicago. At that time, altho he still is a young and exceedingly active man, he detailed an elaborate plan by which a large part of Mrs. Karolik's estate will go to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. A wing will be added to house the famous collections of early day American furniture, historical objects and silver that have come down in the Codman family. The wing will be endowed and named after Maxim and Anna Codman Karolik. Thus will the name of a young Russian emigrant boy be immortalized and honored in old historic Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Karolik live all the year in Newport now, with occasional sorties to Boston.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey

Our crowd is making and wearing stocking caps to match their jerkins, and it's a grand idea, especially if you add a pair of mitts to complete the ensemble. If you're skiing or skating minded, or merely addicted to long walks in the snowy woods, you'll like this outfit for the beauty and comfort it offers.

And it's ridiculously simple to make. Given some flannel and woolen yarn, even the rankest amateur with a needle can "go to town" and whip up this winter trio in nothing flat. I used bright red flannel, but sparkling green or some other color is just as good and just as brightening to the winter landscape. Tie the jerkin snugly at the waist and the mittens securely at the wrists with cords of braided wool yarn finished with tassels to match the one on the hat, and you're all set to be the brightest and warmest girl in town or on the campus.

Style No. T-8750 is designed for sizes 12, 16, and 20. Size 16 requires ⅝ yard of 54 inch plain material, ¾ yard of plaid. [Yardage includes jerkin, cap, and gloves.]

Give American Tableware for Christmas

What do you know about china? The booklet, "Learn About China Before You Buy," by Claire Winslow, Tribune stylist in interior decoration, gives brief histories of the most important potters and their works. On sale at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Claire Winslow.

Gifts that are practical as well as lovely are always appreciated at Christmas, but they will be more than welcome, of course, this year.

Presents of tableware, made in this country, are in this class. In Ohio, the Blue Ridge mountain district, and California are kilns producing as fine and beautifully styled earthenware as any in the world. Because of high firing and expert glazing it will stand up under hard use as well as many types of china. And it is so inexpensive.

One of the most beautiful new products from a famous California kiln is selling just under $12 for a 20 piece set. Colors are a charming, soft, light rose; a clear, light turquoise; a pearl gray, and a creamy white. In the case of the gray, rose, and turquoise sets the cups are lined in white and the lids and handles of the tea pots and coffee pots are white.

• • •

The plates come in three sizes, are not round but square, with rounded corners, a most interesting shape. The smallest size doubles as a bread and butter plate or a saucer for a tea or coffee cup. The cups, too, are square rather than round and are very gracefully proportioned.

The cereal dishes which also are berry bowls are some of the prettiest items in this artistic set. You can combine white bowls with turquoise saucers and plates, or with rose ones, if you wish. There also are huge platters which have many uses.

The picture today shows another line of pastel colored earthenware which also comes from California. It, too, is very inexpensive and it has a high glaze.

Still another set, extremely modern in design, the creation of Russel Wright, is absolutely plain, depending on its lovely colors and shapes for its beauty. It is made in Ohio, and the colors offered are light gray, curry [a chartreuse tone], bean brown, and white.

• • •

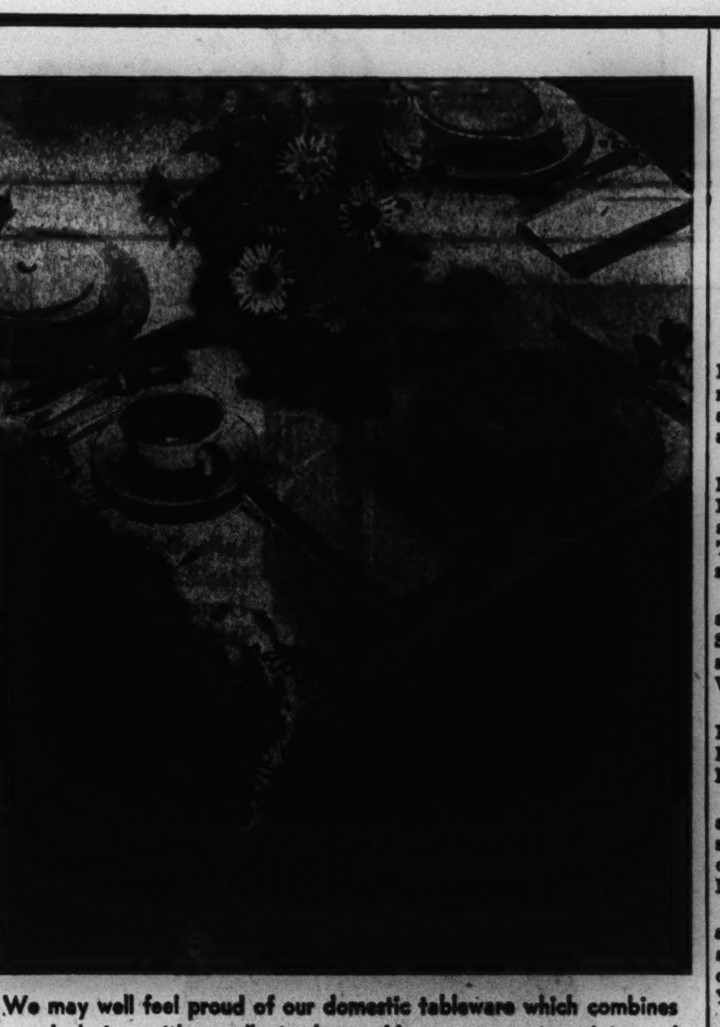
The cups are low, shallow, and wide. The plates do not have the conventional rim, but simply curve up slightly at the edge. Tea pot, creamer, and sugar are most unusual in shape, giving a streamlined effect. Again plates come in three sizes.

From the Blue Ridge district come gayly flowered, chintzlike breakfast and luncheon sets, the design being in bright clear reds, blues, and yellows on white. There are several of these sets from which to choose and the low prices make them available to very small budgets indeed.

A more costly gift is a set of plates, each of which has a different scene from an old Currier & Ives print carried out in charming soft tones. And from the famous Wedgwood factory come handsome plates decorated with London scenes [the Tower, Whitehall, Westminster Abbey, etc.] in sepia. Fluted rims add formality to these beautiful plates, each of which bears a history of the scene on the back.

Friends of Literature.

A Christmas tea and a program by Mme. Sturkow-Ryder, pianist and music commentator; Estelle Ayre Johnson, dramatic artist, and "Gordon," hypnotist, will be sponsored by the Friends of Literature at 3 o'clock today at the Moneak studios, 675 North Michigan avenue.



We may well feel proud of our domestic tableware which combines good design with excellent glazes. Here are great variety and beauty at a price.

Honey for Sweetening.

Honey or molasses may serve as part or all of the sweetening in cakes, but it is generally better to use recipes which have been developed for honey and molasses than to substitute them for sugar in other recipes.

Women's Clubs to Distribute Christmas Joy

By Betty Browning.

> "The gift without the giver is bare;
> Who gives himself with his alms feeds three— > Himself, his hungering neighbor, and Me."
> —James Russell Lowell.

To share the joys of the season with those who otherwise would find it joyless is as much a part of the American Christmas tradition as the shining tree with all the family gathered around it, the opulent Christmas turkey, and the stockings filled to bursting.

Mrs. Rebecca Parker. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Women's organizations are helping to keep bright this part of the tradition with all sorts of festivities for the less fortunate, frequently involving the members in two, three, or more Christmas celebrations.

This year the men in the armed services will be favorite choices for Yuletide guests, so much so that the would-be hostesses are likely far to exceed in number the men available.

That was the prediction of the Rev. James C. Curry, chairman of the family hospitality committee of the National Catholic Community Service, which operates a service men's recreation center at 1122 South Wabash avenue. Father Curry based his prediction on the past experience of the committee, of which Mrs. Richard F. Bergen, a leader of the Ladies of Isabella, is vice chairman.

• • •

The Daughters of Isabella, another charitable organization, are sending cigarets, cookies, and other goodies to the service men's center on South Wabash avenue, and individual members are offering Christmas hospitality to service men. Other Christmas philanthropies planned by the organization, under the direction of Mrs. Sarah Ann Peterson, national director and state regent, are a pantry shower this afternoon at the Council of Catholic Women's home, 2501 West Monroe street, a party tomorrow evening at the mission home for boys at 1140 West Jackson boulevard, and donations to the Little Sisters of the Poor and the Sisters of St. Dominic's convent.

The 132,000 members of the Order of the Eastern Star of Illinois, affiliate of the Masons, have been requested by Mrs. Rebecca Parker, their worthy grand matron, and Paul Kleiner, worthy grand patron, to invite service men to Christmas or New Year's dinner. Chicago area members may make arrangements thru Mrs. Maree G. Washburne, 631 Addison street.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Peterson.

The men who come to the recreation center sponsored by the Grant Park Recreation Committee for Service Men at 1249 South Wabash avenue will be guests of the committee and a committee of the Chicago Woman's club at a buffet supper at the center from 4 to 6 o'clock on Christmas day. Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, former president of the club, will be in charge.

Some 200 members of the American Legion auxiliary will spend tomorrow at the Hines hospital preparing to make Christmas a happier occasion for veterans of the last war. Arriving at 9 o'clock, the women will wrap gifts, personally selected for each man, and trim Christmas trees. The women serve on a committee of 650, headed by Mrs. Herbert A. Edwards of River Forest, which assists veterans at the hospital thruout the year.

At 19 other Illinois hospitals where veterans are cared for the auxiliary similarly will play Santa Claus. The Cook County auxiliary also is providing Christmas baskets for families of needy veterans and others.

Of the 44 Christmas cheer parties which the Ladies of Isabella are giving this season at institutions in and about Chicago, 15 are taking place today and four others during the week. The parties have been in preparation for weeks. Members of the organization who work the year around at these institutions, personally select the gift with each recipient in mind. Mrs. Margaret Coyle, supreme trustee, is Christmas cheer chairman.

• • •

A Christmas party for the blind and their escorts, about 1,000 in all, will be given by the Blind Service association at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. Mrs. Nathan Goldblatt and Gottfried D. Bernstein, husband of the association's president, are arranging the party, at which radio and screen stars and Santa Claus will appear. Especially selected gifts will be given to each guest.

Some 300 colored children at the west side center of the Chicago Urban league, 2024 Maypole avenue, will be guests of the Chicago Woman's Aid at a Christmas party tomorrow afternoon at St. Stephen's church, Damen avenue and Washington boulevard.

Eugene Bernstein will give a performance of magic, and there will be refreshments and a gift for each child. Presents and refreshments for 100 children also will be sent to the south side center of the Chicago Urban league. Mrs. Mark Blasker and Mrs. Ludwig Koretz are handling arrangements.

• • •

The Choral club of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters will sing carols this evening for patients at Mercy hospital, and on Tuesday evening, at the Mercy infirmary. The club also will sing carols tomorrow evening at the Morrison hotel.

Tomorrow afternoon the Salvation Army League of Mercy will give a Christmas party at the Cook county infirmary. This is the last of a series of parties given by the league at various Cook county institutions.

A school for brides, both new and prospective, is the project recently proposed for junior clubwomen by Mrs. Kenneth H. Rogers of Los Angeles, Cal., extension secretary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Yule Paintings on Display at Art Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

Merry Christmas!

With the holiday season practically on our doorsteps it is well to remember that if one has the time the Chicago Art institute is a most interesting place in which to spend several hours. Seasonable pictures, especially those painted by the masters, are plentiful in the permanent collections of the museum. One of the notable works is the "Madonna and Child," by Hans Memling. It was painted in oil, on a panel, about 1485. It was acquired by the Art institute, with the pictures which make up the Martin A. Ryerson collection, and hangs this Christmas in gallery B-5, near the front entrance of the building.

Another painting done in oil on a wood panel in the early 16th century is the "Adoration of the Magi," by Lucas van Leyden, one of the great old masters, owned by the Art institute. Design, color, and draughtsmanship combine with the subject matter to make this a very appealing picture. There are few who will not find something in it to admire. The earliest Christian painting in the museum is the "Madonna and Child Enthroned," by Meliore Toscano, who lived in the second half of the 13th century. The picture hangs in gallery 43. After the lapse of 680 years the blue in the Madonna's robe and the red in the little Jesus' dress are still bright. Time, apparently, has little effect when fine colors are in question and the works are protected from the weather.

There are 78 paintings in the Art institute galleries, all of which stem from the life of Christ. Among the larger paintings are the magnificent "Assumption of the Virgin," by El Greco; the altar piece, "Madonna and Child," by Tiepolo, and "Christ in the Storm," attributed to the School of Rembrandt.

Just two weeks remain for visitors to see the series of 37 exquisite American rooms in miniature, by Mrs. James Ward Thorne, on view in gallery 12-A of the Art institute. This exhibit should be a holiday "must." The rooms are entrancing in variety and design and detail. Because of the war, Mrs. Thorne will not be able to build more of these little rooms soon, which is another reason for enjoying the present comprehensive group. The exhibition will close Jan. 4 after a year and a month of really sensational attendance.

There is still time to get that last minute Christmas gift from the department of reproductions to the left of the main entrance of the Art institute. There are color prints ranging in price from 15 cents to $18 and framed prints from 50 cents to $32. There are Christmas cards with envelopes, of which several are very attractive. In fact, as one goes to or from the American exhibit in the east wing galleries, or from seeing the miniature rooms or the Christmas paintings, a stop at the reproduction desk is a well advised move.

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Irving S. Tarrant will speak on Monet and Degas in gallery 32 of the Art institute. Next Sunday Mr. Tarrant will discuss "Modern French Painting" in gallery 42. The talks are informative and interesting—and free. The public is cordially invited to hear them.

Free gallery talks for children continue every Saturday at 10:30 in the morning and at 2:30 in the afternoon. They are given by Addis Osborne of the Art institute staff.

In the department of art education interesting programs are constantly unfolding. Every Monday at 11 a. m. Miss Helen Parker or a member of her staff gives lectures in the galleries on the current or the permanent exhibitions. On Tuesdays at 6:30 p. m. Miss Parker lectures on "Visual Arts and Music"; the lectures are illustrated with slides. Addis Osborne conducts a layman's studio Mondays at 6:30 p. m., which beginners may enter at any time. For these various lectures a small charge is made.

The Goodman theater has a new play for children this Christmas season. It opened yesterday to a delighted audience. The play is Mrs. Chorpenning's version of the beloved "Three Bears." It is played Saturday matinées, starting at 2:30 o'clock.

Miss Cornelia Conger is showing at 700 North Michigan avenue [room 309] a most delightful group of small but charming Georgian, regency, and early Victorian pictures. Many are embroidered in silk or wool, hair or beads. There are some on glass, others in wax or of cut-paper work, and there is one beautiful pair of silhouettes. All of them Miss Conger brought from England and any or all of them make an intriguing Christmas gift.

The exhibit may be seen from 10 to 1 and 2 to 5 o'clock thru Dec. 24. Miss Conger is a member of the American Institute of Decorators. Her taste is impeccable, and if you have not got that last last-minute-gift dash for her show!

War may cause a change of plan, but up to the present moment there is every reason to believe that the Escuela Universitaria de Bellas Artes at San Miguel, Mexico, of which Stirling Dickinson of Chicago is associate director, will have its winter season starting Feb. 1 and running to April 1. The summer season is from June 15 to Sept. 15.

The school has attracted a great many Chicago professional and amateur craftsmen since its beginning in 1938. It is situated in a beautiful spot in Mexico and offers many sports and comforts, including good water, good food, pleasant rooms, and marvelous countryside, as well as a splendid teaching staff and the opportunity thru lectures and demonstrations of acquiring a thoro knowledge of painting, weaving, carving, and sister crafts. Spanish and English are taught. The school is not prohibitive in price. Mr. Dickinson may be reached at 1500 Lake Shore drive, Chicago, for fuller details.

The Chicago Society of Artists has hung its 53d annual exhibition of works by members at 410 South Michigan avenue in the galleries on the second floor, which at one time were occupied by the late Chester Johnson. It is a characteristic exhibit, not too exciting, with Alice Mason showing the most decorative painting, an arrangement of spring flowers with dashing reds and yellow; Rowena Fry, the most intriguing interior, Victorian in tone, and Ethel Spears running far ahead in popularity with a very gay and crowded Christmas card that sold out practically at once.

The 17th annual University of Illinois faculty exhibition is now installed in the Findlay galleries, 338 South Michigan avenue. The show is a formal affair, rather disappointing.

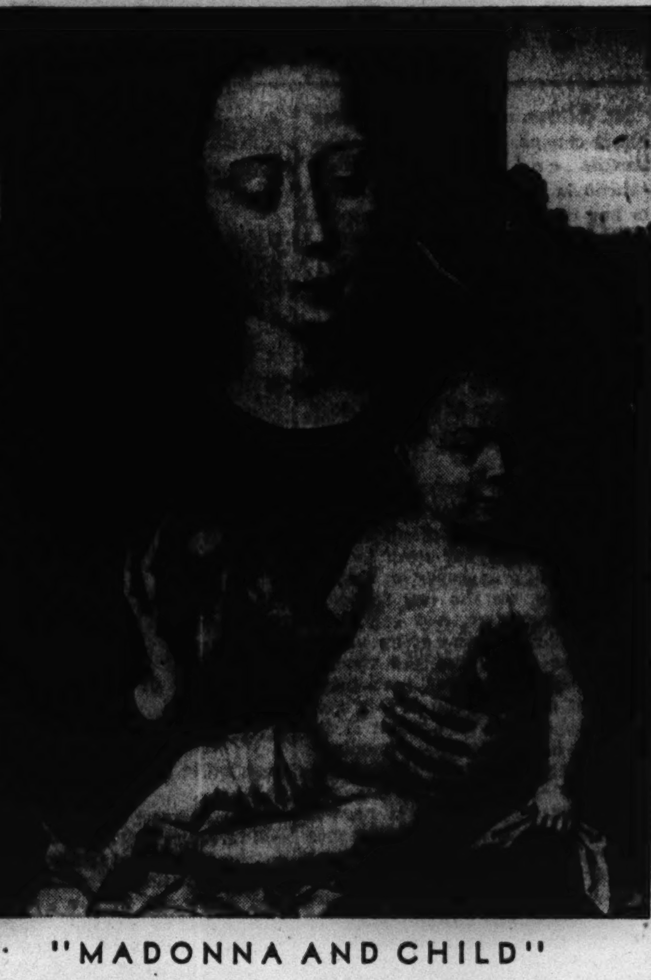
An innovation in galleries has just been opened in Evanston, called The Artists' Market. It is at 528 Dempster street, and Katherine Evans is one of the active persons behind it. It is based on the very successful Artists' Market in Detroit, which has run 10 years and proved most popular. In Evanston there is a small gallery with a little shop in front on the street. The idea is to have the artists and craft workers bring in their works and the Market display and try to sell it, taking a 20 per cent commission, which will be used for expansion later on. The place is paid for by members who pay $10 a month to paint in the big back studio. The need now is for more artists and craftsmen to bring in their work. Different and unusual things are wanted. Artists, take note!



"MADONNA AND CHILD"

From the Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson collection is this beautiful example of the painting of Hans Memling. It hangs near the entrance of the Art institute and is, for December, the museum's "Masterpiece of the Month."

MARRIED NOV. 23

Mrs. Allen Shenker, whose marriage took place on Nov. 23. She is the former Miss Lillian Goldman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Goldman of North Hoyne avenue. Mr. Shenker's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sol Shenker of West Leland avenue.

Purely Personal

Holding a Ph. D. in economics, coauthoring a book on consumer buying, and lecturing at George Williams college do not necessarily indicate a sense of humor, but Ursula Batchelder Stone—"Urse" to her friends — has one. . . . Altho she headed the Hyde Park League of Women Voters for two years and now is presiden tof the Cook county league, Mrs. Stone in her youth looked on that organization with a jaundiced eye. Her mother, a suffrage leader, was a pioneer member in Faribault, Minn., where Mrs. Stone was born and grew up, one of five children. . . . She attended a girls' school and a girls' college, Bryn Mawr, taught at girls' schools, then came to the University of Chicago for postgraduate work. Her teacher was Raleigh Webster Stone, associate professor of industrial relations. After their marriage she continued her studies, got her degree, and has done several research jobs, besides writing and lecturing. . . . The Stone family includes Mary, 10; George, 7, and Blitzkrieg, a "straight alley cat." The Stone home is one of a row of professors' houses in the 5600 block on Kenwood avenue. . . . Crocheting while rocking on the front porch, reading women's magazines and movies are favorite recreations. A rapid reader, she has given up novels for books on current problems. She detests sports, likes to write skits, and enjoys the organization work and details of her job as league president, admires league efficiency. Ash blond of hair, blue of eye, she loves to wear colors, but generally sticks to black and blue. B. B.

Mrs. Raleigh Webster Stone.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

I think it is important for the woman whose children, young or grownup, come home for Christmas dinner to look beautiful, to be well groomed and perfectly gowned on that day, more so than at any other time during the year. And looking your best is making the most of Christmas in a fine way, if you're the center of the dinner party.

This winter there has been a revival of dinner dresses and ensembles made of very heavy, opulent looking brocades, and this is the type of costume that would be perfect for the Christmas hostess. Fira Benenson, who is not only one of our greatest designers but a great dressmaker as well, has made many such clothes for her choicest clients. Mrs. Harrison Williams has such an ensemble in American Beauty red brocade.

First Yuletide Is Likened to Tucson Clime

TUCSON, ARIZ. "We generally think of Christmas in terms of snow and jingling sleigh bells. But there was no snow in the city of the first Christmas. That city was in a land much like Arizona; the pastoral occupations of its people were like the life of the cowpuncher and the sheepherder we know so well. And the Three Wise Men, alone with the intimate stars, traversed a trackless waste, the nearest American equivalent of which is the desert, stretching leagues to the west of here."

The above is taken from the Christmas sermon which will be preached this morning in the First Congregational church of Tucson. The minister of the church is a former Evanstonian, Richard A. Dawson, whose ministerial career was launched under the Evanston pastorate of Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown. There is something of Evanston in this church. Mrs. John Lackey Campbell and Mrs. George Marples occupy the same pew every winter and the new hymnals are the gift of Mrs. Frank Pomeroy.

Numerous Chicagoans in Tucson will surround their Christmas with the yuletide activities of this church.

• • •

Others are hewing out their holiday in a somewhat more robust fashion. Yesterday a party from Hacienda Los Encinos, 50 miles south of the old pueblo, returned from a two day pack trip thru the foothills adjacent to Old Baldy, whose gray head has been whitened by recent snows at the 9,000 foot level. Lashed to one of their pack horses was a Christmas tree which this week will be decorated in the living room of the ranch house. Fifty guests from neighboring ranches will be at the hacienda for a Christmas eve of caroling and camaraderie. Mrs. John Nash Ott Jr. of Winnetka and Dr. Louise Kappes of Evanston are among the holiday guests at the ranch. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomas, who are staying 30 miles away at Circle Z, are scheduled to join in the festivities.

A gala Christmas party will be held at the Santa Rita hotel, according to Nick Hall, manager, whose recent arrivals include Miss Pearl Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. William Black, August Hinote, Mr. and Mrs. Victor R. Downs, Miss Beulah Kelly, Miss Mina Raquet, and Mrs. Peggy Honefenger of Berwyn. Many of the Santa Rita's guests as well as those at the Pioneer are coöperating with Tucson's Big Brother organization, which will distribute food baskets to the needy early this week and will hold a street carnival for underprivileged children on Christmas eve.

At North Gate inn, near the University of Arizona campus, several Chicagoans will join in simple Christmas festivities. Guests of the proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley W. Davies, formerly of Chicago, include Miss Frances L. Chace, spending her fourth winter in Tucson; Mrs. Henry Patrick, and Miss Ruth Closson, on sabbatical leave from her principal's post in the Chicago school system.

• • •

Others who will miss Lake Michigan breezes this week are Cyril H. Thomas, who formerly stayed at Los Ranchos Perkins and is now at his home in the Catalina foothills; Mrs. William Hunter, at the Wild Horse ranch; Mrs. Charles A. Tapp, who is spending Christmas with friends near El Encanto estates; and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Clark, who have taken a house and studio on North Santa Rita.

Mr. Clark, whose reputation as an artist is in the ascendancy, is painting desert landscapes this winter, while his wife, the former Mary Andersen of the University of Arizona school of music, is well known for her statues in Rockford, Evanston, and in south side public schools. A public showing of her work will be held in Tucson later this winter.

But travel is not altogether in the direction suggested by Horace Greeley's dictum. For the holiday season finds many Chicago students at the University of Arizona homeward bound, trading the sands of the desert for a fortnight of snow and sleet. The simplicity of Tucson life with its levis and cowboy boots will momentarily be forgotten while debutantes, proudly revealing their desert suntan in evening dress, claim their place in the swirl of Chicago society.

Leaving by plane Friday were Susanne Bishop of Evanston; Alice Koldoff of Berwyn; Thomas Chandler of Chicago; Van C. Taggart Jr. of Downers Grove, and Morton J. Mansur of Chicago.

• • •

Among others who entrained yesterday for Christmas at home are Adelaide Read of River Forest; Jacqueline Woodyatt of Oak Park; Beulah Breuer of Glencoe, and Louise Jensen. Also leaving the old pueblo by train were Joan Read of Evanston; Walta Jane Johnson, Rae McCree of Evanston; Leah Dannenberg, and Marjorie Snyder of Evanston.

Among fraternity men driving home are Blaine Gutmacher of Park Ridge; Wayne Arthur Dirst of Chicago; David Johnston of River Forest; Robert Walker of Argo, who drove home with the latter; Wilfred Drolet Jr. of La Grange, and Chris Lauesen of Chicago.

New Roads Avoid Tortuous Curves on Alabama's Hills

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Scores of miles of new pavement, rerouted thru mountains as to avoid tortuous curves, will speed winter tourists to historic and romantic spots in Alabama this season. Two "short routes" from the midwest to Florida were completed thru Alabama several years ago.

Altho U. S. 31 was paved its entire length in Alabama, some midwesterners not familiar with conditions detoured around mountainous areas, particularly out of Birmingham, where this route wound around two "hairpin" curves over Shades mountain. These two curves now have been eliminated by a rerouted four lane highway which makes an angling ascent.

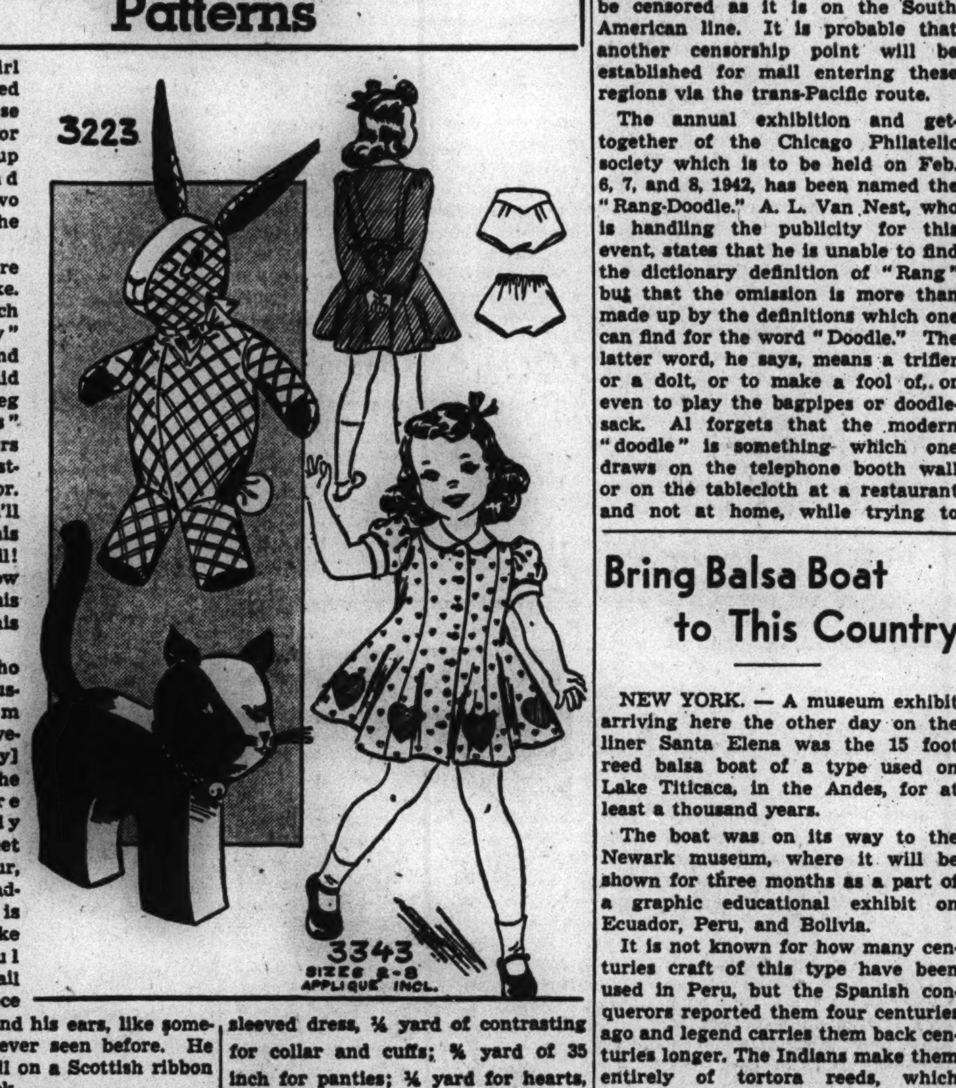
U. S. 31 southward from Nashville, Tenn., touches some of the interesting sections of the south. After crossing into Alabama the traveler first comes to Athens and a few miles further to Decatur, both reflecting the charm of the old south. Birmingham, young industrial giant, and Montgomery, first capital of the Confederacy, also are on this route.

At Montgomery the highway branches, one going to historic Mobile and the southwest and the other into Florida.

Out of Nashville, too, the tourist may take the newest "short route" developed in Alabama. This road, U. S. 241, branches off at Murfreesboro, Tenn., and leads thru Huntsville, territorial capital of Alabama.

Within the last year an unpaved link of U. S. 11 in Georgia has been completed, thus connecting this section of Alabama with the east by an all-paved route. Further south U. S. 29 leads into Alabama to connect with U. S. 80, making a cross state route that traverses the old "cotton kingdom."

Clotilde Children's Patterns



The little girl will be pleased with both these patterns, for they dress her up becomingly and also furnish two stuffed pets she will cherish.

The toys are simple to make. The slightly arch looking "bunny" is handsome and fetching in plaid cottons, with leg bases "hands" and ear interiors in some contrasting plain color. We know you'll be amused by this cottontail's tail! A ribbon bow will dress this rabbit up for his party-going.

The cat, who looks suspiciously at one from under his eyebrows [if any] departs from the laws of nature and is solidly based on two feet instead of four, but all this radical autonomy is designed to make him a useful playmate. His tail is a masterpiece of arrogance, and his ears, like something you've never seen before. He may wear a bell on a Scottish ribbon around his neck.

The dress, a pretty princess style, has heart appliques around the hemline. Both plain and figured fabrics may be chosen for this frock with contrasting collar and cuffs.

Style No. 3223. Bunny 18 inches high requires ⅝ yard of 35 inch checked material, ¼ yard light contrasting, ¼ yard dark contrasting. Cat 10 inch long requires ⅝ yard of 35 inch fabric for body, ¼ yard contrasting for insets.

Style No. 3343 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch material for short sleeved dress, ¼ yard of contrasting for collar and cuffs; ⅝ yard of 35 inch for panties; ¼ yard for hearts, applique for which is included in pattern.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

The Stamp Collector

—By Richard McP. Cabeen—

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The Stamps and Coins advertising column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The early files of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE continue to give up items of interest to stamp collectors and when the complete index of this paper is finished it may be possible to write the history of the local posts of the city with some degree of accuracy.

Recently an item regarding Floyd's deliveries for St. Valentine's day was mentioned. Now a follow-up item on the same subject has been located. This news story appeared on Feb. 15, 1861, that is, on the day following St. Valentine's day, and cannot be quoted in full because of its length. The writer notes that the weather of the day before was particularly inclement and that the streets were almost impassable on account of the mud, but in spite of these handicaps he estimates that about 15,000 valentines were delivered in the city.

While admitting there is no way of determining how many of the messages were handled by Uncle Sam's carrier, the postoffice, he states that between 5,000 and 5,500 were delivered at homes and business places by the 16 messengers employed by Floyd's Penny Post and that several hundred more which were posted late remained to be delivered by that concern the next day.

Floyd's final delivery on Feb. 14 was made at 10 p. m. The article gives some data on the deliveries at various places, both in high and in low society, and states that one young lady in the South Division was the recipient of 117 valentines, while another, the daughter of a poultry dealer in Dearborn street, received 84, of which 43 came in a single delivery.

In spite of the service given by Floyd and others who operated local posts, the government always felt its postoffice was being done out of something and it was a matter of only a few years before legislation was provided which made it a felony for any private person or concern to deliver mail matter for a fee upon any post route in the United States. When the ruling was made that all streets and alleys as well as highways and byways were post routes the local carriers were forced to go out of business.

At about the time the local posts were closed up the postoffice instituted carrier service in many of the principal cities, but no attempt was made at that time nor since to deliver mail as frequently as had been the custom of the private carriers, nor was there any attempt to deliver mail on the same day as received. In recent years it has been the practice to reduce the carriers' trips so that two deliveries per day are the maximum to be expected except in the business sections of the city.

The announcement that Floyd delivered about 5,500 valentines on that day in 1861 comes as a surprise and one can only wonder what has become of the great number of stamps which were affixed to the mail of this local post during the several years of its existence. Stamps are listed in blue, brown, and green, and all are decidedly scarce on the original envelopes and are not in any great demand unless in that form as they were reprinted in various colors during later years and were often canceled to give an effect of genuineness.

U.S.A.

Bernard Keenan has lent this cover from the United States Embassy in India. A diplomatic representative was appointed to India only recently and it is likely no arrangements have been made for the shipment of the diplomatic pouch. This letter came by ordinary post and was not censored.

Perhaps most of the mail matter and circulars delivered by Floyd was consigned to the waste basket at once and what little was saved at the time was destroyed in the great fire of 1871. A few of the finest copies known were found outside the city where they had been sent using Floyd's stamps to carry them to the postoffice and government stamps for the rest of the journey. Readers who have occasion to search old attics should remember that these stamps may be found on handbills, small broadsides, and various trade announcements as well as upon envelopes which had letters or circulars as enclosures.

The Postal Bulletin of Dec. 2 states the rates which will be charged on F. A. M. 22, for bi-weekly airmail service between points in continental United States and various destinations in Africa and Asia. F. A. M. 22 is the newly established route thru Miami, touching at San Juan [Puerto Rico], Port of Spain [Trinidad], Belem [Brazil], Natal [Brazil], Bathurst [Gambia], and Lagos [Nigeria] to Leopoldville [Belgian Congo] and return. The calls at Bathurst are to be made only until provisions for landing at Monrovia [Liberia] have been completed.

The rates, which are per half ounce, include both ordinary postage and air mail where complete air mail service cannot be given to destination. All mail should bear "Par Avion—By Air Mail" stickers.

The list follows: 70c rate—Aden, Afghanistan, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Bahrein Island, Ceylon, Cyprus, Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia, India, Iran, Iraq, Malta, Lebanon, Latakia, Palestine, Saudi Arabia, Somaliland [Br., Fr., and It.], Syria, and Transjordania.

Sixty cent rate—Angola, Belgian Congo, French Equatorial Africa, Cameroons, Kenya-Uganda, Mauritius, Mozambique, Nyasaland, Rhodesia [Northern and Southern], Southwest Africa, Tanganyika, Union of South Africa, and Zanzibar.

Fifty cent rate—Gambia, Gold Coast, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, and Spanish Guinea.

In the 70c rate list mail for Anglo-Egyptian Sudan only should be marked "via Miami." Mail for other destinations will be dispatched by the quickest route, which depends on scheduled departures. In the 60c and 50c rate lists mail for all destinations should be marked "via Miami."

Since Trinidad is a port of call for this service the mail no doubt will be censored as it is on the South American line. It is probable that another censorship point will be established for mail entering these regions via the trans-Pacific route.

The annual exhibition and get-together of the Chicago Philatelic society which is to be held on Feb. 6, 7, and 8, 1942, has been named the "Rang-Doodle." A. L. Van Nest, who is handling the publicity for this event, states that he is unable to find the dictionary definition of "Rang" but that the omission is more than made up by the definitions which one can find for the word "Doodle." The latter word, he says, means a trifler or a dolt, or to make a fool of, or even to play the bagpipes or doodlesack. Al forgets that the modern "doodle" is something which one draws on the telephone booth wall or on the tablecloth at a restaurant and not at home, while trying to avoid buying tickets to the next charity ball or more life insurance. To this writer "Rang" appears to be just the preterit of "ring," but there is an old Scots meaning of "rank" attached to the word also. In spite of the fact that no one can make any sense out of the title those who attend are promised a new and interesting definition.

Entry blanks and bourse information may be obtained by addressing Chicago Philatelic Society Stamp Show, 58 West Washington street, Chicago.

The third [1942] edition of Haydon's Standard Burolist, a complete catalog of United States Buroprinted Precanceled stamps, has just been released by the publisher. Mr. Haydon uses a simplified numbering system which appeals to many collectors and which has proved very workable in the case of the new narrow spaced buroprints for which he substitutes the lower case letters "d" and " " for the capitals used for the wide spaced precancellations.

The list shows about 75 halftone illustrations which make it an easy reference book for the less expert collectors. It is priced at 50c and may be obtained from the publisher, the Praker Haydon company, 2125 Center street, Berkeley, Cal.

Bring Balsa Boat to This Country

NEW YORK.—A museum exhibit arriving here the other day on the liner Santa Elena was the 15 foot reed balsa boat of a type used on Lake Titicaca, in the Andes, for at least a thousand years.

The boat was on its way to the Newark museum, where it will be shown for three months as a part of a graphic educational exhibit on Ecuador, Peru, and Bolivia.

It is not known for how many centuries craft of this type have been used in Peru, but the Spanish conquerors reported them four centuries ago and legend carries them back centuries longer. The Indians make them entirely of tortora reeds, which abound on the shores of Lake Titicaca and other waterways. Three bundles of reeds of boat length are lashed together to form the hull, which in shape resembles a Dutch wooden shoe. A tortora reed sail on two not-too-straight masts adds to the picturesque appearance as well as the utility.

The balsa boat has been made in exactly the same way for centuries and is still a factor in commerce. It is the "market wagon" of the Andean Indian farmer and trader and is capable of carrying heavy loads of produce.

Railroad Built at Huge Cost of Human Lives

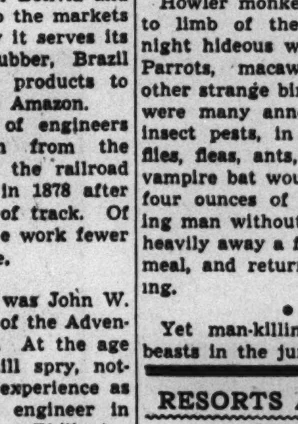
[This is the 88th story of a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

PORTO VELHO, BRAZIL. The building of the Madeira-Mamore road in the western frontier of Brazil was the world's most perilous task of rail construction. The first five miles of track were laid at a cost of uncounted thousands of lives. The railway is 225 miles long and it has been said, and never disputed, that "each crosstie rests upon a human skull." The exact number of men who died is not known, but is estimated to be more than 10,000.

The road runs from Guajara Mirim to Porto Velho, from the Mamore across country to the Madeira river. Nineteen waterfalls and many miles of rapids, among them the "Cauldron of Hell," make the two rivers impossible to navigate above Porto Velho, to which point river boats can come up the Madeira-Amazon rivers.

• • •



Three thousand miles of river transportation to the Atlantic is easier and cheaper than transporting by muleback over the three ranges of the Andes mountains to any port on the Pacific. In fact, the latter is impossible commercially.

The Madeira-Mamore railroad was conceived and designed to afford eastern Bolivia and western Brazil access to the markets of the world, and today it serves its territory by taking rubber, Brazil nuts, hides, and other products to the head waters of the Amazon.

The first expedition of engineers and construction men from the United States to build the railroad came to a tragic end in 1878 after laying only five miles of track. Of 750 men engaged for the work fewer than 500 returned alive.

• • •

Among the survivors was John W. Clarke, later a member of the Adventurers' club of Chicago. At the age of 88 years he was still spry, notwithstanding his early experience as a pioneer construction engineer in South America and the Philippine Islands. He weighed 135 pounds when he went into the jungles of Brazil; 85 pounds when he came out.

I have listened to "Dad" Clarke's stories, read the official publication, "Recollections of an Ill-Fated Expedition"; also "The Jungle Route," by Frank Kravigny, a veteran of the second and successful expedition, and I have traveled over the railroad. All sources of information boil down to these facts:

The 100 feet wide right of way is thru a dense, swamplike jungle. The trees are so close together, and so intertwined with tropical bushes, creepers, and vines, that men armed with machetes to cut their way thru can go less than 100 yards a day, and it is so dark in the jungle that lanterns are required. So thick is the forest in spots that a tree will not fall when cut; it is held upright by creepers binding it to other trees.

• • •

Hostile Karipun Indians lurked all about. Several members of the construction gang were found with three or four long arrows piercing their dead bodies. Savage jaguars continually circled about the camp. There were venomous serpents under foot. Huge boa constrictors, one 25 feet long, were encountered.

The rivers and creeks were infested with crocodiles, man-eating piranhas, and electric eels. The last named, three to four feet long, half fish and half electric generating organs, are strong enough to kill or render insensible any animal required for food.

Howler monkeys swung from limb to limb of the trees, making the night hideous with their loud roars. Parrots, macaws, parakeets, and other strange birds flew about. There were many annoying and poisonous insect pests, in addition to spiders, flies, fleas, ants, and mosquitoes. A vampire bat would suck from two to four ounces of blood from a sleeping man without waking him, flutter heavily away a few yards, vomit that meal, and return for a second helping.

• • •

Yet man-killing natives, ferocious beasts in the jungle, and death dealing denizens of the waters were less feared than were the diseases that seemed to infest the fetid air. In 1878 little was known of the fever-carrying ability of the anopheles mosquito or other germ bearers.

Negro and Indian laborers, white foremen, and executives died by the dozens daily at every camp. The worst scourges were the fevers—jungle, typhoid, malaria, black water, and yellow. Dysentery and beriberi took terrible tolls of human life. It is a matter of record that the construction company bought quinine in 50,000 pound lots to fight the fever. The workers took 10 to 20 grains of quinine each daily—and still the fevers raged. A group of 75 men deserted the work camps; started over the mountains to the Pacific, and evidently were lost, for no trace of them ever was found.

The gangs of laborers did not consist wholly of Negroes and Indians. Adventurers from many countries participated in the enterprise. They included Bolivians, Cubans, Brazilians, Jamaicans, Colombians, Chileans, Ecuadorians, Spaniards, Russians, Greeks, Sicilians, and Chinese. What a babel of tongues there must have been when the original pro-

Travelers Will Miss These 2 Luxury Liners

By Frederic Babcock.

Announcement that the United States government had seized the Normandie and taken over the Kungsholm did nothing to relieve the gloom of Americans who like to go cruising—and particularly those Americans who have ever gone cruising on either the Normandie or the Kungsholm.

In many respects, but in different ways, those two were tops in cruise ships. The French liner is the biggest, perhaps the fastest, and certainly the fanciest steamer ever built. The Swedish liner is much smaller, and not so fast, and her fanciness takes on a more restrained tone. Both are ultramodern in design, and each has—or has had—a clientele that swears there is no other ship like it.

• • •

On a broadcast over W-G-N the other night this writer was asked to tell something about the Normandie. This was the information we tried to convey:

Originally the French vessel had a gross tonnage of 79,280, but later this was increased to 83,423. The Normandie is 1,029 feet long and 119 feet wide. In peacetime she had a crew of 1,345 and was capable of carrying 1,972 passengers. Thus her total capacity was 3,317 persons.

On her first trip across the Atlantic, in June, 1935, the time consumed was 4 days 11 hours. In 1937 she made it in 3 days 23 hours. Her top speed was better than 33 knots.

• • •

Construction of the Normandie was started in January, 1931, and the launching took place in October, 1932. She was streamlined thruout. Her great length, with the huge sun deck on top, provided an ideal surface from which, with a little change [such as is now being undertaken by direction of the government], airplanes might be launched or on which they might land. Instead of coming up in the center from the boiler room, the funnels popped up on the sides. Thus conversion into an airplane carrier could be easily effected.

The ship was lavishly decorated. She was built at a reported cost of $65,000,000. [The rival Queen Mary, only 2,000 tons smaller, cost $25,000,000.] She was a floating city. No one who has ever seen her vast dining salon [three decks high and more than 300 feet long], her ornate public rooms, and her whole appearance of sumptuousness can forget the spectacle she offered.

• • •

Built in Hamburg in 1928, the 20,067 ton Kungsholm for years was a favorite of Americans wishing to cruise to the North cape in summer and to the West Indies in winter. Prior to her seizure a week ago, she was the only cruise ship operating out of New York under a foreign flag. Her top speed was 17 knots. Capable of carrying more than 1,200 persons, her passenger list on the pleasure voyages was usually held to around 500. Her total for 20 such voyages this year was more than 8,400.

The Kungsholm has been dubbed "a white castle afloat." She is a gleaming motor liner, designed with all the grace of a yacht. She is sootless and virtually dustless. "Swedish modern" has come to stand for the best in furniture and interior decorating, and this motif was carried out in the Swedish ship's public rooms and staterooms. Any one who has ever been aboard is apt to talk for years afterward about her splendid murals, her leather-walled salons, her luxury swimming pools, and her atmosphere of friendliness.

Travel to Park Breaks Record

WAYNESVILLE, N. C.—The trend toward extended mountain travel seasons was in evidence in western North Carolina in October, when records in the Great Smoky Mountains National park exceeded all previous marks for that month.

Despite the prolonged drouth, which impaired the fall color show accompanying the changing of mountain foliage, travel was 43 per cent above that for the corresponding month last year. The park census accounted for 120,911 visitors in 39,315 vehicles.

YACHTING ENTHUSIASTS AT MIAMI

The Miramar section of Biscayne bay, just north of the Venetian causeway, is the scene of Sunday sailing races for every type of small craft. This is a typical group preparing for an afternoon's sport.

moters acknowledged failure, abandoned the project, and word went forth that the work would end!

So unexpected and sudden was the stoppage of work in 1879 that an engine was left standing in the jungle at the far end of the track.

In 1910—more than 30 years later—the project of building the Madeira-Mamore railroad was revived by another North American construction company, and this time it was carried to a successful conclusion. Progress had been made in fighting fever and other tropical diseases; supplies of food, as well as temporary housing conditions, were improved. Nevertheless, the dense jungle, with its terrifying inhabitants, still had to be fought. After two years it was beaten, and trains began to run.

Chicago was also represented in the second expedition. Among the engineers who finished the job were Robert S. Arthur, George L. Judson, and Leslie E. Miner, who returned safe but not well after their ordeal in the wilds of Brazil.

Bob Arthur found that engine standing on the sunken track and covered with jungle growth where Dad Clarke had left it 32 years before. A tree was growing out of the smokestack. The old engine was reconditioned in 1912, put back in service, and is pulling its load regularly today.

Tampa Furnishes Games for Guests

TAMPA, Fla.—The focal point for recreation of Tampa winter visitors is a clubhouse on the bank of the Hillsborough river. This is the tourist center in Plant park, where thousands gather to play games, pass the time of day, dance, and have picnics and parties.

The shuffleboard club, with more than 2,500 members, holds tournaments each week.

An indoor games club, providing recreation such as checkers, bridge, and bunco, has a membership of more than 300.

Mining Town's Yule Festival Draws Throngs

Madrid, N. M., Dec. 20 [Special].—Nearly all the rest of the world has gone to war, but this little coal mining town once more has started its unusual celebration of the birth of the Man of Peace.

Madrid's Christmas festival got its start 15 years ago when a few community spirited miners set out evergreens in their otherwise barren front yards. The effect of the decorated trees was so pleasing that other miners joined in the practice the following year. Later the idea was taken up by the Employés' club of the Albuquerque and Cerrillos Coal company, operator of Madrid's four mines.

Mechanically adept workmen were encouraged to lend their talent to a lighting festival. The result was a spectacle featuring scenes of the nativity, displays set in motion, and a toyland that now covers most of the town's baseball field.

Everything is illuminated. This year's lighting began two weeks ago and will last until the end of the holidays. It provides a strange contrast to the drabness of the surrounding country.

Last year the spectacle drew between 60,000 and 80,000 visitors. More than 100,000 are expected this season. Despite its success the show has remained noncommercial.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experience are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

FROM A TRIBUNE TRAVEL WRITER.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—To the Travel Editor:

I am sitting tonight by a Christmas fire,
Dreaming in slippers and robe,
While memories unwind, like a film thru my mind,
Of my wanderings all over the globe.

I did my first traveling by carriage
Back in the '80s [heigh ho!]
Since first I rode in it, there's scarce been a minute,
When I haven't been on the go.

I've loafed aboard luxury liners,
On freighters I've taken my ease,
I've made oodles of trips in all manner of ships
Over all of the Seven Seas.

I've sailed in a sampan, a schooner, a junk,
I've canoed over rivers and creeks,
I've seen a big whale in a walloping gale,
But I have never yet seen the old Styx.

At Angkor I perched on an elephant's head,
In Lapland I rode in a pulka.
Over China's Great Wall, four coolies did haul
My practically featherweight bulka.

I've ridden in box cars a number of times,
And on streamliners traveled in style.
On a camel I've posed 'neath the Sphinx's nose
In the far-away land of the Nile.

I've bounced in a buggy at Durban,
O'er the Andes I've flown in a plane.
[I explored those same peaks on a donkey for weeks
But I'll never do that again!]

As I sit tonight by the fireside,
I'm not thinking of hearth and home,
But of great open spaces and far away places
Where some day I'm hoping to roam.

My suitcase is ready and waiting,
All packed with a number of things.
I've not been to Tibet, but I'll get there yet,
For I dreamed Santa brought me some wings.

Merry Christmas to friends everywhere;
Bon Voyage thru the coming New Year!

A MINING TOWN AT CHRISTMAS.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—To the Travel Editor: In today's paper there was quite a lot about Mexico. I read and liked all of it. But I wondered why your writers did not tell of some of the wonderful places to be visited on the trip to and from Laredo.

We made the trip a year ago, and on our return went west to New Mexico and to the little mining town of Madrid, about 50 miles north of Albuquerque.

At Christmas Madrid is so beautiful that words are not sufficient to describe it. There are only about 500 persons in the town, yet every home has a Christmas tree on the porch, and the whole community is splendidly decorated. The story of the Nativity is portrayed in scenes in the surrounding mountains.

I have never met any one who has seen the town at Christmas time. I'm surprised the scene has not been made into a movie short. Madrid is right on the way to southern California, and it is worth any one's while to stop there at this time of the year.

MARGARET R. JOHNSON.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—To the Travel Editor: Last summer some one was kind enough to send my name to your "shut-in" column, and since then I have received many beautiful cards and letters. I wish I could thank each of your readers individually, but that is impossible. So I take this means of expressing my gratitude.

All of the friendly greetings and letters of encouragement made me very happy. May God bless every one of the persons who are so thoughtful and generous in their treatment of the less fortunate!

I also want to thank THE TRIBUNE for the marvelous work it is doing on behalf of the shut-ins. No one except an invalid or a cripple can realize how much happiness and comfort the shut-in column in your paper is bringing to those whose lives otherwise would be so drab and cheerless.

I can only wish you and your readers the finest Christmas and New Year you and they have ever had.

MRS. LARUE HARALSON.

Waukesha, Wis., Dec. 15.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank all the splendid persons and new found friends who remembered me with so many fine letters and cards while I was in a government hospital for disabled veterans of the World war. I am now convalescing in the United States Resthaven annex in Waukesha. My gradual recovery has been greatly aided by the thoughtfulness of your readers. Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all of them!

EUGENE DEMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—To the Travel Editor: Several days ago I wrote The Tribune Travelers' Guide for folders on Arizona. They have now been received, and they contain the exact information I needed. Many thanks! C. MAYER.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank the many persons who sent me cards and letters after my request had been published in your columns. I received greetings from all over the country. I didn't realize that THE TRIBUNE was read so widely. I hope other shut-ins will be as fortunate as I have been. A. HOWIE.

West Terre Haute, Ind., Dec. 2.—To the Travel Editor: I am writing to thank you for listing the name of my grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Patterson, among the shut-ins. She is 84 years old and has been bedfast for the last seven years. So to say she enjoyed the beautiful cards and letters would be putting it mildly. Please thank all the readers who so kindly remembered her.

MRS. DAVID STARK.

Oak Forest, Ill., Dec. 2.—To the Travel Editor: I have been paralyzed all my life. I shall be 53 years old Dec. 21. This will be my fourth Christmas in the infirmary. I greatly enjoyed the cards I received from your readers last year, and I wonder if any one would care to write me again this year. It is highly cheering for a shut-in when the mailman brings him a card or letter. It shows that some one is still thoughtful. My address is Hospital No. 5, Oak Forest.

DAVID ERICKSON.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other TRIBUNE readers are invited to send cards and letters to those unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests have been received since the last previous list was published:

Palm Beach a Riot of Color for Christmas

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

For those who like any color just so it's red, Palm Beach at Christmas time assuredly is a paradise. It's a living postcard in scarlet, green, silver, and gold, produced by the master artist, Nature, with various and sundry additions made by the hand of man.

You really have no idea how glorious scarlet can be until you see huge poinsettias growing en masse along a garden wall. At night the flowers are flood lighted and glow in almost unearthly beauty. Hedges of deep crimson hibiscus flaunt their tropical loveliness under the palms, while beds of scarlet sage, bougainvillea, and ixora complete a picture which artists have tried in vain to duplicate.

Worth avenue again is a Christmas tree lane, with lights winking from garlands of greenery extended the length of the thorofare. Shop windows are treasure chests of richness and beauty.

Regardless of war, the interest of many resorters is focused on Miami, where the racing season at Tropical Park opened yesterday. Two well known resorters, Charles and Gurnee Munn, are officials of this track under the new setup.

Meanwhile many are attending the schooling races at the greyhound track, west of Palm Beach. Dog racing, which is under the supervision of the state, is scheduled to begin the night of Dec. 27.

It is said it is impossible to "fix" a dog race, and state officials exercise due care to protect bettors. Many wagerers have systems all worked out, using the signs of the zodiac, numerology, or what not. The fact remains that favorites don't always win, and when some "dark horse" of a dog comes in first, great is the rejoicing among the favored few who put their money on his pointed nose.

Racing dogs are pampered. The greatest care is taken of their health and well being, and the public is said to be carefully protected against unscrupulous dealing. A strict "Bertillon" system guards against the running-in of substitutes or "ringers." Every dog has definite markings by which it is identified. These are checked and diagrammed on a card made out by the paddock judge. Each scar and every peculiarity of color are noted. Any unusual feature of build is jotted down. As the eight dogs go into the paddock to chase the little electric rabbit, the paddock judge checks each one with the card. When the dogs go to the post the patrol judge takes the cards to the associate judge, who looks them over carefully. Thus the racers are checked and double checked. Before these precautions were taken it was whispered that dishonest owners had painted or bleached their dogs to resemble some favorite, or had disguised dogs which had been disqualified.

Upon these racing dogs depend the fortunes of their owners, so the dogs are scientifically fed. Each animal receives a pound and a half to two pounds of food a day. This consists of high quality ground beef and bran, milk, and chopped raw vegetables. The dogs are washed and curried daily. In all their pampered lives these dogs have never really come face to face with a flea. Except on the days they race, each greyhound is walked seven miles a day. Dogs that participate in a race are all weighed in by 6 o'clock that evening. From then on until race time they are kept in separate stalls in a shed known as the "ginny pit." Just before the race the dog is again weighed and an attendant gives each a thoro inspection. He will open the dog's mouth, examine the eyes, ears, nose, and feet. This is to be sure that no one has inserted a sponge in the nose, blinding drops in the eyes, or put a pebble between the toes. After the race an attendant walks the dog for about two hours before it is fed, watered, and bedded down for the night.

More than 200 attended the opening tea at the Society of Four Arts last Sunday. The afternoon was a wee bit chilly, but not cool enough to bring out fur jackets. The most popular modes seemed to be shirtwaist dresses in muted colors, and prints, worn with belted jersey jackets in matching shades. Mrs. Ann Poeller is again with the Four Arts. Dr. Daniel J. McCarthy has resigned the presidency and has been succeeded by Joseph Frederick Munster.

Sale of the Wolcott Blair house on South Ocean boulevard to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred P. Sloan Jr. of New York caused a distinct ripple in Palm Beach. The sale price was said to be slightly more than $150,000. The property includes 275 feet of ocean to lake property, with swimming pool and tennis courts on the lake front. The handsome Georgian house was built in 1935. One of the last events of social significance given there by the Blairs was the cocktail party at which they entertained last spring in honor of the duke and duchess of Windsor. Mrs. Blair and the duchess were friends during school days.

Mr. and Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett of Chicago have opened their villa, Valmar, in the Hobe Sound colony. Their sons, Charles L. Bartlett, a Yale man, and David Bartlett, from St. Mark's, are joining them this week-end. Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell and her daughter, Miss Ann Mitchell, are at their Ocean boulevard estate, Ocean Blown.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rooney of New York will join Mrs. Rooney's mother, Mrs. Grant Warren Spear, at La Boliche for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont III. of Lake Forest are at the Brazilian Court. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dudley Jr. of New York are honeymooning at the home of the bride's father, Messmore Kendall, on Indian road.

Fishing in waters adjacent to Palm Beach has been fine. Mackerel, kings, and sailfish have been plentiful, and anglers are now praying for a run of blue fish.

WED IN 1850 BRIDAL GOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Loring W. Coleman Jr. were married on Dec. 6 in Boston, Mass., where they will make their home. The former Katinka Podmaniczky, daughter of Mrs. Guy Warren Walker of Boston and of Baron Tibor Podmaniczky of Budapest, Hungary, wore a moire brocade gown made from silk which was brought from France in 1850 for her great-grandmother's wedding gown. Young Mr. Coleman is the son of Mrs. Charles Ellery Thayer of Boston and of Mr. Coleman Sr. of Chicago.

Miss Donnelly Reports:

By Antoinette Donnelly.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

"Take lowered resistance and give it the air," advises Lily Pons, diminutive opera diva, "at least for an hour a day."

The vivacious singer firmly believes in taking winter weather in her dainty stride. Whenever time allows, she invents some excuse for walking, not riding, to her destination, thereby proving that one ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

"It is bad enough for a nonperformer to spend half the winter in a handkerchief," says the tiny singer, "but for a singer it is disastrous. It is necessary for us to look and feel our very best at all times. I have found that the root of winter sluggishness is to be found in improper circulation. That is why plenty of exercise and fresh air is a 'must' on my winter schedule."

Wartime Demands a Moderation of Social Activity

By Helen Bartlett.

Wartime puts a very different slant on the social activities of every community in the 48 states. A people worried about its country and its welfare, and about members of individual families, is not the least bit interested in celebrating with gay parties of the formal variety. They are much too occupied and preoccupied with the problems of a country at war.

Neither is it patriotic to fritter away large sums of money on expensive parties. Those dollars will do much more good in defense bonds.

Small social gatherings will continue, of course. Under the stress and strain, they help to keep up the spirit and the morale, but expenses should be kept down. Parties should be informal, making it unnecessary to wear formal clothes. That includes weddings, too. Keep them small and intimate.

And modest.

CORRECTION in article on men's formal attire which appeared in this section on Dec. 14.

The dinner coat, or tuxedo, as it sometimes is called, is much like a sack coat, cut straight around without tails, and single or double breasted. The lapels, or shawl collar, are faced with silk grosgrain or satin. The single breasted coat is considered the dressier of the two styles. With a dinner coat is worn meticulous white linen, stiff bosomed shirt, and wing collar preferred, or soft shirt and turndown collar for more casual events. Wear a black bow tie, black waistcoat, black patent leather or dress kid shoes, Homburg or folding opera hat.

How can you make people like you? Tips on how it can be done are given in the booklet. "Charm and Self-consciousness," by Helen Barlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Household Forum

by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some favorite household help, something that lightens labor? Is there some comfort you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. L. Smith, Chicago—With space at a premium in so many homes and apartments, why not drawer space beneath all kitchen and dining room chairs—for linens, silverware, towels, etc? Some sort of catch could prevent drawer from slipping out when chair is tilted.

Mrs. T. Harrison, Chicago—Before putting soil in a flower pot I drop a bottle cap over the opening at bottom. In this way dirt won't pack too firmly over drain. A bottle cap has a crimp rim and this allows excess water to escape easily.

Mrs. Dora Norton, St. Paul, Minn.—Why not snow guards as standard equipment on all roofs, to prevent snow from overloading gutters or dropping like an avalanche from roof and damaging shrubbery beneath the roof?

Joyce F., Oak Park—Why not popularize sets of reflector buttons for footwear so they can be snapped on and off easily and worn by young and old who have to walk the highways by night? It would be a help to motorists and pedestrians alike, as the headlights of an oncoming car would turn the pedestrian into a "walking danger signal."

Mrs. Harold S., Maywood—Why not build in all typewriters, as standard equipment, a small compartment to house the ever needed typewriter eraser?

Now—Please—Your Idea.

Usual Social Whirl Goes on in the Miamis

MIAMI, FLA.

The Miamis, mindful of the morale for which personal responsibility is felt, will maintain the usual social routine with plans for Christmas festivities surpassing any previous year. Streets are ablaze with lights, greens, and other elaborate decorations outdoing former years.

Welcoming parties, planned and impromptu, greet homecoming Miamians, winter residents and guests. Every day's program provides for many types of patriotic service. Red Cross rooms are filled to overflowing. No one thinks of postponing such work until "after the holidays."

Defense gardens are providing some of fortune's favorites with the thrill of serving first fruits of their labor—many of them for the first time in their lives knowing the satisfaction of producing from the soil luscious additions to the family fare.

Clubs of the resort, with full programs, are open informally to members earlier than ever before, due to earlier arrivals. The Committee of 100 has begun its annual series of Tuesday night meetings with world famous speakers. The organization includes national and international leaders in industrial, financial, educational social worlds who own winter homes in Miami Beach. A wide range of subjects is presented each season.

Vilhjalmar Stefanson, explorer, will give the first lecture of the new year Jan. 6. His subject is "Abolishing the Arctic."

Chicago members already settled in their winter residence include the I. N. Bilderbacks, who own a home in Coral Gables; the Junior William Atwills, who have been here for some time; the I. W. Rodgers and Dr. and Mrs. William T. Gilman.

The Bath club, oldest of the "millionaire clubs," will open the season with its 15th annual Christmas tea-dance tomorrow. Younger members of the club families here for the holidays will spend the usual hectic holidays, when days and nights are filled with festivities planned for them and their guests from northern schools whom they bring south for Christmas. The club pool is filled and will be in constant use the rest of the season.

The Caribbean café and Patio service at the Surf club will open today. Cabanas and swimming pool already are in service. Following the Orange bowl game on New Year's day, officers and directors will return to the club for a reception to which they have invited all members and their friends.

The Indian Creek club, with the most beautiful swimming pool in the south, at last has put the pool to the use for which pools usually are built—swimming. The pool was filled two weeks ago and is in daily use. The club grill and cocktail lounge was opened last Sunday. The club occupies an island in Biscayne bay, with member homes surrounding the clubhouse.

The golf course, said to be the most perfect in the world, was designed, then pumped "to measure," from the bottom of the bay. David J. Molloy of the Glen View club is president.

The Quarter Deck club, a country club 10 miles at sea, has been the scene of much activity among the boating fraternity thruout the summer.

The Biscayne Bay Yacht club, oldest in the area, held its first reception for new members 10 days ago with club commodores and committee heads with their wives in the receiving line.

Tho many of the larger yachts, turned over to the government, will be missed from Biscayne bay waters, their owners have replaced them with smaller craft. Much of the joy of life in the Miamis is found on its inland waterways, cruising among the keys to fishing clubs along the lower east coast, and out onto the waters of the Gulf stream, just off shore.

Miami's Symphony orchestra series was opened last Monday night with Rose Bampton, Metropolitan Opera star, as soloist. Chicagoans whose names were listed among early reservations include the George A. Hughes and their daughter, Mary Hughes Call; the Albert Picks and the John Bitters. Mr. Bitters is conductor of the orchestra. Mrs. Bitter, formerly of Chicago, is a daughter of the late Dr. Albert Abraham Michelson, noted physicist.

The Herbert W. Youngs, have arrived and so have the Harvey Hansens and their daughter, Janice. Mr. Hansen will commute between here and Chicago but will be here for the holidays.

The Orange Bowl fashion show to be held under the stars in Bay Front Park on the night of Dec. 30 will make a strong bid for the establishment here of an American fashion center. Miami designers and manufacturers are coöperating in the creation of new models for the show.

The turf crowd awaits with interest announcement of the complete list of boxholders of revamped Tropical Park since the track was taken over by Palm Beach and New York's Herbert Bayard Swope, Gurnee and Charles Munn and Henry L. Strauss, known in café and financial society circles.

First report was that the Brook club in Surfside would not be operated this winter, but more recent reports are that it will open later in the season to retain its clientele.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, December 18, 1893.

Dear Julia: Will and I have been sitting by our blazing wood fire in our Rush street house reading the news from Hawaii—the probability that its provisional government will become a national government, with Queen Liliuokalani permanently deposed. President Cleveland has been very unwise, Will thinks, in offering to help restore the queen to her throne. His attempt at such a restoration will not be successful, says Will, but he thinks the President's action will make the United States unpopular with the new republic. The people of Hawaii are anxious for a government in which they have liberty, and they will not be denied it.

Queen Liliuokalani realizes this, apparently, for she declined the President's offer of troops to help her regain the throne, and apparently has decided to accept the situation with what grace she may. She has many gifts, her songs and poems are quite lovely, but no matter how worthy she may be as a woman, there would be constant danger to her if she were imposed on the people.

Will thinks the new nation will be recognized by all the great powers and he says he only hopes our country has not forfeited its place in Hawaii's esteem by President Cleveland's mistake, as Will terms it. It was all the worse, because President Harrison and the senate had given many evidences of interest in the Hawaiians' struggling for freedom, and it must have been a shock to them to have this favor withdrawn by a new President.

O, well. I won't bother my head about something so far away.

A piece of news which is of greater importance to us is that the Yerkes observatory is to be located at Lake Geneva, Wis. We saw that in today's paper. The erection of this great scientific annex to the University of Chicago will be begun as soon as weather permits in the spring. It was at first intended to build the observatory in Chicago, but it was soon discovered that there were objections to a city location for it, chiefly the smoke of Chicago. Prudent advisers said it would not be safe to place the great telescope within 30 miles of the city. Learning that a country location was needed, John Johnston Jr. offered the university a tract of 55 acres which he owned at Lake Geneva. A committee consisting of President Harper, Henry Ives Cobb [architect], George C. Walker, Judge D. L. Shorey, Andrew MacLeish, and F. A. Smith, all deeply interested in the university's welfare, inspected the ground and pronounced it perfect for the purpose.

Queen Liliuokalani; last royal ruler of the Hawaiian Islands.

The telescope to be erected will be the largest in the world, even larger than that of the famous Lick observatory, and Henry Ives Cobb has drawn up plans for the building to house it. The glass will be provided by the great firm of Alvan G. Clark and company of Boston.

We have always been star-gazers in Chicago. The old university, which preceded the present one, had a telescope which at the time was the largest in the world, tho it was only 18½ inches. The one to be installed at Lake Geneva is to be 40 inches.

Mr. Yerkes, the donor, is the street car magnate, you know. He has amassed a fortune here and seems to be making acknowledgment of his indebtedness to Chicago by this gift. A strange man he is, not to Will's liking altogether, but we must be grateful for what he is doing for the university.

And now, my dear, I must stop my congenial occupation of writing to you and work on some Christmas gifts which aren't quite done. I'm making an embroidered table cover for Martha Jr. and a dress for little Alexandra, the youngest daughter of the House of MacLeod. Ever with love. MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Queen Liliuokalani, last royal ruler of the Hawaiian Islands, had some superior qualities, but could not maintain herself on the throne, and a provisional government was formed. A republican form of government then was set up, with an advanced constitution. Annexation to the United States was accomplished in 1898. This Hawaiian queen composed the song, "Aloha Oe," sung to travelers arriving and departing from the islands.

A Musicians Club Repeats a Good Deed.

In 1893, the Amateur Musical Club of Chicago gave a concert in Central Music hall, benefiting Provident hospital. This concert was mentioned by "Martha" in a letter to "Dear Julia," and, reading the story, the Musicians Club of Women [formerly the Amateur Musical club] decided to give another concert for this worthy cause. Jan. 12 is the date; Claire Dux, the soloist. More than a hundred sponsors have been enlisted. Almada Biery Jones, president of the club; Marie Sidenius Zendt, Amy Keith Carroll, Louise Hattstedt Winter, and Zoe Kendall Ames are promoting this brilliant affair.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

I am fully aware that most bridge players know little about the laws of the game, and care even less. However, there are thousands of players who like to observe all the amenities and to play bridge as the experts play it. For their sake I present typical questions concerning laws and ethics sent me for adjudication, with my answers.

Question: North-South are vulnerable, with a part-score of 60. South deals and bids a heart. West passes, and North, looking at East's score pad, which shows North-South have 90, passes. South's "Couldn't you call something, partner? We need only 40," disclosed the fact that East's score was erroneous.

I have looked thru the laws but can find nothing covering the case, and would appreciate your ruling.

Offhand, it would seem that if the bidding be considered closed, not only would East and West escape unpunished, but they would actually be given a premium for their mistake—a chance to make a game if they hold the cards next deal. Is that fair?

Answer: The laws say nothing about this situation, so the bidding must be considered closed. That may work a hardship on the player who relies on an erroneous score, but it is fair enough and also the only practical solution. The reason it is really fair is that if a player is relying on an opponent's score, he should look at the score when it is written down to correct possible error. If he fails to do so, he has been guilty of contributory negligence and has no real cause for complaint.

This is also the only practical solution. Such situations always provoke some discussion when the bidding unexpectedly ends; and if the bidding were reopened, the bidding side would be in possession of information to which they were not really entitled.

As far as the offenders are concerned, they should be sympathetic, but are under no legal or ethical compulsion to waive the laws and reopen the bidding. Honest mistakes abound in contract bridge, and the offender loses more than he gains. It would be quixotic to disavow the advantage gained by a mistake made in good faith; moreover it would put on a player the burden of examining his conscience in all irregularities, instead of following a reasonably simple code of laws.

Hearts are trumps. South leads. North and South are to win five tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads a spade and West trumps, North playing the spade queen. West leads the club king, which South wins and leads the diamond jack. If West covers, North trumps; but if West passes, North discards a club. North leads the spade three, putting South in, East discarding the club eight. West the diamond five.

South leads the club jack. West wins and gives North two clubs, or South two diamonds.

If West does not cover the diamond jack, South follows with the smaller diamond, and North trumps, leading a spade, and the high spade and king of diamonds are good for two more tricks.

Question: The other night we had a dispute over a contract of three hearts doubled. At one point in the play declarer turned to the left-hand defender, West, who had doubled the contract and was now hesitating over a discard, and said to him, "Come on, Houdini." The meaning, which escaped no one at the table [and which was freely admitted by the declarer], was that no play by the defense could defeat the contract.

Thereupon West replied, "I think I can beat this hand." A trick later East gained the lead. Thereupon dummy leaned over to him and said, "Well, now your play is obvious."

East thought for a long time and finally made a lead which gave declarer his contract with an overtrick.

In the argument which followed we all agreed that the contract could have been defeated by a different lead after dummy had made his remark. The player who made the bad lead [East] claimed that he had been influenced by declarer's obvious feeling that the contract was ice cold, and also by dummy's remark. We all agreed, however, that careful analysis should have indicated the correct defense.

Should any penalty be exacted for this sort of horseplay by declarer and dummy?

It is a pretty talkative game as a general rule but we seldom hear any statement which affects the bidding or play. In this case we feel that both the declarer and the dummy overstepped the mark.

What should be done about it?

Answer: Nothing can be done about it. The deal stands as played, and declarer scores his contract with an overtrick.

It is quite easy to see that you do have a very talkative game if declarer and dummy feel free to comment on the play during its course. There is nothing wrong with that sort of thing in principle. For myself, there are times when I like nothing better than a jocular, talkative, and slightly rowdy game. It becomes awfully bothersome to be strictly correct all the time!

The rule covering such situations is perfectly clear. If a player is influenced by some other player's unauthorized remark or mannerism, he may base his action on such remark or mannerism—at his own risk. A player in such a situation is like a fish who finds a luscious worm lying around where it has no business to be. If he bites into it and finds a hook inside, he has nobody to blame but himself.

This sort of thing is bound to happen in a talkative game, for no matter how long four players may joke and wise crack without affecting the bidding or play, sooner or later some one is bound to overstep the mark. Then the fat is in the fire but no one can justly be held accountable.

In this case the defender who doubled the contract took the sting out of the declarer's statement by saying that he thought the contract could be defeated. That was surely enough to put the other defender on his mettle. Dummy's statement seems to have no particular significance, except insofar as it may have disturbed the leader's train of thought.
